Fergus Falls, Brainerd, Northland Consolidated

In what retiring Minnesota community college chancellor Dr. Phillip Helland calls "a step in the right direction", the state community college board acted Wednesday in St. Paul to consolidate community colleges in Thief River Falls, Fergus Falls and Brainerd into one operation.

Dr. Alex Easton, president of Northland community college in Thief River Falls for the past eight years, will serve as president of the consolidated operation with headquarters in Fergus Falls. Presidents Cal Heine at Brainerd and Wes Waage at Fergus Falls had previously announced their retirement at the end of this year.

Individual campuses will be under the direction of provosts, Chancellor Helland told the Times following the consolidation announcement. It has been policy of the community college board for presidents to select the provosts and vice provosts at each campus with approval by the chancellor. Dr. Helland said selections have generally come from within the system and likely from the three colleges being combined.

Official change-over will become effective July 1, but Dr. Easton will begin the internal reorganization to consolidate business and personnel functions prior to that time, Dr. Helland said. The reorganization will be somewhat similar to that effected in northeastern Minnesota where several separate campuses were placed under one operation as Arrowhead community college.

Distances involved in the consolidation approved by the state board on Wednesday are considerably greater. The three colleges are amazingly similar in size, with Northland having a winter quarter student head count of 595, Fergus Falls having 597 and Brainerd having 594. Fulltime equivalency at Fergus Falls (491) and Brainerd (454) are higher than Northland (407) because Northland has more non-traditional and part-time students.

Dr. Helland and Dr. Easton both said the change is being made in response to requests by the state legislature for efforts to effect economies in operation. The Arrowhead consolidation was met with high approval by the legislature, Dr. Helland said, and the board believes the current merging of operations will be similarly received.

Most immediate and evident cost saving will be in the elimination of two college president positions. Further operational adjustments in the future would also be expected to effect other economies in operation, but the chancellor said no projections on cost saving had been made.

Chancellor Helland has announced his retirement and a search is currently underway to select his successor. Dr. Helland has been chancellor since the legislature formed the community college board in

NEW DUTIES in an expanded role are being given to Dr. Alex Easton, president of Northland community college in Thief River Falls. Dr. Easton has been appointed by the Minnesota community college board to serve as president of the consolidated campuses of Northland, Fergus Falls and Brainerd beginning July 1. Headquarters for the combined schools will be at Fergus Falls.

Council Meets Fri. Noon Over Bridge Problem

Thief River Falls city council will hold a special meeting with Pennington county board of commissioners and Minnesota department of transportation personnel at noon Friday in council chambers.

Purpose of the meeting will be to discuss plans for reconstruction of Third street which is scheduled for 1985. Since those plans include widening of the Third street bridge to four lanes and will close the street to traffic during construction, concern has been expressed over the ability of First street to serve as a detour. Council members have expressed hope that a project to widen the First street bridge can be completed before Third street is closed.

The two bridges are currently the only places within city limits where the Red Lake river can be crossed by emergency vehicles.

Energy Aid Is Still Available

Northwest Community Action, Inc., Badger, will continue to take energy assistance applications until May 31, 1983.

Persons who have not applied for energy assistance since November 1, and feel they might be eligible should call the office, toll free, at 1-800-542-5004 or area outreach aide Karen Skadsem at 222-3309.

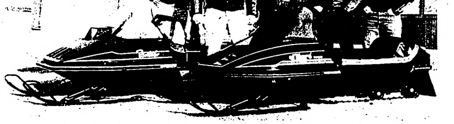
Welfare Board Meets Tuesday

Pennington county welfare board will met Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the courthouse. All members are urged to attend.



THESE TWO MODELS of Arctic Cat snowmobiles will be manufactured in Thief River Falls this year. The Panther and El Tigre models will be produced in a leased area of the former Arctic Enterprises manufacturing plant. Lease arrangements were recently completed with Minstar, Inc., the remaining part of Arctic Enterprises following bankruptcy of its snowmobile operations, by Arctco, Inc., of Thief River Falls. Arctco will use about 100,000 square feet in the central part of the building, allowing the firm to use assembly and paint lines purchased by Arctco but still in place in the plant. Some of the Arctco officials above include (left to right) Brian Espeseth, manager of service and warranty; Ole Tweet, vice president of marketing; Leon Johnson, vice president of operations; Bill Hohn, director of material contracting; and Roger Skime, vice president of engineering.

100,000 Square Feet For Manufacturing . . .

Arctco Leases Space In Former Arctic Building

Arctic Cat snowmobiles will be manufactured this year in a portion of the former Arctic Enterprises building in Thief River Falls, following a lease arrangement completed last week between Arctco, Inc., of Thief River Falls and Minstar, Inc., of Minneapolis.

Arctco, Inc., has the manufacturing and Marketing rights for Arctic Cat snowmobiles and Minstar is the successor to Arctic Enterprises. The lease gives Arctco the use of about 100,000 square feet of space in the central part of the main Arctic plant, and will permit the company to leave a production line and paint line in place for the initial production year.

"This arrangement to utilize the equipment in place and have access to skilled employees should enable us to make a super product," states Ole Tweet, vice president of marketing for Arctco. "We expect to begin moving into the building about May 1, to begin some parts assembly in June and to go into full production about August 1."

Tweet said that dealer orders have been beyond expectations and that the company has made financial arrangements to build more than the initial 2,000 snowmobiles which had been anticipated for first year manufacture. He also stated that arrangements have been made with Suzuki company to provide the engines needed for the machines. Panther and El Tigre models will be produced this year and manufactured to dealer order only. There will be no production beyond secured dealer orders.

The paint line and assembly line at the now vacant Arctic plant were purchased by Arctco at the Arctic Enterprises auction sale last summer. Other equipment also acquired at the sale has been warehoused at the building and now will not have to be moved to a new location. Arctco officials said use of the Arctic building will substantially reduce preparation time for first year production.

Company officials are now actively involved in acquiring manufacturing materials and components while the engineering department is already into design, development and testing of models for the 1985 model line. The two models to be manufactured this year were on display this weekend at the sports show in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Bill Ness, a former vice president of Arctic Enterprises, heads the new Arctco organization as president. Edgar Hetteen, who founded both Polaris and Arctic Enterprises, is also involved in the organization of the Arctco operations.

Other key company personnel include Roger Skime, vice president of engineering; Leon Johnson, vice president of operations; Ole Tweet, vice president of marketing; Bill Hohn, director of material contracting; Rick Stenseth, director of manufacturing; Dennis Zuwalski and Dave Thompson, engineering; Brian Espeseth, manager of service and warranty; and Bev Hanson, secretary and receptionist.

The space in the Arctic building includes some rooms formerly used for office and personnel areas and this space will be used for the company's offices. On a temporary basis the company had headquartered in a condominium on Dale street.

Review of job applications among the nearly 600 who applied for work with the company is now underway by the company and Job Service and it is anticipated that applicants will be notified in May whether or not they have been accepted for employment.

TEN AREA WOMEN were honored Wednesday at a tea sponsored by the Thief River Falls chapter of the American association of university women (AAUW). The women were selected as representatives of all community women who contribute in the areas of religion, culture, family, politics and athletics. Annual Scout Exposition At Arena Sunday

Voyageur Trails district Boy scout exposition will be conducted Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. at the sports arena in Thief River Falls, according to Dave Olin of Thief River Falls, show chairman.

More than 30 scout displays will be set up at the arena, depicting a wide variety of scout skills. Boy scouts, Cub scouts and Venturers from the Seven Oaks and St. Boniface districts of the greater Winnipeg region will join in the event this year.

Participating from the Voyageur Trails district will be Boy scouts, Cub scouts and Explorer posts from Karlstad, Stephen, Greenbush, Red Lake Falls, Lancaster, Warren, St. Hilaire, Badger, Plummer, Argyle, Kennedy and Thief River Falls.

Admission to the show will be $1 per person with those under age 18 admitted free. Sponsoring organization this year is the Thief River Falls Elks lodge.

Lincoln Given Accreditation For 72nd Year

Frank Hamerlinck, principal, has announced that Lincoln high school was accredited for the 1982-83 school year by the North Central association of colleges and schools, at its annual business meeting in Chicago March 23.

Lincoln high school has had continuous yearly accreditation for 72 years, and is one of the 139 high schools accredited by the North Central association in the state of Minnesota.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Langlie And Melek Vows Spoken In This City

Marriage vows were spoken at a double ring ceremony at St. John Lutheran church in this city by Cindy Langlie and James Melek, both of Minneapolis. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Langlie of this city. The groom is the son of Mary Jane Melek of Minneapolis.

Rev. Allen Ashbacher officiated at the ceremony. At the organ was Ruth Jensen playing "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," for the processional. She also accompanied the bride's cousin, Mike Lehrer, as he played the trumpet for the recessional, "Trumpet Voluntary." Soloists were Mike Lehrer singing "Without Your Love," and "God, A Woman, and a Man," and Bonita Knaack, a cousin of the bride, singing "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in white chiffon over qiana jersey gown with a gathered floor-length skirt and a point d-esprit lace yoke outlined by a wide Victorian Chantilly lace ruffle. Her veil of bridal illusion was held by a wreath of white stephanotis and ivy. She carried a cascading bouquet of white stephanotis and ivy accented by four Phalaenopsis orchids.

The bride's personal attendant was her sister, Mrs. Barry Johnson, who also made and designed all the flower arrangements.

Roxanne Nepper, a sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Patty Barry, a friend of the couple, was bridesmaid. They wore green taffeta street-length dresses with a self ruffle around the scoop neckline and at the hemline. Their headpieces were stephanotis wreaths with a ribbon streamer in back; and their bouquets were smaller replicas of the bride's.

The groom was attended by his brothers: Stephen Melek, as best man, and Frederick Melek. Ushers were Chad Johnson, nephew of the bride, and Rick Langlie, a brother.

Special guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Busse, grandparents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Busse, godparents of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Langlie, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, were at the guest book. The rice packets were distributed by Melissa Lund and Lisa Reierson.

A reception and dance followed at the Thief River Falls Country club with the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Gale Langlie as host and hostess. Marlene Lund, cousin of the bride, and Linda Ledin, sister of the groom, cut and served the three-tiered wedding cake made by Margaret Rupprecht. Pouring coffee were Jill Melek, sister-in-law of the groom, and Karen Bresnahan, a friend of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Scott Langlie, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, ladled the punch. Waitresses were Mary Reierson and Marlys Furuseth, friends of the bride.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and is employed by Tubesales Steel company in Minneapolis. The groom is a graduate of Edison high school, Minneapolis and is employed in that city by Edsbyn Sports Inc. The couple is at home in Plymouth. Photo, Ernie's Photography, East Grand Forks

Valley Home Events Reported By Ella Overum

Highlighting the March activities at Valley Home was the potluck supper on Thursday, March 17. Relatives and friends brought a variety of hot dishes, salads, pickles, bars and other goodies, which they shared with the residents. Bill Koskela and Odessie Vraa were prize winners for being dressed in green. At dinner that day, the AVTI students provided candy treats.

Also of special interest was the monthly birthday party with seven residents as honor guests. Honorees noting birthdays and the dates, were Hilda Bach, March 7; Louise Hanson, March 13; Olga Klungness, March 16; Odessie Vraa, March 19, Elmer Everson, March 25; and Caroline Strand and Augusta Clay, both on March 26.

Rev. Arthur Ortman of Warroad attended the birthday party and showed a gospel film to the residents. Fresh caramel rolls were served for lunch. The party concluded with the honoree receiving birthday cards from the Catholic Daughters, as well as a card and cash gift from the Home.

During the month, several of those observing birthdays had private parties with friends and relatives. Caroline Strand served ice cream to all the residents; and Hilda Bach, Augusta Clay, and the activities' coordinator Verna Rood served banana splits to the residents and staff.

New residents welcomed into the home were Francis Skjerping and Mary Welch, together with Ida Peterson, who became a resident in February.

Leading Sunday morning services during the month were LeRoy Knutson, the Wesley Staies, Lester Brekke and Rev. Raynard Huglen of Newfolden.

Devotional services during the week were led by Rev. Carl Johnson on the Seventh-Day Adventist church, Rev. Bernard Lewellin of the United Methodist church; Rev. Bob Moberg of Zion Lutheran church Viking and Oak Ridge Lutheran church; Sister Janice Miller of St. Bernard's Catholic church, Rev. Berton Hushagen of Trinity Lutheran church, who offered Holy communion to the residents; Gary Ellingson, Dean Paskewitz, Don Johnson, the Lowell Trochmanns and Norris Trochmann.

Special programs were given by the Little Oaks and Acorns of the Oak Ridge Lutheran church; the CAP students who showed a film of Wild Life at Jackson, Wyo.; Rev. J.A. Riveness and a group of singers from Karlstad, and the Senior Citizens Rhythm band.

A special Easter program was presented by the CAP students. Included were several readings, Easter hymns, and an Easter egg relay with the women against the men. Ray McGregor guessed the number of jelly beans in the jar.

Also visiting with the residents were members of the Anna circle of Trinity Lutheran church, who served a variety of breads for lunch, and the Hannah circle of Zion Lutheran church in this city, who held their circle meeting in the Royal room.

Hosting special Sunday dinners for their families were Katie Houfek, Marie Anderson, Fannie Burrell and Milda Christenson.

Outside activities included a shopping trip in this city, and attending the Leisure Fellowship program at Zion Lutheran church in this city.

The monthly bowling game with the Oakland Park Nursing home team was held at Valley home with the Valley Home team winning. Carl Ryan had the highest score.

Other activities during March, according to Ella Overum, the Home's reporter, were Bible studies every week with Judith Wold in charge, weekly morning devotionals led by Harvey Dyrud, Mass every Saturday morning offered by the priests at St. Bernard's Catholic church, movies with pop corn, morning exercises, shuffle board, dart ball, and choir and band practice.

CONGRATULATIONS "DIANA"

Hats off to you Diana for being selected by the Thief River Falls Chapter of the American Association of University Women (AAUW).

We are proud of you! And also wish to thank you for a job well done at the Best Western.

Westlund-Schoonhoven Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Evenson, Lake Park, and Mr. and Mrs. Duane Westlund, Hawley, announce the engagement of their daughter, Rebecca Westlund, to Daniel Schoonhoven, son of the Donald Schoonhovens of Thief River Falls.

Miss Westlund is a 1981 graduate of the Lake Park high school and a 1982 graduate of the Practical Nursing program at the Detroit Lakes Area Vocational Technical school. She is employed as an LPN by Emergency Services at Deaconess hospital in Billings, Mont.

Schoonhoven is a 1980 graduate of Lincoln high school. He attended Moorhead State university for two years and is employed in Billings, Mont., by West End Ambulance services as an emergency medical technician.

A July 30th wedding at Houglum Lutheran church, near Lake Park, is planned.

Awards Given At Horticultural Spring Workshop

At the 13th District Horticultural Society spring workshop held recently at Williams, three members were honored for outstanding garden club work during the past 30 years.

Receiving awards for their years of service to the community and district society were Hild Hildahl, a member of the Lady Slipper club, Roseau; Bertina Setran, Grow-Rite club, Badger; and Cecelia Roseen, Green Thumb club, Roseau. Gladys Krohn of Williams made the presentation. She stated that since many members are deserving the honors of their outstanding leadership and participation in garden club work, three winners will be selected each year and will be presented with awards at the spring workshop.

President, Beverly Carlson, Williams, presided at the business meeting. Plans were made for the annual 13th district horticultural show to be held August 20 at Goodridge. Hosting the show will be the Deer Park, Moccasin and Forget-Me-Not garden clubs.

Following round table discussions on a variety of gardening topics, the workshop concluded with a Silver Tea, served by the host clubs: Williams Gardeners and the North Star Garden club of Baudette. Door prizes were won by several members of the 10 clubs represented at the workshop.

Trio Presents Minnesota As State Of Mind

Presentation of Minnesota memories recalled in songs, poetry and tales will be given at 8 p.m. Saturday at Northwest regional library. Entitled "Minnesota, a State of Mind," the program features singer Ross Sutter, writer Annette Atkins and Minnesota poet Barton Sutter.

Performed in three acts, the program includes stories of past and current immigrant experience, poetry and music of the urban experience and concludes with folksongs and oral history relating to the enduring values of the countryside.

Dr. Annette Atkins is presently with the department of history at Saint John's College. Barton Sutter, known for his many published poems and poetry readings, teaches creative writing. Ross Sutter, musician, singer and founder of the Traditional Singers' Folk Club, has recently returned from a performance tour throughout Europe.

Program was conceived as an answer to the question, "Where is Minnesota?" and illustrates that the real Minnesota is found in the hearts and minds of its people.

Written especially for the 1983 Chautauqua, Saturday's performance will be sponsored by Northwest regional library with admission free and open to the public. Funding for the presentation was made possible by the Minnesota association of library friends and the Minnesota humanities commission in cooperation with the National endowment to the humanities.

Marshall Co. Extension Has Volunteer Help

April 17-23, 1983, has been proclaimed by Governor Rudy Perpich as "Volunteer Recognition Week" in Minnesota, reminds Nancy Mathiason of the Marshall county extension service.

Agricultural extension service was created to "extend" the resources of the land grant universities and the department of agriculture to the people of the state and has a long tradition of volunteer service. It is estimated that volunteers donate more than 250,000 hours to their local extension groups or to county and district extension councils and boards each year.

The county extension committee was formed to assist the county extension office with developing and carrying out such activities. The nine-member board in Marshall county contributing to the 1983 program year include chairman Lawrence Bjorness, Newfolden; Mrs. Norman Nelson, Oslo; Mrs. Larence Kuznia, Stephen; Duane Krohn, Viking; Leo Orpen, Middle River; Allen St. Germain, Argyle; Leonard Stoltman, Argyle; Cal Melgaard, Warren; and Chuck Cheney, Warren.

The home economics and family living program depends on many volunteers to deliver the programs to friends and neighbors. Members volunteer for leader training throughout the year, then return to teach the information to club members. The special programs throughout the year are also organized by committee volunteers. Mathiason says this year was especially important for volunteers as many were used to help with the county program review, and help form the vital link which keeps the 30 clubs active throughout the county.

Executive board members for the 1982-83 homemaker program include:

Mrs. Rudy Stanghelle, west council president; Mrs. Linda Gornowicz, vice president; Mrs. Stella Omdahl, secretary; Mrs. Rita Deschene, treasurer; Mrs. Hazel Hurst, historian; Mrs. Jerrilyn Potucek, Mrs. Connie Price and Mrs. Gloria Reister. Members of the east council include Mrs. Cathy Erickson, president; Mrs. Carol Cloutier, vice president; Mrs. Beverly Folden, secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. Frances Meland, historian.

During national volunteer week, the Marshall county extension office salutes the volunteers as ". . we couldn't do it without you!" Mathiason said.

Charley Pride Concerts Set

Country singer Charley Pride will present two shows at 7 and 9:15 p.m. July 22 as part of the Pennington county fair in Thief River Falls.

Shows will be presented in front of the grandstand at the fairgrounds unless inclement weather forces a move to the Lincoln high school gymnasium. All seats are reserved for both performances and ticket prices have been set at $9 and $11. Tickets are available at Holcomb-Knudson and company, KTRF radio and from fair board members.

Mail orders will be accepted when addressed to the Charley Pride Show, The Pennington County Fair, P.O. Box 637, Thief River Falls, MN. 56701. A stamped, self-addressed envelope must accompany the order.

Pride has recorded 38 albums and 43 singles and been nominated for 18 country music association awards.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Featuring recipes from the Kitchen of

Mrs. Richard Lyttle
1304 Arnold Avenue North
Thief River Falls

Hot Milk Cake

2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 cup cake flour
1 tablespoon butter
½ cup hot milk
1 teaspoon baking powder
dash of salt

Method: Beat eggs, add sugar while beating. Add flour, baking powder, salt, then boiling milk to which butter has been added. Batter is very thin. Bake in a 9x13 inch pan in a 350 degree oven, until done when tested. This cake is similar to a sponge cake.

Icing

8 tablespoons brown sugar
4½ tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons cream
¾ cup nuts

Melt slowly until quite thin, add nuts. Spread over hot cake. Place under broiler for a few seconds.

The Lyttles came to Thief River Falls from Nome, Alaska, where they were teaching. While there, Mrs. Lyttle, a former Home Ec instructor was teaching in the elementary grades. Prior to that, she taught in Colorado. Her husband is currently teaching English, history and journalism at Northland Community college.

They have one son, Bill, who, together with his wife arrived last week in Germany. Both are captains in the U.S. Army and will be stationed in that country for the next three years.

Mrs. Lyttle is very active in the work of the Eastern Star. In addition to being Past Worthy Matron, and assisting in the compiling and publishing of the local chapter's cook book, she is a member of the Shrine auxiliary in St. Paul. She also enjoys count cross-stiching and is currently making miniatures for jewelry.

Family Living Project Review Is Conducted

Marshall county home economics family living program underwent an "on-site" review on April 12, in the Newfolden community center. Planning for the review began last January.

Members of the planning committee included: Mrs. Sue Bjorgaard, past home council president; Mrs. Barb Kuznia, member of the county extension committee; Mrs. Bobbi Mischel; Wayne Bendickson; and Mrs. Judy Nelson. The planning committee identified potential review team and review participant members, compiled a county profile and planned the "on-site" review.

Review team members included Mrs. RaeAnn Nelson, county extension committee; Mrs. Jennifer Anderson, Marshall county social service; Deb Schwartz, home economics department, Grygla high school; Sharon Knutson, Norman county extension director; and Jim Lewis, extension specialist, University of Minnesota. Their results were based on the county profile, data from a random telephone survey conducted in March and needs identified from approximately 12 review participants.

Results will be received from the review team this week and presented to study group members at a program planning meeting scheduled later in the month.

The extension staff will implement recommendations and use the review as a basis for programs for the next five years. Review findings will be reviewed and updated on a yearly basis, according to Nancy J. Mathiason, county extension agent.

House Passes Aid To Small Business Bill

House of Representatives governmental operations committee has passed the small business finance agency (SBFA) bill, according to State Representative Wally Sparby, District 1B.

Sparby said this would not be an entirely new state agency. It would carry out some functions transferred from the commissioner of energy, planning and development and expand and give greater visibility to other programs and goals.

The bill would create an enterprise fund to give financial assistance to small businesses — including resorts — and local development corporations. If passed into law and funded with the $30 million asked for, the SBFA would give financial assistance to small businesses including loan guarantees, investments, direct loans and bond issuance costs.

The fund could also guarantee small business finance agency bonds and notes and purchase loan packages made to small businesses by financial institutions.

"Small businesses eligible for funding include those located in areas of high unemployment, those likely to expand and hire additional employees, those experiencing competitive disadvantages because they are in border communities, those which are responsible but cannot get funding elsewhere, those using Minnesota resources to produce products or services, and those in designated enterprise areas or federally designated economically depressed areas," Rep. Sparby said.

The new agency would make indirect investments — such as guaranteeing bank loans — rather than direct equity or loan investments, he added.

"Our state economy needs a shot in the arm," the Thief River Falls legislator said, "and this help to small business development is one way to give it."

Safe At Home May Not Be All That Safe

Being safe at home may not be as safe as you think. In fact, your home may be bulging with hazards to your health and the health of your family, advises the Minnesota Medical association (MMA).

In the safety of the American home there are more than 4,000 disabling injuries and 27,000 accidental deaths annually. Although they are called accidents, follow-ups have shown that many of these mishaps could have been prevented. Falls, fires, poisonings and suffocation represent the four leading causes of home accidents. A safety inventory of the home may be in order.

Falls account for almost half of the home accidents and older people are the most frequent fall victims. To curb falls, start a family pick-up campaign. For a beginning, pick up toys, shoes, newspapers and general litter around the house.

For climbing use solid ladders or step stools — no chairs. Make certain that dark and shadowy areas are well lighted. Clear and sand icy walks and steps. Install stair railings even for short stairways. Remove any litter, shoes, boots or newspapers stored on basement stairways. Use slip proof area rugs, particularly on highly waxed floors.

To prevent fires, provide plenty of ash trays for smokers. Don't smoke in bed. Use decorative candles with care. Don't allow them to burn down. Keep them away from curtains or drapes. Keep fireplace screens in place and tightly fitted. Treat the kitchen range with caution. Avoid blousy sleeves and frilly aprons which might ignite when they come in contact with a burner. Use only safety matches in the home.

Clean out attics, basements and closets on a regular basis to prevent the danger of spontaneous combustion. Keep electrical applicances, cords and sockets in good repair. Replace blown fuses and reset circuit breakers but find out why they blew. Have furnaces and water heaters maintained on a regular basis.

Prevent a poisoning mishap. Remember, proper labeling is vital to poison prevention for adults as well as children. Make every effort to keep poisons, detergents, bleach and other toxic substances, particularly those commonly stored under the kitchen sink, out of the reach of children.

Suffocation accidents can be fatal for infants and very small children. They may choke on food or another small object lodged in the air passage. Keep small toys, beads and beans out of their reach. Check solid foods for lumps and foreign objects. Make certain that the infant's crib is designed to prevent a strangulation accident. Check the bedding and blankets in the crib to prevent suffocation.

Local Students Take Part In Exchange Plan

Two students from Thief River Falls will participate in the national student exchange program next year through Moorhead state university (MSU.

Robert Purdy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Purdy, Sr., will attend the University of Oregon all year to study computer science. Jan Swanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Swanson, will pursue studies in psychology fall semester at the University of Massachusetts at Boston.

Exchange offers a system for students to attend other member institutions without paying non-resident tuition rates. The program is designed to offer students a variety of cultural, educational and geographic experiences with the added benefit of specialized academic programs.

MSU has belonged to the exchange for 10 years and is its only member school in Minnesota.

Spring Vocal Concert Sunday At Trinity

Senior choir of Trinity Lutheran church in Thief River Falls will present a spring concert featuring Vivaldi's "Gloria" and the Prentzel sonata for violin, bassoon and piano Sunday at 3 p.m. at the church.

The concert is under the direction of LaVonne Masters with Cathy Barron as accompanist. Vocal soloists will be LeRoy Aasland, Jan Peterson, Marilyn Wigness, Mike Lehrer, Vi Barr and Karen Barron with a duet including Jan Peterson and Judy Evenson.

Participating in the Prentzel-sonata will be Mrs. Masters, Vi Barr and Jan Klopp. In addition to the "Gloria" presentation, the choir will present works by Shelley, Bach, Mozart, Gounod and Diemer, the latter of which includes a brass quintet and tympani. Les Torgerson is assisting with the brass quintet.

Public attendance at the spring concert is encouraged. There is no admission charge and a reception will follow the concert in the church parlors.

State Juried Art Exhibit Seeks Works

Two new categories of drawings and prints have been added to the previous category of paintings for the 1983 Juried Show for Minnesota artists, the Art center of Minnesota's sixth annual state-wide competition.

Additional funding was received enabling the expansion and also increasing cash awards which total $7,550. One thousand dollars will be awarded for first place, $750 for second place, $500 for third place, three $100 merit awards and $50 acceptance awards to all artists chosen for the show. No entry fee is required.

Jurors for the 1983 show include: Abe Ajay, artist and professor of visual arts at the state university of New York college at Purchase, NY; Annette DiMeo Carlozzi, curator of exhibitions at Laguana Gloria art museum, Austin, TX, and currently a panelist for the Texas commission on the arts; and Judy Youngblood, assistant professor of art at North Texas state university, Denton, TX, and currently a lecturer in etching at the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

For the third year, a major portion of the show will be exhibited in a Twin Cities location. Prints and drawings will be exhibited at two outstate locations to be announced later.

The 1983 Juried show for Minnesota artists is made possible in part through generous gifts from the Jerome, Cargill and General Mills Foundations.

Jerome foundation has also provided $2,000 in funds to be matched by corporations or individuals for the purpose of encouraging the sale of art. Selections will be made from the 1983 Juried show for Minnesota artists. Each work will then be donated to a nonprofit organization of the corporation's or individual's choice. The Art center of Minnesota will not take any commission on work sold through this funding. All money will go directly to the aritsts.

Pre-registration entry cards are due May 4. Artists may submit no more than two works, and the works must have been completed after Jan. 1, 1981. The works may not exceed six feet by six feet including frame, and the artist must be a 1983 resident of Minnesota. Works will be accepted at the Art Center May 12, 13 and 14, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day. Entry forms with additional information may be obtained by calling (612) 473-7361 or by writing: Art Center of Minnesota, 2240 Northshore Drive, Crystal Bay, Minnesota 55323.

Applicants To Academies Are Given Deadline

Congressman Arlan Stangeland announces that young men and women interested in seeking nominations to the U.S. air force, merchant marine, military and naval academies should apply no later than Oct. 1, 1983 for the class entering in June of 1984.

Candidates must be citizens of the United States, legal residents of the Seventh district of the state of Minnesota, unmarried and have no children, and be at least 17 years of age but not past their 22nd birthday on July 1 of the year of admission. All applicants must take the SAT or ACT exams.

The ACT exam will be given June 11 with deadline for registration postmarked no later than May 13. The SAT exam will be given June 4 with deadline for registration postmarked no later than April 29. High school counselors should be contacted for more information on these exams.

Congressman Stangeland bases his selections on SAT or ACT scores, class rank, grade point average, school records, extra-curricular activities, leadership potential, motivation and recommendations.

Young people seeking nominations should write to Congressman Arlan Stangeland, 403 Center Avenue, M-F Building, Moorhead, MN 56560.

Management Of Arthritis Is Promoted

You've got arthritis and there's nothing you can do about it. True or false?

False, according to the Arthritis foundation. There are many things people affected by arthritis can do to control their disease.

Control begins with knowledge of the particular kind of arthritis involved, so early diagnosis and treatment are important, said an Arthritis foundation spokesman. But it falls to the patient to handle the day-to-day activities that can make the difference between being an invalid or an active member of a family and community.

Among the things the person with arthritis can do, the spokesman pointed out, are these:

+ Take medications exactly in accordance with your physician's instruction;

+ Get the exercise — and rest — appropriate to your condition; and

+ Maintain a positive attitude toward coping with arthritis.

The Arthritis foundation has a special message on managing arthritis that may be heard by calling their toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278. A new booklet, "Practical Information", is available free to callers.

Asks Farmers To Plan Cover On PIK Acres

Regulations on PIK acres require that the acreage be protected from wind and water erosion throughout the calendar year, according to Ralph Rundell of the Marshall-Beltrami SWCD.

"Moldboard plowing of last year's residue or a green manure crop will probably leave inadequate protection," he said. "Be sure to plan now how to protect PIK acres from erosion. It may be advisable to plan on seeding a cover crop on PIK acres to ensure compliance with the regulations."

Rundell said it is possible the PIK program may very well also be used in 1984. If the participants all meet the erosion protection requirements this year it is likely that the regulations will remain about the same. However, if many of the participants scarcely meet or fail to meet the requirements this year, they will probably be re-written to be more restrictive in land use alternatives, he added.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

This letter is in regard to the St. Hilaire school facilities and grounds; some food for thought on the effect of actions taken by the mayor and council of St. Hilaire and the Thief River Falls school board.

Can St. Hilaire afford the school and grounds at the present budget? Maintenance to keep the gymnasium, cafeteria and grounds in fair condition would cost at a conservative estimate about $5,000 per year. This includes heating, electricity, insurance, lawn mowing and very little for emergency repairs.

This is only maintenance. There are some costs to be considered before the upkeep cost. If the city of St. Hilaire makes the gymnasium and cafeteria into a community center, remodeling has to be done to make the building accessible to the handicapped. I have no money amount for an estimate, however, I do know there are steps up to the gym and down to the cafeteria from outside. Also, to equip the cafeteria and gym with tables, chairs and gym equipment would be necessary.

I understand that some income could be made by renting the gym and cafeteria for meetings and private parties. Clubs that could use the facilities, such as Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, 4-H, etc., cannot afford to pay much if anything at all. As for private parties, would liquor be allowed? If so, insurance rates will be higher and police should be provided to protect adjacent private properties. Someone will also have to clean afterwards.

Township support is minimal. Five townships said they could support it morally, but not financially. One township said it could give financial support of $500 for the first year only.

The points above are financial difficulties the city would encounter right away. How about later on down the road when, because of improper maintenance of the main building, the state condemns it and the city has to pay for tear down cost. I am fairly sure it would cost in excess of $70,000 to tear down such a structure. Who would pay for this cost?

As near as I can figure the taxpayers of St. Hilaire would be picking up a majority of the financial cost. Just for maintenance, you are talking $5,000 to $6,000. Our present buget is strained; we are still in the black, but not by much. So how much would our taxes rise?

I would also like to know why Mr. Doug Dehnert's bid was turned down by the school board? It would not only help the school district by cutting down on expenditures, because it would have one less building to maintain, but they would have a little more income coming in from taxes on commercial property. I believe the school property includes 14 city lots.

Also, the city of St. Hilaire would benefit. Mr. Dehnert informed the city that for a usage fee we could use the gym and cafeteria. The playground could be made available to the public if the city maintained the playground. The city would not have to pay for maintenance of the gym, but would still be able to use it. The city would also benefit from commercial property taxes received from the 14 city lots.

I feel the school board should know about the council meeting votes for the City of St. Hilaire to place the bids. Out of five special meetings and regular town meetings, except for March 21, 1983 at 7 a.m., the vote was: Council, two for and two against, and mayor against placing a bid for the school. On March 21, 1983 the vote was still two for and two against placing the bid for the school. The mayor changed his mind and said for.

The council is evenly split and I'm not sure why the mayor changed his mind. If the mayor and council would like to see what the majority of the tax-paying citizens of St. Hilaire want, why not have a special election? Then you would know.

I have recently attended the council meeting of April 11, 1983. I realize that some of my figures are estimates, but I feel my estimates are just as close as some that I heard at the council meeting. Why wasn't a feasibility study requested? It could prove your point or at least give a jumping off point.

BSU Schedules Summer CPR, Health Course

Faculty of the health department at Bemidji state university are offering two summer session workshops giving practical information for educators.

From June 1 to 4, A. P. Loeffler will direct the workshop cardiopulmonary resuscitation and CPR instructor course. Class is for classroom teachers who will be teaching basic CPR to students. American Red Cross certification can be earned upon successful class completion.

In addition to the CPR course, the department will offer a school health personnel conference conducted at Cragun's resort in Brainerd. Directed by Dr. Robert Montebello, the workshop will consist of a survey of school health programs and will make specific use of the state of Minnesota department of health publication "Healthy People — The Minnesota Experience". Attention will be given also to other related school health issues.

For cost information and registration materials on these BSU health department workshops, write the workshop director, Physical Education Complex, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601; phone (218) 755-2940.

GF Nutrition Center Given $1.7 Million

An additional $1.7 million has been released by the U.S. department of agriculture's agricultural research service to support the human nutrition center in Grand Forks, N.D.

Terry B. Kinney Jr., the research agency's administrator, said the new funding increases total operating budget at the Grand Forks laboratory for fiscal year 1983 to almost $5 million.

New funding will include $500,000 to equip and furnish a new addition to the center to be completed in September 1983, and $625,00 for a renovation and equipping of the existing building, according to Harold H. Sandstead, center director.

Another $300,000 will go to operational costs and staffing which will allow increasing the number of volunteers to 14.

And, $275,000 will be applied to update a whole body counter with a state of the art detection system for measurement of low levels (safe amounts) of radioactive isotopes used in metabolic studies of humans. Data from this whole body counter can be used to determine how much of a particular nutrient in a food is available for absorption by the body — for example, the effect of soy protein meat extenders on iron absorption.

Center studies the role of trace elements in nutrition. A staff of physicians, biochemists, physicists, mocrobiologists, nutritionists, dietitians, nurses and psychologists monitor volunteers who have been assigned experimental diets, Sandstead said.

In addition to requirements for trace elements, they focus on composition of foods and nutritional requirements, childhood nutrition and the nutritional status of the population.

Dear Readers,
A friend told us she was angry at the death of a dear one. She received well-meant advice, "You can't mope around the rest of your life" - "get hold of yourself" - "where is your faith?".
Real help came in a letter, "Your anger is understandable . . . you will want to direct it, when you can, to some constructive use". To repress anger may detour it into ulcers of chronic hostility. Respectfully,

SDC Services Available To Area Children

Families in northwestern Minnesota with children who are troubled with learning difficulties, physical or psychological problems, seizure disorders, mental retardation or hyperactive tendencies that present management or programming problems in school and home have access to a school diagnostic clinic (SDC) service located in Riverview hospital, Crookston.

SDC has been in existence since 1968, originally begun through the efforts of Dr. Robert Schnabel, Jane Carter and the northwestern mental health clinic. Four such Minnesota clinics are now functioning under the sponsorship of the services for children with handicaps.

SDC is designed to help children and families grow and develop to their fullest potential. To accomplish this the clinic conducts a thorough evaluation of each child and develops a comprehensive, coordinated treatment plan. This plan will be individually tailored to the needs of each child and family. The staff works with the child, family and school in order to ensure follow through on each of the recommendations. Depending on the types and problems seen and concerns and questions raised, the child may be seen by one or more of the following: a pediatrician, psychologist, speech pathologist, social worker, occupational therapist, public health nurse and an educational assessor.

Any parent, teacher, physician or other health care provider can make a referral to the SDC. However no referral will be allowed unless it has first been discussed with the parents or legal guardian of the child. Parents must then complete an application for services which includes a "release of information form" to allow the SDC staff to contact school, physicians or other professionals who have worked with the child.

All referrals should be directed to Tessie Dahlman, Nursing Consultant, Services For Children With Handicaps, Kittson County Courthouse, Box 328, Hallock, MN 56728. When all referral information is complete, the child and family will be scheduled to attend one of the monthly clinics held from September through May.

There is no cost for the diagnostic evaluation. Services are underwirtten by services for children with handicaps of the Minnesota department of health. If special treatment is recommended, financial assistance can also be made available to the family depending on individual eligibility.

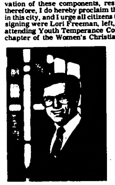
Cholesterol, Heart Study Continues

Nationwide study to determine whether lowering cholesterol reduces the risk of a second heart attack is continuing at four regional medical centers. Program is supported by the national institutes of health and has more than 700 volunteers from throughout the country.

Midwest center is located at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis with Dr. Henry Buchwald as the principal investor for the project. With heart disease the number one cause of death in the United States, researchers feel that it is essential to have an answer to the cholesterol question.

The midwest center is still accepting volunteers for a short period of time. of time. If you are under age 65, have had your first and only heart attack within the past five years, have not had heart surgery, have not had a stroke and do not have diabetes, you might qualify.

YOUTH TEMPERANCE Education Week was declared by Mayor Bob Carlson Thursday, with an official proclamation, which stated in part: "Whereas we are living in an era when stability has become a necessary component of our survival; and whereas sound judgment, self-control and strength of character are components of stability, whether in the individual or the nation; and whereas abstinence from alcohol, other narcotics and tobacco will greatly enhance the preservation of these components, resulting in saved lives, physically, mentally and socially; now therefore, I do hereby proclaim the week of April 24-30 to be Youth Temperance Education Week in this city, and I urge all citizens to observe the week with appropriate activities." Witnessing the signing were Lori Freeman, left, and Janel Helms, who are among 17 young people who will be attending Youth Temperance Council summer camp near Paynesville, sponsored by the local chapter of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.



JAMIE OSVOLD will present a concert of vocal music at Westaker Free Lutheran church of Newfolden Thursday, April 28, at 8 p.m. Public attendance is invited. Osvold, 32, is a native of Northern Minnesota and majored in vocal music at Concordia and Moorhead state college in Moorhead. His wife Barbara assists in the program as pianist.

BSU Offers Energy Class This Summer

Summer workshops offered by the science faculty at Bemidji state university will include kitchen chemistry and energy education.

Kitchen Chemistry June 13 to 24 will be directed by Dr. Robert Dryer. It is a basic course based upon the preparation and reactions of household chemicals. Potentially dangerous and toxic mixtures will also be covered. Course is intended for elementary and junior high science teachers and is available for four undergraduate or graduate credits.

Energy education, directed by Dr. Duane Sea and Dr. Robert Melchior, meets July 10 to 21 and covers the use of materials for energy education, provides guest lecturers and discusses related audio visual materials. Participants also make on-site visits to North Dakota coal fields and the Garrison Dam project. Limited tuition scholarships are available for qualified registrants in this four undergraduate or graduate credit course.

For information regarding either program, write to the workshop director, science department, Sattgast Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601 (218) 755-2962.

Fergus Falls, Brainerd, NCC Consolidated

Dr. Easton came to Thief River Falls in 1975 from Nebraska Western college in Scottsbluff where he was an administrator for 10 years, including the last two years as president. He succeeded Victor Charles as president here, although Ken Wiebolt was acting president for a few months during the interim. A native of Bismarck, ND, he earned his doctor's degree in higher education administration from the University of Colorado.

"I would have to say I will be leaving Thief River Falls with very positive feelings about Northland community college and its growth," Dr. Easton said. "Obviously I will expect to be back here often and I will look forward to that opportunity. I appreciate the privilege of continuing to be associated with the community colleges in northern Minnesota which I believe are serving a vital role for the people of their areas."

Adding to his belief that the consolidation is a step in the right direction, chancellor Helland added that he would "favor a different type of consolidation that was intersystem and not as large a geographical area. But given the conditions we have right now, and the necessity for saving funds, this seems like the best move we can make at this time," he said.

Earlier discussion of consolidation in the system had involved a four-way combination of campuses which included Willmar community college. This plan was changed due to the great distance from Willmar to Thief River Falls. Dr. Helland said the next consideration for merger within the system would likely have to deal with Willmar, Worthington and Austin.

He added that the relatively equal enrollment of the Northland, Fergus Falls and Brainerd colleges is a distinct advantage in that none of the schools is so big that it looks like it is taking over the other. They come into it fairly equally, be said.

Walter Eggen, 76, Of Grygla, Dies Friday

Walter Eggen, 76, of Grygla, died Friday at his home in Valley township of Marshall county.

Funeral services for Walter Eggen will be held Wednesday at 11:00 a.m., at St. Petri Lutheran church, rural Grygla with Rev. Roger Fehr officiating. The Green Funeral home is in charge of arrangements.

Aslak Dahle Rites Set At Ekelund Church

Aslak Dahle, 84, of this city and formerly of the Goodridge community, died Wednesday afternoon at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Aslak Dahle will be held Tuesday at 2:00 p.m., at the Ekelund Lutheran church, Goodridge, with Rev. Gene Broughton officiating. Mrs. Dick Marquis will be the organist and Mrs. Anna Kriel and Vernon Iverson will sing. Interment will be in the church cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers will be Edwin Halvorson, Raymond Halvorson, Oliver Dahle, Edvin Sjulestad, Gerald Sjulestad and Julius Olson.

Active pallbearers will be Delmer Nesland, Lynn Dahle, Steven Dahle, Darren Dahle, David Sjulestad and Larry Swanson.

The body will repose at the Green Funeral home from noon today (Monday) until 11:00 a.m., Tuesday, and at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

Aslak Dahle, a son of the late Sven and Kari Knutson Dahle, was born Feb. 5, 1899 at Topdahl, Norway. At the age of six years, he came to America with his parents, who settled north of Oklee. A short time later, they moved to Highlanding township, where they farmed. He was confirmed at Ekelund Lutheran church on Nov. 9, 1913.

On Nov. 23, 1928, he was married at Thief River Falls to Mildred Brown. The couple lived and farmed in the Highlanding area until 1971, when they moved into Thief River Falls.

Surviving are two sons: Floyd Dahle, Milwaukee, Wis., and Thorvald, Hibbing; two daughters: Doris Dahle, Thief River Falls, and Mrs. Omer (Myra) Nesland, Oklee; 15 grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren, and a brother, Ole Dahle, Thief River Falls.

He was preceded in death by his wife, who died Dec. 14, 1982, two sons who died in infancy; a daughter, Annette; three sisters: Bertha, Annie and Emma; a brother, Knut, and a number of step-brothers.

Rev. E. Weeks Dies April 10 At Northfield

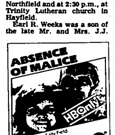
Rev. Earl R. Weeks, 89, of Northfield and formerly of Thief River Falls, died Sunday, April 10, following a brief illness.

Funeral services for Rev. Earl Weeks were held Thursday at 10:30 a.m., at St. John's Lutheran church in Northfield and at 2:30 p.m., at Trinity Lutheran church in Hayfield.

Earl R. Weeks was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J.J. Weeks, who were long-time residents of Thief River Falls. He was born at Grand Meadow and attended school in Thief River Falls. After graduation from Lincoln high school, he attended Park Region Lutheran college in Fergus Falls and Luther Theological seminary in St. Paul. He served parishes in Grove City and Kerkhoven, from 1916 to 1938, followed by nearly 20 years at Hayfield. In 1957, he retired and moved to Northfield, where he served for a number of years as visiting pastor at St. John's Lutheran church.

Surviving are a son, John Weeks, Bloomington, a retired chemist at Minneapolis Honeywell; four grandchildren, five great-grandchildren, and two sisters: Mrs. Roy (Helen) Storvick, Wadena, and Mrs. Clarence (Gladys) Nelson, Rochester, N.Y.

He was preceded in death by two wives; Jennie and Christine, a daughter, Doris Jorstad; two brothers and three sisters.



John Climie, Once Resident Of TRF, Dies

John B. Climie, 82, of Fordville, N.D., a former Thief River Falls insurance agent, died Sunday, April 10, at the Lutheran Sunset home in Grafton, N.D.

Funeral services for John Climie were held Wednesday at the Fordville Lutheran church with Rev. Dale Chesley officiating. Mrs. Kathy Chesley was soloist and Mrs. Floyd Gemmill, organist. Interment was in the Middle Forest River cemetery with military rites by Rotnem-Abel post of the American Legion.

Pallbearers were Clarence Dahlen, Clarence Jenson, Arnold Urness, Harris Trosen, Marvin Linstad and Bert Rotenem.

John B. Climie, a son of the late Benjamin and Edith Brown Climie, was born May 11, 1900 at Cooperstown, N.D., and was married to Bernice Munson on Jan. 1, 1932 at Cavalier, N.D.

Climie was in the insurance business for many years, living in Thief River Falls for 13 years prior to moving to Fordville in 1974.

He was a member of the American Lutheran church and the American Legion.

He is survived by his wife. A son died in infancy in 1955.

Northland To Display French Caricatures

An exhibition of nineteenth-century French graphic satire by Honor's Daumier and Paul Gavarni will be on view April 20 through May 24 at Northland community college. Originally published in newspapers of the day, these prints exemplify the golden age of the cartoon in France.

Political upheavals in France during the nineteenth-century provided rich ground for Daumier's masterful exposure of political corruption, commercial chicanery and the foibles of the middle class through potent images attacking all forms of injustice making him the leading caricaturist of the time. Equally as popular, Gavarni combined keen wit and cynicism with refined draftsmanship to produce works of great style accompanied by the incisive captions which combined force and elegant drawings.

Provided by the University of Minnesota gallery, Minneapolis and arranged by Northland art instructor, Mike Trudeau, and co-sponsored by the Northland community college foundation, the exhibit will be open for the public to view along with student paintings during regular college hours.

Corn, Rice, Milk To Be Distributed

Corn meal, rice and nonfat dry milk will be provided to states for distribution to low-income persons by the U.S. department of agriculture at the direction of President Reagan, according to Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block.

Also, the distribution of surplus cheese, butter and nonfat dry milk will be continued.

Block said the commodities would be made available to states in the same manner as the surplus dairy products as quickly as the food can be processed into consumer-ready packages for household distribution. States will provide the commodities to non-profit charitable institutions and food banks for distribution.

"We ask the public to keep in mind that surplus grain and dairy products owned by the commodity credit corporation are not consumer ready," Block said. "The rice has to be milled, the corn has to be ground into meal and the nonfat dry milk has to be instantized. Then it all has to be put into suitable package sizes. This will cause a bit of lag time in distribution.

"We intend to design this program in such a manner to prevent displacement of normal commercial markets," Block said. "We do not want these donated foods going to people who would have been buying them anyway."

Block said the first shipments of these new commodities could be delivered to the states in May. Initially, USDA expects to provide approximately 2 million pounds of rice, 2 million pounds of corn meal and 12 million pounds of nonfat dry milk. Subsequent deliveries will depend upon the capacity of industry to process the commodities into a suitable form and in a manner that will prevent displacement of regular commercial sales of these products.

Area Students Are UMC Grads

Winter quarter dean's list was released recently by Dr. Les Duly, vice president for academic affairs at Bemidji state university.

Students listed from this area are Yvonne Blodgett, Mary Engelstad, and James Rooker, all from Thief River Falls; Marcia Heng, Bernadette Paradis, and Gregory Schmidtz, all from Red Lake Falls; Jean Marquis from Goodridge; John Nordby, of Grygla; and Rolland Roseland of Newfolden.

To appear on the dean's list, students must carry 12 or more quarter hours during any term and earn at least a 3.25 average.

BSU Sponsors San Francisco Science Tour

Dr. Duane Sea of the Bemidji state university physics faculty will conduct a science education tour of San Francisco and Bay area June 21-27 and July 18-25.

Aimed primarily at teachers, the tour will cover areas of interest to educators including the NASA Ames research center, the earthquake prediction center and the John Muir redwood forests.

More areas will be toured and Sea will give a series of lectures, such as "The San Francisco Earthquake," which supplement class visits.

Course attention will also be directed to the search for extra-terrestial life, the colonization of space as well as other concerns of educators.

This offering is open to all elementary and secondary school educators and available for three graduate or undergraduate credits. For further information and registration materials, contact Dr. Duane Sea, Sattgast Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601, phone (218) 755-2793.

Hamre, Bjerke, Spengler Get Scholarships

Receiving 4-H scholarships in the amount of $100 each from the Pennington county 4-H leader's council recently were Peggy Hamre of Smiley 4-H and Jerry Bjerke and Dave Spengler of Silverton 4-H.

Peggy Hamre, a member of the Smiley 4-H for many years, is attending the Thief River Falls AVTI medical secretarial program. Her major 4-H projects included gardening, foods and junior leadership and she worked as a camp counselor.

Jerry Bjerke, a Silverton 4-H member, is attending Northland community college. His main 4-H interests have been in junior leadership, swine, 4-H plays and coaching the crops team.

Dave Spengler, also of the Silverton club, is attending NDSU in Fargo. His main 4-H projects have been junior leadership, beef, plant and soil science, forestry and 4-H plays.

Each year the Pennington county 4-H leader's council awards scholarships to members who are in their first year of college.

Brosseau Gets Scholarship At Moorhead 'U'

Kristie Brosseau, a graduate of Lincoln high school and a transfer student from Northland community college has been awarded a community college scholarship by Moorhead state university.

Established by the Moorhead state faculty, foundation and alumni association, the scholarships, equivalent to about a half year's tuition, are reserved for students demonstrating high academic ability.

DEAN NELSON of Middle River is shown with State Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls at Sparby's desk in the chamber of the Minnesota House. Nelson, a senior majoring in political science at Macalester college in St. Paul, has served Sparby as a legislative intern during this session. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne Nelson. "I've known Dean and his family for many years," Rep. Sparby said, "so it's been a pleasure for me to take part in his educational development. While learning about the legislative process, Dean has helped me with research on pending legislation and constituent services."

Offers Bill To Give Young Farmers Start

A bill written by Congressman Arlan Stangeland to help beginning farmers in purchasing their first farm operations has been referred to the powerful House Ways and Means Committee.

The bill, (H.R. 2339), would encourage retiring farmers and other farmland owners to sell to young farmers at a most reasonable price by providing that the interest received on a Farmers Home administration (FmHA) loan would be tax free.

"The seller could part with the property at a lower price because this tax would not have to be paid," Congressman Stangeland said. "The tax forgiveness would only apply to seller-financed transactions. The bill is drafted so that no tax-free treatment would be given on any sales other than to young farmers who intend to make farming their life-long work."

Stangeland said that the tax code offers no excellent vehicle for enacting legislation that can assist our embattled agricultural sector and help to maintain our family farm tradition in this country.

"This plan for tax incentives and benefits is a means of targeting assistance without creating excessive federal expenditures or a new government bureaucracy," Congressman Stangeland said.

"The ability of young farmers to enter agriculture on their own and build on their knowledge and experience is one of the great strengths of our society." It is a major reason why American consumers are able to eat better and spend less of their income for food than any other people.

"But it is no secret that depressed commodity prices, high interest rates and unfair foreign trade practices have ravaged our entire farm sector for several years," he said. "Young farmers face an incredible up-hill battle in trying to get their feet on firm financial ground and turn their farm into a successful operation.

"We hope we can get this bill enacted and provide some solid assistance to these young people who want to spend their lives on America's family farms," Congressman Stangeland said.

Red Lake Co. Top DHIA Cows Listed

During the month of March several dairy cows being tested by the Red Lake county dairy herd improvement association produced at least 650 pounds of butter fat.

Listed are the producer name, pounds of milk and pounds of butter fat produced: Johnston Farms, 23,746 pounds milk and 869 pounds butter fat; 24,427 and 852; 21,444 and 794; 19,253 and 673 and 14,469 and 655; Conrad Zak and sons, 19,339 and 780; and 14,292 and 697 and Mrs. Jean Beyer, 20,351 and 771 and 17,295 and 700.

Also Wayne Holte, 17,528 and 724; Warren and Randy Gast, 16,445 and 719; and 17,682 and 703; Larry and Audrey Korpi, 19,951 and 716; Donald F. Taus, 15,333 and 668 and Donald Hagen, 17,580 and 651.

CPLT To Hear Attorney On Wills, Trusts

Paul Ihle, attorney, will give a short presentation for parents about setting up a will, guardianship for young children, trusts and other possible financial arrangements in the case of the parents' death when he speaks Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Franklin middle school library.

Following the presentation there will be time for questions and answers. There is no charge. To pre-register or for more information, call 681-5670, Monday through Thursday.

Presentation is sponsored by children and parents learning together (CPLT).

Orientation To Adoption Set At Hibbing

"Orientation to the Adoption Process: Myths and Opportunities" will be the subject of a program Saturday, April 30, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., at Kahler Inn of Hibbing. The Iron Range chapter of Friends of Children's Home society is sponsoring the program for parents, social workers, teachers and the general public.

Main speaker will be Tom Regan, adoption program director, Children's Home society, St. Paul. "Newborn American infants are an important part of adoption, but they are not the whole adoption story," he says. "The adoption story is one that is happening quietly with different kinds of children and families in communities all over the country. It is important to share the whole story with community people, with the people who serve communities, and with families who may wish to grow through adoption."

The four hour program will cover new techniques in adoption, new overseas programs and the American child welfare system. A panel of adoptive parents will discuss why they adopted, paper work, family and community acceptance and explaining adoption to children.

For reservations and registration please contact Sue Douville, Hibbing, 263-4870. Children's Home society of Minnesota (CHSM) is the only state-wide, non-sectarian, non-profit, child and family social service agency.

BSU Offers $250 Art Scholarships

Two scholarships, each worth $250, are available for art students enrolling in bachelor degree programs in art at Bemidji state university.

Scholarship recipients will be chosen on the basis of artistic talent and potential, with incoming freshmen and new transfers receiving first consideration.

Portfolio or slide materials should be submitted for consideration before May 4 to allow time for the BSU faculty to review the submissions.

Awards are made possible by the Superwood corporation, a wood products firm in the region.

For more information or to apply for the scholarship contact Sally James, Education-Arts building, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN, 56601, phone (218-755-3952).

Bjorgaard In Navy Exercise

Navy radioman first class William J. Bjorgaard, son of Avis Hjelle of Newfolden, recently participated in "Team Spirit 83."

"Team Spirit 83" was a one-month combined training exercise involving military forces of the United States and the Republic of Korea. Over 34 U.S. seventh fleet ships and 188,000 U.S. and Republic of Korea military personnel were involved in the exercise.

Kamp Kimchee For Family Of Korean-Born

July 20-24 are the dates set for the second annual Kamp Kimchee, a family-oriented day camp to be held in Brainerd at Park United Methodist church. The day camp is a project of the Central Minnesota Korean-American cultural society, Inc., in cooperation with the Korean institute of Minnesota and the Saet Byul Korean heritage group of Brainerd.

Kamp Kimchee is designed to meet the transcultural needs of families with Korean-born children. Through the camp activities and a qualified teaching staff, the families have an opportunity to learn Korean customs, history, geography, music, dance and oral and written language. Noon meals of Korean foods will be served as part of the program.

Reservation forms and camp information sheets are available by writing to Bud Steffenson, Route 8, Box 15, Brainerd, MN 56401. Cost of the camp is $20 per child with family rates available. Reservations must be returned by June 1.

Matching Funds For Energy Cost Now Available

Approximately $3.5 million will be available in federal matching grant money to help Minnesota schools and hospitals cut energy costs.

Department of energy, planning and development is accepting applications for matching grant money to do energy audits and make energy improvements. Schools and hospitals can receive 50 per cent funding to pay for maxi-audits (detailed engineering audits) and to help cover the cost of energy saving building improvements.

After actually completing the energy saving measures recommended in the maxi-audit, schools and hospitals could realistically expect up to 30 per cent savings in energy costs.

Roughly $3 million of the funds will be for energy saving improvements of buildings. Examples of these improvements include installing new boilers, adding insulation, and making lighting more efficient.

These matching funds will be provided as part of the fifth funding cycle of the institutional building grants program. In previous cycles, local governments and public care institutions were also eligible for the matching grant money, but are not eligible in cycle 5.

Applications are due Friday, May 13 by 4:30 p.m. officials interested in applying for the funds should contact: Institutional Programs, Energy Division, 980 American Center Bldg., 150 E. Kellogg Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55101, phone (612) 297-2103.

USDA Verifies School Lunch Eligibility

In an effort to ensure that federal school lunch benefits go only to those who are eligible, school districts will verify a sample of free and reduced-price meal applications beginning next school year, assistant secretary of agriculture Mary C. Jarratt said recently.

The verification requirements are the result of the Omnibus reconciliation act of 1981, which allowed schools for the first time to routinely verify information on school meal applications. Congress passed the law because audits had shown that up to 28 per cent of the students receiving free or reduced-price school lunches were incorrectly receiving benefits because of misstatements of income.

"We want to make sure that free and reduced price lunch benefits are directed only to those children from families who qualify," Jarratt said. "The rule will enhance the accountability of the lunch program and will reduce federal expenditures. Of course, no student who is entitled will be denied benefits."

School districts will verify income information on three per cent or 3,000, whichever is less, of the approved application on file by October 31 of each school year. School officials will have five months to confirm eligibility.

The rules affect the U.S. department of agriculture's national school lunch, school breakfast and special milk programs. The largest of these, the lunch program, currently serves 23 million children in 91,000 schools nationwide. Of the total, about 10 million children receive free lunches under the program and about 1.5 million get reduced price lunches.

The interim final rules on verification will be published in the Federal Register on March 25. Comments on the rules may be sent by May 24 to: Stanley C. Garnett, School Programs Division, Food and Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Alexandria, Va., 22302.

NWRDC Meet Set In Warroad For April 26th

Minnesota state demographer Thomas Gillaspy will be the main speaker at the April 26 Northwest regional development commission meeting to be held at the Grand Central Station restaurant in Warren at 7:30 p.m. His topic will be "Population Trends in Minnesota and Region One".

Bob Wolfe, district engineer for Minnesota department of transportation, will be present also and will speak on recent legislation and funding and present a short slide show.

Under discussion will be the new job training program. It is expected that a structure for the Northwest private industry council will be decided on at this meeting.

Both aging and arts projects will be presented to the commission for funding and awards will be made.

Public is welcome to attend.

Area Students On Dean's List At Bemidji SU

Lynette Amundson and Jeffrey St. Michel, both of Red Lake Falls and James Teske of Stephen were among students graduating from the University of Minnesota - Crookston this winter quarter.

Commencement exercises will be held on May 20 for all 1982-83 fall, winter and spring quarter graduates.

Capt. Lyttle Completes Officer Course

Capt. Deborah S. Lyttle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Zane Westerfield of Indianapolis, has completed the defense department public affairs officer course at Fort Benjamin Harrison, IN.

During the course, students were trained in various aspects of print and broadcast journalism and public affairs management. Course work consisted of news and broadcast writing, editing and photography. Students also studied the organization of American government, foreign policy, speech and community relations.

Her husband, Army Capt. William G. Lyttle, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard G. Lyttle of Thief River Falls.

Rural Youth Institute Has Spots Open

Growth opportunities through leadership development (GOLD) is the emphasis for the seventh annual Minnesota rural youth institute, which will be held June 26 through July 1. Current high school juniors and seniors are eligible to apply for the 100 delegate positions.

This year the institute will again be hosted by the University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC).

All expenses at the institute will be paid for the 100 delegates selected, according to associate professor Erman Ueland, coordinator. The institute is cosponsored by UMC and the Governor's rural development council.

Themes for each day of the intensive workshop include: "Getting Acquainted," "You and the Future," "Problem Solving in Rural Communities," "Communities in Action," "Building Community Leaders," and "Understanding Ourselves."

Minnesota rural youth institute was established in 1977 at the urging of the then commissioner of agriculture Jon Wefald. The purpose of the program, which highlights the excellent work and leadership opportunities in Minnesota, is to develop some of the skills which provide success in these areas to high school youth. The institute is patterned after similar programs in Nebraska and South Dakota.

Current high school juniors and seniors who are interested in applying for the institute may contact local high school counselors, vocational agriculture and home economics teachers, county agricultural extension directors, or write Erman Ueland, coordinator, Minnesota Rural Youth Institute, University of Minnesota Technical College, Crookston, MN 56716, or call UMC at (218) 281-6510, extension 334.

Olson Attends 4-Day Seminar

Candy Olson of Thief River Falls, local counselor, recently attended the four-day spring training seminar conducted in Philadelphia, PA, by Diet Center, Inc. The seminar included instruction in the areas of weight control, business, communications and nutrition.

Midwest Pilot Seminar Set In Madison

Midwest regional professional pilot's seminar, focusing on the safety of flight and latest advances in aviation technology, will be held April 26 to 27 at the Concourse in Madison, WI.

Seminar provides the professional pilot a special opportunity to hear from national experts, not usually available to them, according to the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) aeronautics division. Mn-DOT, the Wisconsin department of transportation bureau of aeronautics and the Iowa department of transportation aeronautics division are the seminar's co-sponsors.

Chayton Mason, associate professor of human factors-phychology, University of Southern California institute of safety and systems management, Los Angeles, CA will discuss "Human Factors in Flight Operations."

Other speakers are Dan Sowa, superintendent of meteorology, Northwest airlines, Minneapolis-St. Paul, "Low Level Wind Shear — a Review;" Andrew Detroi, manager, federal aviation administration general aviation district office, Minneapolis, "The Value of Standardization and Its Effect on Pilot Behavior;" and Laurel A. Smith, vice president, marketing services, aircraft owners and pilots association, Washington, D.C., "Are You Willing To Bet Your Job on What Your Know About Accounting?"

Reservations at $50 a person can be accepted up to April 25 by Neil Hyink, Mn-DOT aviation representative, St. Paul Downtown Airport, 644 Bayfield St., St. Paul, MN 55107 (612) 296-1141.

Schenkey, Inc. Awarded Bid For Pit Work

Schenkey, Inc., Middle River, submitted the apparent low bid of $39,000 for production and stockpiling of mineral aggregate for truck highway 32 at a pit one mile southwest of Strathcona.

The work in Marshall county is scheduled to begin May 23 and be completed within 30 working days.

Culkins, Stocks Accepted At Northland CC

Lynne Culkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Culkins and Lisa Stocks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orvel Stocks, both of Thief River Falls, have been accepted for admission at Northland community college for 1983 fall quarter classes.

Both students will graduate from Lincoln high school this spring and plan to continue in the field of liberal arts.

ACTION NEEDED NOW

MODERN PEOPLE NEWS has revealed plans for the filming of a movie based on the sex life of Jesus Christ in which Jesus is portrayed as a swinging homosexual. This film will be shot in the United States this year unless the public outcry is great. Already a French prostitute has been named to play the part of Mary Magdalene with whom Christ had a blatant affair in the movie. We can't afford to stand by and do nothing about this disgrace. It is time for us to stand up and be counted. We must not allow our troubled world to display our Lord in this manner.

TO GET THIS FILM BANNED FROM THE UNITED STATES, detach the form below and mail it today. All persons of voting age are encouraged to mail in this protest letter. ONLY ONE NAME PER COPY. Do it TODAY.

Office of the State Attorney General
301 South Springfield Street
Springfield, IL 62706

Dear Attorney General:

I would like to protest, in the strongest possible way, the production, filming or showing of any movie that supposedly depicts the sex life of Jesus Christ by Modern People News, 11058 W. Addison St., Franklin, IL 60131. Such a movie would be an outrage, and contrary to the Christian belief, this would be blasphemy.

We urge you to take proper action against this corruption, offensive to millions of Christians and non-Christians alike.

The Perpich Syndrome

We'll say one thing for Gov. Rudy Perpich. When something pops into his mind, he never clamps his lips shut to keep it from escaping, no matter how tactless or unwise it might happen to be. You never have to second guess his intentions or his reasoning — or lack of reasoning.

A classic example is his statement that districts of legislators who did not vote for the state gas tax increase should not receive consideration for highway and bridge improvement projects. We predict that the state will have many more of these Rudyisms during the governor's term. A Rudyism is an obtuse statement uttered in haste without apparent forethought, establishing an untenable position requiring obstinacy to effect implementation.

The governor established the syndrome when he insulted South Dakota by calling it last in everything. The statement on highway funding as related to gas tax votes is equally obtuse. It reflects the intellect of a political spoils advocate, which we suppose really shouldn't be all that much of a surprise, but which is scarcely befitting the state's chief executive.

Let us also say we think it was improper for the Independent-Republicans in the legislature to vote as a bloc against the gas tax hike. Unpopular and aggravating as that increase may be, it is probably also necessary to maintain our deteriorating highways and prevent them from becoming unrepairable. Somewhere among the ranks of the I-R legislators, there must have been a few who agreed the tax was necessary. To play politics in the fashion they did is an injustice to the people of the state.

The governor must realize, as we are sure he does by now, that if all the people share in the costs, all must share in the benefits. He did not suggest that residents of the districts where legislators voted no be excluded from paying the added tax. His first thought was to be punitive and retaliatory, and that kind of reaction is not the mark of a good executive.

Unfortunately, you don't change the nature of the animal by changing its environment — no unless the animal is willing to change. And if change does come, it usually comes slowly. That is why we say we expect the Perpich syndrome to persist, and we can look forward to more words and actions from the capitol which will make us embarrassed to call ourselves Minnesotans.

Exercise In Assininity

Another time-honored institution is about to bite the dust, thanks to the all-knowing lawmakers and bureaucrats who seem to believe utopia lies just beyond enaction of the next piece of legislation.

Minnesota department of human rights has decreed that "Ladies' Night" is a sexually discriminatory practice and, as such, is an evil that must be eradicated. The action is being taken, according to a letter received from commissioner Irene Gomez-Bethke, as a result of numerous complaints received from the public.

The commissioner says Ladies' Night appears to be in violation of Minnesota Statute 363.03, Subdivision 3, which prohibits the denial of "the full and equal enjoyment of the goods, services, facilities, privileges, advantages and accommodations of a place of public accommodation because of race, color, creed, religion, disability, national origin or sex".

Shame on those mercenary and exploitive business proprietors who would cater to the ladies by reducing the price of their booze. Shame also on those mercenary and exploitive advertising media who would capitalize on this blatantly sexist activity for pecuniary gain. Never mind that in most cases it is men who are picking up the ladies' reduced price tabs.

Never fear, however, for the department of human rights only wants equality. If the mercenary and exploitive business proprietors also provide a Men's Night in equal proportion to the Ladies' Night, they may continue the activity and the mercenary and exploitive advertising media may continue to inform the public. One would only have to assume, all things being equal, that the ladies should pick up the tab on Men's Night. After all, fair is fair.

The letter from Gomez-Bethke was apparently sent to all newspapers, and perhaps all other advertising media, in the state. "The advertisements most frequently complained about," she said, "are those placed by entertainment establishments which offer discounts or free services to women only or deny admission to males on certain nights."

Gomez-Bethke points out that anyone "who is aggrieved" by such advertising has the right to file a charge of discrimination with the human rights department. And she adds there is also the possibility of commissioner's charges being filed against those establishments "which continue to engage in sexually discriminatory practices and any media which continue to accept such advertisements".

The letter from Gomez-Bethke urged recipients to contact Mary Hartle, Information Officer II, if they wanted to discuss the issue further. Always willing to engage in stimulating conversation, we called the number listed. The person who answered, apparently disgruntled over being distrubed, told us curtly that Hartle was at a meeting, didn't say when she would return and we could try calling later if we wanted to, sir.

So we did. And Hartle answered her own phone (a rarity in government offices). And we asked her if it was OK for restaurants to give discounts to mothers on Mother's Day as they have for generations. She said it was OK if they offered the same specials to fathers on Father's Day. That seemed simple enough; stupid, maybe, but simple.

But you know, the law says goods or services cannot be denied on the basis of handicap as well as sex. How about a woman who would like to be a mother but was unable because of a physical handicap? Does she qualify for the Mother's Day discount?

See how the waters become muddy?

The statute quoted in the letter makes no provision for denial of services, facilities, privilieges, etc., because of age, however. At least Hartle said age was not a consideration in this discrimination. So if a lounge wants to have a senior citizen night, with half price drinks for those over 60 years of age, it must have the blessing of the human rights department. The same goes for a junior citizen night, with discounts for those under or between certain ages.

There's probably another law that covers that potential, and we expect we'll get a letter on it some day. After all, isn't it discriminatory to give senior citizen discounts on things like groceries, drugs, admission to school events?

And did you know churches are not places of public accommodation, according to Hartle? So a church apparently can hold a Ladies' Night if it wants to, or even pay tribute to mother on Mother's Day without having to worry about father on Father's Day. It can even deny its services and facilities on the basis of race, color, creed, disability, national origin or sex.

Why do we allow our lawmakers to get away with this nonsense? Why don't we tell oppressive bureaucrats to take a long walk on a short dock and go about doing our business as usual? How far do we back up before we get to the wall? And how long will we continue to provide tax money to support agencies which seem to have a penchant for exercises in assininity?

Compared To Computers

Following comparison is from "Future Trends", the newsletter of the Minnesota Futurists:

In the last 30 years or so since the introduction of the first commercially available computer (Univac in 1951), there has been somewhere between 500 to 10,000 times increase in capability (depending upon what characteristic is measured). In fact, today we place more electronic circuits on a single VLSI silicon computer chip than it was possible to manufacture throughout the world in 1951.

To put these advances in focus, consider that, if the automobile had advanced as much in the same period as computers have, today's equivalent of a $2,000 1951 car should:

+ Cost less than $1.

+ Travel as fast as five times the speed of sound.

+ Need repairs no oftener than once every 100 years.

+ Could fit into your pocket or be carried attached to a charm bracelet.

+ Get well over three million miles per gallon of gasoline.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Wife: "Who is more satisfied, a man with a million dollars or a man with six children?"

'Husband: "A man with six children."

Wife: "Why do you say that?"

REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

Having successfully cleared the House Tax committee, the bill to get horse racing out of the legislature and onto the track goes to the House appropriations committee before arriving before the full House.

It establishes a racing commission of nine members, requiring that at least one member be from each congressional district. The commission will have the authority and responsibility to regulate racing in the public interest, issue licenses, enforce laws and rules, collect and distribute taxes, supervise betting, employ and supervise personnel, assign racing days, conduct inquiries, and generally assure the integrity of racing.

To help the commission insure such integrity, the bill specifically:

+ Makes race-fixing or tampering, illegal betting and forgoing tickets a felony offense;

+ Regulates potential conflicts of interest on the part of commission members and employees by prohibiting them from owning a horse which races at a Minnesota track, having an interest in a corporation or association which is licensed by the commission, working or holding an interest in a business the commission regulates, or making a bet on a Minnesota racetrack;

+ Allows the commission to exclude from a racetrack persons convicted of a felony, or those who have lost racing licenses in Minnesota or elsewhere;

+ Prohibits betting by anyone under 18.

Specific taxes are imposed by the legislation and a breeders' fund established to encourage breeding in Minnesota. Horse racing at county fairs will also be permitted — up to a maximum of 10 days.

Minnesota may soon become the 46th state to allow department, drug, and variety stores to sell ready-to-wear eye glasses without prescriptions. "Ready-to-wear" and "over the counter" are terms used for simple eyeglasses used only for reading.

About four million pairs of these glasses — used mostly by people over 40 — are sold throughout the world each year for about $10. The consumer affairs and tourism subcommittee of the commerce and economic development committee of the House recently voted in favor of a bill to allow them to be sold in Minnesota.

Opponents of the bill said these eyeglasses are comparable in a way to generic drugs. They may save the consumer some money, but they may pose a risk. Drugs must carry warnings of side effects or the bad effects of using them for too long a time, but these glasses do not carry warnings or suggestions that people seek professional help for vision problems.

Those who favor the bill point out that cost savings won't be the only advantage to consumers. They will get their glasses immediately without waiting several weeks to have the lenses ground, and they will be able to see how the glasses fit and how well they work at the time of the purchase.

Ready-to-wear glasses were sold in Minnesota before 1970. In some states, eye doctors tell their patients which magnifications — or diopters — they need and suggest ready-to-wear specs as an option.

Finance division of the House education committee last week approved a nearly $2 billion school aids bill that includes a much-needed increase in the per pupil unit foundation aid. If the bill passes, school districts will be guaranteed $1,475 in per pupil unit aid in both the 1983-84 and 1984-85 school years. This represents a substantial increase over the current spending allowance of $1,313.

The bill also specifies the local property effort as 24 mills for both school years.

If you would like to discuss these or other issues with me, please contact me at 263 State Office Building, St. Paul 55155 or call (612) 296-9918.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District 1

Our state's fledgling gasohol industry should get a big boost from two pieces of legislation that recently won approval in the Minnesota Legislature.

The first bill, which was signed into law by Governor Rudy Perpich last Wednesday, will provide a four-cent tax reduction for gasohol at the same time that the state tax on all other motor fuels is increased by four cents.

The gasohol tax reduction will give motorists an important incentive to begin using that alcohol-based fuel. As the demand for gasohol increases, Minnesota farmers will have a new outlet for their products. The law also will encourage the construction of alcohol plants in Minnesota.

The gas tax hike will take place in two stages — a three-cent-per-gallon increase on May 1, and a penny-per-gallon increase next January 1. While the tax on gasohol initially will go up, it will drop by two cents on July 1, 1983, and by another two cents on July 1, 1985.

The revenues raised by the gas tax will be used, along with $75 million in bonds authorized by the legislation, to help build and repair hundreds of miles of roads throughout the state. This year, the Minnesota Transportation Department will nearly double its normal summer highway construction program, placing an estimated $137 million in projects under contract.

The additional funding for highway projects will generate thousands of new jobs in the construction industry. The Transportation Department estimates that 42 jobs are created in the private sector for each $1 million placed under contract. This summer's expanded highway construction program will result in an additional 2,460 jobs.

Now the law provides for gas tax revenues to be shared with local governments, jobs also will be created by city and county road projects. Counties and cities will receive about $61 million from the gas tax increase during the next two years.

As most of you know from firsthand experience, our state's road system badly needs the repairs and improvements that will be funded by the new law. The Transportation Department has estimated that 40 per cent of all state roads are in fair or poor condition, 34 per cent of the state's trunk highways are restricted during spring to less than nine tons and 468 bridges over 20 feet long are deficient.

The highway construction projects that will begin this year should go a long way towards improving those trouble spots. Eventually, all of us will benefit from a smoother and safer ride with less wear and tear on our cars and trucks.

In another development last week, the Senate Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee passed a bill that would make it easier to finance the construction of gasohol plants in Minnesota.

The bill would provide state loan guarantees for projects that use agricultural resources such as corn and wood residue to make fuel or substitutes for petroleum or petrochemical feed stock. The state guarantee would cover up to 75 per cent of the cost of construction of such a facility.

In a newly developing industry like the gasohol field, a loan guarantee can make the difference as to whether or not a project goes forward. While the federal government in the past provided such guarantees, that program recently ended.

For that reason, I believe that a state loan guarantee program is needed at this time. Eventually, the gasohol industry could create as many as 4,000 jobs in Minnesota.

I would enjoy hearing from you about this issue or others of concern. Please write to me at my office (306 Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minnesota, 55155) or phone (612) 296-8660.

Lung Ass'n. Offers Clean Air Brochure

American lung association of Minnesota has a free brochure explaining how citizens can help achieve clean air and control sources of air pollution during this year's clean air week May 2 to 8.

New brochure describes the lung association's ongoing involvement in clean air week, an annual, grassroots event that focuses a community's attention on health hazards associated with air pollution.

According to the brochure, almost 45 million Americans may be exposed to excessive levels of air pollution. Annual health costs of air pollution, including worker absenteeism and lost productivity, are estimated at over $40 billion.

For information on air pollution or to receive a copy of the clean air week brochure, contact Lynne Day at the American Lung Association of Minnesota, 614 Portland Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102, phone 612-227-8014.

MN Council Of Airports Sets Meeting

Minnesota council of airports (MCOA), a newly formed group of cities and counties that own airports, will have its first business meeting and conference April 28 to 29 at the Thunderbird motel, Bloomington.

Members of the nonprofit organization will discuss and approve bylaws, elect a board of directors and hold special group sessions on airport management problems, according to the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) aeronautics division.

Mn-DOT and the federal aviation administration (FAA) will have advisory and participative roles at the conference. "Since our primary role is to assist municipalities, it is important that both Mn-DOT and FAA staff people are aware of the problems in airport management," said Richard Keinz, Mn-DOT assistant commissioner for aeronautics.

Conference key speakers will be Richard P. Braun, state transportation commissioner, and Gale Jennison, president, Wisconsin airport managers association and manager of the Wausau municipal airport.

Approximately one-third of the cities and counties that own airports for public use are already members of the new organization. Affiliate memberships also are available for associations, businesses and individuals whose goals are to promote airport operation improvement in Minnesota, Keinz explained. Memberships are $25 a year for either category.

Conference registration at $15 a person before April 21 and $20 thereafter will be accepted by Callister, St. Paul Downtown Airport, 644 Bayfield St., St. Paul, MN 55107 phone (612) 224-4306.

Urges Cash-In Or Exchange Of Series E Bonds

Congressman Stangeland is urging families to cash-in or convert their Series E U.S. savings bonds because the bonds are reaching maturity and will not continue to earn interest after their 40-year date of maturity.

"I want everyone to go through their files and look for the letter "E" in the lower left-hand corner of their savings bonds," Congressman Stangeland said. "Many people are not sure which series of bonds they hold. It would be a shane if they are losing interest on their investments."

The Series E bonds were issued between May, 1941 and April, 1952. They have been earning 8.5 per cent interest, but the bonds mature on the 40th anniversary of their respective dates of issue.

"As these bonds will not earn interest after reaching final maturity, you should either cash them in, or to extend the tax deferral on earned E bond interest, exchange them for the current-income Series HH bonds. Such exchanges may be made up to one year after final Series E maturity. A minimum of $500 in savings bonds or savings notes, at current redemption value, is needed for the exchange," states Angela Buchanan, treasurer of the United States.

Congressman Stangeland also urged any constituents who have questions about their savings bonds to contact his Washington office in care of the following address: Congressman Arlan Stangeland, 1536 Longworth Building, U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

$5,214,500 Granted In SBA Loans

Celso C. Moreno, district director of the Minnesota district office of the small business administration (SBA), announced this week that $5,214,500 in SBA guaranteed loans had been approved for 33 Minnesota companies along with $151,000 in economic development loans for two Minnesota companies in the month of March. Projected additional employment created as a result of these loans is 448 jobs.

Direct management assistance was provided to 142 Minnesota firms through the SBA's in-house counselors or through support groups like the service corps of retired executives (SCORE) and the twelve colleges participating in the small business institute program. Ninety-one loans were paid-in-full during the month of March.

State Bike Safety Week Set May 1-7

May 1 through 7 has been proclaimed as bike safety week in Minnesota by Governor Rudy Perpich.

Minnesota recorded 12 bicycle fatalities in 1982, up from a total of 10 the previous year, according to the Minnesota department of public safety. There were 1,155 bicycle related injuries in accidents during 1982. A major risk group, the department said, is boys, aged 10 to 14, who ride bicycles after school hours.

Bicyclists must follow the same basic rules of the road and be as responsible as any other driver on Minnesota's streets, said public safety commissioner Paul Tschida. "More people from a wider spectrum of our population are bicycling more often over increasingly different types of roadways and weather conditions. Unfortunately, too many drivers of larger vehicles are not sufficiently aware of the increasing presence of bicycles. Bicyclists must be aware of the fact that motorists frequently have a 'blind spot' when it comes to seeing them," Tschida said.

With the unusually mild winter, roadways and bike paths have been frequented earlier than usual this year by bicyclists. Both the cyclists and motorists should review basic bicycling rules. To enhance that process, the Minnesota department of public safety is again stressing bike safety themes during the coming months.

One of those emphases is that it is important for bike riders to make sure they are as visible as possible. At night the law requires that a bicycle have a white front light that can be seen 500 feet away. A red rear reflector is required as well. At least 20 inches of reflective material must be on each side of the bike or rider.

Communities with bike patrols report that the most frequent bicycle law violations are running stop signs, riding on the wrong side of the road and turn signal violations.

Consumer Price Index Edges Up .1 Per Cent

Consumer prices in the North Central region edged up 0.1 per cent from December to February, according to the U.S. department of labors' bureau of labor statistics. William E. Rice, regional commissioner for the bureau in Chicago, said the slight gain was the first in the bi-monthly index since August. The North Central all urban consumer price index (CPI-U) fell 0.4 per cent in December and 0.1 per cent in October.

Increases in five expenditure categories — housing, food and beverages, medical care, other goods and services and entertainment — were nearly offset by a sharp drop in the transportation index and a lesser decline in the apparel and upkeep component. Higher prices were prominent on most medical care services, and on tobacco products, residential rent, telephone services and utility gas. Price cuts were reported on gasoline, auto financing, fuel oil and many types of clothing and footwear.

The North Central CPI-U for February 1983 was 5.1 per cent above its level a year ago. All of that increase came in the first six months when prices rose 5.5 per cent. In contrast, the CPI-U fell 0.4 per cent in the last six months from August 1982 to February 1983. The largest gains were found in the largest cities. Consumer prices advanced 5.7 per cent in cities with populations of 1.25 million and over but only 3.7 per cent in cities of under 75,000 population.

The consumer price index is a statistical measure of the average change in prices in a fixed market basket of goods and services. Effective with the January 1978 index, the bureau of labor statistics began publishing CPI's for two groups of the population. One index, a new CPI for All Urban Consumers (CPI-U) covers 80 per cent of the total noninstitutional population; the other index, a revised CPI for Urban Wage Earners and Clerical Workers (CPI-W), covers about half of the new index population.

The CPI-U includes, in addition to wage earners and clerical workers, professional, managerial and technical workers, the self-employed, the unemployed, retirees, and others not in the labor force.

Rape Threat Eased With Precautions

Rape is a violent, degrading crime that can happen to anyone anywhere. It can be committed by strangers in public areas or by acquaintances or friends in the victim's home, according to Minnesota crime watch, a program of the Minnesota department of public safety.

"Persons can minimize the threat of being sexually assaulted in streets and parks by walking with friends in well-lighted areas," said Charles Rix, Minnesota crime watch coordinator. Avoid darkened doorways, bushes and alleys where a rapist might hide. Always be alert to surroundings and walk quickly and confidently. Any sign of vulnerability might encourage a rapist to attack, said Rix.

Also, persons should walk to areas where people congregate if they suspect they are being followed on foot. If followed by a car, people are encouraged to turn and walk the other way.

Rix also cautioned people riding in vehicles to take these precautions against sexual assault:

+ Check the back seat for anyone hiding there before entering your vehicle.

+ Always have the ignition keys in hand and ready to unlock the door when approaching your vehicle. After checking, get in the vehicle immediately.

+ Keep windows closed and doors locked while driving.

+ If followed, drive to a police station or all night food store.

One third of all rapes are committed in the victim's home by an acquaintance, said Rix. So be certain all doors and windows are locked and be wary of who enters the house. Check the identification of all repair people and meter readers before letting them into your home. Also, do not admit strangers who want to make emergency phone calls; make the call for them instead.

Crime prevention officers agree that persons confronted by a rapist should run if possible, or scream to frighten off the would-be attacker. If these strategies do not work, then self defense should be considered if the attacker is unarmed. Hit the rapist in the nose with the heel of your hand. This sudden blow will immobilize the assailant and allow time for escape. A heel ground into the attacker's instep can be just an incapacitating as a blow to the nose. Not so effective a defense is a kick to the rapist's groin. Attackers usually protect this area and a missed kick could throw you off balance.

"Never engage in physical combat with an attacker unless he is unarmed and it is unavoidable," said Rix. "And do not fight if you are afraid of being hurt."

Homemakers Meet

Monday afternoon, April 11th the Silver Creek Homemakers met at the Ruth Hanson home of rural Thief River Falls. Mabel Anderson and Bernice Knutson presented the lesson on "Analyzing Interior Space and Home Storage," and Doris Kaushagen presented the lesson "Parenting and Family Communication." Ruth Hanson won the door prize and hostesses for the afternoon were Mabel Anderson and Bernice Knutson. Others present besides those already mentioned were Mary Ann Fuller, Margaret Rupprecht, Alice Rodahl, Emma Haagenson, Edna Rupprecht, Bernice Trochmann, Myrtle Solberg, Adeline Moe, Lena Williams, Martha Torgerson, Maxine Olson, Jean Nelson, Ethel Nelson and Nanci Reed and daughter.

Mrs. Leslie Nelson was a coffee guest at the Ray Barth home Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Torgerson and girls of Thief River Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Don Jorde and family and the Jarvis Torgerson family were Sunday afternoon visitors at the Amanda Torgerson home. The Don Jorde family spent Easter with the Chester Jordes at Chicago, enroute home they visited with Grace's great-aunt, Mrs. Julie Steenerson and family at Sparta, Wisc. Julia will be celebrating her 107th birthday soon, and is alert and very nice to visit with. They were supper guests at the LaPoints in Rochester,. They returned to Circle Pines, where they were overnight guests at the Merlin Heath home before returning home Tuesday, April 5th.

Additional Jobless Pay Will Begin

Approximately 14,000 Minnesotans who have exhausted all of their unemployment insurance benefits now are eligible for additional federal supplemental benefits.

Barbara Beerhalter, commission of the Minnesota department of economic security, said the extension, which continues the program to September 30, was included in public law 98-13 signed by President Reagan on March 24.

This is an extension of a program which began in Minnesota September 12, 1982, and was to end March 31, Beerhalter said. The previous legislation, established because of concern over the nation's high unemployment rate, provided up to 14 weeks in benefits, she explained. The mazimum now is up to 12 additional weeks.

Notices were mailed April 11 to persons who are not now receiving benefits but who potentially are eligible for the additional benefits, she said.

Persons who have questions or who do not receive notices but think they may be eligible should contact the nearest unemployment insurance office, she said. To be eligible for the supplemental benefits, unemployed persons must seek work on their own during each week they claim benefits and provide a written report of their employment contacts, Beerhalter said.

They must apply for suitable work and accept it if it is offered. "Suitable work" is any work a claimant can do that pays gross weekly wages which exceed the claimant's weekly unemployment benefit and equal or exceed the legal minimum wage, Beerhalter said.

$10,000 Given To Akerman Fund At U'M'

When the widow of a 1939 graduate of the University of Minnesota learned that the stock her husband had left to the university had lost its value, she decided to make good on her husband's gift and even better it — 10 times better.

The will of John R. McCarthy, who died last May, included a $1,000 gift of stock to the Akerman fund of the aeronautical engineering department. But by the time the estate was settled, the stock was worthless.

This did not deter McCarthy's window, Elizabeth Rosaker McCarthy, a 1939 business administration graduate of the university. With the help of her husband's friend Don Lampland, president of the class of '39, Mrs. McCarthy arranged to contribute $10,000 over four years to the Akerman fund.

Mrs. McCathy, who is suffering from a brain tumor, traveled from San Francisco to carry out her husband's wish. Lampland, a St. Paul resident and an engineer at Control Data, took care of the local details.

"It was (made) in memory of 'Bud' McCathy because he loved the university and especially the aeronautical engineering department," said Lampland, who was a classmate of McCarthy in that department. Akerman fund was named for John D. Akerman, who founded the department, and is used for short-term hiring of engineers from industry to instruct students on practical engineering problems.

McCarthy, a navy pilot during World War II, was shot down over Pearl Harbor and survived the Battle of Midway. After leaving the navy as a lieutenant commander, McCarthy became a test pilot for the forerunner of the Federal Aviation administration and later worked for Garrett Industries, an aerospace company in Los Angeles.

4H ✣ CLUB

Happy Acres

Happy Acres 4-H club held their monthly meeting on April 11 at ValHall. The meeting was called to order by president, Julie Finstad. Pledges were said and roll call was "What's Your Favorite Animal?"

4-H Sunday is May 8 and all members are encouraged to take part in their church service. The club is having a picnic on May 1 for 4-H Sunday.

There is a dog obedience class on April 20 at 7:00 p.m. for all members in the dog project.

Thanks were given to all who worked at the carnival. A demonstration was given by Tammy Alberg and Kim Myers on Dog Nutrition.

Susie Thune adjourned the meeting. Collette Thune seconded the motion. Lunch followed and was served by the Arlen Ellingson and Curtis Johnson families.

Steiner

The Steiner 4-H club met on April 11 at the Steiner hall. Flag pledges were said and secretary's and treasurer's reports were given.

Important dates to remember are: Demonstration day, July 7; Fashion revue, July 14; dairy day, June 14. 4-H Sunday is May 8 and we will be buying flowers; 1 per family to their church. This year's carnival made the biggest profit ever — 1,038. Share the Fun will be held on Friday, April 15 at 7:30 p.m. at the Lincoln high school auditorium. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Jenny Ose gave a demonstration on decorating your room. For recreation we practiced our Share-the-Fun act. Next meeting will be May 9 at the Steiner hall.

Stangeland To Attend Meet On Tourism

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has been invited by Canada's Ambassador to the United States to discuss controversial tourism regulations with top-ranking Canadian officials at that country's Washington embassy.

Allan Gotlieb, the Canadian Ambassador, invited Congressman Stangeland to meet on Monday, April 18, with the 14 consuls general of Canada's provinces.

"Much of what we do up there affects the interests of your constituents," the diplomat said. "We want to be sure that we are in close touch with you."

Congressman Stangeland, a co-chairman of the North American trade caucus and a member of the Canada-US interparliamentary group, has been coordinating discussions between the Minnesota tourism industry, the U.S. state department and the Canadian government in seeking a workable alternative to tourism regulations proposed by the Province of Ontario.

"This meeting at the embassy will help focus the attention of both countries on the negative impact that proposed regulations would have on tourism in both countries," he said.

The controversial proposals would require sportsmen who plan to hunt or fish in the Canadian portions of the Lake of the Woods area to pay for nightly accomodations on the Canadian side of the border. The regulations were proposed by Ontario in 1982.

However, these proposed regulations "have, after consultation, been put off for further study," according to Canadian officials.

"These proposals would hurt Minnesota resorts and would cost American jobs," Rep. Stangeland said. "But we must make the Candians realize that it would also reduce the number of people taking vacations in the border area.

"Free trade is fair trade, and that applies to the tourism industry," Congressman Stangeland said. "That's the message that I will deliver to the Candian leaders on April 18.

Fontes Honorable Mention All-American

Matt Fontes, who last week signed a letter-of-intent to play basketball at the University of North Dakota next year, became just the second Northland community college basketball player to be given NJCAA All-American recognition when he was given Honorable Mention status on the recently-announced 1982-83 honor squad.

Only Minnesota player to earn first-team All-American honors this winter was Dave Johnson of Fergus Falls, who interestingly enough finished behind Fontes in the balloting for the All-Northwest Division team — albeit a close second.

Fontes and Johnson were also both named to the MCCC all-state, MCCC all-state tournament and All-Region 13 squads, where Johnson got the edge for All-American honors by being named the outstanding player in the five-state area that includes Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Upper Michigan.

A 6-4 sophomore from Canton, Ohio, Fontes joins another Canton product — David Dickey — on Northland's NJCAA listing. Dickey was a two-time All-American for the Northmen during the 1973-74 and 1974-75 seasons before he, too, went to North Dakota.

Minnesota-Wisconsin Baseball Meeting

Looking ahead, the University of Minnesota will host the University of Wisconsin in a pair of Big Ten Conference baseball doubleheaders Saturday and Sunday, May 7-8 at Siebert Field in Minneapolis.

Obviously there's no way to know what the pitching rotation will be for that series at this point, and the probability is slim that they would be paired against each other, but it certainly would create an interesting situation if Thief River Falls' Scott Sabo and Bemidji's Bryan Hickerson were to face each other on the mound.

Both lefthanders were high school standouts, although a few years apart. Sabo is a junior on the Badgers' squad who is expected to sign a professional baseball contract this summer, while Hickerson is a freshman on the Gophers' squad.

Minnesota, Wisconsin, Northwestern, Illinois and Iowa make up the West Division of the Big Ten, while Michigan State, Michigan, Ohio State, Purdue and Indiana make up the East Division. Top divisional finishers meet at the end of the year for the Big Ten title and a berth in the NCAA playoffs.

Odd Slow Pitch Softball Regulations

A unique and somewhat incredulous new rule will be applied to some slow pitch softball games in certain areas of the state this summer when batters will be penalized by being called "out" after hitting a ball over the outfield fence in fair territory — a home run under normal circumstances.

It's a plan scheduled to go into effect in games sanctioned by the Minnesota Recreational and Park Association (MRPA), a rival group based mostly around the metropolitan area that fueds annually with the Amateur Softball Association of American (ASA), under which banner area teams — including those in Thief River Falls — play.

In an effort to cut down on runs, which would mean shorter games, the MRPA-governed rules stipulate that, depending on classification, teams will be allowed only so many home run hitters per game, and those home run hitters must be designated. If anyone else belts one over the fence, it's an automatic out. Class D teams, for example, won't be allowed to have any home run hitters, with Class C allowed two and Class B four.

Can you imagine the frustration of a player who seldom hits a fence-clearing home run when he makes a solid connection only to have the short-lived thrill of watching a ball propelled by his bat clear the fence — only to realize that he has recorded an out.

Thief River Falls' 27-or-so slow pitch teams need not worry — under ASA rules you can clobber as many homers as you darn well please.

Miscellaneous

+ Northland community college basketball coach Chet Engelman attended the recent 1983 NCAA basketball tournament finals in Albuquerque, N.M. as a district representative on the junior college committee of the national association of basketball coaches.

Northmen Sweep Raiders In Opening Doubleheader

After the opening weekend of the 1983 Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) baseball schedule, Northland finds itself in an unusual position — first place. It might be the first time in the 11-year history of the program at the school that the Northmen have headed the four-team standings.

Events leading to current situation occurred Saturday when Northland swept preseason favorite Brainerd 5-4 and 13-7 on the road, while at Crookston, UMC and Fergus Falls split a twinbill, with the Trojans winning 9-7 and the Spartans winning 12-1.

Making the Northmen that much more giddy is the fact that the 1983 Region 13 and MCCC state tournament games will be played at the site of the Northwest Division champion.

"Obviously we aren't there yet," admitted Northland coach Chet Engelman, "but it was a big step for us. It puts us in the unusual position of being in first place, and I think our chances of winning it are as good as anybody else right now."

It was a combination of good offense and equally good defense that produced the sweep over the perennially strong Red Raiders, who came into the game with a 3-1 nonconference record. It was the season-opener for the Northmen, who banged out 20 base hits — seven for extra bases — and had just two errors in the two games.

"Our kids hit the ball exceedingly well," reported Engelman. "The defense played very well, and our pitching was okay."

Northland will try to continue its new-found success this week with a pair of Northwest Division doubleheaders Wednesday at Fergus Falls beginning at 1 p.m. and Saturday here in Thief River Falls vs. UMC beginning at 12 noon. UMC and Brainerd meet Wednesday.

"Fergus Falls will be the big ones for us," noted Engelman. "If we can take two down there, we could be playing Crookston Saturday for the right to host the region and state."

Brainerd 4

Northland opened up a 5-0 lead by the second inning, then held off Brainerd come-back attempts at the end to start the 1983 season with a 5-4 win.

A game-opening walk issued to Scott McKeever, a stolen base and an RBI single by Todd Bergland quickly made it 1-0 in the first inning.

Bob Rockwood beat out an infield single to start the second, moving to third on an error on the play. Brent Walton singled through the left side for a run, then singles by McKeever and Sanders loaded the bases. Bergland cleared them when he stroked a hit over the first baseman's head that rolled into foul territory for a triple.

Sanders carried that 5-0 lead into the sixth when Brainerd came alive for four singles and a pair of sacrifices to close the gap to 5-4.

Brainerd threated again in the bottom of the seven when the Red Raiders put men on second and third with just one out. An intentional walk then loaded the bases. But Brainerd botched a suicide squeeze, with the runner out at the plate, and Sanders fanned pinch hitter Ron Enger to preserve the win.

Brainerd 7

Northland bombed Brainerd pitching for six extra base hits, including four home runs, in a 13-7 second game slugfest.

Kevin Sanders, Dave Kays, Bob Rockwood and Ladd Bjugson all homered for the winners, who had 11 hits, while Scott McKeever tripled and Mark Lundin doubled.

It all started when McKeever hit the fourth pitch of the game for a long triple. Then with two out in the top of the first, Kays belted a long home run over the left field fence.

Northland doubled the margin to 4-0 in the second when Rockwood beat out an infield single and Bjugson was hit by a pitch. Lundin scored a run on a sacrifice bunt and McKeever drove in a run with a single.

Sanders had a two-run home run over the left-center field fence in the fourth when Northland's lead shot to 8-1 and Bjugson had a first pitch homer to right-center in the fourth to complete the home run barrage. Keith Salo homered for Brainerd.

Most of Northland's damage came off Brainerd starting pitcher Mark Zmeskal, a member of last year's Edina state champion American Legion team.

Fergus Falls Is Winner Over Northwomen

Fergus Falls out-scored Northland 22-2 Saturday in a Northwest Division women's community college softball doubleheader played in Thief River Falls.

A 9-0 winner in the opener, Fergus Falls completed the sweep with a 13-2 second game decision.

Originally scheduled to be played in Fergus Falls, the games were switched to Thief River Falls because of weather conditions. It was the 1983 opener for the Northwomen, who will host Brainerd Friday in a 3 p.m. twinbill and visit Mesabi Saturday at 10 a.m.

Northland 0

Fergus Falls pitcher Dana Bergland pitched a one-hit shutout as the Spartans beat the Northwomen 9-0 to start the doubleheader. She struck out five, but struggled at times with nine walks.

Despite the lack of offense, Northland played Fergus Falls to a scoreless tie through five full innings before the Spartans broke loose for six runs in the sixth inning and added three more in the seventh.

Northland pitcher Marlys Huot, who struck out nine and walked four while scattering three hits through the first five innings, surrendered five hits in the sixth when Connie Olson had a two-run double; Verla Bruhn had an RBI double and Margaret Marthaler came up with an RBI single for the winners.

Two of Northland's four errors came in the seventh inning when Fergus Falls padded its lead. The Spartans played errorless ball.

Fergus Falls 13
Northland 2

Fergus Falls built a 13-0 lead en route to a shortened 10-run rule five-inning 13-2 victory in the nightcap.

Out-hitting Northland 11-0 through four innings, Fergus Falls scored three times in the first, second and third innings while adding two-run innings in the third and fifth.

Northland, held hitless by Jane Thompson through four innings, finally came up with a pair of hits in the fifth, including a two-run double by Marlys Huot.

Huot walked nine and struck out three while Thompson walked eight and fanned two. She was backed by the Spartans' second errorless game of the day while Northland matched its first game total with four errors.

Twice the Northwomen loaded the bases against Thompson but failed to score.

ONE OF ONLY seven Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) players named to the all-academic football team for the 1982 season, Northland community college sophomore Joe Myskowski of Warren was presented with his plaque last week by Northland coach John Helley. Selections for the all-academic team, which requires players to first be an MCCC all-state choice, plus carry a 3.0 grade point average (GPA) were just announced. Others honored were Mark Braeger and Steve Shrode of Fergus Falls; Scott Dye, Hibbing; Keith Redmond, Vermilion; Jeff Thorpe, Willmar; and Jeff Kritta, Anoka-Ramsey. It's especially difficult for a sophomore to make the team, said Helley, since the GPA standard pertains to the student-athlete's accumulative school work, whether it be for one year for a freshman or two years for a sophomore. Helley said he was delighted with the recognition given to Myskowski, the first Northland MCCC all-academic selection during his three years as coach of the Northmen.

Tennis Team Has Split In EGF Triangular Meet

East Grand Forks swept both Thief River Falls and Moorhead Thursday to win a triangular high school tennis match at the Grand Forks Tennis Center with 10 points, followed by the Prowlers with 4 and the Spuds 1.

Thief River Falls lost to East Grand Forks 5-0 and beat Moorhead 4-1, duplicating a season-opening performance at the same site earlier in the week when the Prowlers lost to Crookston 5-0 and beat Detroit Lakes 3-2 in another second place triangular finish.

Coach Whitey Olson said he was generally satisfied with the Prowlers' progress, and indicated he was most pleased with the play of freshman Al Erickson and sophomore Dan Imgrund, Thief River Falls' No. 2 and No. 3 singles players.

"The two younger kids have made a lot of progress," said Olson. "Imgrund, in the two matches he's played, has played steady tennis. He's played reasonably well. Erickson, in his second match, controlled himself much better and played real good tennis."

Olson, who had said he was impressed with Crookston in the opener, was equally as impressed with East Grand Forks Thursday, especially with No. 1 singles player Phil Burke. "Nobody is going to touch him," predicted Olson. "He's in the Bill Jury-Mitch Rustad class," he said in reference to a pair of former Thief River Falls stars now playing college tennis at the University of Minnesota-Duluth and the University of North Dakota, respectively.

East Grand Forks and Crookston, the apparent area powers this spring, meet Tuesday at East Grand Forks. Olson acknowledges that the Green Wave and Pirates have the edge, but noted, "We're not that far away. We'll be okay."

Thief River Falls visits Bemidji Tuesday for a 2 p.m. dual.

DNR hotline

Can I seine minnows for fishing?

Yes. You may take minnows by means of dip nets, traps or seins (no longer than 25 feet). However, minnows may not be taken from trout waters and perch and carp may not be used as bait. In fact, any carp minnows caught should be destroyed. Anglers may possess up to 24 dozen minnows. Stan Daley, Region Fisheries Supv.

Is there a spring bear permit? If so, why?

Bear season starts September 1 and ends October 16 this year. Applications will be accepted through May 2 for the 1983 bear hunting season. 3,550 applicants will be selected from a computerized drawing. Pick up application forms at the Department of Natural Resources. Robert Farms, Region Wildlife Supv.

Does the DNR pay fire wardens?

Township fire wardens are volunteers who authorize burning permits for residents in their township. However, fire wardens are paid if they are asked by the Division of Forestry to help with a wild fire. John Rodewald, Regional Forestry Supv.

I'd like to plant some trees in a field behind my house. Can I get financial assistance?

Yes. Before you order any trees ask a forester to help you determine the number of trees you will need and the type of trees best suited for the area. Generally it costs about $100 per acre to buy seedlings and hire someone to plant them. Federal cost-sharing will pay up to 65 per cent of your expense if you qualify for the program. The remainder you can claim as a tax deduction over a specified period. Sue Brokl, Private Forest Management Forester.

Got a question, a complaint, or a suggestion regarding how your natural resources are managed?

DNR "Hotline" is your direct channel to a representative who will answer you whether it concerns parks, fish, wildlife, forests, waters or minerals. Write: DNR Hotline, Region I, Route 5, Box 41A, Bemidji, MN 56601, telephone 218-755-3976.

Prowlers Open Track Season

Results of Thief River Falls' 1983 track season-opening meet was disappointing but not discouraging, indicated coach Tim Olson as the Prowlers finished last in a Crookston indoor quadrangular at the Winter Shows Building.

Bemidji won the event with 90 points, followed by East Grand Forks with 61, Crookston 59 and Thief River Falls 24.

Those scores, pointed out Olson, were more of a result of the opposition's progress than the Prowlers' lack of talent. It was the season opener only for Thief River Falls, a team that lacks the practice facilities available to the Lumberjacks, who have a new all-weather track; the Pirates who train in the Winter Shows Building; and the Green Wave, with the UND fieldhouse close at hand.

"You're never really very happy when something like this happens," said Olson after the last-place finish, "but I guess we got what we expected. The middle of May, though, it's going to be a new ball game; I guarantee you that."

Thief River Falls had a single winner Thursday when sophomore Kevin Fanfulik was a surprise first place finisher in the triple jump with a 35-9 effort.

Senior Lon Aune was second in the 3200-meter run with a 10:45.

"We had a lot of good efforts," explained Olson. "Our hearts were there, and I think our legs will come around."

Bemidji Track Meet Is Called Off Saturday

Wet weather Saturday forced the postponement of the Bemidji Jaycees Invitational high school track meet.

Both the Lincoln high school boys and girls teams were scheduled to compete in the event.

Thief River Falls boys will run Saturday in the Service Club Invitational at Grand Forks Red River beginning at 11 a.m., with the Thief River Falls girls waiting until Monday to visit Detroit Lakes for a 3:45 p.m. meet.

LHS Girls Compete At Crookston Meet

Thief River Falls trailed a five-team field Thursday in the girls' portion of an indoor high school track meet at the Winter Shows Building in Crookston.

Moorhead won the event with 69½ pints, followed by Crookston with 49, Bemidji 39, East Grand Forks 25 and Thief River Falls 19½.

"We're a little disappointed in the point total," admitted Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "We thought we'd have more points than that. But still, the times on the majority of the runners improved."

Thief River Falls' lone first place performance was turned in by seventh grader Jackie Smith with a 13:17 clocking in the 3200 meter run.

"She is really fun to watch. She just blows by people," said Schafer, who was also happy with the Prowlers' second place 1400 meter relay team of Paula Wilkens, Georgia Howard, Hildegunn Nyland and Stacie Kruta. That foursome ran at 3:51.2.

It the Prowlers' second meet of the year, a week after their opener at the same site.

TRF Girls Places

60 meters — 4. Tricia Armstrong, 8.29.
400 meters — 4. Stacie Kruta, 1:09.2; 5. Hildegunn Nyland, 1:09.6.

Outdoor Skills Are Offered At Summer Camp

How would you like to learn how to canoe? To find your way through the forest with map and compass? To learn how that same forest produces products essential to our everyday lives?

If you are a boy or girl between the ages of 11 and 15, you can qualify to do just that — and more — by attending the Conservation Leadership School (CLS) at Long Lake Conservation Center (LLCC).

Located in Aitkin county, the Center is the oldest continuously operating facility of its kind in Minnesota. Each year, nearly 5,000 youngsters and adults from around the state visit LLCC and participate in programs offered there.

Conservation Leadership School is an exciting blend of outdoor skills learned in a natural setting as well as activities and learning units designed to help students understand their relationships to their environment.

According to Center director, Bob Schwaderer, CLS is a learning opportunity of a lifetime that will last a lifetime. "Conservation means wise use," said Schwaderer. "We're dedicated to helping kids learn how to manage and use natural resources." In 18 years, nearly 3,500 youngsters have learned the "wise use" message — as well as had the time of their lives.

A unique aspect of this program is that a large network of organizations from around Minnesota have offered scholarships to students attending CLS. Though sponsorship is not a requirement, participants are encouraged to seek financial assistance from these sponsors, who include sportsmens clubs, soil and water conservation districts, conservation clubs, service clubs, businesses and individuals. Many sponsors rely upon LLCC staff members to select qualifying students.

There are six one-week sessions scheduled this summer. The cost per session is $140.

Persons interested in learning more about this outstanding program should write to the Conservation Leadership School, Long Lake Conservation Center, Route 2, Box 208, Palisade, MN 56469; telephone 218-768-4653.

Group Gives Trees Suited For Wildlife

National arbor day foundation is giving 10 wildlife trees to people who pay $10 to become foundation members during April. The trees are part of the foundation's effort to encourage the planting of trees which attract songbirds and other wildlife.

Scotch pine, black walnut, Norway spruce, red oak, European mountain ash, and American arborvitae trees; and autumn olive, American bittersweet, Tatarian honeysuckle, and silky dogwood shrubs will be given to members joining during April. The six to 12 inch plants will be shipped this spring postage paid with enclosed planting instructions.

These trees were selected to provide berries and nuts, nesting sites, and protection from the elements for wildlife, according to the foundation.

A nonprofit organization, the foundation is working to improve the quality of life throughout the country by encouraging tree planting.

To become a member of the foundation and to receive the 10 trees, a $10 membership contribution should be sent to Wildlife Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, Arbor Lodge 100, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by April 30.

Minnesota Twins led the American League in total attendance for the decade of 1961-70 with a draw of 13,264,664.

DNR Bird House Series Continues

(Editor's note: this is the fourth of a six-part series of feature stories supplied by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources on how to build bird houses for a variety of Minnesota's favorite birds. Articles are written by Carrol L. Henderson, DNR nongame wildlife supervisor.)

Two interesting birds which are not ordinarily known to use nest boxes are kestrels (sparrow hawks) and screech owls. Both of these species are valuable because of the large number of small rodents which they eat. The kestrel, shown in the accompanying diagram, is a small hawk-like bird, actually a small member of the falcon family. It is about the size of a robin and is commonly seen sitting along roadsides on power lines. Sometimes they can be seen hovering motionless over the grass in a roadside ditch as they watch for a field mouse or grasshopper to appear.

Screech owls are gray or reddish small owls of our woodlands which have ear tufts. They are only about eight inches high and resemble a miniature version of the more common great horned owl. Both of these species will use the same size and type of next box which is shown in the accompanying diagram. These birds use different habitats, however, so the placement of the box will probably determine which species uses it.

For kestrels, place the nest box in relatively open country and in a tree or on a post from 10 to 30 feet high. The tree or post should have a sheet of tin or aluminum (aluminum offset printing plates from newspaper offices) nailed around the base to prevent predators or squirrels from using the box. The nest hole should preferably face south. About three inches of wood chips or sawdust should be placed in the bottom of the nest box as nesting material. Neither kestrels nor screech owls bring nest materials to the box.

Starlings may nest in the box and prevent its use by kestrels or screech owls. If so, nail a tree swallow nest box with a two-inch diameter entrance (not 1½-inch diameter as is recommended for tree swallows). The tree swallow nest box will be given in part 6 of this series. The starling family will then nest in the smaller house and leave the larger house for other birds.

If you wish to attract a screech owl family the nest box should be placed on a pole or tree in an area of hardwood forest. Again, a metal "predator guard" at the base of the tree will help prevent use by squirrels. The nest should be at least 10 feet high.

Next bird house in this series is the ever popular wood duck box.

DNR NEWS

Trout Season

Stream trout fishing will be legal in all Minnesota streams starting Saturday, April 16, but lake anglers must wait until May 14, reminded the Department of Natural Resources.

Officials noted that there is a continuous season on stream trout and salmon on Lake Superior tributary streams below the posted boundaries and in St. Louis bay.

Limit on stream trout above the posted boundaries in Lake Superior tributary streams in St. Louis, Lake and Cook counties is 10, only five of which may be rainbow trout or brown trout; not more than three may over 16 inches in length.

Elsewhere, the stream trout limit is five in both streams and lakes and not more than three may be over 16 inches in length. In addition, on Lake Superior and in streams below the posted boundaries on Lake Superior tributaries there is a minimum size limit of 10 inches.

Officials urged anglers to read the 1983 fishing regulations carefully to avoid violations.

Nature Programs

Like to see wild turkeys, swans, beaver, lady slippers and even a rattler?

There's a chance you might see all of these plus explore a cave, eat morel mushrooms, photograph wildflowers and learn about early season fly fishing if you visit Whitewater State Park in Southeastern Minnesota this spring.

Interpretive staff at the park has planned a full schedule of activities for spring weekends. These programs are available to all park visitors, including groups and organizations.

Park officials said that for certain activities group size must be limited and that reservations are required.

For more information call (507) 932-3007 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays. If you'd like a schedule of activities, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Spring Activity Schedule, Whitewater State Park, Route 1, Box 256, Altura, MN 55910.

Interpretive programs are offered free of charge but permits are required to enter the park by motor vehicle. The permits can be purchased at the park office at a cost of $3 for two days in the park, or $10 for admission to all Minnesota state parks all year.

Majestic Theatres Still Remembered

by Ink Mendelsohn
Smithsonian News Service

He put his hand in hers. Together they gazed upward at the magic moonlit sky. A canopy of gauzy clouds wafted across the field of midnight blue, revealing in its wake a host of sparkling stars.

In the second row of Hoblitzelle's Houston Majestic theater, the dreamy couple sat cozily, as stars twinkled and clouds cavorted above them. Brenkert Brenograph, Jr. was at it again.

Brenograph, Jr. was not the dashing heir to a Texas oil fortune but a cloud-making machine made by the Brenkert company. From this magic lantern endlessly drifting cumulus and nimbus were projected onto the Majestic's blue plaster heavens by a strip of negatives moved across a powerful light. The electric stars shone steadily in the plaster firmament.

Designed by John Eberson in 1923, the Houston Majestic was America's first "atmospheric" movie-palace. Houstonians who went to see the latest movie romance found themselves transported to an ancient Italian garden sheltered by vine-covered travertine walls topped with cupolas, classic temples and preening peacocks.

Today, the stars no longer shine; the clouds no longer roll — losers in a thunderous clash with the wrecker's ball a number of years ago. Houston's Majestic and hundreds of movie palaces like it are gone. However, hundreds of others survive — some in decay, some in splendor and some just trying to earn a living.

Between 1915 and 1945, more than 4,000 movie palaces and thousands of smaller movie houses were built in America. Located in the downtown entertainment districts of cities, the palaces generally seated between 1,000 and 5,000 people. They had a balcony, stage, dressing rooms and an orchestra pit — and tons of gold-leafed plaster.

The palaces were "showplaces where the place was as important as the show," historian David Naylor, author of "American Picture Palaces" (Van Nostrand Reinhold, 1981), observes. "No buildings in America have been, collectively, as audaciously romantic, blatantly derivative, and wonderfully original as the movie palaces."

But back in 1928 one architectural purist cried, "No more pitiful degradation of an art has ever been presented than the prostitution of architecture that goes on daily in the construction of these huge buildings. . ." Only in the last few years have art critics, architects, academicians and museums begun to take picture palaces seriously. Recently, an exhibition at the Smithsonian's Cooper-Hewitt museum in New York City spot-lighted the art and artifacts of these unique beauties.

The art world once may have approached the movie palace gates cautiously; the public, however, stormed them. By 1930, more than 100 million Americans were going to the movies every week — almost the entire country.

It all started innocently enough with 1903's "Great Train Robbery," the first feature-length motion picture. The movies were off and running, but they needed a home: The first was the nickelodeon — a small, family-operated business in a storefront equipped with a screen, a projector, some hard chairs and a ticket booth. "Nickel-Odeon" — you paid your nickel and you got theater (in Greek).

By 1903, Harry, Jack, Albert and Sam (the Warner brothers) had a nickelodeon. By 1909, 8,000 other people had one, too. And by 1910, people everywhere in America were saying, "Meet me tonight at the 'Dreamland.'"

Movies soon outgrew the nickelodeons and became boarders in the larger vaudeville houses as second billing to George Burns on roller skates and other popular acts of the day. But as movies got bigger and better, they got to be top banana.

The moment had come for the movie palace to make its grand entrance. The Regent theater, built in 1913 in Manhattan (today it's a church) is considered the first deluxe theater constructed specifically for showing movies. Its architect, Thomas W. Lamb, became one of the foremost of the palace architects and its manager, Samual L. ("Roxy") Rothapfel, one of the world's great showmen.

It was for another great showman the "Master Showman of the Big Tops," Al Ringling that in 1915 architects George and C.W. Rapp designed a picture palace worthy of the name. The Al Ringling memorial theater in Baraboo, WI boasts an auditorium designed after La Salle de Spectacle, the opera hall at Versailles. Still showing movies, it was the first, but not the last, Versailles mirror image on Main Street.

As the movie market grew in the '20s, theater chains were forged across America — chains that would soon link the film exhibitors and the Hollywood studios. Major film exhibitors understood the powerful lure of an exotic building standing out in a gray city-scape. "We sell tickets to theaters, not movies," Marcus Loew decreed.

The palaces were worth the price of admission, often a quarter and certainly less than a dollar. Inspired by baroque palaces, Mediterranean palazzos, Gothic cathedrals and castles in Spain, the Houdinis of the drawing boards created blueprints for escape, the most beautiful buildings many moviegoers had ever seen.

The lobbies of Loew's Ohio and State theaters in Cleveland (now part of an arts center), designed in 1921, were inspired by the gallery of a royal 16th-century French palace at Fontainebleau. The foyer of Chicago's Tivoli (now gone), designed in 1921, was modeled after the Chapelle Royale built for Louis XIV. The San Francisco Pantages (now Orpheum), built in 1926, was based on the 15th-century cathedral of Leon in Spain and libeled by disrespectful wags as "Inquisition Spanish."

Fancies passed quickly in the fast-paced 1920s. With the Houston Majestic, John Eberson brought a breath of illusionary fresh air to movie palace design. Atmospheric theaters followed the Majestic's trail across the land and ocean. Miami's Olympia (now Gusman center) features a castle in Spain, the New Orleans Saenger a garden in Florence, and out in the Pacific, perhaps gilding the hibiscus, the Honolulu Waikiki has palm trees and a rainbow proscenium arch. And all of it was done with lights, paint and plaster.

That legendary showman, Sid Grauman, did it with mirrors and anything handy. He brought not one, but two ancient civilizations to Hollywood. The 1922 Grauman's Egyptian and Grauman's Chinese (now Mann's Chinese) of 1927 are still showing movies, mock tombstones and genuinely famous footprints. Sid Grauman thought he knew what the American public wanted.

Roxy thought he knew what the public ought to want. "Don't give the people what they want — give 'em something better." So Roxy gave New York City and the world the Roxy.

Roxy made sure that architect W.W. Ahlschlager didn't leave out a thing. The "Cathedral of the Motion Picture" had almost 6,000 seats — 4,000 more people could stand — a complete hospital and a modern air conditioning system. Ads boasted of a lighting plant that could power a city of a quarter of a million. The Roxy also had cathedral chimes, a 110-piece orchestra and four conductors, a colossal pipe organ, a 100-member choral group, 50 dancers and a corps of ushers trained by an ex-Marine colonel. And it had Gloria Swanson.

At least it had a message to Roxy scratched by the star in the wet plaster of the dome, "Dear Roxy — I love you — Gloria." Roxy gave instructions that her valentine be gold-leafed and left there forever. Forever was exactly 33 years. In 1960, the Roxy was ground to gold-leafed dust. And Gloria Swanson was there to say goodbye.

What does she remember today about that last farewell? "Somebody picked me up and carried me through the rubble. You couldn't walk through that stuff in spike heels," she told the Smithsonian News Service. "But I couldn't help taking a look around for that piece of the dome where I had written my name." She didn't find it.

The Los Angeles, built in 1931, was luckier. Its classically inspired facade still graces South Broadway. The Los Angeles is a favorite of architect S. Charles Lee. "I designed everything from the threads in the carpet to the roofing," he remembers. "But I always said the show started on the sidewalk." So he designed the sidewalk, along with the marquee, the box office and the sign tower. "People didn't walk out of these theaters with a loaf of bread," he says. "They walked out with a dream."

The dream was made of forests of gold leaf, miles of marble cushioned with acres of plush, ushers dressed like Foreign Legionnaires, lounges after Pompadour's salon, smoking rooms with art-deco murals and nurseries for those too young to know what they were missing. The big kids, both children and adults, got a stage show, newsreel, comedy short, travelogue and feature all to the tune of a full orchestra or the mighty Wurlitzer.

One day the music died. When sound came to the movies in 1927, live entertainment was no longer "necessary" to draw the customers. Theater managers who had once been proud impresarios became popcorn concessionaries. The Great Depression, changes in taste, a restructuring of palace empires, television, population shifts to the suburbs and decaying urban areas all contributed to a change in the way America saw the movies — and the movie palaces.

By 1932, the last of the grand picture palaces had been built, including the Oakland Paramount and New York City's Radio City Music Hall, surviving today as art-deco masterpieces. The Music Hall is the largest movie theater ever built. Roxy said it seated 6,000; he counted every seat in the house, even the elevator stools.

Down the road a mile or two from S. Charles Lee's Beverly Hills home is a 14-screen cinema emporium with what Lee calls "rooms in a department store." Each room seats 50 to 75 people. Some think this is the movie theater of the future. Times change.

"Thank heaven for the changes or we'd all be bored to death," Gloria Swanson admonishes. "Unfortunately, though, we do leave some good things behind." A good thing was the sign once posted by the switchboard in the Paradise in Faribault: "Please do not turn on the clouds until the show starts. Be sure the stars are turned off when leaving."

BSU Outdoor Program Plans Spring Events

Outdoor Program of Bemidji State University is hosting two annual events this spring: a 10 kilometer running race, and a 25 or 70 kilometer bike race. Both of these events are geared for not only the serious competitor but also the novice.

Stride Into Spring, a 10 kilometer fun run, is scheduled for Saturday, April 23. Runners may register for the event until 9:30 on race day with the race beginning at 10 a.m. Entry fee is $6 through April 20 and $8 thereafter. Top three finishers in each of the 22 different age classes will receive special awards and everyone who finishes the race will receive a special t-shirt with the race logo.

Go Tour, a 25 or 70 kilometer bike race, will take place on Saturday, May 7. The 70 km. race will start at 9:30 a.m. and the 25 km. event will begin at 10 a.m. Entry fees are the same as Stride Into Spring, with the fee increasing after May 4. Each finisher will also receive a t-shirt with the Go Tour race logo.

Race officials encourage people to take advantage of the lower entry fees by pre-registering. For more information, write Leslie Wilkinson, Hobson Union, B.S.U., Bemidji, MN: telephone 755-2999.

Area Wildlife Meeting Date Set At Grygla

Annual wildlife meeting sponsored by the Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation District will be held on Tuesday, April 26, at 8 p.m. at the district office in Grygla, located at the north end of Motel 89.

Purpose of the meeting is to invite state and federal forestry and wildlife personnel to meet with the district board to discuss their accomplishments and further plans.

Local landowners and interested persons are invited to attend to hear these reports and discuss any suggestions or problems they may have.

Monthly meeting will be held that same evening starting at 7 p.m. at the district office. This meeting, like all board meetings, is open to the public.

TRF Volleyball Fund-Raising Efforts Started

Lincoln high school volleyball coach Helen Anderson announced that girls in grades 4-12 are currently involved in fund-raising activity to help sponsor the Mobil Sport volleyball camp, scheduled to be held in Thief River Falls July 11-15.

Fund-raising activity, which will include door-to-door sales of E.T. and Smurf gift wrapping paper ($1) and M & M candies (50-cents) will be conducted April 18 through May 8.

Dog Obedience Classes Start In Goodridge

Dog obedience classes are set to begin in Goodridge with a sign-up night being held on Wednesday at 4:30 p.m. at the Goodridge hall. It is not necessary to bring dogs to this first session. Basic steps of dog training and the equipment needed will be discussed. Participants' questions will also be answered.

Cost of the class is $18 for 10 weeks with 4-H members enrolled free. Dogs are required to have rabies shots. A rabies clinic will be held on April 23 at the Goodridge hall from 2 to 5 p.m.

Light Pollution Causes Problems For Astronomers

by Daniel K. Broclous
Smithsonian News Service

As night falls on Mount Hopkins in Arizona, astronomers using the multiple mirror telescope (MMT) prepare to look far out into the universe. But as the last light of day fades, the glow of man-made light from nearby communities threatens to overwhelm the faint starlight reaching the world's third-largest telescope.

Astronomy thrives in the dark. Observatory sites are selected in large measure for dark skies. Light pollution from surrounding communities has made the astronomer's job harder.

Multiple mirror telescope observatory, a joint research facility of the Smithsonian institution and the University of Arizona, and the Smithsonian's Fred Lawrence Whipple observatory — both located on Mount Hopkins in the Santa Rita mountains 40 miles south of Tucson — are two of several observatories competing with the city lights of rapidly growing southern Arizona.

Astronomer's bane comes mainly from street lights and illumination from advertising sings, shopping centers and sports fields. Most of this light escapes upward into the night sky and out into space. However, a tiny fraction is bounced back by the Earth's atmosphere, and this light contaminates the natural light from celestial objects.

"Light pollution has definitely become worse in the Santa Cruz valley (between Tucson and Mexico) since I began observing here in 1967," Dr. Trevor C. Weekes, a Smithsonian astrophysicist, says.

Adds Whipple director Dr. Frederic H. Chaffee, "With growing frequency, we can't observe faint objects if they are located in the sky above Tucson."

Whipple and MMT observatories are not alone in trying to take advantage of the dark, dry skies of southern Arizona. Kitt Peak national observatory (KPNO) — the world's largest — the University of Arizona's Steward observatory and others give the sprawling Tucson area the distinction of having the greatest concentration of telescopes in the world.

At these observatories, sophisticated, computer-controlled instruments with new ultrasensitive electronic light detectors can study stars one million times fainter than the human eye can see. Much of the research conducted with these telescopes focuses on the faintest and most distant celestial objects — quasars and galaxies so distant that the light we see today left those objects millions and even billions of years ago. By studying this ancient light, scientists are beginning to unravel the birth, formation and evolution of our universe.

Of course, not all U.S. observatories search for very faint and distant stars and galaxies from mountaintops in the Southwest. Some urban facilties — for example, the Allegheny observatory in Pittsburgh and the Sproul observatory at Swathmore, Pa. — make significant contributions to stellar astronomy because they are observing brighter stars, visible despite city lights. Smithsonian's Oak Ridge observatory in Harvard, Mass., and the U.S. Naval observatory in the heart of Washington, D.C., are among other urban facilities carrying out important, long-term astronomical research programs.

On the other hand, in 1979 Case Western reserve moved a telescope because of light pollution from the Cleveland area to a more favorable site at the Case Western reserve Warner and Swasey observatory on Kitt Peak.

Light pollution is not limited to the United States. Night lights of an open-pit copper mine near Kitt Peak's sister observatory, Cerro Tololo in Chile, pose a hazard to that South American observatory's front-line research.

In recognition of southern Arizona's unique research environment, and urged on by astronomers, the city of Tucson and surrounding Pima County passed two of the world's first lighting-control regulations for the benefit of observatories in 1972. Ordinances were revised in 1981 to reflect changes in lighting technology and advances in astronomy that have made astronomical instruments even more sensitive to light pollution.

Before such light-control ordinances, astronomers had to use their ingenuity to deal with the problems. A greyhound racing track in the Santa Cruz valley below Whipple observatory created an especially annoying light source. Astronomers on Mount Hopkins knew exactly when each race started because their instruments would register a surge of energy when the bright infield lights were switched on to mark the beginning of each race.

After some discussion with the track management, a compromise was reached: Track owners bought lamp shields that reflected the light downward — and the Smithsonian staff helped with the installation. Now the astronomers are able to work during the races and track patrons are happier, too, since the light previously wasted upward is directed down on the track, improving the viewing where the action is.

Despite popular belief, light control ordinances do not necessarily mean "turn out that light!" An ordinance could lead to the use of shields like those installed voluntarily at the greyhound track or to regulations favoring low-pressure sodium lamps rather than traditional, glaring blue-white mercury-vapor street lights.

Mercury-vapor lamps produce five or six colors of light spread across the electro-magnetic spectrum — the range of radiation, or "light", given off by celestial bodies — and these emissions blot out portions of the starlight under study. For example, much of the "light" produced by mercury lamps is in the invisible ultraviolet band and is thus useless for illumination. But this waste ultraviolet radiation severely handicaps astronomers trying to make starlight measurements in that region of the spectrum.

Sodium-vapor lamps, in contrast, produce only one or two colors of light affecting a much smaller part of the spectrum. Most astronomers are willing to sacrifice this small part of the spectrum to preserve the remainder.

Astronomers like to point out that low-pressure sodium lights are more energy-efficient than mercury lamps. After a long campaign, scientists at Lick observatory convinced the nearby city of San Jose, Calif., to replace its mercury-vapor streetlights with sodium lamps. Now, as the project nears completion, San Jose is saving more than $1.8 million dollars a year on the municipal utility bill.

Not all such stories have a happy ending. When Mount Wilson observatory was established outside Pasadena, Calif., at the turn of the century, the small town of Los Angeles produced little light. With the installation of the 100-inch Hooker reflector in 1918, Mount Wilson had the world's largest telescope for more than a generation. Using the 100-inch telescope, astronomers made many important discoveries that literally revolutionized our thinking about the size of our galaxy and the universe.

By the 1940s, light pollution around Los Anggles was already significantly affecting Mount Wilson's astronomical research. In 1942, however, astronomer Walter Baade was able to take advantage of the dark skies resulting from the wartime blackout; his studies of the Andromeda galaxy resulted in a threefold increase in the scale of the universe.

But L.A.'s light and air pollution have taken their toll. "Little extra-galactic astronomy is done today at Mount Wilson," Smithsonian astronomer Sallie L. Baliunas says. "The lights of L.A. have definitely affected the type of science we can do."

In an attempt to maintain Arizona as one of the last astronomy preserves in North America, the state's observatories, including Lowell observatory in Flagstaff, have banded together to work for light control measures statewide. Led by KPNO engineer William T. Robinson Sr., the astronomy lobby has succeeded in obtaining light control ordinances in all of southeastern Arizona. "Not only does this help the existing observatories," Robinson says, "it also protects potential telescope sites like Mount Graham, northeast of Tucson, which is being surveyed as a possible site for a very large optical telescope."

Pushing north toward Phoenix, one of the largest U.S. metropolitan areas, the astronomy lobby hopes to convince the municipal and county authorities there to enact lighting control measures. "Even though Phoenix is more than 100 miles away from Kitt Peak," KPNO astronomer David Crawford notes, "its sky glow at night is visible to the naked eye."

At stake in all these light-pollution-control efforts, astronomers say, is nothing less than the future of world-class, ground-based astronomy.

"If man-made light doubles," Smithsonian astronomer David W. Latham says, "it will impair the effectiveness of the big telescopes to the point where we would have to look at a faint galaxy four times longer — or make the telescopes twice as large — to make the same observations as we do now." Not only would this be technologically difficult, but the costs of observing would become astronomical, literally. "The dark night skies of Arizona," Latham concludes, "are worth preserving."

MARSHALL COUNTY DAY was observed by six students from Marshall county central school. Program was sponsored by the Argyle Legion Auxiliary with each school in the county invited to send students from the junior class to learn first hand about county government. Judge Larry Jorgenson was the speaker at a noon luncheon. Students toured county offices, learned the function of each department, observed a county commissioner's meeting and observed a jury trial. MCC students were sponsored by the American Legion Post of Newfolden and auxiliary with Legion members John Lokstad and Bruce Elseth as chaperones. Participating students pictured above are, from left to right, front row, Pam Pederson, Stacey Gonshorowski and Karin Bolstad and, back row, Paul Erickson and Ken Krohn. Not pictured is Ryan Shern.

River Valley

Mrs. Orlando Chervestad
Oklee, Minn.

Saturday evening guests at the Clarence Howard home were Mr. and Mrs. Darrel Neilson and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Anderson of Goodridge. Sunday callers were Mr. and Mrs. Duane Howard and Brock and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hanson of Trail.

Jamey Gunderson celebrated his tenth birthday Friday and overnight guests were Ryan Nelson, Dean Hanson, Scott Parsley and Shawn Carlson. Saturday Jamey's mother, Mrs. Julian Gunderson, motored the guests and Jamey to Thief River Falls for supper at Godfather's Pizza and afterwards they attended the movie E.T. at the theatre. They all enjoyed the good time.

Sunday company at the Brad and Lana Nelson home were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Matheson and family.

Company during the week at the Birdie Gunderson apartment home in Oklee were, Mrs. Bunny Cote and Creanna of Minneapolis, Wylma Radniecki, Margaret Sorenson, Lillian Johnson, Kjesti Gunstenson, Helen Flateland, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Lundeen, Gladys Reindahl, Mrs. Glenn Tasa and mother, Sena Chervestad.

Sunday dinner guests at the Richard Rustan home were Janice Rustan and Dave Odegaard of Fargo and George Dahle. Shari Rustan was an overnight guest at the Shelly Larson home Friday night and Mrs. Richard Rustan was a visitor at the Eddie Larson home on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Rosemier of Willmar spent the weekend with brother Dale and his wife Kim Rosemeier at their home. Mrs. Richard Radniecki stopped over to visit with Kim and Dale Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Radniecki spent the weekend at Brainerd and visited with Sybil Radniecki.

Abegail Chervestad attended the birthday party Saturday for Samantha Paradis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bryon Paradis of Oklee. Other school friends who came over to celebrate Samantha's seventh birthday were Rachael Kvasager, Melanie Chapput, Julie Hruby, Stacy Lambert and Angel Mickelson. Happy birthday Samantha.

Mr. and Mrs. Korydon Chervestad, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Peterson and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hanson attended the Lions smelt fry on Saturday evening at Plummer.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Radniecki of Thief River Falls were Tuesday luncheon guests at the Richard and Lovonne Radniecki home.

Mrs. Brad Nelson, Quinten and Tyler were Wednesday coffee guests at the Richard and Marge Nelson home of Goodridge.

Mrs. Ricky Rustan and Mrs. Orlando Chervestad enjoyed a pot luck supper with Birdie Gunderson on Sunday.

Birdie Gunderson and Lillian Johnson were Sunday visitors at the Alice Skreland home in Oklee.

AMPI Sues To End Milk Assessment

Association milk producers, inc., (AMPI), a large dairy farmer cooperative, filed a lawsuit April 6 in the Columbia, S.C. U.S. district court to pursue a permanent end to the 50 cents per hundredweight assessment that USDA plans to collect on all milk produced after April 16. The assessment is projected to cost AMPI members $6.5 million monthly and U.S. dairy farmers nearly $60 million every month.

Attorneys for AMPI filed the lawsuit against secretary of agriculture John Block, U.S. dpeartment of agriculture and the commodity credit corporation to permanently stop implementation of the proposed 50 cent assessment on all milk marketed. Federal Judge Matthew Perry of Columbia, SC, has stopped the assessment with a temporary restraining order on Dec. 21, 1982, and a preliminary injunction issued January 11.

AMPI now becomes an active intervenor in the Columbia case and will present arguments at the hearing scheduled for April 12. AMPI will emphasize the following arguments:

USDA misinterpreted its responsibility and authority. The dairy provisions of the omnibus reconciliation act of 1982 did not make the assessment mandatory, but specifically gave the Secretary of Agriculture discretionary authority as to whether to take such action.

USDA's action violate the agriculture act of 1949, the administrative procedure act and the regulatory flexibility act and executive order. Specifically, USDA has failed to consider the price levels at which other commodities were being supported; assess the impact of its action on dairy farmers; and respond to the thousands of public comments received on the issue, AMPI spokesmen said.

USDA's behavior has been arbitrary, AMPI adds. "In addition to violating the administrative procedure act, USDA itself has even conceded that the assessment will not be effective in reducing milk surpluses," a spokesman said.

USDA's action violates the price support statute because it failed to evaluate the price support level that should be in effect during the period of the assessment and further failed to assess the economic impact of the assessment on the viability of the minimum price support level of $13.10 per hundredweight mandated by Congress, AMPI contends.

USDA's action would implement an unconstitutional tax and or penalty upon dairy farmers. USDA's sole purpose in imposing the assessment is to collect revenues.

Unless the assessment is stopped, AMPI members and dairy farmers nationwide will suffer irreparable and substantial hardships, including the loss of income and capital investments.

AMPI has vigorously opposed the assessment from its beginnings last August. AMPI repeatedly urged Secretary Block and other USDA officials to forego collection.

State To Get Weatherizing Funds Again

Enough money to weatherize at least 5,100 homes of low-income Minnesotans has been granted by the department of energy, according to Senators Dave Durenberger and Rudy Boschwitz of Minnesota. Funds are from a program retained by Congress last December.

The $7,395 million grant will be used to supplement Minnesota's state weatherization program, the senators said in a joint statement. With the addition of federal money approximately 15,500 homes of Minnesota residents at or near the poverty line are expected to be insulated against high fuel bills this year.

"Thanks to congressional action in December," Durenberger said, "Minnesota residents won't be left without this critical help. Administration plans were not to fund the weatherization assistance program this year, but that is false economy. Helping people weatherize their homes saves money in the long run.

"Weatherization can cut home heating bills in half or more," Durenberger said. "That means low-income people can reduce their dependence on assistance to pay their heating bills. It's a critical program, especially in a state like Minnesota. That's why Congress restored the funds."

Durenberger and Boschwitz voted last December to appropriate $145 million for the program in 1983, which restored funding to about the same level it received in 1982. In addition, both voted for the recent emergency jobs relief bill (HR-1718). That bill contains an additional $100 million for weatherization assistance, which means Minnesota should received a bonus of about $5.4 million for the program this year, according to the department of energy officials. The $5.4 million supplement is in addition to the $7,395 million grant announced today.

"This is an extremely important program for energy-dependent states like Minnesota," Boschwitz said. "It helps ease the pressure of rising fuel costs on low-income residents, while at the same time providing jobs."

Alan Chapman, director of Minnesota's low-income weatherization program, said about 550-600 people are employed in the weatherizing of homes. Individual homes that qualify are audited locally to determine weatherization needs, Chapman explained. Work such as insulation or weather-stripping is provided by local contractors or crews for Minnesota's energy department.

About 68,000 low-income households have been weatherized to date, Chapman said, with a goal of 100,000 by 1985.

Parents Need To Grieve When A Baby Dies

Until recently professional guidance and support were in short supply for parents who experienced stillbirth, miscarriage or the death of a newborn. Due to misguided kindness, parents rarely saw their babies and hospital staff members avoided bringing up the subject of the baby's death. Mothers were often moved to another area of the hospital, away from the maternity scene; stillborn babies were usually not named; and in many cases no funeral was held.

But attitudes are changing, according to Marlene Fondrick, R.N., director of perinatal nursing services at a St. Paul hospital. Perinatal means "around the time of birth," encompassing labor, delivery, maternity and both normal and intensive newborn care. Perinatal staff members play an important role when a baby dies, helping parents take the first steps in healthy grieving.

"People don't need protection from painful experiences; they need boldness to face them," Fondrick says. "When you help someone to cry, you help them release the pain. They need to feel it and release it; then they can recover."

And getting better is what good maternity care is all about, according to Fondrick. "most of the time our work revolves around new life and happy parents. But when a baby dies, our goal is to help families grow and mature from that experience."

In the first crucial hours, the perinatal staff helps grieving parents by introducing options, such as seeing, holding and photographing their baby, making funeral preparations and naming their baby. These options and decisions are presented to families simply as options. Parents are in no way forced or overly pressured to accept them.

Hospital also provides bereavement reading materials and is currently helping to organize a network of bereaved parents who will be available to give first-hand support to parents.

At first, many parents think it might be morbid to hold their stillborn baby, but Fondrick strongly encourages this practice. She says parents who never see their baby often find it difficult to mourn and accept the baby's death. Seeing and holding the baby creates a bond that will make the baby more real to them. Even when the body is deformed, most parents will have feelings of love and see something beautiful and special in their baby, she says.

Photographs preserve the memory of the baby in a very tangible way. If possible, the pictures should be taken with the parents holding the baby. Even if parents think they don't want pictures, Fonrick encourages her staff to take a picture and attach it to the patient's file in case parents change their minds in the future. Many do.

Fondrick encourages all parents who lose a baby to name their child. Name officially acknowledges that baby's birth and place in the family. Even in the case of a miscarriage or premature baby, a name can be appropriate because it says to everyone that the baby existed and belonged to the family.

Parents need to be encouraged to talk about their birth experiences. Reliving labor and delivery is a necessary state in the recovery period after birth known as post partum, according to Fondrick.

At home, support from family and friends also can be invaluable. "Parents need to hear it's not their fault their baby died. They need to know they're not being paid back for some past sins. Above all, they need acknowledgement of their loss and grief," Fondrick says. "We were encouraged in the past not to recognize the extent of the grief involved in losing a newborn. Now we believe parents have every right to feel great sadness and to take time to recover from it."

Mr. and Mrs. James Wells enjoyed dinner with Anna Johnsrud at her home in Thief River Falls on Thursday.

Reiner Lutheran ladies aid held their Bible study at the Sandy Miller home on Tuesday, April 12. Members attending were Pastor and Mrs. Les Galland, Iva Wells, Judy Miller, Virgie Wells, Lorraine Stenvik, Helen Holen, Dorothy Miller, Alice Johnson, Carrie Hermanson and Hulda Sigerud. Lunch was served by hostess, Sandy Miller. The May Bible study will be held May 10 at the Pastor Les Galland home in Thief River Falls with Jan Galland as hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wells visited with Olga Sorter at Northwestern hospital and with Greta Scheuneman at the Oakland Park rest home on Sunday afternoon.

Sunday evening Anna Johnsrud and Mr. and Mrs. James Wells attended the Roy Hope concert at Our Savior's Lutheran church in Thief River Falls.

LITTLE OAK . . . Mrs. Gene Marquis and Cory were coffee guests at the Arnold Haugen home Wednesday forenoon.

Sunday evening Mrs. Howard Hanson and Joanne visited at the Bud Watne home near Gully. Other visitors there were Mrs. David Carlson and Michelle, Mrs. Ole Watne and boys and Mr. and Mrs. Beswinger.

Sunday dinner guests at the David Arveson home to celebrate Kyle's fourth birthday were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hanson, Dean and Luane, Meritt Christianson and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Arveson of Gonvick. Afternoon visitors were Mrs. Jack Rindahl, Rhonda, Lisa, Michelle and Ricky, David Rindahl and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Arveson.

Mrs. Lowell Watne and Jacklyn visited at the Howard Hanson home Thursday afternoon.

Luella Arveson and Betty Burrack called Monday on Thore Skomedahl, Kate Knutson, Hannah Arveson and Emma Christianson in Thief River Falls.

Callers at the Henry Burrack home recently were Mrs. Howard Hanson and Luane, Meritt Christianson and Pastor Fehr.

Henry Burrack and Lonnie and Mike Ulwelling called at the Arnold Haugen home Wednesday afternoon.

Clara Bjerklie spent Thursday at the Gene Marquis home.

The Nazareth ladies aid met at the dining hall for their monthly meeting on Thursday. Circle 2 served lunch.

U.S. Chamber Analyzes Social Security

Americans confronted with the greatest crisis in social security in half a century should ask whether Congress is going to deal with the whole problem, or perhaps only half of it, suggests the U.S. chamber of commerce.

The most immediate problem is already upon us. Unless the system's reserve funds are augmented, the government will not have enough money on hand to cover all of the retirement and survivor benefit payments beginning with the checks for July of this year. The $200 billion system spends $17,000 more a minute than it takes in, at current levels. Between now and 1989 — the short-term, the system faces shortfalls of $150 to $200 billion, and over the long-term (75 years) $1.6 trillion.

Our only choices are to raise taxes again or gradually to reduce costs of the program, says the U.S. chamber. In the long-term, for example, a gradual increase in the retirement age as Americans live longer would practically eliminate the shortage by reducing future costs.

Few issues affect more Americans. Social security long ago ceased to be a problem of the elderly. Although one in seven Americans receives a benefit check of one kind or another, 90 per cent of the workforce pays social security taxes. Many families pay more social security taxes than income taxes.

Thanks to the national commission on social security reform, which issued its landmark report on January 15, Congress has a bipartisan, compromise set of recommendations which offer, in the words of the U.S. chamber of commerce, "a necessary beginning" or basis, for restoring full solvency to the system.

Compromise, of course, pleases nobody but does provide a rallying point for matters agreed upon. The commission's recommendations serve that purpose.

Thus, the U.S. chamber, in recent Congressional testimony, urged Congress to seek, not a half loaf, but solutions to stablize the system into the second half of the next century.

The commission's recommendations, obviously, cannot be stated in a few words. But in general, the commission has proposed $111 billion in new taxes, between now and 1989, and other savings of $57 billion, including a six-month freeze on cost-of-living adjustments (COLAs) in benefits.

Of the new taxes $20 million would come from a plan to enroll new federal government workers under social security over a period of years. This is a half-way measure, at best. The plan would tax new federal employees as they are hired but exempt all workers on the current federal payroll. If full universal coverage were extended to cover seven million additional workers, mostly federal, state and local government employees, over $100 billion in additional revenues could be expected by 1989, according to the chamber.

Similarly, the commission recognizes that year-to-year increases in benefits through COLAs have been one of the chief reasons that benefit expenditures are growing faster than revenues. But the commission proposed freezing COLAs for only six months, at a saving of $40 billion, instead of correcting the COLA formula, which most acknowledge overcompensates for inflation. By extending the freeze to 12 months and changing the COLA formula — the chamber suggests capping COLAs at 60 per cent of the consumer price index (CPI) — the savings would be $78 billion by 1989. The Chamber's proposed COLA, called an "equity cap," is fair, since it equals the average adjustments for automatic COLAs on wages in the private sector. Polls show Americans see the fairness of equal COLAs.

These two changes alone, for example, would cure two other shortcomings of the compromise. One of these is the recommendation that the government, for the first time, tax social security benefits of higher incomes retirees. The other recommendation moves up to 1984 scheduled increases in payroll taxes paid by U.S. employers and employees.

These are ill-conceived measures which violate basic principles. Benefits have been tax free since the start of social security in the 1930s. And raising payroll taxes, at a time of economic recovery, simply slows down the reemployment process, concludes the chamber.

Zins To Head MEA Starting In September

Martha Lee (Marti) Zins, media coordinator for Hopkins' West junior high school who has been elected president of the Minnesota Education Association (MEA), will begin her three-year term September 1.

Zins, 37, a native of Nicollet, has been MEA vice president since Sept. 1, 1977 and is the first woman elected president since the late Dr. Irvamae Applegate held the office in 1964.

Zins graduated with honors in 1963 from Nicollet high school.

A graduate of Mankato state university (1966, cum laude, BS in social studies, library, English, education; 1967, cum laude, BA in history and English), she taught history and political science for several months in Worthington high school, before joining the Hopkins staff in August of 1967 as librarian in West junior high school.

She received an MSL degree (master of science in librarianship) in August of 1971 from Western Michigan university, Kalamazoo, and has taken additional graduate courses at the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, and at the University of Wisconsin.

Her responsibilities as media coordinator include audio-visual, library, computers and cable television.

Zins, who lives in Wayzata, has been active at all levels of the education association, including — negotiator, secretary, president of Hopkins Education association; UniServ (Burnsville-Hopkins) chairperson; helped organize Women's Caucus, MEA and national education association (NEA); has been a local and state delegate to numerous assemblies, conferences and conventions; and has participated in a number of leadership training activities at state and national levels.

Her education-related activities include: chairperson, sex bias advisory task force of the state board of education; member, governor's task force on educational policy; treasurer, Minnesota association of school librarians; is a founder of MEMO (Minnesota educational media organization). She is a member of several honor societies.

"PREHISTORIC Peoples of the Red Lake River Area" will be discussed by Gretchen Beito in a special program at Northwest regional library at 3 p.m. Thursday. Mrs. Beito will be explaining uses of a number of stone tools and artifacts which have been donated to the library's collection by Milford Gram, Grygla. The makers of these tools are estimated to have lived in this area prior to 1000 A.D. Mrs. Beito will also be speaking about some of the forts and fur trading posts which existed in this area during the late 1700s. Programs are part of an open house being observed from 3 to 5 p.m. as part of National library week activities.

BSU Offers Summer Music Short Courses

Faculty of the music department of Bemidji state university will offer a number of short courses this summer for music educators.

Short courses are intense learning experiences where a number of instructional hours are compressed into a brief period of time.

"Music Materials and Techniques for the Elementary Teacher" set June 20 to 24 will be conducted for kindergarten through third grade teachers. On June 27 to July 1, the program will be held for fourth through sixth grade teachers. One or both sessions may be taken for two or four graduate credits. Floraine Nielson will teach the course and cover Dalcroze, Kadaly and Orff techniques. These will be integrated with the latest published music series and beginning instruction in guitar, recorder, piano and voice. Nielson also will present ideas for classroom teachers and music specialists instructing general music at the elementary level.

Steven Konecne will be the instructor of a jazz ensemble techniques course June 20 - July 1. Two to four graduate or undergraduate credits can be earned. Course content will include techniques— for teaching improvisation, rehearsal, organizing performances, and the role of jazz education in the total instrument program. Other topics will be offered for teachers wishing to develop skills in directing jazz ensembles.

Information and registration materials can be obtained by contacting the director of summer school, Deputy Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601 (218-755-2068).

Directory Of Energy Firms Being Offered

Minnesota's outlook for an energy independent future brightened today with the announcement of plans for publication of the "Minnesota Renewable Energy Directory" by the Minnesota Public Interest Research foundation (MPIRF).

The RED book (short for Renewable Energy Directory) will serve as a natural extension of its predecessor, "Minnesota Sun Funds: A Resource Directory."

"We exhausted our second printing of the original directory several months ago but continue to get consumer requests for it," said Cathy Loewenthal, MPIRF chairman. "We felt an obligation to Minnesota energy consumers to provide an updated version of the directory. The RED book will be published with the financial support of Minnesota's renewable energy businesses and contributions solicited from major Minnesota corporations.

"The new directory will be a comprehensive renewable energy buyers guide for Minnesotans," explains David Pogany. "It will contain the latest information on available renewable energy products and services as well as a buyers guide on biomass, hydro-power, active and passive solar and wind energy technologies. It will explain existing state and federal incentives and several means of financing renewable energy investments."

Interested Minnesota renewable energy businesses and organizations may contact Pogany to be listed in this year's directory at Minnesota RED Book, MPIRF, 2412 University Avenue Southeast, Minneapolis, MN 55414, (612) 376-7554.

MPIRF is a private, non-profit Minnesota corporation supported by citizens. MPIRF researches and reports on public interest issues affecting Minnesota citizens.

BSU Schedules Computer, Math Short Courses

Short courses in mathematics and computers for experts and novices will be offered this summer by the faculty of Bemidji state university.

Short course is an intense learning experience where a number of instructional hours are compressed into a brief time period. The offerings vary from four days to two weeks in duration and are available for graduate or undergraduate credit.

Dr. Jim Richards will teach a class available June 13 to 22 for three credits entitled "Programming I — Introduction to Microcomputers." PET, APPLE II and ATARI microcomputers will be demonstrated to the class. No experience is necessary to take this course.

"Programming II — Applesoft Basic" will be offered by Ken Masse June 22 to July 1 for three credits. The class will focus on arrays, loops, music, beginning graphics, shape tables, subprograms and files. Prior experience in BASIC or APPLE II is required.

Dr. Tom Richard will instruct the court "Utilizing Calculators and Computers in Elementary School" July 5 to 9. Effective procedures for hand held calculators, microcomputers, and available microcomputer programs will be covered in the session which is available for two credits.

"Microcomputer Graphics," an offering for middle school and secondary teachers with previous programming experience, will be taught by Ken Masse. Students acquire three credits studying the fundamental concepts of graphics using APPLE and ATARI in this class, which meets July 11-20.

Those interested in "Teaching Eelementary Mathematics" may obtain credits by successfully completing a course conducted by Dr. Tom Richard July 11 to 22. Class instruction provides mathematics background using contemporary texts. Ideas on teaching aids, activities projects, games and room utilization will be presented and analyzed.

Dr. Gerald Smith is offering the course "Teaching Junior High Mathematics" July 11 and 12. Mathematical games, activities, material and supplemental textbook teaching will be presented and analyzed in this four credit experience.

"Teaching Secondary Mathematics" is also coordinated by Smith. The July 11 to 22 class will cover techniques for slow and gifted learners. There will be activities to supplement textbook instruction in this four credit offering.

Another math and computer science offering by Masse is "APPLE Assembly Language" conducted July 20 to 29 for three credits. The course covers machine language coding, as well as binary and hexidecimal arithmetic. The 6502 architecture and instruction set are also topics. This session is recommended for secondary and junior college teachers using APPLE II.

"Structured Programming: PASCAL," another summer offering by Richards, will cover structured design, programming, pseudocode, IPO charts, and PASCAL with Apple II in classrooms. Three credits can be earned in this August 1 to 10 short course.

More information and registration materials for all the short courses can be received by contacting the director of summer school, Deputy Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601 (218-755-2068).

Cash Receipts From Cattle Market Rise

Cash receipts from the sale of cattle and calves in Minnesota for 1982 increased six per cent to $1.01 billion. Cattle and calf marketings at 2.07 billion pounds increased 11 per cent. The value of cattle per hundredweight fell from $50.80 in 1981 to $48.60 in 1982, and the value of calves fell from $67.40 to $60.30 in 1982, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

Nationally, the 1982 cash receipts from the sale of cattle and calves at $29.9 billion were the third highest of record, exceeded by the $34.4 billion in 1979 and $31.5 billion in 1980. Higher cattle marketings during 1982 more than offset lower annual average prices for cattle and calves and resulted in the increase in cash receipts.

Minnesota remained in third place in the number of hogs marketed in 1982, behind Iowa and Illinois. Value per hundredweight increased from $43.60 to $52.60. A new record high for cash receipts of $839.5 million was six per cent above a year earlier.

National cash receipts were a record high of $10.6 billion, nine per cent above the previous record high set in 1981.

Cash receipts from marketings of sheep and lambs in Minnesota during 1982 increased 32 per cent to $14.7 million. The value of sheep decreased from $16.40 per hundredweight in 1981 to $15.10 in 1982. However lamb prices increased from $52.90 to $54.70.

Nationally, cash receipts from marketings of sheep and lambs in 1982 totaled $447 million, up eight per cent.

Piano on tour
So what was I
Keeping ours for?
Though of past times
I'd think
When I'd hear
It go "plink",
Alas, no one played anymore.

In Re: Estate of Evelyn Ekwall, Deceased
Order and Notice of Hearing on Petition for Adjudication of Intestacy, Determination of Heirship and Appointment of Personal Representative in Supervised Administration and Notice to Creditors

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS AND CREDITORS:

It is Ordered and Notice is hereby given that on the 18th day of May, 1983, at 2:00 o'clock P.M., a hearing will be held in the above named Court at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, for the adjudication of intestacy and determination of heirship and for the appointment of Beverly Wittman whose address is RR 1, Box 39, Warren, MN 56762, as personal representative of the estate of the above named decedent in supervised administration, and any objection thereto must be filed with the Court. That, if proper, and no objections are filed, said personal representative will be appointed to administer the estate, to collect all assets, pay all legal debts, claims, taxes and expenses and sell real and personal property, and do all necessary acts for the estate. Upon completion of the administration, the representative shall file a final account for the allowance and shall distrubute the estate to the persons thereunto entitled as ordered by the Court, and close the estate.

Notice is further given that ALL CREDITORS having claims against said estate are required to present the same to said personal representative or to the Clerk of the Court within four months after the date of this notice or said claims will be barred.

Sons Of Norway History Listed

(Editor's Note: Following history of the Sons of Norway in Thief River Falls was prepared for the lodge's anniversary from lodge records.)

When Sons of Norway was founded in Minneapolis in 1895, it was organized with the purpose of helping people in need, to comfort the ill or distressed and to help preserve our splendid heritage among ourselves and for posterity.

Snorre Lodge 70 of the Sons of Norway was organized in Thief River Falls and completed its charter on April 10, 1908. There were 36 names listed as charter members, one of whom is still living, namely Sam Hetland. Since most of these men and other early members were born in Norway, the Norwegian language was used in conducting the meetings. On Dec. 16, 1942, it was used for the last time.

The 50th anniversary of Snorre Lodge was celebrated with a banquet at the Eagles hall on April 16, 1958, with 125 people in attendance, including dignitaries and visitors from neighboring lodges. Vearblomsten Lodge 458, Daughters of Norway, of Thief River Falls, was represented by its president, Mrs. Anna Ness. The Minnesota Centennial theme was used in the decorations.

Mrs. Ole Ness, Mrs. Lawrence Aase, and Anna Aaseby served on the banquet committee. President Lawrence Aase welcomed the guests. Secretary Herman A. Kjos, who was in charge of arrangements, acted as toastmaster. Vilhelm Holand, president of District I, Sons of Norway, was one of the speakers and also presented a framed 50 year certificate to Halvor Rhodegaard, a living charter member of Snorre 70. The main address of the evening was given by Judge Gilman P. Grandrud from Glenwood, who was Supreme Lodge director at that time. Women from the Eagles auxiliary served a sumptuous banquet at $1.50 per plate. Paid up members received a free banquet ticket.

When Snorre 70 met on Oct. 18, 1961, Supreme Lodge president, John K. Hagen of New York was present. During the program which followed the meeting he reported on the progress of the Sons of Norway. President Harold F. Larson conducted the meeting. Henry Storhaug acted as toastmaster.

Another banquet marked the 55 anniversary on May 15, 1963. President Martin Gulbranson welcomed the guests. Herman Kjos, First District president, acted as master of ceremonies and introduced the two speakers of the evening, Einar O. Hammer from Minneapolis, director of fraternal affairs for the Supreme Lodge, and First District secretary John M. Reno.

On the evening of August 5, 1964, following the meeting, a special program was given to honor Probate Judge Herman Kjos for his many years of service to the Sons of Norway. He had served in district offices for 20 years, including director of the board and six years as First District president. He had served Snorre 70 in various offices for 24 years, including five years as president and was at that time serving as historian. During the program president Charles Emanuel presented him with a gift in recognition of his faithful service.

The 60th anniversary was celebrated on April 17, 1968, with a banquet in the Eagles hall. President was Albert Sjolsvold and the master of ceremonies again was Herman Kjos. John Reno, District secretary, brought greetings. Regional manager Burre Schanche spoke a few words and district president Roy Eide was the speaker.

In 1965 came the first reports from members who had taken the charter flights to Norway.

At the regular business meeting on Dec. 4, 1968, Supreme Director Herman A. Kjos installed Lawrence Aase as First District director.

In April of 1969, it was announced that Brooks Mostue, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mostue, had won a scholarship to attend the 1969 international summer school of Oslo, Norway.

The president of the Supreme Lodge of the International Fraternal society, Sons of Norway, Hilmer E. Kjorlie and his wife visited on Nov. 3, 1969. First District president Mikal Kartvedt and his wife were also guests. They were entertained at a 6 p.m. dinner in the Terrace room at the Rex cafe with officers of Snorre Lodge present.

Later that same evening a special meeting was held in which 23 members were initiated into the Sons of Norway with the supreme president conducting. President Marvin Gustafson conducted the meeting. Charles Syverson served as master of ceremonies. District director Lawrence Aase and Supreme director Herman Kjos introduced the honored guests.

Seventy-five years had passed since 18 young men, Norwegian immigrants, organized the first Sons of Norway Lodge in North Minneapolis in 1895. The early lodge did much to help the newcomers from Norway to find their way in this new land. Snorre 70 celebrated this Diamond Jubliee with a free membership dinner, and program on Jan. 16, 1970. President Marvin Gustafson presided. During the program Lawrence Aase presented the local lodge with a new Sons of Norway flag.

On Sept. 4, 1970, a business meeting district director Lawrence Aase presented Sam Hetland, a living charter member, with a life membership certificate.

In 1972 Snorre lodge began giving scholarships to young people to attend the Skogfjorden langauge camp near Bemidji. Each year since, four or five youngsters have gone to the camp, who wanted to study the language and learn about life in Norway. We have received many letters of appreciation from those who attended. Several expressed the desire to go again. Some hoped to visit Norway in the future. In 1981 the lodge donated $200 to help put up the stabbur, a prefabricated building imported from Norway.

Snorre Lodge was invited to serve coffee and Norwegian goodies in the lobby of the Northern state bank on May 17, 1973. Julia Rambeck, assisted by Ethel Aase, both in Norwegian costumes, did the serving and women of the lodge did the baking. Money donated by the bank was put into the lodge's treasury. This became an annual project, headed by Julia Rambeck until her death in January of 1981. Ethel Aase has carried on with other ladies assisting.

Lodge members felt the deep tragedy on Feb. 16, 1974, when the charter was draped for two fine members, Arthur Rambeck and William Froiland, who lost their lives in a plane crash. Art Rambeck had served the lodge as treasurer for 24 years.

At a later meeting, one of the members, Inga Geving, who serves as president of the Pennington county historical society, told about a log cabin near Gatzke that was once owned by Arthur Rambeck. She suggested that the lodge buy the cabin and have it moved to the historical village. The members agreed, so the lodge bought the cabin and had it moved. Members donated their labor for repairing, painting and cleaning and provided articles used in furnishing it. A plaque was placed on the wall outside. Now the cabin stands as a fitting memorial to a man who was much loved by his fellow men. While the repair work was going on, Julia Rambeck, his widow, donated $200 toward the project. Later on she presented Snorre 70 with a new American flag.

Vaablomsten 458, organized on April 4, 1911, was disbanded in 1978. On May 3, 1978, 16 former members of the Daughters of Norway were elected to membership in Snorre 70.

In 1979, under the direction of social director Ardelle Ostgarden, Snorre 70 sponsored a fiddlers contest, with 15 fiddlers of this area participating. Evan Foster, the youngest contestant, won first prize.

A movie projector with sound and screen was purchased in 1979. Through the courtesy of the public library the lodge has shown some excellent films. Herman Hanson is chief operator of the machine.

On July 8, 1981, we sponsored a delightful singing and dancing group from Norway. Some members of the lodge housed and fed them. Each visitor was presented with a plate as a souvenir. The group presented Snorre 70 with a plaque and book about Bergen.

At the February 1982 meeting, Joe Vallet was presented with a plaque in appreciation of his many years of service to Snorre Lodge as musician.

Snorre 70 has assisted in the development of this community. When Thief River Falls put on a drive in 1959 to get a junior college, members took part writing letters to Governor Freeman and state legislators. Northland college has helped both young and older students to further their education. It has been a fine cultural influence in our community.

We contributed financial support and took part in the Bicentenial Celebration. In April 1976 we co-operated with the arts council by sponsoring a group of Norwegian singers, dancers and musicians from Norway. Contributions were made at various times to the Pennington county historical society to help with projects in the historical village. Members also volunteered as workers. Financial assistance has been given toward activities of the senior citizens and Valley Home. A contribution was made to help with home delivered meals. Members have been most generous in volunteering to deliver the meals.

Money has been raised through several activities, some already mentioned. Dumpling and smorgasbord suppers were very popular. The food concession stand operated for several years at the county fair was very successful. The Sunshine March helped to pay for the cards and flowers sent to the sick.

Our appreciation of Norwegian culture has grown through programs and activities. Many members have taken flights to Norway and reported the beauty of the country and the activities of the people. Some have shown slides and given interesting talks. Some studied the language in order to enrich their visit to Norway.

Children going to Skogfjorden are learning the language and about Norwegian culture. Several visitors from Norway have come and brought greetings to the lodge, which is keeping in touch with the country from which members, parents or grandparents came. The Sons of Norway is really helping to preserve Norwegian heritage.

Among the outstanding social event was the annual Christmas party which included members and their families. It began with a pot luck supper followed by a program, with both children and adults taking part. Joe Vallet, who played the part of Santa for so many years, added much merriment to the evening. Santa distributed treats to everyone.

The annual summer picnic was also a family affair and sometimes included visitors from other lodges in the area. The yearly membership dinners were usually followed by a program or dancing. There were card parties and games. At one of the dress-up parties, Ann Hanson took the first prize in her mother's wedding gown.

In the past 25 years our charter was draped for a total of 69 members who had died, yet we have shown a healthy growth in membership. There were 168 members in 1967 and 466 members in 1981. Since 1958 there have been 31 members who received their life membership. Sixteen of these are still living. They are Herman Kjos, Sam Hetland, Lawrence and Ethel Aase, Gladys Odegaard, Hjalmer Rafteseth, Marie Larson, Lena Molstad, Albert and Verna Sjolsvold, Marvin Gustafson, Carl Lee, Marie Knudson, Anna Nelson and Geneva Larson.

Past presidents not already mentioned are Henry Storhaug, Herman Hanson, Charles Syverson, John Eastby and Oscar Odegaard. Present president is Robert Stroble.

The past 25 years have been busy, productive years in which we have experienced good leadership, excellent cooperation and fine fellowship which has been the tradition of Sons of Norway. So let us celebrate our Diamond Jubilee on April 22, 1983, with joy and thankfulness.

Skill Building For Head Nurses Slated Wed.

Nursing management consultant, Kay Ehrhart, MSN, RN, will present a workshop for registered nurses in northwestern Minnesota on Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. at the Thief River Falls Best Western motel.

"Skill Building for Head Nurses" is the workshop title. Techniques for developing an effective and cohesive work group so as to enhance nursing care is the focus of the workshop.

Ehrhart has extensive experience in the area of nursing management issues. Following her graduation from Marquette University in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, she practiced as a staff nurse, clinical coordinator and assistant director of patient care.

Six contact hours of continuing education will be available. For more information contact MNA at (800) 832-6400.

Bankers Ass'n. Urges Repeal Of Withholding Tax

Law requiring the withholding of taxes on interest and dividends beginning July 1 should be repealed, and Congress is expected to vote soon on repeal, according to Truman Jeffers, executive vice president of the Minnesota bankers association (MBA).

Jeffers said that over half of the U.S. Senators and three-fourths of the members of the House of Representatives are sponsoring legislation to repeal the law requiring banks and other financial institutions to withhold 10 per cent of interest of dividends from their customers. Progress on the repeal proposal has been stalled by efforts by opponents using procedural and delay tactics, Jeffers said.

Withholding issue has been debated over the past two months, generating thousands of letters, cards and telephone calls to Washington from Minnesotans opposed to the law. Jeffers noted that the Senate has agreed to debate the issue on April 15, but no House hearing or vote has been scheduled.

In the Minnesota congressional delegation, Senator Rudy Boschwitz and Congressmen Jim Oberstar, Gerry Sikorski, Tim Penny, Arlan Stangeland, Bruce Vento and Vin Weber have indicated support for repeal of withholding. Senator David Durenberger and Congressmen Bill Frenzel and Martin Sabo are not currently supporting porposed repeal measures.

Jeffers said that more complete IRS matching of 1099 information forms with tax returns and better use of IRS enforcement measures would solve the tax compliance problem without burdening millions of honest American taxpayers. "If the government would use the tools already at its commend, the Treasury could collect nearly all the money it thinks it now is missing because of tax cheaters. It is grossly unfair for honest taxpayers to be burdened by withholding," Jeffers said.

The issue apparently will surface first in the Senate, where a compromise last month between repeal leader Robert Kasten of Wisconsin and repeal opponents will lead to an April 15 debate and a vote. The MBA official said withholding repeal "should win in the Congress — if those of us back home keep reminding our Senators and Representatives and the White House how we feel."

Open Bids For Road Work In Marshall Co.

Minnesota department of transportation has announced the opening of bids for a road improvement project in Marshall county.

Improvements call for aggregate base, plant-mixed bituminous base, plant-mixed bituminous surfacing and aggregate shoulders on 15 miles of CSAH 34 between CSAH 35, four miles northeast of Warren, and CSAH 6.

Bids will be received by county auditor Charles G. Cheney at the Marshall county courthouse in Warren until 2 p.m. Tuesday, May 3.

Guitarist At Newfolden Sun.

At 8 p.m. Sunday, April 24, John Peterson will share his music and testimony at the Evangelical Free church in Newfolden. Peterson was previously a nationally known guitarist, singer and back-up for top country western stars.

UND Centennial Party Slated In TRF Mon.

University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, will hold a centennial party in Thief River Falls on Monday, April 25 at the Best Western motel.

This celebration will provide an opportunity for UND alumni and friends to recall their college days, visit with university representatives, catch up on current campus developments, and view the new professionally produced centennial film "UND: The New Century." Entertainment will be provided by a group from the UND music department.

Social hour will begin at 6 p.m. with dinner served at 7 p.m. Cost of dinner is $9.50 per person.

University of North Dakota was founded in 1883 by an act of the territorial legislature six years before North Dakota become a state. Four faculty members met the 11 students who entered the university on opening day September 8, 1884. During that first year, enrollment increased to 79 students. Today, more than 11,000 students from every county in the state, every state in the union and many foreign countries attend the university. More than 130,000 students have attended UND during its first century.

For reservations at the Thief River Falls UND centennial party or additional information, contact arrangements and reservations chairmen John and Bev Sampson at Box 9, Thief River Falls or phone 681-4297.

Fun And Flair Food Workshop Set At NCC

"Fun and Flair" food workshop to provide quick, easy and attractive food ideas will be held at the Lincoln high school home economics room on Thursday, April 28 from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Fee is $3.00 plus materials.

Taught by home econimist, Glenna Hanson, and offered by Northland community college, the workshop will include a brief informational presentation, learning laboratories where food will be prepared, and conclude with a "taste test" of food prepared.

Pre-registration is required by Monday, April 25. For more information and to register, call or write, Northland community college, 681-2181, ext. 44.

Church Library Group To Meet

Red River valley chapter of the Lutheran church libraries association in Minneapolis will conduct its spring meeting April 26, at Comstock Lutheran church in Comstock from 12:30 to 3 p.m. There are no registration fees for this meeting and membership in the Red River valley chapter is non-denominational.

Zoologist To Be Speaker At Warren Dinner

Dr. James Grier, zoologist from North Dakota state university at Fargo, will speak on the bald eagle when the Wetlands Pine & Prairie sanctuary banquet is held April 26 at 6:30 p.m. at the American Legion club in Warren.

Dr. Grier's work was summarized in the April-May issue of National Wildlife magazine and Dr. Grier and a bald eagle appeared in 1977 on the Johnny Carson television show in Los Angeles, CA.

Comments at the banquet will also be given by Ed Grigham III, regional vice president of the National Audubon society in Minneapolis, and Dr. W. Dan Svedarsky of the University of Minnesota at Crookston. Keith Steva of Thief River Falls, president of the Agassiz Audubon society, will introduce the sanctuary manager.

Wetlands Pine & Prairie sanctuary is located near Warren.

Purath, Solem Receive Angus Herd Awards

Two area breeders received Angus herd awards at the annual meeting of the Angus association held recently.

Willard Purath, Red Lake Falls was honored with a centennial award for 69 years of work with the Angus breed. Historic award was presented to Alfred Solem, Thief River Falls, for 37 years of experience.

Roger Sunvold, Sacred Heart, moved up from vice president to president of the Minnesota Angus association. Don Strickler, Euckild, was elected vice president and John Reed, Brooten, was reelected secretary-treasurer.

Over 150 members gathered for the meeting and election of officers held in Rochester.

NEW ULTRASOUND EQUIPMENT has been installed at Northwestern hospital services in Thief River Falls which will provide additional diagnostic opportunity locally. Suzanne Novoselac, ultrasound applications specialist, is spending three days instructing local hospital personnel in use of the equipment. She is shown with Orvel Stocks (left), radiology department head, and Steve Koch, assistant department head and ultrasound technician. The equipment has the capability of displaying organs in motion, videotape recording of the images produced, and portability so that it can be used throughout the hospital.

Hospital Adds Ultrasound Unit

Addition to new ultrasound equipment in the radiology department of Northwestern hospital services in Thief River Falls brings that phase of department equipment to the most current available, according to Orvel Stocks, radiology department head.

Ultrasound equipment, which uses high frequency sound waves instead of radiation, is being used in a number of applications where x-rays pose a potential hazard. Prolonged exposure can be used without patient harm.

The new equipment has several capabilities which previous equipment did not have, Stocks said. It has videotape capability which permits the recording of organs in motion for later or repeated study. It can produce a still picture for hard copy reproduction. And it is portable enough so that it can be moved to other areas of the hospital for use.

Ultrasound has been used extensively in diagnosis and analysis during pregnancies when x-rays could be harmful to the developing child. Now the new equipment can be used here to provide further monitoring of newborn in the hospital's obstetrics department.

Suzanne Novoselac, ultrasound applications specialist, is spending three days in Thief River Falls to work with radiology department staff members in understanding operation and capabilities of the equipment. She represents the manufacturing company in Wood Dale, IL.

Dr. Earl Dagg, radiologist in the department, described the new equipment as "state of the art" as the most modern in a rapidly changing field. Stocks said the ultrasound technology is advancing so rapidly that textbooks become

No Decision On Airline Here Until In May

Federal officials are not expected to act until next month on replacement airline service for Thief River Falls, according to information received earlier this week by Mayor Bob Carlson.

Although the Civil Aeronautics board is meeting today, the replacement carrier selection to succeed Republic Airlines in Thief River Falls is not even on the agenda, Mayor Carlson was informed.

The mayor said it is expected that whatever decision is reached by the board will be appealed by airlines not selected. Bemidji Airlines of Bemidji and Mesaba Airlines headquartered in Grand Rapids are considered to be the major contenders for replacement service.

Republic Airlines announced its intention to withdraw service from Thief River Falls some time ago, but is being retained under continuing subsidy while the replacement process grinds on.

Ose And Langan Are Delegates To Boys State

David Ose of Thief River Falls and Jeff Langan of Goodridge have been selected as delegates to Boys State by Ecklund-Holmstrom post 117 of the American Legion in Thief River Falls, according to Ormond Johnson, committee chairman.

Ose is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ose and Jeff is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Donald Langan. Alternates are Jeff Hamerlinck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hamerlinck of Thief River Falls, and Tony Wiseth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wiseth of Goodridge.

The boys are members of this year's junior class at their respective schools. Boys State will be conducted June 12-18 on the campus of Gustavus Adolphus college at St. Peter.

"These students are singularly honored as outstanding citizens and have earned this honor," Johnson said. "They are named through cooperation of the Legion post, high school faculty and leading citizens of the community."

Goodridge Elementary Set Musical Thur.

Goodridge elementary school will present a musical for young voices entitled "It's Music," on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the school gym.

All students in kindergarten through sixth grade are involved in this brief history of American music. Songs, dances and narration tell the story of how our music changed from the settlers' time to the sounds of rock and roll.

Kevin Duffy

Kevin Duffy New Assistant Co. Attorney

Joining the law firm of David Olin as an associate and also designated as assistant Pennington county attorney is Kevin Duffy who moved here recently with his family from Bemidji. He replaced Tim Faver in the assistant county attorney position.

Duffy was associated with the Anderson and Keyes law firm in Bemidji and also was an assistant in the Beltrami county attorney's office there.

A native of Hayward, WI, Duffy holds a BA degree in English from the University of Notre Dame in South Bend, IN, where he played hockey for two years under coach Lefty Smith, graduating in 1978. In 1981 he received his juris doctorate degree from Hamline university law school in St. Paul. He has been employed in Bemidji since that time.

Kevin and his wife Michelle have three children, six-year-old Seamus, four-year-old Shane and five-month-old Molly. He holds membership in the American, Minnesota and Beltrami county bar associations and locally is a member of the Elks, Knights of Columbus and Kiwanis.

DST To Begin Sunday; Time For A Change

Daylight saving time will begin officially Sunday at 2 a.m. when people across the United states will set their clocks ahead one hour. Those who don't want to make the change at 2 a.m. may set their clocks before going to bed Saturday night.

Federal law establishes daylight saving time from the last Sunday in April until the last Sunday in October. Those having difficulty remembering which way to adjust the time may be helped by the simple reminder: "Spring ahead and fall back".

Peterson Pled Guilty Mon. To Embezzlement

Darrell Peterson, formerly of Thief River Falls and former director of the Northwest Regional Inter-district council (NWRIC) at Newfolden, pleaded guilty in Marshall county district court Monday afternoon to four counts of embezzlement of public funds and one count of misdemeanor theft.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered by Judge Warren A. Saetre and sentencing date was set at Monday, May 16 in Marshall county district court in Warren. Peterson was released on his own promise to appear for the sentencing.

Assistant Marshall county attorney Michael Williams said that a total of 10 counts on three separate law violations had been brought by the county attorney's office, but that five were for the same offenses to which Peterson pled guilty Tuesday. As a result, those five charges were dropped.

Peterson entered his plea at what had been scheduled as an omnibus hearing for presentation of evidence to determine what would be admissable at a trial if there would be probable cause for a trial to be held. He was advised of his rights by Judge Saetre who then accepted his guilty plea. As a result, no trial will be conducted and evidence gathered will not be presented.

Williams said that maximum penalty for the felony counts of embezzlement of public funds is five years in jail, a $5,000 fine or both for each count. Penalty for the misdemeanor theft charge is a maximum of 90 days in jail, a $500 fine or both.

Peterson resigned his position as director of NWRIC in November of 1982 and for most of the time since then has been employed in Kansas City, MO. Williams said the four counts of embezzlement involved more than $800.

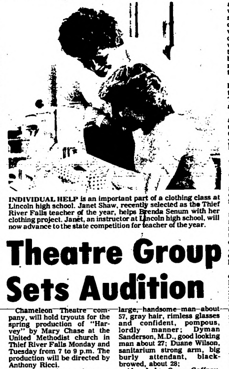
United Way Meets Monday

Annual meeting of the Thief River Falls area United Way will be held Monday at 8 p.m. at the occupational development center.

Representatives from all local agencies are encouraged to attend the meeting.

TRF Teacher Of The Year Happy In Her Profession

NOT ALL HOME ECONOMICS courses are involved with sewing or cooking. Janet Shaw, recently selected by the Thief River Falls education association as teacher of the year, writes in her philosophy, "With the family-oriented curriculum, home economics has gone away from the cooking and sewing skills image to the idea that each individual is a part of a family unit and therefore has the responsibilities that this entails." Janet gives help with a project to one group, from left to right, Ann Donarski, Brenda Matthieu and Kris Haapoja.



INDIVIDUAL HELP is an important part of a clothing class at Lincoln high school. Janet Shaw, recently selected as the Thief River Falls teacher of the year, helps Brenda Senum with her clothing project. Janet, an instructor at Lincoln high school, will now advance to the state competition for teacher of the year.

by Julie Easton
Times Reporter

"I love teaching! If I didn't I wouldn't stay in it," commented Janet Shaw, Thief River Falls teacher of the year, during a Times interview. Janet teaches home economics at Lincoln high school.

She begins her educational philosophy, a requirement for state competition, by writing, "In education, the prime concern of the teachers should always be the student."

Janet believes what she writes and she practices what she says. Top priority for her is working with the individual student. "You work with the students at their ability level and build on wherever they are. For example, in a clothing class I tell them, 'Select what is a challenge to you,'" Janet stated. In all classes, Janet blends the beginning and advanced students together.

"We still have failures, but you can learn from your flops," she confided. Just last week one group of students in a foods class baked a cake that was only one inch high. Instead of considering it a complete disaster, Janet worked with the class to determine what the problem was. In this case it seemed that not enough flour was used because Janet tried the same recipe at home that night and the cake rose beautifully.

She was both surprised and honored to be chosen as teacher of the year by the Thief River Falls education association.

Janet grew up in Pemberton and attended Mankato state university. She taught in Glenville for two and one-half years before coming to Thief River Falls in 1968.

Higher education seemed obvious for Janet, "My mother encouraged us to get our college degrees. My two brothers are also college graduates. She only had an eighth grade education so she influenced us."

Home economics seemed the right field to enter after a few education classes. Janet related, "I have always been tall for my age and being tall I can't buy clothes off the rack. Also, my grandmother was an excellent seamstress so I may have some natural ability."

Janet teaches five different courses right now including Fashion and Fabric, Practical Foods, Exploring Foods, Child Development and Finance and Housing. With that many different preparations, there is never a dull moment in the teaching day.

She describes her day as, "Busy! I have never had five preps since I got here. It keeps you hopping! It's interesting." Looking at the positive side of things, Janet also said she doesn't have to worry that she taught one section an essential concept, but forgot to include that material for another hour.

All classes are enjoyed equally by Janet because she allows herself to delve into each subject. In her family life class she feels that she can aid students by pointing out things they might not be aware of.

Tuesday Last Day To File For School Board

Final day for filing for candicacy in the School District 564 election is Tuesday, April 26, according to district clerk Arnt Aune. Election will be conducted on Tuesday, May 17.

Four people have filed so far for the three positions open on the board this year. They include incumbents Myrle Carlson, Larry McDowell and Greb Pribula and challenger Rev. Paul Bortnem, chaplain at Northwestern hospital services. Carlson and Pribula are completing their first three-year terms and McDowell has served three terms.

Filing may be done with the clerk or at the office of the superintendent of schools in the school district service center.

Theatre Group Sets Audition

Chameleon Theatre company, will hold tryouts for the spring production of "Harvey" by Mary Chase at the United Methodist church in Thief River Falls Monday and Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m. The production will be directed by Anthony Ricci.

"Harvey" is a three-act comedy which centers around Elwood P. Dowd, a role made famous by James Stewart, and an imaginary six-foot rabbit. The cast calls for six men and six women to fill the following roles: Elwood P. Dowd, about 47, dignified bearing, yet dreamy expression; Veta Louise Simmons, Elwood's sister; William Chumley, M.D., large, handsome man about 57, gray hair, rimless glasses and confident, pompous, lordly manner; Dyman Sanderson, M.D., good looking man about 27; Duane Wilson, sanitarium strong arm, big burly attendant, black-browed, about 28;

Also Judge Omer Gaffney, elderly, white haired; Ruth Kelley, R.N., head nurse at Chumley's Rest home, very pretty, about 24; Myrtle Mae Simmons, daughter of Veta, about 20; Betty Chumley, good natured, happy bustling woman about 55; Mrs. Ethel Chauvenet, about 65, heavy, wealthy, Western society woman; E.J. Lofgren, colorful

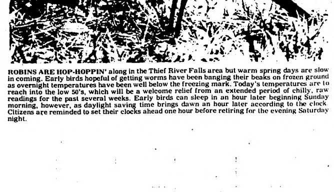
To Install Rev. Anderson At Redeemer

Rev. Luther L. Anderson will be installed at Redeemer Lutheran church in Thief River Falls on Sunday at 3 p.m. Rev. Steve Hogberg of Jamestown, ND, will be the installing pastor and speaker.

Rev. Hogberg serves as the assistant to Bishop Harold Lohr, president of the Red River Valley synod. Rev. David Wagner, dean of the Grand Forks-Bemidji district of the Red River Valley synod, will also participate. Public is invited to attend the services and social hour.

Rev. Anderson began his duties as senior pastor of Redeemer on March 1. Prior to his appointment in Thief River Falls, Rev. Anderson served the St. Mark's congregation in Sioux Falls, SD, since 1978. He earned a B.A. degree from Augsburg college, a B.S. degree from the University of Minnesota and an M.S. degree from St. Cloud state university.

He taught senior high school English and history in Alexandria from 1966 until 1972 when he entered Northwestern seminary in St. Paul where he earned a master of divinity degree in 1976. He was employed as assistant director of pastoral care at North Memorial medical center in Minneapolis from 1976 to 1978. Rev. Anderson and his wife Laurie have three sons, Todd, Ross and Brent.



ROBINS ARE HOP-HOPPIN' along in the Thief River Falls area but warm spring days are slow in coming. Early birds hopeful of getting worms have been banging their beaks on frozen ground as overnight temperatures have been well below the freezing mark. Today's temperatures are to reach into the low 50's, which will be a welcome relief from an extended period of chilly, raw readings for the past several weeks. Early birds can sleep in an hour later beginning Sunday morning, however, as daylight saving time brings dawn an hour later according to the clock. Citizens are reminded to set their clocks ahead one hour before retiring for the evening Saturday night.

Scout Exposition Slated On Sunday

Annual Voyageur Trails district Boy scout exposition will be held Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Thief River Falls sports arena, according to Dave Olin, chairman of the show. More than 30 scout displays will be at the exposition depicting a wide variety of scout skills.

There will be Boy scouts, Cub souts and Venturers from the Seven Oaks district of Winnipeg, Manitoba and Boy scouts and Cub scouts from the St. Boniface, Manitoba district participating this year. Both the Seven Oaks and St. Boniface districts are a part of the greater Winnipeg region, Manitoba Provincial council, Boy Scouts of Canada.

Attending from this area will be Boy scouts, Cub scouts and Explorer posts from Karlstad, Stephen, Greenbush, Red Lake Falls, Lancaster, Warren, St. Hilaire, Badger, Plummer, Argyle, Kennedy and Thief River Falls.

Purpose of a scout exposition is to give all scouts an opportunity to demonstrate their learned skills to the general public, Olin said. There will be a wide variety of demonstrations representing many areas of scouting. Admission to the show will be $1 per person with people under 18 admitted free. Tickets may be purchased from Cub scouts, Boy scouts and Explorer scouts throughout the district.

Olin added that this year's scout exposition is being organized by the Thief River Falls Elks and that the Elks are pleased to be able to assist the scouts in this endeavor. Elks personnel chairing committees include John Nicholson, participation; Gary Flynn, judging; Robert Bredeson and Dave Carlson, arrangements; and Tim Loeffler, tickets.

Aiding the Elks are Bonnie Van Schaick, district scout commissioner, and Tom Przybylski, district scout executive. Refreshments and concessions will be offered by the Order of the Arrow scouts as a service project for scouting and Bjorkman's, scout distributors, will have a booth with scout supplies available for sale at the exposition.

Chairman Olin expressed his sincere appreciation to all participating units, families hosting the Canadian scouts, the local United Way and all individuals and businesses whose generous contributions have made it possible to produce this exposition. He urges everyone to come to the sports arena on Sunday to observe scouting in action.

ALCW Spring Convention Held Saturday At Trinity

Achievement awards were presented to area high school seniors, officers were elected and committee chairmen were selected at the one-day spring convention of the Thief River Falls Conference ALCW held Saturday in Thief River Falls at Trinity Lutheran church.

Award recipients were Jayne Erickson, Thief River Falls; Sara Amundson, Gatzke; Kent Honl, Roseau; Mark Larson and Dion Warne, both of Badger; Ann Pederson, Warren; and Machelle Setterholdm, Stephen. Alternate was Mark Frosaker, Badger. Elsie Aune, Gatzke, made the presentations.

At the election of officers, Mrs. Joan Sethre of Newfolden was chosen president. Others elected were Mrs. Karen Eeg, Greenbush, vice president; Mrs. Idella Samuelson, Thief River Falls, secretary; and Mrs. Ruth Wagner, Stephen, stewardship secretary.

Mrs. Ralph Ness, Baudette and Mrs. Myron Carlson, Angus were chosen to head the two-day retreat committee; Mrs. Belmer Thompson, Greenbush, the one-day retreat; and Mrs. Louis Hermanson, Roseau, and Mrs. Leo Orpen, Gatzke, the nominating committee.

The theme of the convention was "Joy to all People," based on Luke 2:10, "And the angel said to them, 'Be not afraid; for behold, I bring you good news of great joy which will come to all the people'." The theme was emphasized in the banner procession that highlighted the opening. At the morning session, Rev. Milan Davig of Moorhead, who is currently serving as assistant to the bishop of the Northern Minnesota District, spoke to the group on the theme "Stretched by Joy." Afternoon speaker was Cecil Johnson, giving information on the Oak Grove major fund drive.

The convention was called to order by conference vice president Lois Swanson of Goodridge, who also was in charge of the noon business meeting for the 70 voting delegates in attendance.

Jeanette Hamerlinck, Trinity ALCW president, welcomed the guests, Rev. Berton Hushagen, Trinity gave the opening devotions; LaVonne Masters, also of Trinity, led the afternoon devotionals; and Bethany Women Sheila Stenseth and Grace Hammer gave the skit "Joy, Joy, Joy." Greetings from the district were given by District President Ruth Lee, who also officiated at the installation of officers. Mae Isaacson of Zion gave the ALCW conference resource center report.

Music included a vocal solo by LeRoy Aasland, trombone and trumpet duet by Les Torgerson and Mauri Torgerson; piano solo by Cathy Hagen, and a selection by the Trinity Senior choir, directed by LaVonne Masters. Ada Smerek of Grygla led the group in singing "Songs of Joy". Organist was Dorothy Larson of Trinity.

The noon luncheon was served by the women of Trinity. Morning coffee was hosted by the Bethany ALCW of rural Thief River Falls, and the afternoon coffee was served by the Immanuel ALCW of Plummer.

Registration totaled 340.

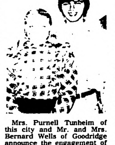
The day's offering of $825 went to Oak Grove high school, Concordia college and the Northern Minnesota Task Force on Hunger.

Debra Jane Thompson To Wed Clair Mathson

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Thompson of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Mathson, also of Thief River Falls, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their children: Debra Jane and Clair Dale.

The wedding will take place Saturday, May 28, at Zion Lutheran church in this city.

Candyce Tunheim and Brian Wells Engaged



Mrs. Purnell Tunheim of this city and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Wells of Goodridge announce the engagement of their children: Candyce Elizabeth and Brian Jay.

Miss Tunheim is a 1982 graduate of Lincoln high school and is employed at Hardee's. Her fiance is a 1977 graduate of Goodridge high school and is engaged in farming.

A July 2nd wedding at Trinity Lutheran church is planned.

Nikole Rae Eggelston Baptized at Oak Ridge

Nikole Rae Eggelston, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Eggelston of rural Thief River Falls, was baptized Sunday, April 10, at the 9:00 a.m., worship services at Oak Ridge Lutheran church. Rev. Robert Moberg officiated. Sponsors were the child's paternal uncle and family, Ken and Rhonda Eggelston, Kyle and Kerri of Clayton, Wis.

Following the service, the child's parents hosted a dinner at their home. Guests, in addition to the sponsors, were Bob and Barb Eggelston, Kelly, Lori and Stacey of Cameron, Wis., and Curt and Karen Johnson, Tiffany, Kristi and Kari of Goodridge.

Youth Temperance Education Week Set April 24-30

April 24-30 has been proclaimed as Youth Temperance Education week by Minnesota Governor Rudy Perpich.

To mark the observance the Thief River Falls Alice Mae Stuart Women's Christian Temperance union met Monday afternoon, April 11, at the Riverside Terrace community room to package youth Education bulletins for distribution to the local schools and churches.

The bulletins included public awareness to the use of alcoholic beverages; and that several groups have been formed to combat drunk-driving. These groups are MADD (mothers against drunk-driving), DADD (Dealers against drunk-driving), PADD (Parents against drunk driving), and SADD (Students against drunk-driving). The last group, started in Massachusetts is gaining momentum in Iowa and Minnesota.

It was also noted that President Reagan has appointed a Commission on Drunk Driving, which has instituted administration revocation of driver's licenses independent of the courts. Such laws are in operation in Minnesota, Iowa, Virginia and Delaware. Refusal by a drunk-driving suspect to submit to a sobriety test may be admitted in court as evidence of guilt, according to a ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Other information included gives the harmful effect of smoking and the use of marijuana.

The theme of the meeting was "Pathways to Youth." Mrs. Hildur Lian was in charge of devotions, reading Matt. 28:1-8; and Mrs. Marie Gustafson gave the meditation. Mrs. Gustafson stated that too often only the mistakes made by the youth are publicized, while nothing is said about the youth allowing Jesus to direct their paths. She challenged the group to spread the love of Christ by sharing, not only the message of Easter, but by proclaiming their own personal love and concern for the youth.

Special guests at the luncheon that followed were local youth: Lori Freeman, Janell Helm, Kristi Shantzen, Brent Olson, and Jared, Courtney and Nickolena Mostrom-Ose.

The meeting concluded with the announcement that the district WCTU meeting will be held May 12 at Newfolden.

Schantzen and Johnson To Speak Vows In June

Kay Lynn Schantzen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne L. Schantzen, and Michael Wayne Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald W. Johnson, all of this city, announce their engagement and forthcoming marriage.

The wedding ceremony will take place June 25th at Bethany Lutheran church, rural Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Levi Announce Son's Birth

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Levi of Grand Forks, N.D., announce the birth of a son on April 14 at the United hospital in that city.

The child weighed 8 lbs., 2 oz., and has been named Grant Michael. He has an older brother, Andrew.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kohler of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Levi of Fargo, N.D.

Mother-Daughter Luncheon Set at Nazareth at Holt

Mrs. Esther Peterson of Karlstad, author of children's books, will be the guest speaker at the Mother-Daughter luncheon to be held Sunday at 3:00 p.m., at the Nazareth Lutheran church at Holt.

Her topic will be "You can make the difference."

Women and girls in the area are welcome to attend.

35th Anniversary Is Observed By Campanula Club

Thirty-fifth anniversary of the Campanula garden club was observed on April 13 at a noon luncheon at Lon's. Eight members were in attendance.

Centering the luncheon table was a potted Shamrock. For roll call members brought a flower from their gardens. A number of scillas were displayed. Also of interest were the sea shells Geneva Overum presented to each members as a memento from her recent trip to Florida.

The regular business meeting was conducted by President Ruth Holmes. Eleanor Tornes gave the secretary's report, Olga Johnson, the treasurer's report and Bernice Knutson, the Good cheer account.

It was decided to meet April 25th at the Rex cafe to make plans for the anniversary party to be held in June. Mrs. Walter Fischer reported on the invitation received from Lois Swanson to attend the flower show in August at Goodridge. Gladioli bulbs, which had been ordered earlier were distributed by Olga Johnson.

The year's study, a flower from the Bible, was led by Geneva Overum. She reported on the Rose of Sharon, mentioned in Song of Solomon, 2:1-2, and the Rose of Isreal, the daffodil, mentioned in Isaiah 35-1.

The topic, "Planning a garden for cut flowers," was given by Ruth Holmes. Ellen Peterson led the quiz games, suitable for entertainment at parties.

The meeting began with the reading of the Garden club purpose and the April poem.

Landin and Davidson Engagement Announced

Mrs. Grace Landin of Moorhead and formerly of Warroad, announces the engagement of her daughter Catherine (Cassie) Frances to Clyde Allan Davidson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Davidson of Thief River Falls and formerly of Roseau.

Both are employed at Roseau, Miss Landin at Delta Commodities, and Davidson at Hites Red Owl.

A spring wedding is being planned.

Grief Support Meetings Open To The Public

Regular monthly meeting of the Thief River Falls Grief Support group will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., at the Fireside meeting room at the United Methodist church.

The meeting is open to the public, regardless of age, sex, church affiliation or the stage or length of grief. Leaders are lay people of this community, who have endured grief and are volunteering their time and experiences in helping others adjust to the loss of a loved one.

Homemakers Of Rocksbury Study Home Storage

Analyzing interior space and home storage was discussed at the April meeting of the Rocksbury homemakers club held at the home of Gina Gunderson.

Presenting the lesson were Audrey Heieren and Ann Gunderson. Members participated by giving ideas for storage, or experienced lack of storage.

Chairman Audrey Heieren presided at the meeting which opened with the reading of the club creed by Ivadelle Reierson. Roll call was answered by telling something special planned for this spring.

Future events discussed were the homemakers cooking school, April 28, the bread fair, May 6; the day at the campus of the University of Minnesota, Crookston, June 9; the homemakers tour to Winnipeg, June 28-29; and the May meeting, which will be a potluck picnic at the home of Audrey Heieren.

The birthdays of Gina Gunderson and Ivadelle Reierson were observed by the members singing the "Birthday Song." Door prize winners were Bertha Anderson and Gladys Heinze.

Those attending, in addition to those mentioned, were Goldie Brieland, Julia Finstad, Viola Husby, Gloria Johnson, Minnie Krause and Evelyn Nelson. Attending as a guest was Alice Engelstad.

A dessert lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by co-hostess Synneva Engelstad.

LWML Spring Rally Scheduled At Twin Valley

Spring Rally of the Crookston Circuit Park Region I Lutheran Women's Missionary League (LWML) of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod will be held Tuesday, April 26th, at Trinity Lutheran Church, Twin Valley.

Registration and coffee will begin at 9:00 a.m.

Featured speaker in the afternoon will be Rev. Victor H. Marxhausen, White Bear Lake, pastor of South Shore Trinity Lutheran church. In 1972 Rev. Marxhausen made an excursion to modern day Turkey to study the sites of churches mentioned in the first three chapters of the Book of Revelation. The churches, located in Asia Minor, are Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamos, Sardis, Thyatira, Philadelphia and Laodicea. A study was made by Rev. Marxhausen of these seven early Christian churches in the light of archealogy, history and the Holy Bible and the message each church brings to the Christian church of today. The presentation will be a slide travelogue.

Rev. James Meichsner, Fisher, Pastoral Advisor, will present the Bible Study.

Members are reminded to bring their 40th Anniversary Thankofferings for delegates to take to the Detroit Convention in June. New and used sweaters will also be collected for World Relief.

Babysitting will be provided.

Bread Fair Is Discussed By Chat-Chew Club

Bread Fair scheduled for May 6 at the Thief River Falls city auditorium was discussed at the March meeting of the Chat and Chew homemakers club held at the home of Hilda Wennberg.

Report on the event was made by Pauline Aubol, who had attended the Homemakers council meeting. Plans were also made for hosting the Friendship club.

Mrs. Vi Sullivan presided at the meeting which included a report by treasurer Marian Williams. Due to the absence of secretary Geneva Overum, the secretary's report was omitted.

During the craft period, Pauline Aubol instructed members in making Easter eggs using Styrofoam. She also demonstrated the making of rabbits using baby socks.

A dessert lunch was served by the hostess.

Teacher Of The Year Happy In Her Profession

like the difference between destructive and constructive arguments.

Entire emphasis in home economics has changed from the skill level to the consumer level to the family level in Janet's teaching career.

Her goal for the student is for them, "To have success in life and be a good family member." Janet continued, "We are all members of a family whether we are single or married."

"With the family-oriented curriculum, home economics has gone away from the cooking and sewing skills image to the idea that each individual is a part of a family unit and therefore has the responsibilities that this entails," Janet writes in her philosophy.

Though home economics courses are varied in scope, Janet says that not many male students take the classes. She believes it is because a stigma discouraging males is still prevalent. If they do take a home ec course, males tend to enroll in the food classes.

Home economics courses are considered vocational classes and part of Janet's salary is vocationally funded. To retain vocational certification, a school must offer consumer foods, consumer clothing, consumer education (finance), consumer housing, child development and family living at least once every two years.

To receive family life certification, Janet attended college last summer at Mankato. "I can appreciate students more after I've been a student myself. I analyze teachers according to my own standards," she related.

When she does go back to school, Janet concentrates on taking courses that will benefit her and the student rather than attempting to get another degree.

Greatest reward Janet gets from teaching is "having former students come back and say 'I did learn something.' which says more or less "Thank you.'" Having a successful project is also fulfilling, she commented, but not quite as rewarding as the long-term feedback.

In her free time, Janet enjoys traveling, sewing and reading. She plans a trip to Russia during Christmas break to visit a nephew and his children.

Janet said, "It takes a certain type of person to teach. I think you have to have something just to get up in front of a classroom and teach and you must be able to talk to kids. Being a friend to a certain extent, yet a disciplinarian too. You must be flexible and roll with the punches; you can't get uptight because you will generate that to the students."

Janet Shaw is that certain type of person.

Hospital Adds Equipment For Ultrasound

outdated almost as soon as they are printed. Reliance on journal articles becomes necessary to keep pace with the change.

He said he believes the local hospital will also be using the new equipment extensively in cardiology work because of its increased capabilities.

Interpretation of ultrasound pictures is a new technology because of the type of perspective produced. While x-ray films show images in the same perspective in which they are taken, ultra-sound reflects a 90-degree image.

For instance, an ultrasound picture of an area of leg bone — taken against the length of the bone — would show an end view of that section of bone. The depth of high frequency sound waves can be controlled to show various cross sections of the area under study. A sequence of these cross sections can provide greater insight into medical problems.

Ability to record motion is also valuable, Stocks said. He gave an example of a jaw which appeared normal when both open and closed. But when it was viewed opening and closing on the ultrasound screen a "bump" was detected at mid-point.

He also said videotaping will likely be done as a matter of course so that the images will be available until readings are completed. The tapes may then either be retained or used over again.

AAUW Topic Is Canadian Family Law

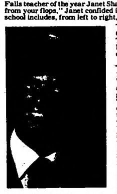
Thief River Falls branch of the American association of university women (AAUW) will learn about Canada at the monthly meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Northwest regional library.

Gil Goodman of Winnipeg will discuss how Canada has re-written its family laws which concern the role of courts in conflicts over child custody and divorce settlements.

Goodman is the Queen's counsel assistant and deputy attorney general of Manitoba. He formulated the new family law of Manitoba which was also adopted into the family law section of the new constitution of Canada.

AAUW international relations chairman Margaret Saetre is program coordinator for the evening. All AAUW members, spouses and guests are invited to attend this meeting.

CAREFUL MEASUREMENTS are an essential for any recipe and a little help from Thief River Falls teacher of the year Janet Shaw doesn't hurt either. "We still have failures, but you can learn from your flops," Janet confided in a Times interview. Practical foods kitchen from Lincoln high school includes, from left to right, Jenny Olson, Jeff Sorenson, Dan Imgrund and Kristy Dyrdal.



ALAN MELVIE, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Melvie of Viking and a senior at Marshall county central high school, placed second in non-original oration at the recent region 8A speech contest hosted by MCC. Melvie will now advance to the state level of competition scheduled in Shakopee Friday. Walker took the team championship trophy and Blackduck was runner-up.

Mrs. Melvin Hanson Rites Held Tuesday

Funeral services for Mrs. Melvin (Elva) Hanson, 67, of Fayetteville, N.C., and formerly of this area, were held Tuesday at 2:00 p.m., at Calvary Lutheran church in Grand Forks, N.D. Mrs. Hanson died Friday at Fayetteville.

Mrs. Hanson, the former Elva Chapman, was born Feb. 8, 1916 in Espelie township, Marshall county, to Willis and Sarah Van Riper Chapman. She grew to womanhood in Espelie township and at Goodridge.

On April 8, 1947, she was married in Thief River Falls to Melvin Hanson. The couple lived at Northwood, N.D., and Akron, Ohio before moving to Fayetteville, N.D., in 1980.

She is survived by her husband, a son, Dayton Hanson, Bakersfield, Calif.; three daughters: Mrs. Jerome (Marlene) Bratlie, Drayton, N.D.; Penni Johanson, Fayetteville, N.D.; and Deborah Suarez, Akron, Ohio; 10 grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, one brother, Ervin Chapman, St. Hilaire; and two sisters: Florence Bakke, Grand Forks, N.D., and Flossie Johnson, Duluth.

She was preceded in death by her parents, six brothers: Earl, Ernest, Dallas, Harold, Lester and Clarence; and two sisters: Olive and Hazel.

Alma C. Welo Dies April 16 In Washington

Alma C. Welo, 89, of Mount Vernon, Wash., and formerly of Thief River Falls, died Saturday, April 16, in a nursing home at Mount Vernon.

Graveside funeral services for Alma C. Welo were held Tuesday at 1:00 p.m., at the Hawthorne Lawn cemetery in Mount Vernon with Rev. Dwight Nelson of the Bethany Covenant church officiating. The Kern Funeral home, Mount Vernon, was in charge of arrangements.

Alma C. Welo was born in Thief River Falls on Dec. 8, 1893 to Anders and Katherine Welo, now deceased. She attended school here and was graduated from Moorhead Teachers college with a degree in education. She taught in this area until 1950, when she moved to Mount Vernon. Since then, she had lived there, except for short times when she taught in Richfield, Wash., and Texas. She also did missionary work in Mexico for a time.

She attended the Bethany Covenant church.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Hazel O. Carlson, Bow, Wash.; a brother, Joseph Welo, Burlington, Wash.; and two nephews: Joel and Wendell Carlson, both of Bow, Wash.

Three sisters and two brothers preceded her in death.

Donald Sandum Services Held In Texas

Funeral services for Donald L. Sandum, 55, of El Paso, Tex., and formerly of Thief River Falls, were held March 28 at St. Michael chapel. Sandum died March 23 at Beaumont hospital at Fort Bliss.

Rev. Louis Mancini officiated at the services. Interment with military honors was in the Fort Bliss National cemetery.

Donald Sandum, a son of Herman and Edith Sandum, was born March 22, 1928 at Scobey, Mont. Later they moved to Thief River Falls where he attended school, graduating from Lincoln high school in 1946.

After graduation, he enlisted in the U.S. Army with tours of duty in Korea, Japan, Turkey, Germany, and the Vietnam Conflict. After 21 years of service, he retired and settled in El Paso, Tex. He attended two years of college, with special courses in law enforcement. He then worked for several years on the border patrol between Texas and Mexico. Later he worked in security for the city of El Paso.

He is survived by his wife, Belen; a daughter, Dolores, and a grandson, Gilbert, all of El Paso.

Also surviving are his mother, Mrs. Edith Sandum and a sister, Mrs. Bruce (Helen) Hall, both of Thief River Falls.

His father and one brother preceded him in death.

Cliff Wilcox Dies Friday In Moorhead

Clifford Gordon Wilcox, 64, of Moorhead and formerly of Red Lake Falls, died Friday in Moorhead.

Funeral services for Clifford Wilcox were held Tuesday at 1:00 p.m., at the First Presbyterian church in Moorhead with Rev. Grant J. Lowe officiating. Mrs. Beth Swee was the organist and Beth Santwire, the soloist. Burial was in the Oak Grove cemetery in Red Lake Falls. The Korsmo Funeral chapel, Moorhead, was in charge of arrangements.

Clifford Gordon Wilcox was born Dec. 19, 1918 at Gilby, N.D., to Stewart and Ada Wilcox. He grew to manhood at Gilby and from 1934 to 1955 he lived at Red Lake Falls.

He served in the U.S. Army during World War II. Following his discharge, he returned to Red Lake Falls where he was in retail sales with his father and brother. Since moving to Moorhead, in 1955 he had made his home there.

Wilcox was a gunsmith and worked at Al's Sport shop, and Davis Sport shop in Fargo. He also had been co-owner of Sportland and Valley Gunshop in Moorhead. Most recently, he was employed at OK Hardware in Moorhead and operated a gunsmith shop in his home.

He was married Jan. 1, 1947 at Red Lake Falls to Jeanette Hansen. She survives.

Also surviving are two sons: David Wilcox, Fargo, N.D.; and Charles, Golden, Colo.; a daughter, Mrs. Kenneth (Nancy) Luedtke, Lodi, Wis.; a granddaughter, Kristen Wilcox, Fargo; his step-mother, Mrs. Gladys Wilcox, Red Lake Falls; and one brother, Roy Wilcox, also of Red Lake Falls.

Rites Held At Karlstad For Ruby Barstad

Funeral services for Ruby E. Barstad, 63, of Milwaukee, Wis., and formerly of Strandquist, were held Saturday at the Karlstad Gospel Tabernacle.

Rev. Daniel Taylor officiated at the services together with Rev. John A. Riveness. Music included two duets by Mr. and Mrs. Ingolf Ingebrigtsen and a solo by Mrs. John A. Riveness. Mrs. Ingebrigtsen served as organist. Interment was in the Nyd cemetery, near Newfolden, with the Collins Funeral home, Karlstad, in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Donald and Dean Holmstrom, Ivan Kimbrough, Vance Lefrooth, Edward Carlson and Morris Lindstrom.

Mrs. Barstad, the former Ruby Evelyn Lindholm, was born Nov. 28, 1919 at Strandquist to Adrian and Annie Lindholm. She attended school and grew to womanhood at Strandquist.

On Jan. 29, 1935, she was married at Warren to Evald Barstad. Following their marriage, they farmed near Strandquist until 1942, when they moved to Milwaukee, Wis. After the death of her husband in November of 1974, Mrs. Barstad continued to make her home in Milwaukee.

Surviving are three sons: Lanny and Duane Barstad, both of Milwaukee and Clyde, Duluth; three daughters: Mrs. Frank (Patrica) Peters, Lake Tomahawk, Wis.; Mrs. Robert (Jeanette) Eller, Port Washington, N.Y.; and Mrs. Frank (Marcie) Meldonado, Milwaukee; 18 grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

Also surviving are her mother-in-law Mrs. Mary Ueland, Thief River Falls; a brother, Lawrence Lundholm, Milwaukee, Wis.; two sisters: Mrs. Eddie (Geraldine) Kuznia, Strandquist; and Mrs. Leo (Yolanda) Messer, Milwaukee, Wis.; and her friend and companion, Paul Siedschlag, Milwaukee, Wis.

In addition to her husband and parents, she was preceded in death by two children and several brothers and sisters.

Mrs. Johanna Hennissen Died At Karlstad

Mrs. Johanna E. Hennissen, 95, of Halma, died Monday morning, April 11, at the Karlstad Memorial hospital.

Funeral services for Mrs. Hennissen were held Wednesday, April 13 at 2:00 p.m., at the Eidsvold Lutheran church. Rev. Donald Peterson and intern pastor Steven Josephson officiated. Vocalists were Mr. and Mrs. Ingolf Ingebrigtsen with Mrs. Ingebrigtsen serving as organist. Interment was in the Eidsvold cemetery with the Collins Funeral home, Karlstad, in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Jeff Folland, Michael Folland, Gene Pederson, Dale Stamnes, Brad Krantz and Tilden Spilde.

Mrs. Hennissen, the former Johanna Elise Solem, was born Aug. 21, 1887 at Moorhead to J.T. and Amelia Solem. As a child, she moved with her family to a farm in Norway township of Kittson county, near Halma. There she attended school and grew to womanhood. On March 2, 1916, she was married to Chris Hennissen. After their marriage, the couple farmed south of Halma. Later, they moved into Halma. There she lived until a year ago when she moved to Jamestown, N.D., to reside with her daughter. For the past two months, she had been a resident of the Karlstad Memorial Nursing center.

She was a member of the Eidsvold Lutheran church of Halma and had been active in church work for many years.

Surviving are her daughter, Mrs. Kenneth (Avis) Halvorson, Jamestown, N.D., two grandsons, and several nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her husband, who died in May of 1966. Three brothers and three sisters also preceded her in death.

Microcomputer Meet Slated Tues. At BSU

Microcomputer workshop will be held Tuesday at Bemidji State University (BSU).

It is sponsored by the BSU small business development center and the Bemidji chamber of commerce.

Seminar is designed to provide a broad overview of all microcomputers and will assist participants in making choices for home and business needs.

Dr. Milt Will of BSU will explain how changing economic conditions make it necessary for business owners and managers to be familiar with computer terminology, as well as features available in machinery, programs and assistance.

Workshop is scheduled for 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. in Hickory hall, room 115 on the BSU campus.

Cost is $10 per person in advance, $12.50 per person at the door. Two or more participants from the same business will be admitted for $7.50 per person.

For registration materials or more information, contact Dr. Milt Will, Hickory Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601, phone 218-755-2754.

Senator Says Dairy Support Is On The Line

Saying that "this time around, the very existence of the dairy price support system may be on the line," Senator Rudy Boschwitz introduced the "Dairy Production Act of 1983," a bill that seeks to end the costly excesses of the dairy price support system by addressing both production and consumption.

Boschwitz said his bill creates the necessary incentives for decreasing production by providing a $10 per hundredweight diversion payment to farmers who cut back, and augments that with a comprehensive dairy promotion program financed by a 15-cent per hundredweight check-off on all milk marketed.

"With all the different dairy proposals on the table alreay, it would be naive to imply that this bill will be the final answer to dairy's problems," Boschwitz said. "But I do hope that it contributes to a final product that once-and-for-all balances supply and demand by providing incentives for every farmer to reduce production a little instead of forcing farmers out of business.

"If nothing is done, there will be a serious movement in Congress to virtually gut the dairy price support program."

Hot Lunch Menu At Goodridge

Monday, Apr. 25: Barbecue on bun, tater rounds, pickle relish and milk.

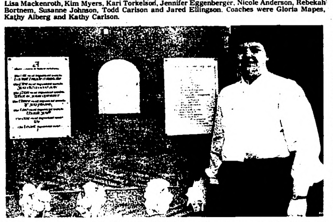
Tuesday, Apr. 26: Turkey gravy over mashed potatoes, gelatin with fruit, bread and milk.

Wednesday, April 27: Chili, crackers, cheese slices, vegetable sticks, applesauce, bread and milk.

Thursday, Apr. 28: Hot dogs on bun, baked beans, mixed fruit, bread and milk.

Friday, Apr. 29: Italian spaghetti, garlic toast, green beans, pudding and milk.

"TOAST OF THE TOWN" was the title of the second place share the fun number presented by the Happy Acres 4-H club Friday evening at the Pennington county competition in the Lincoln high school auditorium. Members of the second place group included John Anderson, Tammy Alberg, Lisa Mackenroth, Kim Myers, Kari Torkelson, Jennifer Eggenberger, Nicole Anderson, Rebekah Bortnem, Susanne Johnson, Todd Carlson and Jared Ellingson. Coaches were Gloria Mapes, Kathy Alberg and Kathy Carlson.



TEACHER OF THE YEAR for Thief River Falls is Janet Shaw, home economics instructor at Lincoln high school. She is shown with a bulletin board used in her Child Development class. Janet teaches five different courses this quarter encompassing clothing, foods, finance, housing and family life.

NMPF Program Supported By Advisory Group

A group of Minnesota dairy farmers appointed to advise Congressman Arlan Stangeland has urged him to throw his full support behind the National Milk Producers federation (NMPF) proposal for reforming the U.S. dairy support program.

Melrose dairyman Vern Frericks, chairman of the 25-member advisory committee, announced the decision at a committee meeting.

"After comparing the numerous proposals which have been offered by various dairy organizations, we felt that the NMPF plan would provide the best means of strengthening this program and the industry," Frericks said.

Congressman Stangeland met with his dairy advisory committee in St. Joseph.

"Some reforms must be made in the dairy program," he said. "No dairy farmer in the country wants the government to buy $2 billion of surplus milk. What they want is a program that will help them to get a fair market price for the dairy products they produce."

A member of the House agriculture committee, Rep. Stangeland said that Congress is preparing to take action on the dairy program. The House dairy subcommittee is holding "mark-up" hearings on various dairy bills this week.

"It is obvious that the 50 cent assessment on dairy price supports will never work," he told his advisors. "Dairymen will be forced to increase their production to make up for the decreased support, so the government will pay more for the program than ever before."

Congressman Stangeland has sponsored both major bills on dairy reform which have been offered: the NMPF proposal (H.R. 2253) and the Wisconsin Play (H.R. 1528). Both bills will provide $10 per hundredweight incentive payments to farmers who reduce their production.

"I am going to work for the compromise which will be best for Minnesota's dairy farmers," he said.

Bus Route For Hwy. 75 Towns Is Sustained

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer has praised the Minnesota public utilities commission (PUC) for its preliminary recommendation that bus service be continued on a Greyhound route in northwestern Minnesota.

Stumpf said that Greyhound had petitioned the PUC requesting permission to abandon the route that now services Warren, Argyle, Stephen, Donaldson, Kennedy and Hallock. After holding a hearing on the issue, the commission tentatively decided that the bus company's request be denied.

"I am very happy about the PUC's recommendation," Stumpf said. "It proves that the input from local residents who attended the hearing in Warren had an impact on the commission.

"As many residents testified at that hearing, the Greyhound route provides an important source of transportation in our part of the state," Stumpf continued. "Many senior citizens, in particular, depend on the bus.

"I am hopeful that the PUC's recommendation will be upheld," Stumpf said, "and that all residents will be able to continue using this route."

Family Day Set At MSU For Parents

Parents of Moorhead state university (MSU) students are invited to a "Family Day" on campus April 30 and May 1, which is a free program featuring a series of mini-courses for parents, a play, concerts, exhibits and social events.

Family day is meant to acquaint parents with the campus and college life by introducing them to both the social and academic sides of the university.

Two-day program begins at 4:30 p.m. Saturday with registration in the student union ballroom and ends the next day at 4 p.m. with MSU's annual honors convocation in the center for the arts auditorium.

A schedule of events the first evening includes planetarium shows, concerts by the MSU brass ensemble and chamber choir, a four-character play "The Fitzgeralds" by the MSU theatre and demonstrations on electronic music and glass blowing.

Sunday events include tours, brunch at the student union and from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m., the Miniuniversity — a series of short courses with titles ranging from "In Quest of the Ultimate Tax Break" and "A Floppy Disc Is Not a Rock Group" to "Stress Management" and "Reaganomics". Parents can enroll in any three of 18 alternating 50-minute sessions that afternoon.

All events are free except for the Sunday brunch. For details about reduced-rate lodging in Moorhead or for more information about family day, contact the MSU public affairs office at 236-2555. Registrations are due by April 20.

Direct Seed Legumes For PIK Cover Crop

Farmers taking grain fields out of production under the PIK program will find that alfalfa and clover make excellent cover crop choices on set-aside acres.

These small-seeded legumes can fix well over 100 pounds of nitrogen per acre into the soil for future crops, while meeting PIK requirements for protecting soil from erosion. Their deep root systems improve soil tilth, drainage and organic content. And grazing of alfalfa and clover may be permitted on set-aside land after September 1.

To get the most out of these valuable cover crops, make sure that weeds are controlled and a thick, vigorous stand develops quickly, advises Dave Martin, director of marketing for a major chemical company.

He recommends seeding alfalfa with a preplant herbicide to control weeds, instead of seeding it with "nurse crop" such as oats. This technique is called clear seeding or direct seeding.

When seeded along with alfalfa, oats germinate and grow quickly, keeping weeds in check after planting, Martin explains.

"However, the oats also inhibit early growth of the alfalfa," he says. "And farmers can't grow grain on set-aside acreage, so the oats would have to be clipped to prevent the grain from maturing."

These clippings could form a thatch that would continue to interfere with legume growth, Martin says. Or, if the oat straw could be taken off the field, the sudden supply of sunlight to the soil could stimulate a flush of grassy weed growth.

"If weed pressure is heavy, these grasses may be able to crowd out young alfalfa or clover seedlings," he points out.

In contrast, direct seeded legumes get off to a fast start while a herbicide prevents competition from weeds. Once the cover crop develops a strong, thick stand, weeds can't compete.

"The farmer gets a better stand of alfalfa or clover along with better control of grassy weeds," Martin says.

He adds that the cost of herbicide for direct seeding is competitive with the price of certified oat seed. Direct seeding is practical anytime alfalfa or clover can be planted. The herbicide can be applied as a spray or granules, or impregnated into dry bulk fertilizer. It's then mixed into the soil as the ground is worked for planting. Check the product label for specific directions.

BSU Displays Ojibwe Art April 11-29

Ojibwe art, in a wide variety of forms by both amateur and professional artists, is featured in the 10th annual Ojibwe art expo April 11-29 at Bemidji state university.

Show in the Crying Wolf room of the BSU student union, represents efforts of artists from all Upper Midwest and Canadian area tribes: Viewing hours are noon to 5 p.m. during weekdays or by appointment.

Five-member planning committee selects specific locations to display the exhibit, with BSU and Augsburg college in Minneapolis currently on the show agenda. The works will be juried in Bemidji, then travel to Minneapolis for a May 2-13 showing.

Medals and a total of $2,800 will be awarded to artists within the show. A prize of $500 is designated for the entry judged "Best of Show."

Three previous exhibits were displayed and well-received in the Augsburg student gallery.

"I was overwhelmed at the beauty of our entries last year," commented Bonnie Wallace, director of Augsburg's American Indian program, "but I truly believe this year will be our year for recognition, not only by our own community but the art community as well."

For more information, contact Kent Smith, Indian Studies Department, Bangsberg Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601, phone 218-755-3877.

DID YOU KNOW?

THE "DISEASE" CALLED ALCOHOLISM

If alcoholism is a disease, it's the only disease that is bottled and sold in a bottle.

It is the only disease that reuqires a license to keep it going.

It is the only disease contacted by the will of man.

It is the only disease that produces revenue for the government.

It is the only disease that provokes crime.

It is the only disease that is habit-forming.

It is the only disease that causes violent death on the highways.

It is the only disease spread by advertising. (Ed.—What about smoking-related diseases?)

And the only disease not caused by a germ or virus.

Can it be that it is not a disease at all?

Clinics For Children Set May 3-4

Children with medical or developmental handicaps or heart problems can attend clinics on Tuesday, May 3 or Wednesday, May 4 at United Methodist church in Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls general federation of women's clubs and the Minnesota department of health are sponsoring the clinics.

At the pediatric-orthopedic clinic May 3 a pediatrician or orthopedist will examine each child under 21 years of age with a history of delayed speech or language development, cystic fibrosis, convulsions, mental retardation, cerebral palsy, club feet, scoliosis or other physical handicaps.

During the cardiac clinic May 4, a pediatric cardiologist will examine any child with a heart murmur, congenital heart problem or history of rheumatic fever.

Clinic sponsors recommend that each new participant get a written referral from a doctor. Parents will be able to consult with a public health nurse, medical social worker, registered dietician and registered dental hygienist.

Parents should make appointments at least two weeks in advance by calling Ethel Aase at 681-2790 for the pediatric-orthopedic clinic or Mrs. Robert Peterson at 681-4097 for the cardiac clinic.

April Declared Cancer Control Month In MN

Governor Rudy Perpich has signed a proclamation declaring April as cancer control month, urging every citizen to support the American Cancer society's annual crusade.

Funds donated to the society during the crusade support cancer research, cancer education programs for local citizens and services and rehabilitation aids for community cancer patients.

President Arnt Aune of the Pennington unit stated that during the 1981-82 crusade, ". . . there was a total of $6,824 raised in the Pennington unit and there was a total of $8,346 spent in and on behalf of the Pennington unit which was used on services and other programs which were beneficial to our unit."

Aune and Mrs. Larry Poole, who is county crusade chairman, join Governor Perpich in asking citizens to support the society crusade.

NW Library Slates Films For Saturday

Saturday film festival at Northwest regional library, Thief River Falls, will feature three films to be shown between 2 p.m. and 3 p.m.

"Emperor's New Armor," is an entertaining cartoon for all ages, excluding the very young. The film also has some serious messages.

A farmer and his wife wish for something that begins with each letter of the alphabet in "The Alphabet Dragon." Their wishes begin modestly but become grander until they reach 'z' and a delightful ending.

"Flight" is a film about the sport of gliding. The film creates the feeling of what it is like to soar in the air.

Heartworm & Rabies Clinic Set Saturday

Canine heartworm blood test and rabies vaccination clinic will be conducted by the Agassiz Kennel club Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Valley animal hospital in Thief River Falls.

Heartworms are spread from infected dogs by mosquitos and the worms which infest the dog's heart and blood vessels can lead to congestive heart failure and death. Numerous cases of heartworm in the Thief River Falls area have been reported in recent years.

Most dogs can be successfully treated if the disease is detected early. Infected dogs not properly treated serve as a constant source of infection.

Information On Careers Tapped For Juniors

Lincoln high school juniors have an opportunity Wednesday, May 4, as did the seniors last fall, to gain information in one place about a variety of careers available to them.

A career information day is again being sponsored by the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce, area vocational-technical institute and Northland community college.

Speakers representing business, professions and trades will present information about education needed, work conditions, advancement possibilities, salaries and other aspects of the job.

Purpose of a second such day this year is to give both juniors and seniors access to this information and to establish this as an annual spring event for high school juniors.

Assistance Set For Property Tax Refund

Assistance in completing the 1982 Minnesota property tax refund return is available upon request to low to moderate income families and individuals through Inter-County community council, Inc. No fees are charged for this service.

Mary Lou Rindahl, outreach aide, will be in St. Hilaire in the city council chambers on Tuesday from 1 to 3 p.m. to assist in completing property tax refund forms.

Homeowners are asked to bring their current property tax statement issued from the county treasurer's office. Renters requesting a refund on rent paid must receive and bring with a certificate of rent paid (CRP) which is to be completed by their landlord.

For further information or questions, please contact Mary Lou Rindahl at 681-8111 or call Inter-County at 796-5144.

Toastmaster's Meet Tuesday In Courthouse

Toastmaster's meeting will be held Tuesday at 7 a.m. in the county courthouse basement room.

Ron Martin will be toastmaster of the morning. Greg Pribula will present a special program on the functions and duties of toastmasters. Using a panel of toastmaster members, he will discuss and demonstrate how the group should function to develop effective leaders and communication.

New members and those interested in joining the organization are encouraged to attend this meeting.

WIC And EPS Clinics Slated During May

Women, infants and children supplemental nutrition education program (WIC) and early and periodic screening (EPS) are being offered during the month of May.

Infants and children up to the age of five and women who are pregnant or breastfeeding may be eligible for the WIC program. WIC is not a poverty program, but a nutrition education program. All potential clients must write or call the four county EPS service and complete an application.

EPS is available to children six months through 13 years of age. Any or all of the following are checked: hearing and vision, hematocrit determination, urinalysis and physical assessments, Denver development testing dental assessments and instruction in the care of teeth.

Locations and dates for the clinics are May 5, Red Lake Falls, St. John's hospital; May 16, Oklee, community center and May 20, Thief River Falls, Redeemer Lutheran church.

Immunizations will be given at all WIC and EPS clinics from 9 to 9:30 a.m. For further information concerning the programs write Four County EPS Service, 208 E. Colvin, Warren, MN 56762 or call 745-4004.

MN Women For Agriculture Set Newfolden Meet

Organizational meeting of the Minnesota women for agriculture (MWA) will be held in the Newfolden community center on Wednesday, April 27 at 7:30 p.m.

MWA president Myrna Evenson and MWA treasurer Omdahl will report on their recent trip to Washington, D.C. where they participated in the farm women's forum.

Joyce Johnson, Warren and Marianne Satre, Grygla conducted an informational meeting for MWA in Newfolden recently with the intention of establishing a local chapter for the central part of Marshall county.

MWA is a non-profit, non-partisan group concerned about the future of agriculture and affiliated with the American agri-women. Objectives of the organization are in the areas of education, development of unity through lines of communication between farmers, consumers, agribusiness, and legislators, research and legislative policies.

Activities of the group, which are sponsored by existing chapters, include food fairs, ag-day seminars, newsletters, fair booths and the continuation of the "Agri-School" project which is a series of education packets about Minnesota agriculture provided to each school in the state for grades kindergarten through six.

Polk, Roseau Maintenance Bids Received

Bids on truck highway maintenance work in Polk and Roseau counties will be received until 9:30 a.m. Friday by the Minnesota department of transportation at the state transportation building in St. Paul.

In Polk county, work will be at the drainfield along US 2 at the Oak Lake rest area, 1.5 miles east of US 59, east of Erskine. To begin July 18, work is to be completed within 10 working days.

Roseau county work involves production and stockpiling of mineral aggregate for TH 89 about 11 miles south of Wannaska. Work is scheduled to begin June 6 and be completed within 30 working days.

Recognition Of Volunteers Is Set This Week

The week of April 17-23 has been proclaimed by Governor Rudy Perpich as "Volunteer Recognition Week" in Minnesota.

"Our communities, our state and our nation have been strengthened through the dedicated involvement of volunteers in all aspects of our society," he said.

"Many of today's complex challenges can be met by the increased involvement of volunteers, who, because of the diversity of their backgrounds, are able to bring with them new and fresh ideas for solving problems.

"All Minnesotans are urged to come together in the spirit of cooperation, and experience the fulfillment of meeting the challenge of solving tomorrow's problems today."

Held in conjunction with "National Volunteer Week," this week is set aside as a time to focus on the oustanding contributions of volunteers and to thank them for their efforts. Organizations and communities throughout Minnesota are encouraged to express gratitude to their volunteers.

For more information on materials and ideas for recognizing volunteers, contact the Minnesota Office on Volunteer Services, 200 Administration Building, St. Paul, MN 55155; or call 296-4731 (metro callers), or 800-652-9747 (non-metro callers).

Trochmann Concert Sun.

Trochmann family will present a concert at the Faith Lutheran Brethren church on Sunday at 7 p.m. All are welcome to attend.

The total number of pedestrian deaths during 1981 was 9,000. This represents a six per cent decrease over the 1980 figure. Seventy-two per cent of all pedestrian deaths occur in urban areas, while only 37 per cent of all motor vehicle deaths occur in urban areas.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thank you to Dr. Berg, nurses, ambulance attendants, Chaplin Paul Bortman and the staff of Northwestern hospital, Thief River Falls Valley Home and staff, for the wonderful care given Clara Sundberg, during her recent illness. We also wish to thank our relatives, friends and neighbors for their help and contributions. A special thank you to Rev. Liefeld for his comforting words and service, the Bethlehem Ladies Aid of Newfolden who served lunch after the funeral and a special thank you to Green Funeral Home, Thief River Falls. May God bless you all.

In loving memory of our wife, mother, grandmother and great-grandmother.

Microcomputer Meet Slated Tues. At BSU

Microcomputer workshop will be held Tuesday at Bemidji State University (BSU).

It is sponsored by the BSU small business development center and the Bemidji chamber of commerce.

Seminar is designed to provide a broad overview of all microcomputers and will assist participants in making choices for home and business needs.

Dr. Milt Will of BSU will explain how changing economic conditions make it necessary for business owners and managers to be familiar with computer terminology, as well as features available in machinery, programs and assistance.

Workshop is scheduled for 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. in Hickory hall, room 115 on the BSU campus.

Cost is $10 per person in advance, $12.50 per person at the door. Two or more participants from the same business will be admitted for $7.50 per person.

For registration materials or more information, contact Dr. Milt Will, Hickory Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601, phone 218-755-2754.

Senator Says Dairy Support Is On The Line

Saying that "this time around, the very existence of the dairy price support system may be on the line," Senator Rudy Boschwitz introduced the "Dairy Production Act of 1983," a bill that seeks to end the costly excesses of the dairy price support system by addressing both production and consumption.

Boschwitz said his bill creates the necessary incentives for decreasing production by providing a $10 per hundredweight diversion payment to farmers who cut back, and augments that with a comprehensive dairy promotion program financed by a 15-cent per hundredweight check-off on all milk marketed.

"With all the different dairy proposals on the table alreay, it would be naive to imply that this bill will be the final answer to dairy's problems," Boschwitz said. "But I do hope that it contributes to a final product that once-and-for-all balances supply and demand by providing incentives for every farmer to reduce production a little instead of forcing farmers out of business.

"If nothing is done, there will be a serious movement in Congress to virtually gut the dairy price support program."

NMPF Program Supported By Advisory Group

A group of Minnesota dairy farmers appointed to advise Congressman Arlan Stangeland has urged him to throw his full support behind the National Milk Producers federation (NMPF) proposal for reforming the U.S. dairy support program.

Melrose dairyman Vern Frericks, chairman of the 25-member advisory committee, announced the decision at a committee meeting.

"After comparing the numerous proposals which have been offered by various dairy organizations, we felt that the NMPF plan would provide the best means of strengthening this program and the industry," Frericks said.

Congressman Stangeland met with his dairy advisory committee in St. Joseph.

"Some reforms must be made in the dairy program," he said. "No dairy farmer in the country wants the government to buy $2 billion of surplus milk. What they want is a program that will help them to get a fair market price for the dairy products they produce."

A member of the House agriculture committee, Rep. Stangeland said that Congress is preparing to take action on the dairy program. The House dairy subcommittee is holding "mark-up" hearings on various dairy bills this week.

"It is obvious that the 50 cent assessment on dairy price supports will never work," he told his advisors, "Dairymen will be forced to increase their production to make up for the decreased support, so the government will pay more for the program than ever before."

Congressman Stangeland has sponsored both major bills on dairy reform which have been offered: the NMPF proposal (H.R. 2253) and the Wisconsin Play (H.R. 1528). Both bills will provide $10 per hundredweight incentive payments to farmers who reduce their production.

"I am going to work for the compromise which will be best for Minnesota's dairy farmers," he said.

Special services with Rev. Don Allen, April 21-24 at 7:00 p.m. and 10:45 a.m. and again at 7:00 p.m. on Sunday.

Bus Route For Hwy. 75 Towns Is Sustained

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer has praised the Minnesota public utilities commission (PUC) for its preliminary recommendation that bus service be continued on a Greyhound route in northwestern Minnesota.

Stumpf said that Greyhound had petitioned the PUC requesting permission to abandon the route that now services Warren, Argyle, Stephen, Donaldson, Kennedy and Hallock. After holding a hearing on the issue, the commission tentatively decided that the bus company's request be denied.

"I am very happy about the PUC's recommendation," Stumpf said. "It proves that the input from local residents who attended the hearing in Warren had an impact on the commission.

"As many residents testified at that hearing, the Greyhound route provides an important source of transportation in our part of the state," Stumpf continued. "Many senior citizens, in particular, depend on the bus.

"I am hopeful that the PUC's recommendation will be upheld," Stumpf said, "and that all residents will be able to continue using this route."

Family Day Set At MSU For Parents

Parents of Moorhead state university (MSU) students are invited to a "Family Day" on campus April 30 and May 1, which is a free program featuring a series of mini-courses for parents, a play, concerts, exhibits and social events.

Family day is meant to acquaint parents with the campus and college life by introducing them to both the social and academic sides of the university.

Two-day program begins at 4:30 p.m. Saturday with registration in the student union ballroom and ends the next day at 4 p.m. with MSU's annual honors convocation in the center for the arts auditorium.

A schedule of events the first evening includes planetarium shows, concerts by the MSU brass ensemble and chamber choir, a four-character play "The Fitzgeralds" by the MSU theatre and demonstrations on electronic music and glass blowing.

Sunday events include tours, brunch at the student union and from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m., the Miniuniversity — a series of short courses with titles ranging from "In Quest of the Ultimate Tax Break" and "A Floppy Disc Is Not a Rock Group" to "Stress Management" and "Reaganomics". Parents can enroll in any three of 18 alternating 50-minute sessions that afternoon.

All events are free except for the Sunday brunch. For details about reduced-rate lodging in Moorhead or for more information about family day, contact the MSU public affairs office at 236-2555. Registrations are due by April 20.

Direct Seed Legumes For PIK Cover Crop

Farmers taking grain fields out of production under the PIK program will find that alfalfa and clover make excellent cover crop choices on set-aside acres.

These small-seeded legumes can fix well over 100 pounds of nitrogen per acre into the soil for future crops, while meeting PIK requirements for protecting soil from erosion. Their deep root systems improve soil tilth, drainage and organic content. And grazing of alfalfa and clover may be permitted on set-aside land after September 1.

To get the most out of these valuable cover crops, make sure that weeds are controlled and a thick, vigorous stand develops quickly, advises Dave Martin, director of marketing for a major chemical company.

He recommends seeding alfalfa with a preplant herbicide to control weeds, instead of seeding it with "nurse crop" such as oats. This technique is called clear seeding or direct seeding.

When seeded along with alfalfa, oats germinate and grow quickly, keeping weeds in check after planting, Martin explains.

"However, the oats also inhibit early growth of the alfalfa," he says. "And farmers can't grow grain on set-aside acreage, so the oats would have to be clipped to prevent the grain from maturing."

These clippings could form a thatch that would continue to interfere with legume growth, Martin says. Or, if the oat straw could be taken off the field, the sudden supply of sunlight to the soil could stimulate a flush of grassy weed growth.

"If weed pressure is heavy, these grasses may be able to crowd out young alfalfa or clover seedlings," he points out.

In contrast, direct seeded legumes get off to a fast start while a herbicide prevents competition from weeds. Once the cover crop develops a strong, thick stand, weeds can't compete.

"The farmer gets a better stand of alfalfa or clover along with better control of grassy weeds," Martin says.

He adds that the cost of herbicide for direct seeding is competitive with the price of certified oat seed. Direct seeding is practical anytime alfalfa or clover can be planted. The herbicide can be applied as a spray or granules, or impregnated into dry bulk fertilizer. It's then mixed into the soil as the ground is worked for planting. Check the product label for specific directions.

BSU Displays Ojibwe Art April 11-29

Ojibwe art, in a wide variety of forms by both amateur and professional artists, is featured in the 10th annual Ojibwe art expo April 11-29 at Bemidji state university.

Show in the Crying Wolf room of the BSU student union, represents efforts of artists from all Upper Midwest and Canadian area tribes. Viewing hours are noon to 5 p.m. during weekdays or by appointment.

Five-member planning committee selects specific locations to display the exhibit, with BSU and Augsburg college in Minneapolis currently on the show agenda. The works will be juried in Bemidji, then travel to Minneapolis for a May 2-13 showing.

Medals and a total of $2,800 will be awarded to artists within the show. A prize of $500 is designated for the entry judged "Best of Show."

Three previous exhibits were displayed and well-received in the Augsburg student gallery.

"I was overwhelmed at the beauty of our entries last year," commented Bonnie Wallace, director of Augsburg's American Indian program, "but I truly believe this year will be our year for recognition, not only by our own community but the art community as well."

For more information, contact Kent Smith, Indian Studies Department, Bangsberg Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601, phone 218-755-3877.

DID YOU KNOW?

THE "DISEASE" CALLED ALCOHOLISM

If alcoholism is a disease, it's the only disease that is bottled and sold in a bottle.

It is the only disease that reuqires a license to keep it going.

It is the only disease contacted by the will of man.

It is the only disease that produces revenue for the government.

It is the only disease that provokes crime.

It is the only disease that is habit-forming.

It is the only disease that causes violent death on the highways.

It is the only disease spread by advertising. (Ed.—What about smoking-related diseases?)

And the only disease not caused by a germ or virus.

Can it be that it is not a disease at all?

Clinics For Children Set May 3-4

Children with medical or developmental handicaps or heart problems can attend clinics on Tuesday, May 3 or Wednesday, May 4 at United Methodist church in Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls general federation of women's clubs and the Minnesota department of health are sponsoring the clinics.

At the pediatric-orthopedic clinic May 3 a pediatrician or orthopedist will examine each child under 21 years of age with a history of delayed speech or language development, cystic fibrosis, convulsions, mental retardation, cerebral palsy, club feet, scoliosis or other physical handicaps.

During the cardiac clinic May 4, a pediatric cardiologist will examine any child with a heart murmur, congenital heart problem or history of rheumatic fever.

Clinic sponsors recommend that each new participant get a written referral from a doctor. Parents will be able to consult with a public health nurse, medical social worker, registered dietician and registered dental hygienist.

Parents should make appointments at least two weeks in advance by calling Ethel Aase at 681-2790 for the pediatric-orthopedic clinic or Mrs. Robert Peterson at 681-4097 for the cardiac clinic.

Men's Choir Performs Sat. At Fosston

Morden Manitoba men's choir from the Bergthaler Menonite church in Manitoba will appear in concert at the Embassy community center, Fosston on Saturday at 8 p.m.

Concert is free. The community center is located at Third and North Eaton in Fosston.

Choir was organized in 1969 and has members of all ages and various professional backgrounds. Group has toured throughout Canada, the United States and Mexico. They recently returned from Mexico.

April Declared Cancer Control Month In MN

Governor Rudy Perpich has signed a proclamation declaring April as cancer control month, urging every citizen to support the American Cancer society's annual crusade.

Funds donated to the society during the crusade support cancer research, cancer education programs for local citizens and services and rehabilitation aids for community cancer patients.

President Arnt Aune of the Pennington unit stated that during the 1981-82 crusade, ". . . there was a total of $6,824 raised in the Pennington unit and there was a total of $8,346 spent in and on behalf of the Pennington unit which was used on services and other programs which were beneficial to our unit."

Aune and Mrs. Larry Poole, who is county crusade chairman, join Governor Perpich in asking citizens to support the society crusade.

NW Library Slates Films For Saturday

Saturday film festival at Northwest regional library, Thief River Falls, will feature three films to be shown between 2 p.m. and 3 p.m.

"Emperor's New Armor," is an entertaining cartoon for all ages, excluding the very young. The film also has some serious messages.

A farmer and his wife wish for something that begins with each letter of the alphabet in "The Alphabet Dragon." Their wishes begin modestly but become grander until they reach 'z' and a delightful ending.

"Flight" is a film about the sport of gliding. The film creates the feeling of what it is like to soar in the air.

Heartworm & Rabies Clinic Set Saturday

Canine heartworm blood test and rabies vaccination clinic will be conducted by the Agassiz Kennel club Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Valley animal hospital in Thief River Falls.

Heartworms are spread from infected dogs by mosquitos and the worms which infest the dog's heart and blood vessels can lead to congestive heart failure and death. Numerous cases of heartworm in the Thief River Falls area have been reported in recent years.

Most dogs can be successfully treated if the disease is detected early. Infected dogs not properly treated serve as a constant source of infection.

Information On Careers Tapped For Juniors

Lincoln high school juniors have an opportunity Wednesday, May 4, as did the seniors last fall, to gain information in one place about a variety of careers available to them.

A career information day is again being sponsored by the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce, area vocational-technical institute and Northland community college.

Speakers representing business, professions and trades will present information about education needed, work conditions, advancement possibilities, salaries and other aspects of the job.

Purpose of a second such day this year is to give both juniors and seniors access to this information and to establish this as an annual spring event for high school juniors.

Assistance Set For Property Tax Refund

Assistance in completing the 1982 Minnesota property tax refund return is available upon request to low to moderate income families and individuals through Inter-County community council, Inc. No fees are charged for this service.

Mary Lou Rindahl, outreach aide, will be in St. Hilaire in the city council chambers on Tuesday from 1 to 3 p.m. to assist in completing property tax refund forms.

Homeowners are asked to bring their current property tax statement issued from the county treasurer's office. Renters requesting a refund on rent paid must receive and bring with a certificate of rent paid (CRP) which is to be completed by their landlord.

For further information or questions, please contact Mary Lou Rindahl at 681-8111 or call Inter-County at 796-5144.

Toastmaster's Meet Tuesday In Courthouse

Toastmaster's meeting will be held Tuesday at 7 a.m. in the county courthouse basement room.

Ron Martin will be toastmaster of the morning. Greg Pribula will present a special program on the functions and duties of toastmasters. Using a panel of toastmaster members, he will discuss and demonstrate how the group should function to develop effective leaders and communication.

New members and those interested in joining the organization are encouraged to attend this meeting.

Lee Hired By Marshall Firm

Peter Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harland Lee of Thief River Falls and a graduate of Moorhead state university, has accepted a job as a computer programmer for Schwan's Enterprise in Marshall.

Lee is a 1978 graduate of Lincoln high school. His bachelor's degree is in computer science.

WIC And EPS Clinics Slated During May

Women, infants and children supplemental nutrition education program (WIC) and early and periodic screening (EPS) are being offered during the month of May.

Infants and children up to the age of five and women who are pregnant or breastfeeding may be eligible for the WIC program. WIC is not a poverty program, but a nutrition education program. All potential clients must write or call the four county EPS service and complete an application.

EPS is available to children six months through 13 years of age. Any or all of the following are checked: hearing and vision, hematocrit determination, urinalysis and physical assessments, Denver development testing dental assessments and instruction in the care of teeth.

Locations and dates for the clinics are May 5, Red Lake Falls, St. John's hospital; May 16, Oklee, community center and May 20, Thief River Falls, Redeemer Lutheran church.

Immunizations will be given at all WIC and EPS clinics from 9 to 9:30 a.m. For further information concerning the programs write Four County EPS Service, 208 E. Colvin, Warren, MN 56762 or call 745-4004.

MN Women For Agriculture Set Newfolden Meet

Organizational meeting of the Minnesota women for agriculture (MWA) will be held in the Newfolden community center on Wednesday, April 27 at 7:30 p.m.

MWA president Myrna Evenson and MWA treasurer Omdahl will report on their recent trip to Washington, D.C. where they participated in the farm women's forum.

Joyce Johnson, Warren and Marianne Satre, Grygla conducted an informational meeting for MWA in Newfolden recently with the intention of establishing a local chapter for the central part of Marshall county.

MWA is a non-profit, non-partisan group concerned about the future of agriculture and affiliated with the American agri-women. Objectives of the organization are in the areas of education, development of unity through lines of communication between farmers, consumers, agribusiness, and legislators, research and legislative policies.

Activities of the group, which are sponsored by existing chapters, include food fairs, ag-day seminars, newsletters, fair booths and the continuation of the "Agri-School" project which is a series of education packets about Minnesota agriculture provided to each school in the state for grades kindergarten through six.

Polk, Roseau Maintenance Bids Received

Bids on truck highway maintenance work in Polk and Roseau counties will be received until 9:30 a.m. Friday by the Minnesota department of transportation at the state transportation building in St. Paul.

In Polk county, work will be at the drainfield along US 2 at the Oak Lake rest area, 1.5 miles east of US 59, east of Erskine. To begin July 18, work is to be completed within 10 working days.

Roseau county work involves production and stockpiling of mineral aggregate for TH 89 about 11 miles south of Wannaska. Work is scheduled to begin June 6 and be completed within 30 working days.

Class On Super Insulation Set For April 25

Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute (AVTI) will offer a three-hour overview of the how's, why's, and what super-insulation is on Monday, April 25 from 7 to 10 p.m. at the AVTI, room A109. Fee of $6 per person will be charged. Workshop will be presented by Bob Knutson and John Stewart, AVTI carpentry and architectural drafting instructors.

Topics to be covered are design, construction, costs, and future potential of super-insulation. Workshop is designed for contractors, carpenters, building supply personnel, real estate people, money lenders, and consumers. Super-insulation manuals can be purchased for approximately $12.

Pre-registration is required by contacting adult education, AVTI, Highway One East, Thief River Falls, MN 56701; 681-5424.

Recognition Of Volunteers Is Set This Week

The week of April 17-23 has been proclaimed by Governor Rudy Perpich as "Volunteer Recognition Week" in Minnesota.

"Our communities, our state and our nation have been strengthened through the dedicated involvement of volunteers in all aspects of our society," he said.

"Many of today's complex challenges can be met by the increased involvement of volunteers, who, because of the diversity of their backgrounds, are able to bring with them new and fresh ideas for solving problems.

"All Minnesotans are urged to come together in the spirit of cooperation, and experience the fulfillment of meeting the challenge of solving tomorrow's problems today."

Held in conjunction with "National Volunteer Week," this week is set aside as a time to focus on the oustanding contributions of volunteers and to thank them for their efforts. Organizations and communities throughout Minnesota are encouraged to express gratitude to their volunteers.

For more information on materials and ideas for recognizing volunteers, contact the Minnesota Office on Volunteer Services, 200 Administration Building, St. Paul, MN 55155; or call 296-4731 (metro callers), or 800-652-9747 (non-metro callers).

Trochmann Concert Sun.

Trochmann family will present a concert at the Faith Lutheran Brethren church on Sunday at 7 p.m. All are welcome to attend.

The total number of pedestrian deaths during 1981 was 9,000. This represents a six per cent decrease over the 1980 figure. Seventy-two per cent of all pedestrian deaths occur in urban areas, while only 37 per cent of all motor vehicle deaths occur in urban areas.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thank you to Dr. Berg, nurses, ambulance attendants, Chaplin Paul Bortman and the staff of Northwestern hospital, Thief River Falls Valley Home and staff, for the wonderful care given Clara Sundberg, during her recent illness. We also wish to thank our relatives, friends and neighbors for their help and contributions. A special thank you to Rev. Liefeld for his comforting words and service, the Bethlehem Ladies Aid of Newfolden who served lunch after the funeral and a special thank you to Green Funeral Home, Thief River Falls. May God bless you all.

In loving memory of our wife, mother, grandmother and great-grandmother.

The family of Clara Sundberg

Lewis Affirms Purposes Of Home Program

"Are we accomplishing what we're all about?" was the question asked by Jim Lewis, extension specialist, University of Minnesota, when he spoke with 20 members of the Marshall county homemakers organization recently at Newfolden.

Lewis was in the area to reaffirm the purposes of the home economics and family living program of the agricultural extension service and the correlation to the study group program. In explaining the advantages of the county extension service, he used the correlation of: P. — People powered with leaders and volunteers; E — Exposed and reacting to daily problems; A — Accessible to local residents; R — Research based information from the University of Minnesota; L — Leader wealth; S — Supported broadly throughout the nation.

Homemaker members also spent time talking about the advantages of study groups, why they joined, and how to get club members motivated

BSU Schedules Wild Foods Course In May

Part of the excitement of summer hiking and camping is feasting on wild foods and a course offered May 20-22 through the Bemidji state university Bald Eagle center offers a thorough introduction.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

"I don't know what's going on. . . I just do what they tell me to do," is a complaint often heard from hospital or nursing home patients. It could be a lament coming from our own hospital, or the CNC unit of Northwestern hospital. It doesn't have to be.

The law says the patient has a right to know the doctor in charge; to know his or her training and specialty; to be given complete, up-to-date information about his or her health and treatment in understandable language; and the right to expect an answer to a formal request.

Patients must get written information listing their rights on admission, as well as full knowledge of cost and what charges are covered by Medicare and Medicaid. If financial responsibility has been delegated to a facility, it must provide the patient with written reports of these transactions at least quarterly.

The Democrats have been most diligent in promoting, preserving and extending a hospital patient's basic rights. The Minnesota Patients' Bill of Rights guarantees a patient's basic right to privacy and the right to act to promote his or her social, religious and psychological well-being. It doesn't guarantee a private room to protect privacy, but it does say that where privacy is important to a patient, every effort should be made to provide it when to do so would not infringe on the rights of others.

If, for example, a patient wishes a private visit with a spouse, a doctor or a business associate, the administration should make an effort to find a secluded spot or to remove the roommate temporarily. Patients also have the right to confidential treatment; to privacy in caring for medical needs; to communicate with persons of his or her choice even if the hospital helps with the call or letter; and the right to receive mail unopened.

A patient has the right to considerate and respectful care and the opportunity to be involved in planning his or her medical treatment. For the elderly man who complained about the nurse's treatment which hurt him. . . it gave him peace of mind to learn of his right to voice a complaint without fear of reprisal.

He also has the right to refuse medication, to refuse to participate in experimental research, and to be free from mental as well as physical abuse, chemical and physical restraints, and from forced labor for the facility. He cannot be moved or discharged without good reason and reasonable notice, and he retains his basic constitutional rights as a citizen to vote, practice religion, complain, enter into contracts, sue, see friends and speak freely.

"I complained and never got an answer," said one elderly man. A good first step for him is to talk to the doctor or a staff person. If this complaint is not answered, he should bring it to the administration, preferably in writing, even if the administration must come to his bed to receive the complaint.

Finally, if the violation of rights is still not corrected, the complaint should be sent to the Office of Health Facility Complaints, Minnesota Department of Health, 717 Delaware St. S.E., Minneapolis, Minnesota, 55440. For patients, as well as physicians, it pays to know the law.

Northern MN ALC Convention Set May 5-7

"Where He Leads Me" is the theme for the 23rd annual convention of the Northern Minnesota district of the American Lutheran church (ALC) scheduled for May 5 to 7 in Memorial auditorium on the campus of Concordia college in Moorhead.

Convention will focus on the issues of hunger and justice.

Registration for the convention begins at 3 p.m. in Memorial auditorium on May 5. Rev. Paul G. Mathre of Our Savior's Lutheran church, Moorhead, vice president of the district, will conduct the opening worship service scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. Delivering the homily will be the district's president and presiding bishop, Rev. Gilbert M. Lee. Rev. George Johnson, director for hunger concerns of the ALC in Minneapolis, will deliver the first major address on the blobal dimensions of world hunger at 8:30 p.m.

On Friday at 8:45 a.m., Dr. Walter Brueggemann, Eden theological seminary, St. Louis, MO, will lead the opening plenary session and focus on land issues. Dr. Walter Wietzke, executive director for the ALC division of theological education and ministry and the official representative for presiding ALC bishop Dr. David Preus, will give a "State of the ALC" address at 9:45 a.m.

Small interest groups will meet at 1:45 p.m. and again at 3 p.m. on the issues of hunger, justice, land, nuclear concerns and cult awareness and on such topics as Lutheran world relief, the new church and SEARCH Bible study.

Brueggemann will address a public rally held at Memorial auditorium from 7 to 9 p.m. to conclude Friday's events.

Convention delegates will elect a vice president and secretary for the district. Closing ceremonies for the convention will begin at 3 p.m.

1982 State Crash Totals Drop To Low

Year 1982 was a banner one for traffic safety in Minnesota. The exact extent of that improvement has been compiled and is now available in "Minnesota 1982 Motor Vehicle Crash Facts," a brochure assembled by the Minnesota department of public safety.

The preliminary crash facts show that Minnesota's highway death rate fell to near two deaths per 100 million miles of vehicle travel, a level so low it's without precedent in Minnesota automotive history. The preliminary accident figures as shown in a "Drinking Drivers" table indicate that Minnesota's new anti-drunk driving laws are responsible for at least a portion of the fatality decline.

Police reported alcohol-involved crashes were one indicator of the effect of the new laws. Though the laws were only in effect for about half of 1982, those reports show alcohol involved crashes were down by about 30 per cent, and fatal crashes involving alcohol declined by nearly 40 per cent.

Preliminary data reports that there were 182 fewer Minnesotans killed and 5,060 fewer injured in 1982 compared to the year before. This reduction was accomplished despite a continuing climb in the number of licensed drivers, and the number of miles driven.

Other preliminary statistics show that 72 motorcycle fatalities were the fewest for any year since the mandatory helmet law was repealed in 1976. The 78 pedestrian fatalities were an all time low and railroad crossing deaths were lower than any previous count.

In all, the four page "Minnesota 1982 Preliminary Motor Vehicle Crash Facts" publication contains about two dozen statistical tables and charts addressing the most sought after Minnesota accident information. Free copies are available from the Minnesota Department of Public Safety, Office of Public Information, 318 Transportation Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Distemper And Rabies Clinic Slated Friday

EAR COMFORT AND FLYING

Q: My ear hurts whenever I fly. Why? Can anything be done for this?

A: Perhaps the most frequent physical problem to air travelers is ear discomfort, occurring most often when the plane begins its descent for landing.

The pain and even hearing loss that air travelers may experience, usually for short periods of time, is directly related to the malfunctioning of the Eustachian tube. This connects the middle ear to parts of the throat and is responsible for equalizing the air pressure in the middle ear with the outside air pressure. In most cases the Eustachian tube will open for a brief moment when swallowing or yawning; it is the inability of the tube to open adequately that ultimately leads to ear discomfort. If the Eustachian tube continues to fail to operate effectively, medical consultation is often recommended.

Air travel need not be an uncomfortable experience. If you have difficulty, consult your physician for proper hearing health care.

WHY ARE THOUSANDS OF MINNESOTANS SO ANGRY ABOUT A TAX LAW?

Because withholding taxes on interest and dividends is unfair and must be repealed.

There's a better way to catch the small percentage of tax cheaters than penalizing everyone through an expensive and unnecessary withholding scheme.

You can do something to prevent the law from taking effect on July 1. Over 100,000 Minnesotans and millions nationwide have. Thanks to their cards and letters, there's a very real chance Congress will correct their mistake. A vote will probably occur soon and your letter could make the difference.

The thousands who've cared enough to write on this issue thank the Minnesota lawmakers who have responded with support for repeal. If you are a saver or investor, this is your issue. Ask the Minnesota lawmakers who have not yet responded to the plea for repeal to lend their support. The White House also must understand your views.

Forward the Savers Statement or write to let Washington know how you feel, and please act today. Otherwise on July 1, you'll have no one to get angry at but yourself.

How do Minnesota's Senators and Representatives stand?

FACIAL EXPRESSIONS say a lot, with the big smile on John Dillon's face giving more than a hint that he was happy to have been chosen by Miss Thief River Falls Stacey Sandberg, on the "Dating Game." Contest was featured as entertainment for the annual chairty ball Saturday evening, sponsored by the Thief River Falls Jaycee Women. Proceeds were donated to the Falls Day Activity Center and the Occupational Development Center. Other contestants (from left), Kurt Klosterman and Dave Fournier may have been disappointed, but deserve credit for bravery in handling some very difficult questions, in front of an appreciative crowd. Curt Quesnell, with microphone, served as master of ceremonies. At far right is Lana Christianson, one of the co-chairmen of the charity ball, as she prepared to present prizes to the contestants.

Tax Protestor Being Sued By Revenue Dep't.

White Bear Lake tax protester, Wayne C. Clasen, who alledgedly filled in all the blanks of his 1981 state income tax return with the words "5th amendment", is being sued by the Minnesota department of revenue.

Revenue department is asking Ramsey district court to require Clasen to file a complete 1981 return — with all the required information — or be held in contempt of court, and jailed until he files a proper return.

Suit is the first use of a 1982 statute change which gives the commissioner of revenue the authority to require a properly completed tax return be filed on April 15.

Failure of the taxpayer to file a proper return, after being requested to do so, gives the commissioner the authority to bring suit in district courts to require persons who have filed incomplete state income tax returns to file "a complete and proper" return. Revenue department intends to use this new law on other individuals who use this ploy when filing returns with the commissioner of revenue. Such groups as the "Vow of Poverty", Basic Bible church, Life Science church, and a double trust scheme will be reviewed.

Previously, the legal powers of the commissioner against persons who failed to file, or who filed incomplete state income tax returns, were limited to gathering information — principally from withholding records — and filing a return for the person.

Commissioner still retains this power, but the additional authority to bring suit to require persons to file complete returns is a much faster way for the state to bring in money owed by taxpayers, according to the revenue department.

Besides wanting to collect Clasen's state income tax, the revenue department wants to make sure that his actions won't encourage other Minnesotans to file incomplete returns and not pay their tax, officials say.

According to department records, the man filed the return around April 15, 1982.

Revenue department sent the man a certified letter asking him to file a complete return, and pay his tax. He failed to respond to that request.

Summons was served on April 6, 1983, starting the legal action to enforce compliance. Clasen has 20 days to file in answer to the state's complaint.

Fiber Fuel Conference Set At UMC

Fiber fuel conference scheduled for June 13 to 15 at the University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC) will feature all aspects of the fiber fuel industry.

"To our knowledge, this is the first fiber fuel conference to be held," said Gene Miller, conference chairman. "Fiber fuels relate to the agricultural and forest residue pelleted for burning to heat all types of public buildings, commercial enterprises, and homes."

Fiber Fuels Conference begins with registration at 9:30 a.m. on Monday, June 13, and continues through noon on Wednesday, June 15. Fee for the three-day conference is $55. Registration deadline is May 20. For more information or for registration forms contact Gene Miller, conference chairman, Northwest Experiment Station, Crookston, MN 56716 or phone (218) 281-6510, extension 470, or contact the Crookston Area Chamber of Commerce at (218) 281-4320.

Miller lists four overall purposes for the conference: to provide an update for practical utilization of pelleted forest and agricultural residue for heating homes, institutions, and commercial buildings; to provide the industry and the consumer with specific conversion information; to provide the facts, figures, and equipment information which may result in large fuel savings; and to bring together potential and active producers, processors, distributors, manufacturers, and users of this form of renewable energy.

Conference is open to everyone interested in savings through fiber fuel — consumers with large annual fuel budgets such as administrators of schools, hospitals, churches, and state institutions; managers of commercial businesses; and other decision makers. Business interests needing new and updated information on the status of the fiber fuel industry would find this a helpful conference as would engineering firms wanting to know what the public needs, according to Miller. Educators, developers, and information multipliers who want to know more about the reality and practicality of fiber fuels will meet with state officials sharing their agencies' expertise relating to the development of fiber fuels.

State foresters, agriculturists, and industry experts will relate long-term studies and recent materials processes. All types of product handling, storage, and burning devices for practical home, institution, and commercial systems will be discussed. Comparisons will be made between old boiler conversion and new systems relating to product availability, transportation, and economic facts. Engineering and consulting needs for administrators and quality control for the consumer will be shown. Finally the conference will look at public policy for the United States versus Middle East consortium.

Sponsors for the conference are the University of Minnesota, Crookston technical college, northwest experiment station and The Fiber and Fuel institute in cooperation with Crookston area chamber of commerce, Governor's council on rural development, Minnesota department of economic security, northwest economic development, inc., northwest regional development commission, and agricultural extension service.

Accept Wollin At Mankato

Kerry Wollin, son of Evelyn Johnson and Larry Wollin, both of Thief River Falls, has been accepted for admission into Mankato state university, according to director of admissions Jack M. Parkins.

Wollin will graduate from Lincoln high school this spring. He plans to major in elementary education.

Boschwitz To Vote Against Withholding

Senator Rudy Boschwitz says he would vote with the majority of the Senate to repeal the controversial withholding on interest and dividends.

"It is difficult not to pay very close attention to something when 150,000 of your constituents have written to you about it," Boschwitz said. "Especially when they all agree."

Boschwitz had opposed withholding, but voted for it as part of the TEFRA package last year.

He responded to those who wrote to him by explaining withholding fully and including a response-card survey. "I wasn't sure whether those who wrote in had a clear understanding of the issue," Boschwitz said. "Many letters complained about this new tax and that is not what it is. I thought if people had a more thorough understanding of the subject they may be more open to it."

The results showed, however, that the majority of those writing still opposed.

"I will continue to search for some alternative proposal as this issue continues to be debated," Boschwitz said. "There was, and is, a great deal of merit toward trying to chase down those who don't pay taxes on their interest and dividends. We must find a way of chasing that down, but without being a burden on those who do meet their tax obligations."

Earlier, Boschwitz tried to work out a compromise by meeting with representatives of Minnesota's financial community. He floated an alternative program that would require all institutions to report taxpayer information (income, identification number and account number) to the IRS on magnetic tape or another method compatible with IRS computers. The secretary of the treasury could delay this for small institutions that would suffer hardship from immediate implementation.

STRAIGHT TALK

— by —

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise,
Southwest State University, Marshall

Lewis Hershey, draft director during World Wars I and II, told a group of us about an experience while fishing in a West Virginia river. He saw a log coming down the river loaded with big ants, flowing with the stream. He was sure that those pompous ants actually believed they were controlling where their log was going and would end up, just as we humans, sitting on planet Earth, feel very self-important and may even believe that we can effectively control out future.

We sometimes get so impressed with ourselves, that we feel the "big rules" can be set aside. . . that ethics and morals are meaningless. . . we know better. Then, as time passes, we begin to discover that we are really insignificant, that there is a reason for the standards we have been taught, and that living "right" pays off in satisfaction, mental health and the ability to get a good night's sleep, even if it doesn't pay off in cash.

A columnist, a retired journalist, Dan Johnson, originally from Ivanhoe, Minnesota, sent me a note a few weeks ago. He liked my speaking out on significant problems, but he suggested that there would be those who couldn't agree with me and there could be some "heat." He said that I had three alternatives: (1) Hop aboard a fast freight out of town in the dark of the night; (2) block the doors and windows of my home and stand guard with a shotgun; or (3) continue to say what I believe to be right, emphasizing problem situations that need corrections or decisions, and let the chips fall where they may, with a clear conscience and the ability to get a good night's sleep every night. Dan recommended alternative three.

With this advice in mind, let me take care of some "housekeeping chores":

(1) Two rock stars were being interviewed on a national radio program. They said they were "living together" and might get married. They claimed this was a testing time for their potential marriage, and if it didn't work out, they would not have to endure the pangs of divorce. Maybe I'm a bit decadent, but I didn't understand this kind of thinking. There is a clear difference between irresponsibly living together and a responsible marriage.

(2) Some time ago I discussed our legal profession and judicial system, noting that I didn't like contingent fees (where lawyers get paid out of a judgment awarded if they win a case, and nothing if they lose), biased judges and those who should retire because they can not stay awake during trials or have the energy which the job requires, or judges who reduced sentences and released criminals because they were unhappy with the living conditions in our jails.

In meetings with judges and lawyers, I was told that contingent fees allow the little man to have justice (there is some merit to that view, except that only cases where there is a better than even chance to win are usually considered, and the big contingent fee cases still end up getting paid off by insurance companies and policyholders).

No one discussed sleeping or inept judges who are biased. One judge said to me that our insurance companies pay out less than half of their liability insurance premiums on claims, which is 100 per cent wrong. . . that opinion may explain why he apparently feels that insurance companies should be generous in their settlements.

(3) I have had doctors and hospitals all over the country telling me that costs for healthcare have not skyrocketed and that the problems of climbing health care costs, at three times the national inflation rate, are too complex for laymen to understand, even though there have been studies by doctors and nationally known journals supporting my view that action on cost reduction for medical care is long overdue from an industry where no one seems really concerned about cost.

What connection is there between two rock stars "living together," justice based on bucks, and a healthcare industry that doesn't seem to care(I believe all three situations demonstrate a feeling that the public isn't too bright and can be bamboozled, plus a feeling that some are better qualified to determine what's right than others who are guided by new and modern rules.

I think that anyone believing that the public is stupid are wrong. The public is very patient, extends an opportunity for everyone to prove their good faith, and then reacts like a hammer on a nail when they find they are not getting treated properly.

That's Straight Talk!

Research Leads To Treatment For Alcoholism

New research findings on cyanamide, a drug that creates severe reactions to drinking without the side effects of existing drug therapy, may help clear the way for its approval by the food and drug administration (FDA).

Although a similar drug, a citrated calcium salt called Temposil and Dipsan abroad, is already in use in Canada, Japan and the Netherlands, the drug has not been approved by the FDA because until now researchers did not know how it works within the body.

Findings on how cyanamide works were announced recently at the national meeting of the federation of American societies for experimental biology in Chicago by researchers from the Minneapolis veterans administration medical center and the university of Minnesota.

Researchers have made two major findings about cyanamide: It is metabolized by the body into a chemical called acetylcyanamide, which is excreted in the urine very quickly; and it could affect members of various ethnic groups very differently.

Cyanamide's pharmacological effects are already known to be quite like those of Antabuse, long available by prescription in this country. Both drugs block the enzyme that processes acetaldehyde, the body's main metabolite of all alcoholic beverages. This causes the alcohol chemical to build up in the body, making drinking very unpleasant. A drinker soon becomes severely distressed with flushing, headache, nausea, vomiting and difficulty breathing, creating an aversion to alcoholic beverages. The drugs therefore can serve as valuable adjuncts to psychotherapy and counseling.

But a key difference between cyanamide and Antabuse is the lack of serious side effects from the cyanamide, said Herbert Nagasawa, professor of medicinal chemistry at the University of Minnesota and principal scientist at the VA medical center. Cyanamide acts only on the relevant alcohol processing enzyme, but Antabuse also interferes with other enzymes, including the liver enzyme that metabolizes other medications and an enzyme involved in the body's normal adrenalin system. Both are potentially serious side effects.

Cyanamide's effect on alcohol in the body was discovered accidentally elsewhere, said Frances Shirota, the research chemist at the VA hospital who presented the results of the international study for the research team, which includes Nagasawa, Eugene Demaster and Chul-Hoon Kwon.

Calcium cyanamide, a mineral form of cyanamide, was being manufactured as a fertilizer. Workers in these plants soon discovered a peculiar effect of their job: Their after-work drink made them sick.

General metabolism of cyanamide was discovered by the researchers in a series of tests on rats, rabbits and dogs. They synthesized metabolites until they found the one that matched the chemistry in the urine, uncovering a metabolic process called acetylation. It was known to occur with some organic drugs but was not expected with cyanamide, an inorganic substance much like potash. Resulting chemical, acetylcyanamide, turned out to be produced quickly — within eight hours, depending upon the genetic makeup of the animal — by the body enzyme acetyl-S-CoA dependent N-acetyl-transferase. Through urine samples from abroad they also discovered that people metabolized it in the same way.

Differences in the way ethnic groups process drugs are not so rare, Nagasawa said. At least three types of drugs — one kind of antihypertensives, one kind of anti-tuberculous drug and most of the sulfa class of antibiotics — about 15 to 20 drugs in all, are already known to have this effect, called genetic acetylation polymorphism.

In the case of cyanamide, the ethnic differences are dramatic enough to change the effective dosage of the drug, Shirota said. Some 90 per cent of people of Asian origin and some 75 per cent of American Indians, for example, metabolize the drug very rapidly, but only 45 per cent of blacks, Thais and Hindu Indians, 34 per cent of Caucasians and 32 per cent of Middle Eastern people do so. Others in these groups show very slow internal processing of the drug. Much higher dosages are needed for the rapid metabolizers and much lower ones for the slow metabolizers.

Once perfected and introduced into this country, cyanamide could encourage abstinence for anyone who wanted to give up drinking, Nagasawa said.

Beware Of Con Artists, Warns DPS

Spring and warm weather usually bring an increase in confidence games that criminals use to swindle thousands of dollars from people each year, according to Minnesota Crime Watch, a program of the Minnesota department of public safety.

Confidence people use intelligence, an easy-going style and a well groomed appearance to victimize almost anyone. "But persons can avoid being swindled by being aware of different confidence games," said Charles Rix, Crime Watch coordinator.

A common confidence game practiced during warm weather is the pigeon drop. Two swindlers invite a victim to share in a large sum of money they claim to have found. The "con artists" ask the person to temporarily withdraw "good faith" money from his or her bank account as a requirement for sharing in the found money. They then take the withdrawn money and make phoney arrangements for the victim to receive a portion of the discovered funds. The "con artists" disappear and the swindled citizen recovers neither the "good faith" money nor the found money, which probably never existed.

The home repair swindle is another warm weather scheme. A person appears at a victim's house claiming to have just finished a job repairing or remodeling another house in the neighborhood. He claims to have materials left over from the job and offers to perform home improvement work at a special low rate. Usually no work has been done at the other house and the material to be used is inferior and ineffective.

"Beware of home improvement offers at low prices," said Rix. "Check out the reputation of the person making the offer and request estimates from other contractors before ordering home improvements." Rix also cautioned persons not to be pressured into making any home improvements. Insist on time to think over any offers.

These additional tips will help persons avoid being swindled by con artists: never turn over sizable amounts of cash to anyone, a check is sufficient if you think the request is legitimate, never sign a contract without reading and understanding all of the terms, carefully investigate any scheme that promises a large share of money and call the police or sheriff if suspicious about a scheme offered to you which appears too good to be true.

HIGH SCHOOL PAGE recently for the state house of representatives at the capitol in St. Paul was Jeanine Hammer, a junior at Oklee public high school. Hammer met with Representative Wally Sparby, Thief River Falls. Students are given the opportunity to learn about the issues which face the 1983 Minnesota state legislature and become familiar with the Capitol and House procedures. The week in St. Paul included informal seminars with lawmakers, lobbyists, and news reports. Students attend committee meetings where they hear public testimony on bills and they also meet individually with their representatives to exchange concerns and ideas about home districts.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District 1

As we reach the final weeks of the legislative session, the Senate has begun meeting at night to take action on the dozens of bills that have been passed by committees. At our first night meeting last week, we gave final approval to the omnibus agriculture bill which I introduced.

The bill gives the Minnesota agriculture department the authority to promote and advertise Minnesota farm products both within this country and abroad. The legislation specifies that the commissioner of agriculture can spend state funds and work with the private sector on a marketing campaign.

I am hopeful that this bill will help expand the market and increase the demand for Minnesota farm products. I strongly support the provisions in the bill for the public and private sectors to work together on such an effort.

In other developments last week, we learned from state finance officials that net revenues were approximately $56 million below forecasts in March. One primary reason for the gap is that individual income-tax refunds were considerably higher than expected.

If that trend continues, the state could face a deficit of as much as $71 million by the end of the current biennium on June 30. Since we cannot legally end the fiscal year in the red, we would have to make more adjustments in the budget to cover the shortfall. This would be very difficult, given that only 10 weeks remain in the biennium.

However, it is still possible that the deficit will not be as large as $71 million. We are waiting for a new revenue forecast, expected sometime this week, before taking any action.

On a more positive note, I have received information showing that the counties in our Senate district will receive more than $2.7 million in revenues from the gas tax increase during the next biennium.

The money raised by the four-cents-per-gallon increase will be shared by the Minnesota transportation department and local governments. The counties in our area will receive the following amounts: Beltrami, $542,500; Kittson, $373,700; Lake of the Woods, $299,000; Marshall, $572,900; Pennington, $279,900; Red Lake $234,300; and Roseau, $483,100.

I would like to hear from you about issues of concern. Please write to me at my office (306 Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155) or phone (612) 296-8660.

Senator Would Target High Jobless Areas

Legislation targeting extended unemployment benefits to Minnesota's Iron Range and other exceptionally high jobless areas has been introduced by Senator Dave Durenberger.

His bill would allow states like Minnesota to make high unemployment areas eligible for extended unemployment benefits even though the state as a whole doesn't qualify.

"Minnesota's unemployment situation dramatically illustrates the need for modification in the benefits law. Minnesota had an unemployment rate of 10.4 per cent in February. Yet parts of the state, most notably the Iron Range, have been experiencing unemployment rates around 25 per cent for a year now," Durenberger said.

"Our current law doesn't take that into consideration. It looks at the state average when determining eligibility for extended benefits. This ignores the fact that areas within a state still suffer extremely high and prolonged unemployment though the rest of the state may not. My bill lets the secretary of labor designate targeted "regions" of high unemployment. The states may then make those areas eligible for the extended benefits.

According to Durenberger's bill, targeted regions must have minimum populations of 50,000. A person who lost a job in a targeted area would be able to receive additional benefits after his or her regular benefits are exhausted. The cost would be shared equally between the state and federal government. A specific unemployment rate would be used to determine high unemployment areas by the secretary of labor.

"The state of Minnesota and the private sector have developed programs to help deal with the crushing unemployment being experienced in some areas. However, relocation, retraining and economic recovery take time. Unless we help now, these people won't have the time, Durenberger said.

Another Durenberger proposal to help the unemployed was the focus of a Senate hearing Tuesday. Health and human services secretary Margaret Heckler told a Senate committee, that the administration is interested in legislation that would provide health care for unemployed workers.

Heckler said she is working with Durenberger, who is chairman of the Senate health subcommittee, and Senator Robert Dole of Kansas, chairman of the Senate finance committee, on legislation. Last month Durenberger and Dole introduced a bill that would provide health coverage for up to 6.5 million unemployed workers and their dependents.

Heckler said her goal was to have a plan in place by the end of this summer.

Durenberger has scheduled hearings in the health subcommittee on the issue for the week of April 18.

Green Striping Machines Are Safe, Efficient

New highway paint striping machines are lime green or fire engine green.

Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) chose the new color to provide greater visual contrast between its five new stripers and their orange support trucks to improve safety both for the public and the crews that operate the slow-moving equipment.

New striping machines are based at Mn-DOT maintenance areas in Crookston, Duluth, Golden Valley, Rochester and Willmar.

In addition to improving visibility, the specially built, diesel-powered stripers will greatly increase the efficiency of highway painting operations, said Curt Christie, state maintenance engineer.

Stripers operate at a speed of 12 miles an hour — about twice as fast as the old models — and can stripe two lines of paint simultaneously. They can also stripe with two different colors at the same time.

With that capability, Christie said, the new stripers can, for example, paint at the same time a yellow centerline and a white edge line, cutting work time and fuel use in half.

Other improvements include the ability to carry more paint and a system to heat the paint while the striper is operating. These improvements extend the striper's range and enable it to begin working earlier in the spring and continue operating until late fall.

Christie said many of the features incorporated in the new stripers — including their unique lime green color — resulted from brainstorming sessions involving maintenance engineers, supervisors and workers.

"Working with our engineering staff and the people who use the equipment each day has helped us develop methods that will increase our effectiveness and provide improved roadway markings and safety for the motoring public," he said.

TRF Baseball Home Openers

Thief River Falls baseball teams will both kick off their home schedules this week — weather permitting, of course.

Lincoln high school will host Red Lake Falls in a 4:30 p.m. game Thursday on the fairgrounds diamond while Northland community college entertains rival University of Minnesota-Crookston in a 12-noon doubleheader Saturday at the college diamond.

Both coaches — Charlie Cornell of the Prowlers and Chet Engelman of the Northmen — are optimistic. The potential is there for both teams to have successful seasons, they say.

It'll be the 1983 season opener for the Prowlers. The Northmen, after stunning preseason Northwest Division favorite Brainerd 5-4, 13-7 in a season-opening road doubleheader Saturday, had a 1 p.m. twinbill assignment at Fergus Falls today (Wednesday).

Success against the Spartans would provide the Northmen with a great start in the Northwest Division pennant race where each of the four teams face each other in home-and-home doubleheaders. Added incentive this spring is the fact that the Northwest Division champion will be the host team for the 1983 Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) state tournament featuring the champions in the four divisions — Northwest, Northeast, Central and Southern. A Northwest Division team will also host the Region 13 playoffs.

Meanwhile, the Prowlers hope to be able to challenge the likes of Bemidji and Moorhead for the North Half Region 8AA title this spring.

Bemidji is the defending champion. The Lumberjacks had one of their most successful seasons in 1982 with a 17-3 record and a third place finish at the Class AA state tournament. But six players graduated off that team, including left-handed pitcher Bryan Hickerson, one of the school's all-time greats who was 11-0 and had an 0.80 earned run average. Also missing are catcher Daryl Strunk, centerfielder Jim Toninato, second baseman Dave Eichstadt, third baseman Bob Ness and first baseman Matt Majjar. Ness led the team with a .378 batting average last spring while Hickerson hit .346 and Strunk and Toninato both hit .329.

Still, there are 11 Bemidji lettermen on hand. Nobody is in the Hickerson class on the mound, but big things are expected from senior Govind Nadesan, who was 5-1 with a 3.98 ERA last spring.

Coach Des Sagedahl figures his team will be solid defensively, both in the infield and outfield, where Kent Kavanagh will shift from left to center. He was used mostly as a defensive replacement in high school last year, but came on to hit .371 in American Legion ball.

Bemidji was to play its first two games minus seven players because of violations of Minnesota State High School League regulations.

Rustad Winning at UND

Mitch Rustad, a junior from Thief River Falls on the University of North Dakota tennis team, will carry a 16-2 record at No. 1 singles into a regular season-ending road trip this weekend.

Rustad has a 232-120 edge over opponents in game points this spring. He's coming off an impressive 6-4, 2-6, 6-4 victory at Gustavus Adolphus over an opponent that was an NCAA Division III singles national runner-up and doubles champion.

Rustad is teammed with sophomore Dean Rudrud of Grand Forks, who has matched Rustad's 16-2 record at No. 2 singles in doubles. The Rustad-Rudrud combination is 13-5 at No. 1 doubles for the Sioux, who are 14-4 overall and 7-0 in the North Central Conference.

This weekend UND will travel to Mankato to meet Mankato State, St. Cloud State and Northern Iowa all on Saturday and meet Gustavus again Sunday at St. Peter. North Central Conference meet will be played April 29-30 at Sioux Falls, S.D.

Miscellaneous

+ While Northland community college was celebrating its season-opening baseball sweep at Brainerd Saturday, the latest NJCAA national baseball poll showed Seminole junior college of Sanford, Fla. with a 56-11 record.

+ Scoring five times in the third inning and fourth times in the fourth and sixth, Detroit Lakes outlasted Fergus Falls 14-7 in a season-opening North Half Region 8AA high school baseball game last week. Wind, cold and rain cut the game to six innings, but that was still enough time to produce 14 errors — eight by the Otters and six by the Lakers. "Both teams are much better than the box score indicates," said Detroit Lakes coach Bob Hooper.

Dave Ose Is Named MVP On LHS Swim Team

Junior Dave Ose was named recipient of the MVP award for the 1982-83 Lincoln high school swimming team.

Ose was also presented with the hardest worker award and sophomore Paul Wefald was named the team's most improved swimmer.

Junior Jeff Rosetta and Ose were named co-captains of the 1983-84 Prowlers, a position Ose shared with senior Rod Helm this winter.

Earning letters as swimmers this winter were seniors Oscar Garza and Helm; juniors Jay Achenbach, Roger Rivera, Curt Rude, Ose and Rosetta; sophomores Gus Miller, Todd Wing and Wefald; freshmen Jim Amundson and Eric Ose; eithth graders Todd Carlson, Joe Drevlow and Rick Rosetta; plus student managers Mike Sparby, Teri Klopp and Janelle Smidt.

Twins Baseball Clinic Set Here On Fri., July 15

Thief River Falls will be one of the stops this summer during the annual Minnesota Twins baseball clinic programs conducted throughout the state.

Headed by longtime scout Angelo Giuliani, the Twins baseball clinics hit the road for 1983 beginning Friday, May 6, in Ames, Ia. Twenty-four communities are included in the schedule, which runs Fridays and Saturday through July.

Thief River Falls will be featured as a clinic stop on Friday, July 15, at 5 p.m. The clinic will move on to Crookston Saturday, July 16, at 9 a.m.

Giuliani and his compatriots, Glenn Gostick and Mike Casey, form one of the top instructional teams anywhere, say Twins officials, focusing their 90-minute sessions — featuring participation by all — upon the game's fundamentals.

It's estimated that some half-million kids have attended the clinics since the program's 1961 inception.

Twins Clinic Schedule

Boosters Club Plans Meeting On Thursday

Baseball coaches Chet Engelman of Northland community college and Charlie Cornell of Lincoln high school will be the guest speakers Thursday at the 12 noon luncheon meeting of the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club in the basement of the Rex Cafe.

TRFAHA Will Meet Tuesday

General meeting of the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA) will be held Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Franklin middle school library.

Election of officers for the 1983-84 season will be held.

Tennis Team Takes Part In Bemidji Triangular

Thief River Falls' third straight triangular outing didn't quite match the results the Prowlers managed to produce in their first two starts Tuesday at Bemidji as Grand Rapids finished the day with 10 points, Bemidji 3 and Thief River Falls 2.

The Indians swept both the Prowlers and Lumberjacks 5-0, with Bemidji getting by Thief River Falls 3-2 in the other match-up.

In their two previous starts the Prowlers had managed to finish in the middle of the three-way competition. Overall this spring the Prowlers are 2-4.

Thief River Falls featured a different line-up this time around, with the absence of senior Ken Kompelien because of another commitment prompting the changes.

Only Thief River Falls wins for the day came when senior Chad Broadwell beat Bemidji's Phil McDonald 6-2, 6-3 at No. 1 singles, while sophomore Dan Imgrund and freshman Al Erickson teammed up for the first time this spring to beat Bemidji's Keith Bjella and Kyle Bucher 6-2, 2-6, 6-1 at No. 1 doubles.

Grand Rapids matched the 5-0 wins posted by Crookston and East Grand Forks over Thief River Falls in the Prowlers' two previous outings. "Grand Rapids has a good team," noted Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson, "but they're not as good as East Grand Forks." The Green Wave, incidently, came out a big 4-1 winner over Crookston Tuesday in a match-up of top area teams.

Thief River Falls will be idle until Monday when the Prowlers open their 1983 home schedule with a 3:15 p.m. dual against Crookston.

Hockey Awards Are Presented

Tim Bottem and Brian Johnston, juniors on this year's Section 8 runner-up squad, were named co-captains of the 1983-84 Lincoln high school hockey team, it was announced Monday at the Prowlers' annual post-season banquet in the school cafeteria.

Senior Tim Bergland was named the most valuable player award winner by a vote among the players.

Bergland and Tom Kenville served as the 1982-83 Prowlers co-captains.

Prowlers Play RLF Thursday

Baseball season opens Thursday for the Lincoln high school Prowlers when Thief River Falls hosts Red Lake Falls in a 4:30 p.m. game on the fairgrounds diamond.

"So far, so good," reported Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell after some two weeks of preseason practice. It's time, though, to find out what the Prowlers can do under game conditions, he indicated.

A number of line-up variations are expected to be utilized in the opener.

Senior Kerry Wollin and junior Brian Johnston will likely share the pitching duties, with senior Jim Hallamek and junior Al Ness both expected to do some catching.

Around the infield, junior Gary Cornell will be at first base; junior Ryan Bakke and senior Kirk Jenson will both play some at second; junior Tim Bottem and Wollin may both be used at shortstop; with Johnston and Hallamek expected to share playing time at third, depending on the battery combinations.

Outfielders will likely include senior Jeff Milender and juniors Rick Spong, Steve Wiskow and Bakke.

"We're going to do lots of switching," pointed out Cornell.

Thief River Falls' next start will be at Roseau the following Tuesday.

Armstrong Wins Class B Title At Grand Forks

Fifteen-year-old Troy Armstrong of Thief River Falls was a winner in the men's Class B division over the weekend in the prestigious Budweiser Pro-Am racquetball tournament held at Grand Forks.

There were 139 entries in the event, recognized as one of the top money tournaments in the area, drawing competitors from Winnipeg, Grand Forks, Fargo, etc.

Troy won five matches en route to the title in a field of 32 Class B competitors and helped "coach" his father, Evan, to the men's Class C consolation title.

Goodridge high school basketball team finished the 1982-83 season with a 10-9 record, and the near .500 finish was both good and not so good, according to head coach Rick Nelson.

"We're satisfied with the way we made progress in a lot of areas, except our won-lost record," he said. "It wasn't as good as we had hoped it would be, but we were actually in every game. We never lost by more than 11 points."

With just one senior on the team, you might expect the Huskies to be labeled instant contenders in 1983-84. However, it's not that simple, warns Nelson.

"Even though we've got seven of our top eight players back — four starters — that doesn't necessarily make us a better ball club," he explained. "The key to our program right now is how hard the kids push themselves and how hard the parents push the kids between now and November." A weight program, running and shooting must be incorporated into the players' off-season schedule, stressed Nelson.

That lone senior the Huskies will be losing is a good one — versatile Darin Easthouse. The team's most valuable player, top offensive player and most effective player on defense was described as "being like a coach on the court," by Nelson. "He's going to be a tough one to replace. He did a lot of things for us," Nelson pointed out.

Easthouse led the Huskies with 230 points this winter, a 12.1 scoring average, while finishing second on the team rebound charts with 123 and second in the assist department with 73.

A balanced Goodridge attack also included Jeff Langan with an 11.7 scoring average and a team-leading 133 rebounds, plus Ross Parnow with a 10.4 average and 121 rebounds. Scott Groven contributed 7.3 points per game, Tim Bakken 6.1 and Tony Wiseth 4.8, along with a team high 105 assists.

Despite the warning about the necessity of off-season work, Nelson has to be optimistic as he looks ahead. Along with the bulk of the varsity returning, Goodridge has a 12-3 junior varsity record this year under Dan Brinkman and had a 13-4 junior high season this winter under Lou Marold.

"We've got some younger kids who did extremely well for us this year," acknowledged Nelson, who earned District 31A Coach of the Year honors this season as the Huskies finished 8-4 and in fifth place in the 11-team Polar Conference.

Langan and Easthouse were both awarded all-conference recognition.

Goodridge regular season wins were posted over Red Lake 71-57, Warroad 52-41, Plummer 74-33 and 71-63; Oslo 50-35; Red Lake Falls 58-56 and 47-45, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 60-30, Alvarado 54-41 and Climax 72-42. Losses came at the hands of Oklee 51-49, Clearbrook 65-59, Fisher 40-39, Grygla 47-42 and 41-40, Stephen 43-42, Warren 55-44 and Argyle 52-44. The Huskies out-scored opponents by an average of 54.4 to 48.4 and out-rebounded them by a total of 574 to 421 for the year.

Post-season play produced just one game for the Huskies, for a 61-44 District 31 loss to Stephen.

PARTICIPANTS IN THE seventh grade basketball clinic listened to instructions from Lincoln high school head basketball coach Tom Hunt Tuesday on the final day of the two-week program conducted in the city auditorium. High school assistant coach Dave Peterson and seventh grade coach Kent Kainz also worked with the clinic, held after the completion of the regular basketball season to complement a clinic for eighth graders that was held prior to the season.

Seventh Grade Has Basketball Clinic Offered

A two-week seventh grade basketball clinic, conducted by Lincoln high school head basketball coach Tom Hunt, assistant high school coach Dave Peterson and seventh grade coach Kent Kainz, was completed Tuesday in the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

Instructions for the seventh graders following the end of regular season basketball schedule complemented a similar program for eighth graders held prior to the start of the season.

Results in special skills contests conducted during the clinic included:

Speed dribbling — 1. Chris Bjorgaard; 2. Brian Kertz; 3. Chris Nelson; 4. Matt Reynolds.

Foul shooting — 1. Chris Nelson; 2. Mike Anderson; 3. Chris Bjorgaard; 4. Dean Fugleberg.

Hot shot — 1. Chris Nelson; 2. Matt Reynolds; 3. Chris Bjorgaard; 4. Mike Anderson.

Scuba Diving Course Offered Through AVTI

Thief River Falls AVTI is offering another eight-week scuba diving class to begin May 9. Classes will meet in Room 512 at Franklin middle school on Monday evenings from 6-10 p.m.

Fee of $70 includes textbook, materials and rental of equipment. Foy Cox from Northwest Divers in Grand Forks is the instructor.

East session will have two hours of classroom and two hours in the pool. Learn how to select, maintain and use equipment. Physics, physiology and safety procedures are introduced to give a thorough understanding of what the diver can expect under water and what he must do to safely enjoy the sport. Also covered will be the water environment and dive activities.

Pre-registration is required by contacting Adult Education, AVTI, Highway 1 East, Thief River Falls, MN 56701; telephone 681-5424.

DNR NEWS

Tree Packaging

Tree seedlings shipped this spring from the Department of Natural Resources will be packaged in a Kraft paper bag which will be sealed and placed in a wax lined cardboard box. DNR forestry officials said the packaging is taking the place of the method used last year which consisted of the trees being wrapped with spagnum moss placed on the roots.

They said the following planting and handling tips should be observed when the tree seedlings arrive:

1 — Protect the box and bag of seedlings from direct sunlight and heat.

2 — Plant the seedlings as soon as possible. Seedlings should not be stored for more than three to five days and then only at temperatures of 35 to 45 degrees Fahrenheit.

3 — Once the package is opened, plant the seedlings immediately. Remember that exposure of tree roots to hot sunlight and drying winds for three to five minutes may be fatal.

4 — It is recommended that when planting, the seedlings be carried in a pail containing a few inches of water.

5 — If the planting operation must be postponed for more than three to five days after receipt of trees, remove the seedlings from the bag and heel them in a trench, covering the roots with soil and keeping the soil moist. The trench should, if possible, be dug in a shady area.

6 — When planting the seedlings, tamp the soil firmly around the roots to avoid air pockets. This could significantly improve survival of the seedlings.

If further information is needed, contact your local Division of Forestry office of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

Rodeo Opens Friday At UND Sports Center

First big time rodeo ever to play Grand Forks has drawn 129 professional cowboys and cowgirls, according to Dan Quandt, director of Grand Forks and Visitors and Convention Bureau, one of the sponsors of the three-day event along with the UND Athletic Department and KYCK Radio.

"We are going to have some of the top pros in the rodeo world competing for cash prizes in our River City Rodeo and we are also bringing in some of the top rodeo stock in the country," Quandt said. Pros who will compete here are either members of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association or the Women's Professional Rodeo Association.

Three-day event begins Friday at 8 p.m. in the UND Winter Sports Center, with two shows Saturday at 2 and 8 p.m. and the windup show Sunday at 2 p.m.

By buying tickets before the show, rodeo fans can save a dollar on each ticket. Tickets at the door prior to each are $6 for adults and $4 for children. Discounted early purchase tickets are now available at the UND Hyslop Sports Center at $5 and $3, according to UND athletic business members Jerry Kvidt.

Ice has been removed from the Winter Sports Center and last week 10 inches of dirt were hauled into the arena and placed on plywood and plastic lining. Bob Abernethy of Beach, N.D. one of the nation's top rodeo stock contractors, is the rodeo stock contractor for this event. He is the father of UND Football Player, Jeff Abernethy.

There will be six events in the rodeo at UND, Quandt said. They are saddle bronc riding, bareback riding, bull riding, calf roping, steer wrestling and women's barrel racing.

First 1,000 people to enter the UND Winter Sports Center for the first show Friday will receive a free bandana, Quandt said.

Among the top cowboys entered are the current leading money winners for the world saddle bronc riding championship, including Brad Gjermundson of Marshall, N.D., the current leading money winner; Bobby Brown of Mustang, Okla., and Monty Henson of Mesquite, Texas.

Two top bull riders entered here are Bobby DelVecchio of Bronx, N.Y., and the current rookie money leader, Lane Frost of Lane, Okla.

Another top cowboy to appear here will be Tom Miller of Faith, S.D., in saddle bronc and bareback riding. Miller has qualified for the national rodeo finals six times.

UMC Summer Basketball To Start June 6

A summer basketball league wilh be held this summer at the University of Minnesota-Crookston for high school boys and girls who will be in grades 10 through 12 next year.

Freshmen may be included in the program at a coaches' request.

League games will be played on six Sunday evenings starting June 6 and continuing through July 18. For additional information contact UMC basketball coach Gary Senske by calling 281-6510, extension 433.

Give More Time To Faulty Deer Hunt Applicants

Minnesota deer hunters who fouled up their antlerless deer hunt applications last year will be given an extra mouth to correct their errors, the Department of Natural Resources announced.

Otherwise, said wildlife officials, they will lose their opportunity to establish a "preference rating" for this year's drawing.

Under state law, hunters who have not received antlerless permits in previous drawings are given preference in subsequent drawings. But the only way the DNR has of identifying the hunters is through a driver's license number of Department of Public Safety I.D. number.

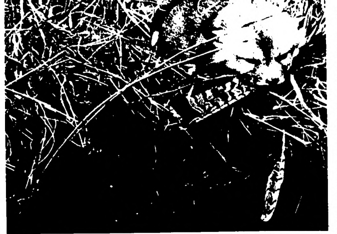
One of the most frequent errors committed by hunters last year was the failure to provide one or the other of these numbers in the space provided on the application. Officials said many hunters used their state firearms safety certificate number, but this number cannot be used because it is not coded to fit the computerized system used for drawing the antlerless permits.

Notices have been sent by the DNR to hunters who made mistakes on their applications last year, telling them that they will have until May 1 to correct the errors if they want to get preference on this year's drawing.

But officials say that the deadline does not provide sufficient time for hunters to obtain either a driver's license number of Public Safety I.D. number.

Therefore, they have extended the deadline to June 1. "This is their last chance," said one official, "and even with the extension there is no time to spare."

First-ever baseball game at the Metrodome in Minneapolis was an exhibition game matching the Minnesota Twins vs. Philadelphia Phillies April 3, 1982.



EXPLORING the area outside his den, this baby fox found a few grouse feathers to play with, rewarding the wait of the Time photographer who discovered the den while looking for mushrooms near Viking. Minnesota department of natural resources conservation officer Craig Backer notes that young wild animals should be left in the wild, adding that even though they may appear to be abandoned, that is rarely the case. While nearly all baby animals are almost irresistably cute, caring for them can be a nearly 24 hour per day job, and their total dependence once tamed, can make their chances of survival back in the wild minimal. Backer also issued a reminder the only time possession of all or part of a protected wild animal is legal, is when it is taken during open season, while in possession of a proper license.

Petition of State of Minnesota, by Richard P. Braun, its Commissioner of Transportation, for the Right to Make Minor Alterations or Changes in County Ditch No. 1 in Pennington County

Notice of Hearing

TO ALL PERSONS INTERESTED IN COUNTY Ditch No. 1 IN PENNINGTON COUNTY:

YOU, AND EACH OF YOU, WILL PLEASE TAKE NOTICE, that the State of Minnesota, by Richard P. Braun, its Commissioner of Transportation, has filed a Petition with the County Auditor of Pennington County, pursuant to Section 161.28 of Minnesota Statutes 1982, praying that he be allowed to make minor alterations or changes in County Ditch No. 1. That attached to said Petition now on file with the County Auditor are plan sheets showing said minor alterations or changes petitioned for. That the portion of said County Ditch No. 1 as now located which is proposed to be changed or altered is described as follows:

Approximate Present Location of a Portion of County Ditch No. 1 (RN)

Beginning at a point distant 50 feet north of the centerline of First Street in the City of Thief River Falls from a point distant 190 feet east of the intersection of the centerline of said First Street with the (LOR) centerline of T.H. 59; thence run in a general southerly direction and under T.H. 59 for approximately 600 feet and there terminating.

Arppoximate Proposed Location of a Portion of County Ditch No. 1 (RN)

Beginning at a point distant 30 feet north of the centerline of First Street in the City of Thief River Falls from a point distant 190 feet east of the intersection of the centerline of said First Street with the (LOR) centerline of T.H. 59; thence run in a general southerly direction and under T.H. 59 for approximately 600 feet and there terminating.

That said Petition alleges that it is advantageous and desirable in the construction and maintenance of Trunk Highway No. 59 that said minor alterations or changes be made, and that said minor alterations or changes petitioned for will not affect the functioning nor impair the efficiency of said Pennington County Ditch No. 1.

YOU WILL FURTHER TAKE NOTICE, that said Petition will be presented to the County Board of Pennington County, in the Court House in Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the 10th day of May, 1983, at 2:00 o'clock P.M., at which time all persons interested in said ditch system may appear and be heard and present arguments for or against the granting of said Petition.

In Re: Estate of Fredolph Swanson, Deceased

Notice of Hearing on Petition for Probate of Will and Appointment of Personal Representative in Supervised Administration and Notice to Creditors

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS AND CREDITORS:

Notice by publication is hereby given that on the 2nd day of May, 1983, at 2:15 o'clock P.M., a hearing will be held in the above named Court at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, for the probate of an instrument purporting to be the Will of the above named decedent, and for the appointment of Robert Swanson as personal representative of the estate of the above named decedent in supervised administration. That, if proper, and no objections are filed, said personal representative will be appointed to administer the estate, to collect all assets, pay all legal debts, claims, taxes and expenses, and sell real and personal property and do all necessary acts for the estate. Upon completion of the administration, the representative shall file a final account for the allowance and shall distribute the estate to the persons thereunto entitled as ordered by the Court, and close the estate.

Notice is further given that ALL CREDITORS having claims against said estate are required to present the same to said personal representative or to the Clerk of the Court within four months after the date of this notice or said claims will be barred.

Dated: April 11, 1983.

Notice For Bids

Greenbush Public School is soliciting bids on insurance for the 1983-84 school year coverage effective July 1, 1983. The insurance specifications and bid sheets may be picked up at the superintendent's office or you may request a set be mailed to you. The bids must be in the superintendent's office by 4 p.m. May 11, 1983 so they can be summarized for the board's regular meeting on May 12, 1983 at 8 p.m. at which time bids will be considered. Bids should be mailed or hand delivered. Mark the envelope "Insurance Bid". Mail to K. F. Kapphahn, Superintendent; Greenbush School; Box 70; Greenbush, MN 56726. The board reserves the right to reject any or all bids. 2t32c

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our neighbors, relatives and friends for their kindness and sympathy in our recent bereavement. We are grateful to Green Funeral Home, Pastor Hushagen for his comforting words, and prayers, to those who sent flowers and cards, LaVonne Masters - organist, Grace Hammer - soloist, and the pallbears.

Your kind acts will never be forgotten.

The family of
HERMAN LOBERG
Elaine, Peggy, Sandy & Family

Card of Thanks

I would like to thank the many friends and relatives that came to visit me while I was hospitalized and to those who sent cards, flowers and gifts. A special thanks to Pastor Rick and Nancy Lund for their prayers. Also, to the nurses on second floor, Dr. Heinrichs and nurses in the ICU for the great care given me. God bless you all.

LEC Reports 9 Cases April 19

Law Enforcement Center report dated Tuesday, April 19, lists four cases investigated by Thief River Falls police department and five cases investigated by Pennington county sheriff's department by reporting date.

Cases handled by Thief River Falls police department included the following:

April 10 — Burglary was reported to have occurred at Lincoln high school sometime during the previous evening, with acts of vandalism throughout the building. Entry was apparently gained by climbing onto the roof and breaking a window. Damage was estimated at $35 plus the cost of cleaning required. Case is under investigation.

April 11 — Virgil Wold, East Grand Forks, reported that two hubcaps, value $80, had been stolen from his vehicle while it was parked at the National Guard armory in Thief River Falls.

April 11 — Greg Nelson, Thief River Falls, was taken by ambulance to Northwestern Hospital following an accident in which he was apparently pushing another individual in a wheelchair at a high rate of speed, when the chair struck a hole in the street, causing him to fly over the back of it. Hospital personnel report that he was treated and released.

April 11 — Greg Scott, Thief River Falls, reported that while his vehicle was parked in the lot at the post office, it had been struck by another vehicle which left the scene. Damage was estimated at $300.

Cases handled by the Pennington county sheriff's office included the following:

April 4 — Investigation was made of vandalism which occurred at the Goodridge school sometime during the weekend. Approximately $25 damage was caused by a vehicle which had been driven through the yard.

April 10 — Ronald Haugen, Goodridge, reported damage estimated at $20 had been done to his mailbox during the previous evening.

April 13 — Alice Seaverson, Thief River Falls, reported that her garage had been struck by a vehicle causing approximately $150 damage.

April 14 — Arthur Olson, rural Goodridge, reported theft of auto parts valued at $50 from a vehicle parked at his residence.

April 14 — Anderson Power and Equipment, Thief River Falls, reported theft of a stereo system, value $200, from a tractor belonging to Randy Huderle, Angus. Damage was estimated at $25. Case is under investigation.

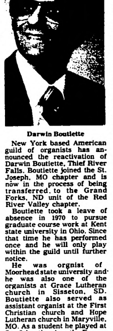
Organist Guild Reactivates D. Boutiette



Darwin Boutiette

New York based American guild of organists has announced the reactivation of Darwin Boutiette, Thief River Falls. Boutiette joined the St. Joseph, MO chapter and is now in the process of being transferred to the Grand Forks, ND unit of the Red River Valley chapter.

Boutiette took a leave of absence in 1970 to pursue graduate course work at Kent state university in Ohio. Since that time he has performed once and he will only play within the guild until further notice.

He was orgnist of Moorhead state university and he was also one of the organists at Grace Lutheran church in Sisseton, SD. Boutiette also served as assistant organist at the First Christian church and Hope Lutheran church in Maryville, MO. As a student he played at St. John the Apostle Roman Catholic church and in addition he assisted at the Roman Catholic convent of the Sisters of Charity and Sacred Heart parish in Paris.

Valpariso liturgical institute has recognized Boutiette for his liturgical work. He has served on the worship and music committee for the Red River Valley synod and in this position he took a role in planning the yearly convention and rite for ordination in Moorhead. Boutiette reviewed the New Lutheran Book of Worship and served under Rev. Van Loon, chairman of the division parish services from the headquarters of the Lutheran Church of America.

BSU Slates America And Canada Study

"In Pursuit of Common Ground," a series of joint lectures and panel discussions between Canadian and American speakers, will be held at Bemidji state university April 21 to 23.

Three-day seminar covers such topics as "How Canadians Study Themselves," "Settlers Settle, Crossing Borders and Becoming Citizens" and "Americans Discuss Canadians, Canadians Discuss Americans."

Featured Canadian speakers and panelists include Dr. Kenneth Osborne, chair of Canadian studies and the University of Manitoba, Rev. Karl Sauer of Thunder Bay, Ontario, Dr. Brian McKillop, professor of Canadian history at the University of Manitoba and Dr. David Arnason, professor of Canadian literature at St. John's college in Winnipeg.

Among the representatives from BSU are Dr. Raymond Milowski, chairman of the American studies department; Dr. Robert Ley, chairman of the economics department and Dr. William Elliott, chairman of the Canadian studies committee.

Held in Hagg-Sauer hall, room 113, the last of the four lectures is "A Canadian Poet Reads His Work" April 28 with Fred Wah from South Slocan, British Columbia.

Registration materials for "Common Ground" can be picked up between 8 and 9:30 a.m. April 21 at the Crying Wolf coffeehouse in BSU's Lower Hobson memorial union.

One undergraduate or graduate credit is available by registering through the center for extended learning, Deputy hall, room 111 prior to April 21.

All sessions are free of charge.

For more information contact Dr. Bill Elliott, Hagg-Sauer Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601, phone 218-755-2813.

Report Computer Illiteracy Most Modern Malady

by Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian News Service

Are you put off by input? Do disk drives make you dizzy? Do modems give you migraines?

If you have these symptoms, watch out! You may be suffering from "computer illiteracy," a mysterious malady of relatively recent origin that rarely strikes anyone under the age of 30. Left untreated, the consequences of this dread disease are, well — dare we say it? — terminal.

But don't despair, you're not alone. Last year millions of Americans sought cures for computer illiteracy. Their remedies ranged from the commonplace — hanging out at the growing number of computer stores or taking cram courses in basic computer literacy at community colleges, libraries and even museums — to the exotic — combining sun and study at Club Med resorts and adult computer camps or vacationing at computer-controlled Walt Disney world epcot center in Florida.

Choosing the proper prescription depends on the individual, according to Rachelle Heller and Dianne Martin, two Maryland-based computer scientists. These instructors and authors, both 39, represent a new kind of practitioner: the gentle guide who diagnoses and helps overcome computer shock and network neurosis.

The two women define computer literacy in terms of a "comfort level." Heller explains: "The person who is a laboratory scientist needs a different kind of computer literacy than an elementary school teacher or a parent or a newspaper reporter. Computer literacy is what you need to know to feel comfortable in your daily life."

Not surprisingly, what you need to know to feel comfortable is increasing. "Ten or 15 years ago," Martin points out, "computers were the domain of the technological elite. Now, the average person comes in contact with computers, or the effects of computers, perhaps 50 times in a single day — at the gas station or bank, in the grocery store and office, at home. Today, computers are for the people. Everyone needs some level of literacy."

Fine, but how does the beginner begin? Often a person's first thought is to wander into one of the proliferating number of computer stores displaying and selling personal computers — so-called "microprocessors" that can be programmed for a variety of applications, from preparing household budgets and income taxes to carrying out inventories for small businesses or playing video games.

"Visiting a computer store first may be about the worst thing a computer 'illiterate' can do," Heller opines. "What happens? An individual who is already feeling intimidated by computers is either approached by a hard-sell computer salesman — an expert who speaks some strange language filled with words like bit, byte, ROM and RAM — or he's mobbed by the 'skinned-knee' crowd, kids who are right at home working at a computer terminal. Either situation simply turns up the anxiety level."

Instead, Heller suggests an approach that is "user-friendly" — a term applied to a computer system that is easy and non-threatening to use and understand.

In the past year, for instance, Heller and Martin have taught a one-day computer literacy course, offered every few months, for the Smithsonian Institution resident associate program. Course is held in the National museum of natural history, where participants on their way to the computer revolution pass through halls filled with nature's wonders.

In this "out-of-context, non-traditional setting," Heller says, people feel more at ease. Recent course attracted some 450 people, mostly over the age of 30, including attorneys, accountants, bankers, economists, artists, writers, physicians, secretaries, homemakers, teachers and even a special agent from the FBI.

Smithsonian course is similar to those offered across the nation by community colleges, libraries, computer clubs, some commercial enterprises and the adult-education programs of colleges, universities and recreation centers.

Most courses explain the basic principles and terminology of computers, discuss applications and explore social and ethical concerns. Some even teach basic programming. At least one public-broadcasting station, WETA-TV in Washington, D.C., is running a 23-week course in basic computer literacy, which viewers can take for credit through local colleges. As an added bonus, each college offers "hands-on" time in the school's computer facilities.

More exotic — and more expensive — introductions also are available. Club Méd, a company that offers prepackaged week-long getaways at various "villages" in tropical locations, has equipped several of its resorts with personal computers and instructors.

From Connecticut to California, adults also have their very own computer camps, a luxury formerly reserved for precocious kids. And virtually all large children's camps now promote computer instruction as a prime selling point in their ads.

For the whole computer-curious family, there is Epcot center, the newest Walt Disney venture, adjacent to the Magic kingdom in Florida's Walt Disney world.

"It's fair to say there wouldn't be an Epcot center without computers," Louis H. Kompare, corporate manager for scientific systems at Epcot, declares. "Computers are behind-the-scene and on-the-scene at Epcot, controlling everything from security and sprinkling systems to rides and restaurant reservations."

But these computers have that old Disney magic. Many of Epcot's estimated 20 million visitors this year will see the impressively vast central computer facility in action — with a few surprises added. Or they may learn about the workings and applications of computers by "playing" one of the many "games" — all of which are actually sophisticated touch-sensitive television screens, totally computer-controlled with nary a keyboard in sight. "Most guests don't realize they've come in contact with a computer," Kompare says.

Epcot does indeed have the most "user-friendly" computers in the world. Throughout the 260-acre park, visitors line up early at the 29 terminals of the Worldkey information service, computer-controlled television screens that — at the touch of a finger — provide full-motion video, audio and text information about the park's attractions, special events, hotels and restaurants, this in English or Spanish with French and German to be added soon. Developed by the Bell system in a joint project with Walt Disney world, the unique information system is still experimental but could soon find wider use.

Of course, none of these gentle introductions will make you a computer expert overnight, but they may be all you need to reach your "comfort level." If more is called for, the next step, Heller says, "is to find a friend and visit a computer store for some hands-on experience." Martin advises, "Look around, see what's available, try some out." Dozens of brands are now on the market, ranging in price from under $100 to $6,000 and up. Many people prefer to build their own systems by mixing components from various firms.

Nor is there a lack of reading material. Many newspapers and magazines feature columns on the latest computer developments. Scores of new book titles have been published within the past year; more than 2,500 titles are now on the market. One large bookstore chain reports that computer books are "second only to romances" in popularity.

Hardest step to take on the road to computer literacy is the first one, Heller and Martin acknowledge. In their work, they meet people who feel alienated and isolated by computers, some who believe that computers have gained control of their lives and others who are downright hostile, believing that computers will take over their jobs.

"People have endowed the computer with a mystical, godlike quality," Martin says, "but it really is nothing more than a 'dumb tool.' We try to assure people that a computer is no more intelligent than a wooden pencil. It does exactly what it is told to do — by you."

One thing to remember: There is no escaping the computer revolution, so you might as well join it. "Just think about the computer," muses Dr. Uta Merzbach, who, as curator of mathematics at the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History, is in charge of the world's largest and most comprehensive collection of computing devices.

"It took 250 years from the time man first described the notion of a mechanical desk calculating machine until it became widely used," she says. "In contrast, in less than 40 years, the computer has gone from a concept to a part of everyone's life. Few other technological developments in the history of mankind have had this kind of impact on daily life."

SURROUNDED BY young children, Mayor Bob Carlson signed a proclamation Thursday evening declaring April 10 to 16 as the Week of the Young Child in Thief River Falls. Children were attending a family fun night held in city auditorium on Thursday. Noting that children are our most precious resource, the proclamation stated that they have the right to love, security, a stable home, health, nutrition, and protection from physical dangers and moral hazards.

School Lunch Rates High In Nutrition

Students who eat school lunches have highest intakes of energy and nutrients than students who do not take part in school nutrition programs, according to a landmark study released recently by the U.S. department of agriculture.

"The report finds the national school lunch program is effective in safeguarding the health of the nation's school children by providing nutritious foods," said assistant secretary Mary Jarratt. "It affirms the administration's staunch support of the lunch program as the corner stone of our child nutrition assistance."

The study, entitled the national evaluation of school nutrition programs, is the first ever to look at the effects of school nutrition programs on a nationally representative sample of public school students and their parents. Some 7,000 families throughout the country took part.

"The school lunch program, as judged by the nutrient intake of students, clearly provides meals that are superior to the lunches eaten by nonparticipants. These differences are accounted for by the nutritional quality of foods that are required as part of the program's national meal pattern," Jarratt said.

Of the many nutrients for which lunch program-participants show superior intakes, four — vitamins A and B6, calcium and magnesium — are the ones that often are deficient in the diet of the school-age population, according to the study.

These positive nutritional benefits were found for students of all income levels, not just for students from low-income families, Jarratt said. While the lunch program serves substantial numbers of low-income students, it is for all students. The study indicates that the federal lunch program is available to 98 per cent of public school students in the U.S.

Therapeutic Advances

According to the American Cancer Society, about fifty drugs already have been found effective against cancer, and others are still being tested.

ALERT!

Every muscle tense . . . every sense attuned to their surroundings . . . they're ready! A scent, a sound, a glimpse of the unexpected and they will streak silently into the forest. They're alert, but their alertness indicates a readiness to run away.

Rightly man scorns that kind of alertness. For human achievement is born of a different alertness. When men are awake to their opportunities, alive to their responsibilities, brave to their challenges . . . then progress is realized, goals are reached.

Our religion helped to establish this human standard of alertness and our churches constantly inspire men to achieve it. For when the mind is attuned to life's environment, and the soul is attuned to God, then a man has the wherewithal to go forward to greater goals.

True alertness begins when we discover the riches and fulfillment regular worship can add to our lives.

THREE WAYS TO EARN A RAISE

If you're one of America's 96 million workers, the chances are pretty good that at one point in your career you've pondered the matter of how to ask for a raise. Here, from the experts, are three good ways to earn one.

Increased productivity means more income.

First, increase your productivity. By enhancing your own productivity, you'll help your employer increase his profits. A fact that's most likely to increase his generosity.

Next, you can reduce waste. This will lead to improved office or plant efficiency. Reducing waste lowers overhead. An employee who can do this is always valuable to any size business.

Finally, you can learn to take satisfaction from doing a good job, whatever the task. By reducing your frustration, you'll show your employer you're a more efficient worker.

Many managers of small businesses, for example, are discovering a way to improve the efficiency of their operations in their choice of office equipment. Something as simple as a 24-hour answering machine or a small office copier or a small computer can add to profits, reduce wasted efforts and make for less frustration.

Not frustrating at all is finding a place that will supply you with this needed equipment. One well-known manufacturer of office equipment, Xerox, has come upon the unique idea of opening stores where businesspeople can conveniently look at what's new, make comparisons and test the equipment before buying. It is this hands-on testing that lets small businessmen and professionals get the experience and knowledge to choose the machine right for their particular business. Called The Xerox Store, it carries everything from typewriters to toners, word processors to the last word in dictating machines.

Reduced waste equals less overhead.

A simple way, it seems, to increase productivity... and profits...while reducing the time spent in shopping for needed office equipment.

Provincial Opinion

Minnesota state board of education has issued a statement of opposition to proposed legislation to (1) eliminate the state board of education; (2) place power to appoint the state commissioner of education in the hands of the governor rather than the state board; (3) establish a new board and chancellor for the post-secondary area vocational-technical institutes; and (4) merge the state's 18 community colleges with the 33 area vocational-technical institutes."

The statement seems to be provincial — even preservationist — in nature.

"Board members say they believe that the proposed legislation would diminish local control, remove important checks and balances in the governance of education, and lead to the undesirable prospect of 'St. Paul-run education' for public elementary, secondary and vocational schools," the state education board's release states.

"The collective legislation proposed by the governor and his legislative allies would establish more centralized control of education in the hands of the governor. Though perhaps at the outset the goals of consistency and efficiency may well be served better than centralized control, far greater values and safeguards and even efficiencies will be sacrificed in the long run."

Anyone who believes that there is no such thing as "St. Paul-run education" at the present time isn't very aware of the situation. Any local school board member of administrator can tell you that local control is an illusion, fostered primarily by the state department of education. Very little is done at the local level which must not first have the official blessing of a state department division.

It is strange that the state board of education should be fearful of having a governor appoint the commissioner of education: the governor now appoints the members of the state board of education for four-year terms. No concern was expressed about such appointments "becoming political patronage" as it was for gubernatorial appointment for a commissioner.

We have some reservations ourselves about the centralizing of education under the direct supervision of the governor. We rather like the idea of the state board with a member from each legislative district — although that could have us represented by someone from St. Cloud (our present state board member is Margaret Marvin of Warroad). Perhaps the state board of education members should be elected by the public rather than appointed by the governor.

But we do believe that there must be a legitimate effort to get the vocational-technical institutes and community colleges to coordinate their efforts. This is important both from a cost effectiveness standpoint and a community service standpoint.

It appears that so such effort will be forthcoming until the state legislature wipes out the layers of bureaucracy which have been built around the state board of education and department of education. Little kingdoms have been developed in the department of education and they are jealously guarded by their sovereigns. Until the slate is wiped clean there will be little hope for cooperative progress.

As far as the state board of education is concerned, it runs education in Minnesota about as much as the sailor who hoists the anchor runs a ship. The board initiates very little and has a tendency to react instead of to act. The paid professionals run the show in Minnesota, and we'll bet the state board of education statement on legislative proposals wasn't written by anyone on the board.

If the state board and state department don't want to see their kingdoms toppled, they better have an abrupt change in attitude and show some cooperative effort. Legislative patience can be pushed only so far. Being provincial won't accomplish anything but to make that rift between the lawmakers and the board of education a little wider.

Extensive Disruption

Following editorial was written by Lois Suel Wann for the New Prague Times:

Property damage totalling an estimated $625 million has been reported in Louisiana and Mississippi, as the result of rampaging floodwaters which enveloped those states and parts of several other southern states last week. More than 52,000 people were said to have been displaced in the disaster.

The floods have been blamed primarily on torrential rains which fell for several days, with as much as 20 inches of rain falling in four days in parts of the Deep South.

Contributing to the flooding were swollen rivers and streams, including the Mississippi, which was 10 feet above flood stage in Missouri. . . and also the Pearl River, which reportedly flowed 15 feet deep in New Orleans.

Unusually heavy rains precipitated the flooding, however one of the major contributing factors in other recent floods in this country involves people rather than nature and the elements. Generations of Americans have continued to drain swamps, sloughs and other natural watersheds, they have sometimes interrupted the natural storage and flow of water, and they have sometimes cleared and cleaned ditches unnecessarily and indiscriminating, thereby moving water along its way at a far greater speed, and in vastly greater quantities than nature originally intended.

The draining and destruction of wetlands also has other, more directly obvious effects, in the destruction of wildlife habitat. . . and in dry years, in the loss of valuable surface moisture and supplies of ground water. Several western states have reported threatening lowered water tables.

The human creature is now slowly recognizing the enormous impact of some of his disruptions of nature. Hopefully, there might still be time in which to reverse the destructive powers which several generations have set into motion.

Driving Away Business

Following editorial is from the Morris Tribune:

In February, Governor Rudy Perpich unveiled his $9.8 billion budget, asking for a nearly twenty per cent hike in state taxes over a two-year period. Minnesota is already suffering the consequences of excessively high taxes. Yet the governor proposes increasing taxes by over one and one-half billion dollars, in addition to raising tuition at state-supported colleges and cutting back on property tax relief.

In recent years, the Minnesota legislature has almost always spent — and taxed — more than the amount called for in the governor's original budget plan. Despite the fact that Gov. Perpich's budget adds millions to an already heavy tax load, the same thing could happen this year.

Last week, Senate DFL leaders proposed changes in the state's income tax system that would cost taxpayers $40 million more than Perpich has proposed. The Senate DFL plan would eliminate indexing, end the federal income tax deduction, and make permanent the "temporary" 10 per cent income tax surcharge.

Governor Perpich has proposed spending $75 million of the taxpayers' money on a "jobs program". That isn't enough for Senate DFL leaders, who are pushing a $312 million "jobs bill".

Problems with the state's business climate cost Minnesota nearly 82,000 jobs over the past 16 years and at least $5 billion a year in wages and related spending, a study released earlier this month by the Small Business Development Center at the College of St. Thomas showed. The lost jobs and income were the result of plant location decisions made by 407 companies. The firms cited high taxes and workers' compensation costs as the primary adverse factors affecting business in this state.

In other words, because the Minnesota legislature has spent too much and taxed too much, the state has lost tens of thousands of jobs. And what do DFL leaders see as the solution to this problem? More spending and higher taxes!

The fact that economic recovery has begun does not appear to deter the big spenders in St. Paul. It seems that the politicians always want to spend more money, whether times are good or bad. But the Senate DFL leaders would do more than just spend too much money in this biennium. By eliminating indexing and federal tax deductibility, their proposal would ensure that Minnesota would continue to drive away business for years to come.

Newfolden Senior Citizen News

We held our April meeting on Wednesday, April 13 after dinner at the meal center. President Amy Lind called the meeting to order.

Secretary's report was read by Bertha Tunheim because Nellie Olson was absent.

Hilmer Lind gave the treasurer's report and both reports were approved as read.

We discussed having the fire extinguisher checked. It is very important that they be in good working order.

The shades or blinds which we ordered for the kitchen serving window has arrived in Thief River Falls and as soon as we get it, it will be installed.

We started our plans for a bus trip which we'll be taking this summer. We decided to think about where we'd like to go and we tabled it until next month.

We talked about the senior meals and activity program anniversary which will be held Oct. 6, 1983 in Thief River Falls. It will be the 10th anniversary of the SMAP program and six years since it was started in Newfolden. Will hear more about this at a later date. Meeting adjourned. Next meeting May 6th.

Medicare Has Increased Your Deductibles Again for 1983!

Free Guide shows your new 1983 Medicare benefits . . . and how you can supplement them to avoid loss!

If you're age 65 or over—fill out the Free Guide coupon below and mail it today. We'll rush you, by mail, without cost or obligation, a special 1983 guide to Medicare specifically written for senior citizens like yourself.

With this free, up-to-date 1983 Medicare guide, called "Health Insurance for Senior Citizens," you'll have all the important facts about your current Medicare benefits right at your fingertips.

1983 Medicare deductibles higher than ever!

With this Guide, you can see for yourself what the higher Medicare "initial deductibles" and "co-payments"—which you must pay for yourself—can mean to your budget.

For example, for a trip to the hospital, you must pay the initial Medicare hospital deductible—now at a record-high of $304.00—with money out of your own pocket. And that's a bill you'll have to pay every time you go into the hospital in a new Medicare "benefit period!"

You'll also find important Medicare terms that can be confusing—like "benefit period"—spelled out in "plain English" as well as the optional Medicare Part B medical benefits.

And, this Free Guide, "Health Insurance for Senior Citizens," also contains a handy chart that tells you at-a-glance what Medicare will—and won't pay for. It's a "must" these days for all senior citizens!

What you don't know about Medicare could cost you plenty.

The fact is, Medicare—even when it started back in 1966—was never meant to cover all your bills. And because of soaring hospital, surgical and other medical costs, your share of the bills is growing bigger and bigger every year.

So you can see that, what you don't know about Medicare now, could cost you plenty in the future. That's why it's so important to your security and peace of mind to send for this Free Guide today.

Valuable money-saving tips on how to avoid loss.

These days, you simply can't afford to depend on Medicare alone to pay your hospital and medical bills. You need good supplemental coverage, too. But with all the different offers you've no doubt seen for Medicare insurance supplements, how can you know which plan is right for you?

That's just one more way you'll find this informative guide so valuable! It gives you a simple, step-by-step "check-list" you can use to select the Medicare supplement that fits your protection needs and your budget.

There's a word to describe farmers who carry All-Risk Insurance.

Secure.

They're secure because they know All-Risk Insurance not only protects their farm income against total losses from natural disasters, it works to minimize your losses as well.

And that's good risk management. Because when you're protected against major losses, your basic net worth is more secure. And, when borrowing money, that's a more important consideration today than ever before.

All-Risk premiums are 100% tax deductible, too. And by marketing several insurance programs, PCA can also provide the flexibility farmers require.

All-Risk Insurance.

It's like a security blanket for farmers. Except it's worth a lot more. Call your local PCA for more information.

Holt

Dorothy Rood, 449-3681

Mrs. Esther Peterson, author of children's books of Karlstad, will speak on the theme, "You Can Make the Difference" at the annual mother-daughter luncheon to be held at the Nazareth Lutheran church in Holt on Sunday afternoon, April 24 at 3 p.m. All girls and women of the area are invited to attend.

On Sunday afternoon those who helped Traver Benitt celebrate his second birthday were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Benitt, his brothers, Kent and Jon, his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Rueben Benitt. Also Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Johnson, Teresa and Amy, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Halsa, Mr. and Mrs. John Halsa and family of Thief River Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Fick and family, Mr. and Mrs. Elroy Benitt and Judy and Bryan and Karen Cloutier. Traver enjoyed his many cards and gifts and the teddy bear birthday cake his mother baked for him. All were luncheon guests and had a piece of his birthday cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Engen celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary on Thursday and were winners of a floral arrangement from Hall's through the KKAQ radio station. In the evening, with Carrie Ness, they enjoyed supper at Lon's and later visited with Carrie at her home. Congratulations Harry and Josie.

On Saturday Mrs. Cliff Reierson and Marcy Reierson, Mrs. Jay Garthus and Mrs. Don Lunke were among those who attended the Debby Praska-Kenny Niemela wedding in Thief River Falls.

Earl and Jan Hanson visited and helped tie a quilt at the Orvis Oien home in Thief River Falls and enjoyed coffee with them.

Tuesday afternoon visitors at the John Sorenson home were Mrs. Kevin Helm, Chad and Dustin.

Saturday afternoon visitors at the Dorothy Rood home were Mr. and Mrs. John Sorenson, Jami and Matthew. They enjoyed pizza at Godfather's Pizza in Thief River Falls and also attended the Home Sports and Travel show at the sports arena.

Joyce Borgeson of Park River was a last weekend guest at the Orvis Benitt home. On Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Benitt and Joyce Borgeson were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Benson in Thief River Falls. Mrs. Benitt, Mrs. Benson and Joyce Borgeson are sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Sig Nygard of Ogema, Mrs. Cleo Henning of Middle River spent Friday and Saturday visiting with Mrs. Christine Jevne.

POWER FROM THE GROUND DOWN HONDA

TILLERS

If you've got a tough tilling job ahead, a Honda tiller can put it behind you.

We have a full line of front and rear tine tillers from 2 to 7 H.P. Honda's efficient design makes each one easy to handle. And a Honda engine gives each tiller enough power to turn over hard soils easily.

Each tiller features Honda's Automatic Decompression Easy Start System. And a cast iron cylinder.

MOWERS

No matter how big your lawn is, Honda has a mower that'll cut it down to size.

We have a 17", 2 H.P. model that maneuvers easily over sloping lawns and hard to get places. And our top of the line 21", 5 H.P. mowers go right through wet, thick or overgrown lawns. These models are especially popular among professional gardeners and homeowners alike.

It will be "Home Talent Night" at the Life-Line Christian center in Newfolden on Saturday, April 23, at 8 p.m. Come to share your talent God has given you or just come to listen and enjoy. Don't forget our appreciation banquet on Saturday, April 30 to be held at Newfolden community center. Supper will be served at 6:30 p.m. with a program to follow given by the King's Men of Thief River Falls. Plan to be with us and write or call for free tickets at 874-3171, Gary Donarski, Newfolden, MN.

Senior Citizens News

Thursday, April 14 was the first meeting at our center for 1983.

There were 14 who registered in our record book. Carl and Bernice Wikstrom of Minneapolis were our guests for the day and Debra Boen was a lunch guest as we brought over lunch to her at the post office.

A few ladies laid out blocks for a quilt top.

We are all asked to make two quilt blocks for a crazy quilt like we made before and bring them next Thursday. We will then have enough with what we had left over for another quilt top.

Bertha Fredrickson brought many items she had made for our center and they were all priced and put on display. Thanks Bertha.

We have lots of dish towels to work on if you are interested and also some pillow cases to embroidry on. Let us know what you would like to help us with.

Carl Wikstrom won the door prize donated by Ruth Harper and Ann Holmstrom won the prize donated by Mildred Nelson.

Thank you cards were read from the family of Florence Stennes, and also from the Terry Brekkes for bed pillows given them after the fire.

Thanks to Bertha who was our hostess today. We prayed the table grace before eating.

We signed two get well cards to send to Sara Wikstrom and Anna Brekke both hospitalized at Karlstad.

Rich Custard Cobbler Is Easy-To-Make Family Dessert

For a quick and easy family dessert, try Golden Nugget Custard Cobbler. The rich custard, flavored with a hint of lemon, is topped with tender, bite-sized pieces of refrigerated flaky biscuits.

GOLDEN NUGGET CUSTARD COBBLER

3 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornmeal
1/2 cup evaporated milk or half-and-half
1/4 cup margarine or butter, melted
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon vanilla
10-oz. can Hungry Jack refrigerated flaky biscuits
Dash nutmeg, if desired
Whipped topping, if desired

Heat oven to 375°F. In medium bowl, beat eggs slightly; add sugar, cornmeal, evaporated milk, margarine, lemon juice and vanilla. Mix well. Separate dough into 10 biscuits; cut each into 4 pieces. Arrange biscuit pieces evenly in ungreased 8-inch round or square baking dish. Pour egg mixture over biscuit pieces; sprinkle with nutmeg, if desired.

Bake at 375°F. for 24 to 29 minutes or until deep golden brown. Serve warm with whipped topping, if desired. Store in refrigerator. 6 servings.

TIP: Loosely cover baking dish with foil last 10 minutes of baking to prevent over browning.

$1,738 Raised During Reyes Bowl-A-Thon

Thief River Falls Jaycee Women, co-chaired by Sue Sculthorp and Sherry Sorenson, sponsored a bowl-a-thon for Reyes syndrome April 17 at the Family Bowl, Thief River Falls.

Total of $1,738.28 was raised with the proceeds going to the national Reye's syndrome foundation to aide in research to overcome this disease.

Participants included: under seven age group — Erick Nielsen and Trisha Swanson and seven to 11 age group — Bret Mills, Stacy Ratliff, Joshua Magner, Jack Sculthorp, Tony Sculthorp, Wade Evenson and Kyle Evenson.

Also 12 to 17 age group — Shon Thompson; and over 18 age group — Dick Sculthorp, Dave Lee, Ralph Rundell, Carolyn Schmitz, Sherry Sorenson, Lana Christensen, Carol Lien, Sue Schulthorp, Deb Swanson and Kurt Thompson.

Trisha Swanson was the youngest bowler, with Ralph Rundell awarded the prize for the oldest bowler. Top three bowlers who raised a total of $1,271.18 in pledges were Dick Sculthorp, Dave Lee and Bret Mills.

Movie on the causes and effects of Reyes syndrome in children and adults was shown throughout the afternoon with coffee and cookies donated by the Thief River Falls and Marshal county central Jaycee Women. Claudia Nielson, Lancaster and Cindy Spilde, Kennedy, answered questions about the disease.

Merchants who donated prizes were Family Bowl, Hardees, Pizza Hut, Happy Joes, Godfather's Pizza, Radio Shack, The Place, Kentucky Fried Chicken, McDonalds, TG Sporting Goods, Larson Music and Coast-to-Coast.

Quin Health Group To Meet

Quin county community health services advisory committee will meet at 7 p.m. on May 2 in the large room of the Newfolden community center. Items on the agenda include a review of the needs assessment, a setting of priorities and a review of special grant applications to date.

Aging Eye Topic Of Workshop Here

Sixty-five nurses from 19 northwestern Minnesota communities attended the workshop on the aging eye Friday at the Best Western inn of Thief River Falls. The workshop was sponsored by the Minnesota Society for the prevention of blindness and preservation of hearing.

Marla J. Kapperud, program director for adult education with the society, introduced the program and later discussed resources available for staff, patient and community education.

Ophthalmologist William Ramsay of Thief River Falls presented four sessions during the morning program including anatomy, physiology and pathophysiological changes of aging of the eye, cataract, glaucoma and diseases of the retina.

William Crone, rehabilitation counselor for state services for the blind and visually handicapped, discussed techniques for daily living and helping the elderly adjust to vision loss. Nurses attending were awarded certification for seven contact hours of instruction.

Kapperud reviewed the Minnesota adult home eye screening test which has been developed by the state society for prevention of blindness. The folder consists of a series of standard vision tests and contains complete, easy to follow instructions. It is not intended to replace a professional eye examination but can provide important early clues to changes in eye health, she said.

In 1983 it is estimated 42,240 Minnesotans will develop chronic and sight threatening eye conditions such as cataract, glaucoma or macular degeneration (the major cause of blindness in those over 50). If these diseases are not diagnosed and treated promptly, sometimes within the first few weeks of onset, blindness may result.

"Unfortunately, most Americans have infrequent eye examinations," Kapperud said; "often seeking care only after permanent vision loss has occurred. The adult home eye screening can detect many of these serious eye conditions before permanent sight loss occurs."

Copies of the screening folder can be obtained by sending one dollar to the Woman Missing Since January Is Recovered

Body of Mrs. Mildred Fritzinger, 76, who had been missing since January 8, was recovered Saturday morning from the Red Lake river about two miles southwest of Red Lake Falls. She had been a resident of Valley home since 1973.

Mrs. Fritzinger had been the object of an extensive search of the river near L.B. Hartz park in Thief River Falls when tracks led to open water on the river in January. Divers had searched under ice in the area to no avail and a river search had continued by Outer Limits Airways and Minnkota Power company helicopter since the spring break-up.

Canoeists Marvin Hagl and Mark Ruth discovered the body about 9 a.m. Saturday and notified the Red Lake county sheriff's department. Recovery was made by the Red Lake and Pennington county sheriff's departments and identification determined through a name in Mrs. Fritzinger's coat.

Franklin Plans Open House On May 2nd

Franklin middle school has planned an open house for Monday, May 2 from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. and a "Back to School" orientation session for fifth grade parents to the 1983-84 sixth grade curriculum.

Beginning at 7 p.m. various groups will meet such as: the ExCEL program meeting in the library; algebra for 1983-84 in room 504; pre-algebra for 1983-84 in room 503; "Morning Darkness" parents in band room; "Sunrise" parents in the chorus room and open locker rooms for boys and for girls.

At 7:30 p.m. there will be a general orientation session in the cafeteria and fifth grade parents will meet with sixth grade teachers from 8 to 9:30 p.m. All parents are invited and encouraged to attend.

Fires Destroy Buildings On Two Area Farms

Fires in the past week have caused damage to a number of buildings and resulted in fire department responses to keep other fires from causing damage to property.

Grass fires have been most common as conditions are more dry than most people seem to think at this time of year, according to Duane Noel, Thief River Falls fire chief. He urges extreme caution in use of outdoor fires since changes in wind velocity or direction can cause major problems.

Fire at 1:33 p.m. yesterday at the Rocky Taggart residence in Norden township burned a small barn, double garage, two smaller buildings and an automobile.

At 5:35 p.m. on Friday a fire which got out of control burned a barn and a number of antique items stored in it on the Mrs. Gladys Harder farm in Silverton township.

Last Wednesday at 12:28 a.m. a fire caused damage to siding of the Tim Pendergast home at 1730 First St. E. On April 16 a fire apparently started from a water heater extensively damaged a house at 416 Kendall av. S.

Other fire calls resulting from grass fires but with no damage being done were to the Allan Stenerson residence in Rocksbury township at 9:33 p.m. Sunday; the Mark Hanson farm in Silverton township at 5:18 p.m. Sunday; the Oliver (Skip) Swanson farm in Smiley township at 3:25 p.m. Wednesday; the Frank Passa residence in North township Wednesday; and the Ted Bergland farm in Rocksbury township on Tuesday.

Students Play In Honor Band

Two students from Goodridge were chosen to play in the honors band festival at Bemidji state university (BSU), on April 9. Students were Jeff Langan, alto saxophone; and Leah Dahlen, cornet. They are members of the Goodridge high school band, under the direction of Helen Anderson.

Council Considers Purchase Of Toreq

LEAD ROLES in the Marshall county central high school production of "The Sound of Music" will be performed by Alan Melvie as Captain Von Trapp and Shelly Anderson as Maria. The musical will be staged Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the school gymnasium in Newfolden at 7:30 p.m.

Thief River Falls city council held two special noon meetings last week, discussing the possibility of purchasing the Toreq building on Wednesday, and meeting with Pennington county commissioners and Minnesota department of transportation officials on Friday, to discuss construction schedules for bridges on First and Third Streets.

Wednesday's meeting was attended by Hank Hallstrom and Mervin Presteman, representing the interests of Toreq Inc., which manufactured a line of heavy equipment at a plant located on Highway 32 South, near the Arctic plant in Thief River Falls. Hallstrom is president of the corporation, and Presteman is on the board of directors. The company is currently in the process of declaring bankruptcy, with First Federal savings and loan holding the mortgage on the building.

Discussion on purchase of the building was initiated in the utilities committee, which Mayor Bob Carlson noted had been putting aside funds for three years, for construction of new facilities. Alderman Ambrose Wysoski, chairman of the committee, noted that they had examined the facilities of Toreq, and felt their use by the utilities and park departments looked feasible.

Superintendent of Utilities John T. Anderson noted that the building had approximately the same square footage as their current office facilities in the former Dow Key building located on Highway 59 South. Advantages which he saw for the department in the Toreq building were that it offered more room for storage outside, since it sits on approximately eight acres. In addition, the city owns land adjoining the property, allowing for future expansion. He also noted that construction of the building would allow for adding additional office space on top of the present offices inside the building.

Note was also made that the location was closer to the arena, sewage plant, and other areas of the city where the men of the department frequently worked.

Commenting on the location of the Dow Key building, Anderson noted that previous objections had been raised to plans for frontage road construction in that area which would cut the department's already crowded storage area, and hamper easy access for the vehicles.

In response to questioning

Peterson And Walker Attend Model U.N.

Kristy Peterson and Tim Walker have been selected to represent Lincoln high school at the 26th model United Nations assembly in Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Peterson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Peterson and Walker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Walker. Darwin Boutiette will serve as advisor.

Event is sponsored by Winnipeg Rotary club and the Lincoln high school seniors are sponsored by the Thief River Falls Rotary club.

Objectives of the Model United Nations assembly are to give students a first-hand experience in the workings of the UN, to establish an understanding and acceptance of the responsibility of the individual citizen for the success of the UN and to make the UN a better understood instrument for world peace.

This year Lincoln will represent the Palestinian liberation organization. They will debate resolutions concerning the Falkland Islands, disarmament and the withdrawal of the credentials of the Israeli delegation. Peterson and Walker will speak in favor of this last resolution and seek to implement an amendment to establish a new homeland for the Palestinian people.

Delegation will leave for Winnipeg on May 5 and return to Thief River Falls on May 8.

Plummer Music, Art Shows Set Thursday

Plummer music department, under the direction of Larry Larson, will present its spring concert on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the school gymnasium.

Featured in the concert will be the junior and senior bands, grades seven and eight stage band, concert choir and various soloists and ensembles who received star ratings at the district music contest.

Following the concert, the art department will have on display art projects from students in all grades. Display, under assistance from art instructor Nancy Harman, will be in the art room and adjacent cafeteria.

Program is free and public is encouraged to attend.

Woman Drowns In Pool Near Valley Home

Mrs. Evelyn Kruse, 71, drowned early Saturday morning at the fountain pool in the park near Valley home in Thief River Falls. She had been a resident of the home since September of 1982.

Mrs. Kruse was last seen about 5 a.m at the home and was discovered to be missing before breakfast. Law enforcement officials were notified at 7:10 a.m. and she was found by Lester Brekke, co-administrator of the home, at 7:31 a.m., according to the Pennington county sheriff's office.

Funeral notice and obituary are published in this issue of the Times.

Coming Events Are Discussed At Chat-Chew Meet

Coming events were announced and discussed at the meeting of the Chat and Chew homemakers club held April 12 at the home of Geneva Overum.

Events announced were the County homemakers achievement day, May 6 at the city auditorium; the Homemakers special school to be held at the arena; the University of Minnesota day at Crookston on June 9; and the county homemakers overnight trip to Winnipeg on June 28-29. Announcing the coming events was Wanda Murphy, who also reported on the home council's meeting.

The group also discussed and voted on the four-year program plan.

Marian Williams led the topic, "Analyzing interior space and home storage." Each member participated in the storage quiz. President Vi Sullivan presided at the meeting, Betty DeHaan read the homemakers' creed, and Marian Williams gave the report of the previous meeting which secretary Geneva Overum was unable to attend.

A dessert lunch was served by the hostess.

Marge Carlson Hosts Moccasin Garden Club

March meeting of the Moccasin garden club was held at the home of Marge Carlson with a variety of business items discussed.

The budget for the year was reviewed with income and expenditures scheduled. A decision was also made concerning the payment of mileage to members traveling to workshops.

Memorials were presented to the club in memory of the club's charter members: Dagney Lendobeja and Mary Koglin.

The program included movies on the heart and blood pressure, shown by nurses, Joan Nelson and Marge Carlson. Everyone had their blood pressures taken. Lunch was served by the hostess.

Those attending, besides those mentioned, were Olga Nelson, Eva Lendobeja, Marianne Nelson, Inga Geving, Connie Manki and the guests: Helen Torkelson and Naomi Althoff.

The April meeting will be held Tuesday, the 26th, at 1:30 p.m., at the home of Eva Lendobeja. Members are reminded to bring a May basket as roll call.

INSTALLED as Worthy Matron and Worthy Patron of the Order of Eastern Star, Winslow chapter 182, were Joanne Shaw and Ken Shaw of this city. Installation and reception were held at a recent meeting of the chapter.

Shaws To Head Winslow Chapter Of Eastern Star

Officers for 1983-84 of the Winslow chapter 182, Order of Eastern Star, were installed recently at a meeting of the chapter held at the Masonic hall.

Installed to head the chapter were Joanne Shaw, worthy matron, and Ken Shaw, worthy patron, with Irene Ellingson, associate matron, and Arlen Ellingson as associate patron.

Other officers installed were Marcella Helland, secretary; Bernice Looker, treasurer; Dee Ness, conductress; Dode Wilson, associate conductress; Eunice Flynn chaplain; Robert Reeve, marshal; JoAnn Reeve, organist; Yoshiko Duke, Adah; Sharon Ellingson, Ruth; Diane Solberg, Esther; Dorothy Bergman, Martha; Camille DuChamp, Electa; Edward Duke, warder; and Robert Looker, sentinel.

Installing officers were Becky Lyttle and Robert Looker, assisted by Drina Hansel, installing marshal; Gladys Narverud, installing chaplain, and LaVada Hanson; installing organist.

During the ritualistic ceremony, Stephanie Hansel was in charge of the presentation of the Bible, stressing the year's scriptural guide, "Love one another," John 13:34. Bruce Parnham sang "One Day at a Time," "How Great Thou Art," and "You'll Never Walk Alone." All united in the Lord's Prayer" the singing of "Blest Be the Tie that Binds," and the Mizpah bendiction.

For the reception that followed a bouquet of red roses, the chapter's chosen flower for the year, centered the serving table. Host and hostess were Ed and Yoshiko Duke. Diane Josephson presided at the coffee service, Becky Lytle ladled the punch, and Camille DuChamp registered the guests. In charge of the kitchen was Bernice Looker.

The next meeting of the Winslow chapter will be held Wednesday at 8:00 p.m., at the Masonic hall. Hostesses will be Becky Lyttle and Christine Berg.

Bread Fair Set May 16 In Auditorium

Pennington county extension homemakers are bringing a bread fair to Thief River Falls on Friday, May 6. Men, women, young and old are invited to attend and participate in the bread session from 1 to 3 p.m. in the city auditorium.

Under the step-by-step guidance of Pennington county extension agent Deborah Matero, bread fair participants will learn through hands-on experience the secrets of successful breadmaking.

Participants will mix and knead their dough and place it in bread pans for the trip home to their ovens. Each participant will receive a standard recipe, premeasured ingredients, a plastic bag for mixing and a baking pan.

Registration forms are available at the Pennington county extension office. Cost is $3 to cover supplies.

Selmer Erickson Is Honored On 90th Birthday

Large number of relatives and friends gathered at the Senior Citizen center at Goodridge on Sunday, April 10, to help Selmer Erickson celebrate his 90th birthday, which was that day.

Present and hosting the open house were his immediate family, which included his three children, Stanley Erickson and Marion Vraa of Goodridge, and Jack Erickson, St. Paul; his eight grandchildren and his four great-grandchildren.

The celebration began with Rev. Les Galland giving the devotional meditation and prayer. He also led the group in singing "Happy Birthday."

At the reception that followed, granddaughters Marilyn Vraa presided at the coffee service and Susan Hoffman cut and served the birthday cake, which was baked and decorated with yellow roses and a 90th emblem by Elva Fiedler.

Mrs. Gary (Valerie) Vraa, Minneapolis, was at the guest book, and Mrs. Donnie (Berny) Vraa and Mrs. Richard (Donna) Vraa served the punch. In charge of serving the lunch were Lorraine McGinty, Colleen Holen, and Dorothy Quam.

For the occasion, the room was decorated in yellow and green. Erickson's yellow rose boutonniere and the bouquet of yellow carnations, were gifts from his brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Lambert Erickson of Moscow, Idaho, and his sister, Myrtle Whittenberg, Yakima, Wash. Earlier in the day, Erickson received a telephone call from his brother.

The afternoon was spent socially, viewing pictures and reminiscing. During the opening of the gifts and cards, Ray C. Olson played the guitar and sang several favorite selections.

Present for the occasion were Jack Erickson, Justin and Jacolyn of St. Paul; Gary and Valerie Vraa and Marissa, Minneapolis; Donald and Joan Erickson, Aurora; Stella Luezak, Duluth; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Miller, Grand Forks, N.D.; Rev. and Mrs. Les Galland, Emma Erickson, James and Gertie Johnson, Edna Kuror, Ray C. Olson, Art and FloAnn Bredeson, Anna Johnsrud, Odessie Vraa, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Hovet, Myrtle Olson and Edna McEnelly, all of Thief River Falls;

Also Stanley Erickson, Marion Vraa, Donald and Berny Vraa, Lesley, Courtney and David; Richard and Donna Vraa and Shane; Roger and Susan Hoffman, Marilyn Vraa, Clarence and Adeline Hanson, Aaron Hanson, Neil; and Deb Hanson and Angela, Carmen Hanson, Mrs. Grant Hanson, RaeAnn and Roger Pittman, Mrs. Gene Fiedler, Frank Krbechek, Lorraine McGinty, George and Dora Vraa, Mayer and Colleen Holen, and Rodney and Sylvia Hoffman and Alissa;

Also Hank and Alvina Hermanson, Denise and Deonne; Lila Stephenson, Palmer and Irene Lovly, Lewis and Dorothy Quam, Jim and Iva Wells, Ruth Kotrba, Erling and Ella Dahlen, Bert and Inga Coan, Otto and Hulda Sigerud, Carrie Hermanson, Mrs. Lloyd Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sigerud, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Miller, Bob, Tami, Lyle and Aaron;

Also Mr. and Mrs. Carl Elg, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Dahlen, Vernie and Virgie Wells, Lois and Ernest Swanson, David and Gayle Dahlen, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dahlen, Mr. and Mrs. Oldrich Hoffman, Elmer and Alice Johnson, and Ernest and Junes Race, all of Goodridge.

Sending cards but unable to attend were Myrtle Whittenberg, Yakima, Wash.; Dr. and Mrs. Lambert Erickson, Moscow, Idaho, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Erickson and family, St. Cloud; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Froelick and George A. Vraa, Ely; Walter Quam, Ed Sigerud, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Race, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Holen, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver McEnelly, Mr. and Mrs. John Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Solberg, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Bakken, Olga Sorter, and Ole Stephanson.

Featuring recipes from the Kitchen of

Mrs. Don Peres
1405 East Third
Thief River Falls

Fresh Rhubarb and Strawberry Pie

1 one-third cup sugar
One-third cup flour
½ teaspoon grated orange peel

Combine above ingredients and set aside.

2 cups fresh rhubarb, diced
2 cups fresh strawberries, sliced

Mix dry ingredients with rhubarb and strawberries. Pour into pastry lined pan. Dot with butter and cover with top crust, slit or pierced in several places. Sprinkle with sugar. Bake in a 425 degree oven for 40-50 minutes. Mrs. Peres stated that for the best results, rhubarb and strawberries must be fresh.

Rev. and Mrs. Peres came from Kansas three and one-half years ago to Minister to the local Evangelical Covenant congregation. They have five children: Leah, 20, a student at Prairie Bible institute; Julie, 17, a senior at Lincoln high school; Nathaniel, 14, an eighth grader at Franklin Middle school; Jonathan, seven, a second grader at Mark Twain, and Benji, five, at home.

They also have two permanent foster children: Gloria, who is married and has three children, and Everett, 16, who is enrolled in the TMH class at Lincoln.

In addition to caring for the family, Mrs. Peres writes articles for magazines and speaks at women's and couple's retreats.

Immunizations Slated For Marshall Co.

Immunization clinics sponsored by the Marshall county nursing service are being offered at nine Marshall county schools. Immunizations for diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis, polio, measles and rubella will be available.

Thursday, May 5 the clinics will be held at Strandquist, 8 a.m. to 8:15 a.m.;. Middle River, 8:45 a.m. to 9:15 a.m.; Gatzke, 9:45 a.m. to 10 a.m.; Grygla, 10:15 a.m. to 10:45 a.m. and Newfolden, 1 p.m. to 1:30 p.m.

All students must have a signed consent for immunizations. These will be sent home with the students or are available at the schools. Any questions will be answered at 745-5154 or by your physician.

Immunizations are available for pre-schoolers also. They must be accompanied by a parent. Consents will be available the day of the clinic. It is recommended that children under one year see their own physician, however they will not be refused at the clinic.

The needed immunizations will be given at a reduced rate of $1 per dose. A physician from the Warren clinic will be attending each clinic. It is a law now in Minnesota that children be fully immunized before they start school for the first time. When each child enters school he should have received five diphtheria, pertussis, tetanus (DPT) injections, four oral polio doses and one measles, mumps, rubella (MMR) injection. After this time diphtheria-tetanus boosters should be given every 10 years.

Aging Eye Is Topic Of Nurse Workshop Here

Minnesota Society for the Prevention of Blindness, 1206 Pioneer Building, St. Paul, MN 55101.

"Because half of all blindness in preventable, the dollar to cover costs of the kit and mailing may be the wisest dollar an adult ever spent," Kapperud said. She pointed out that 97 per cent of all blindness is caused by disease and only three per cent by injury.

Commenting on the condition knwon as mascular degeneration, Kapperud noted that the condition has been known for some time but was untreatable until a short time ago. It is the leading cause of blindness in people over age 55 and is caused by bloodvessels which grow in the back of the eye. These may now be treated with laser beams in many cases — in fact, it is estimated 70 per cent of people with the condition could be helped with laser treatment.

A test for mascular degeneration, known as the Amsler grid, is included on the adult home eye screening folder.

Minnesota society for the prevention of blindness is a private non-profit organization which receives about 50 per cent of its funding from private grants through individuals, groups or foundations, 15 per cent from fees for service, 10 per cent from United Way contributions, about eight per cent from a special concert conducted by the Minnesota orchestra and the remainder through miscellaneous receipts. Annual budget currently is about $216,000.

The society conducts the only continuing education seminars for nurses on eyes in Minnesota. The workshop here was one of eight in a current series and was funded in party by a grant from the Blandin foundation headquartered in Grand Rapids.

In 1869, the Colored National Labor Union became the first national black labor organization, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

KICK-OFF MEETING of the committee making plans for the annual kidney auction in Thief River Falls was held Tuesday evening at the home of Ruth Nepper. Sale will be held June 18 and 19 at the city sports arena, and donated items are now being accepted. Any items except clothing will be taken, and persons having items to be picked up beforehand may call Cliff Bredeson at 681-4615 or LaVonne Haroldson at 681-4674. Members of the committee include: left to right, (front row), Sue Scullthorp, Hazel Maves, Ruth Howick, and LaVonne Haroldson; (back row) Thelma Terrian, Cliff Bredeson, Web Maves, Chairman Morris Howick, and Cochairman Ruth Nepper. Absent at the time the picture was taken were Nancy Pederson, Arlene Kotrba, JoAnn White, Merle Lind- and Dave Bruggeman.

Council Gives Consideration To Purchase

regarding what the city would do with the Dow Key building if the utilities department were moved out of it, Wysoski noted that Gary Flynn of Northern Outerwear had expressed interest in leasing the facility for his manufacturing operation. Note was made that use of the building by Northern Outerwear would require rezoning from Highway commercial to commercial industrial. Toreq's property would also require rezoning from industrial to public. City Planner Jack Quinlivan was asked to bring the matter before the planning commission for recommendation.

Toreq currently pays taxes on the property of $9,000 per year, which would be lost if the city buys the property. Note was made that leasing of the Dow Key building to Northern Outerwear would place that building back on the tax rolls.

Wysoski stated that the utilities committee had met, and was suggesting that the Toreq property should be purchased. As a member of the finance committee, he noted that that body didn't forsee any problems with the purchase. He suggested an initial offer of $240,000 for the building, with the offer to include some equipment currently in the building.

Hallstrom commented that he could not see the board of directors of Toreq accepting that low of an offer, adding that they had already taken bids on some of the equipment and would be unable to sell it to the city. After briefly consulting with Presteman, they prepared a counter offer of $260,000 for the building, but noted that they would have to consider their equipment inventory more thoroughly before they could decide what the price would include. He commented that the building had been built for industrial use, and had been insured for $480,000 last year, adding that the city would be "getting a good buy."

Council voted to refer the matter to the finance committee for further negotiation. That committee consists of Aldermen Wysoski, Clayton Restad, James Womack and Mayor Carlson. Womack abstained from discussion and voting, citing a conflict of interest, since he served as secretary-treasurer on the Toreq board. Alderman Bill Penning was absent from the meeting.

Friday's meeting with county commissioners and Minnesota department of transportation personnel was not quite as decisive. Meeting was called at request of council to determine if timetables on construction of the First Street bridge could be moved up, so that it could be widened to four lanes before the street is used as a detour during construction on Third Street, currently scheduled for summer of 1985.

Construction on Third Street will be done from First Street to Atlantic Avenue, and includes widening of the Third Street bridge to four lanes, necessitating complete closure of that bridge. Concern was expressed for traffic movement in the city, since the two bridges are the only places where the Red Lake River can be crossed in city limits. Concern was expressed not only for general traffic flow, but especially for emergency vehicles, such as fire trucks and ambulances.

First Street bridge is a county bridge, but would come under the county state aid program for construction. Its widening has been planned for approximately four years, according to Don Stewart, of the engineering firm of Stewart and Walker. The state currently has both bridges planned for construction in 1985. Both the city and county expressed reluctance to push back construction on either of the bridges, since there could be no guarantee that funds would be available a year later.

Dave Kildahl, also of Stewart and Walker, noted that traffic counts made that morning on both bridges, indicated over 11,500 vehicles on each, noting that by state standards, the First Street bridge should be carrying no more than 7,000 vehicles. He questioned what would happen when the bridge was forced to carry traffic from both streets.

Note was made that the bridge was currently listed as number 21 on the state's priorities list, with most projects ahead of it being much more expensive. Estimated cost of the First Street bridge project to the county was estimated at $750,000.

Assistant MnDOT district engineer Pat Hughes, explained that the department's hands were tied, since they operate according to a number system as far as priorities go. He noted that the problem lay primarily with the federal government which supplies federal aid bridge money, and controls the sequence of projects.

Noting that he could not deny the need for something to be done, he said he held little hope for swaying the federal people. He suggested that possibly the county could bond for the construction. County Board Chairman Roger Hoffman noted that the county was already bonded to near its limit.

Another suggestion offered was that the Third Street project could be delayed a year. Hughes noted that the street is scheduled for a maintenance overlay this summer, which could make it usable for another couple of years. He did admit on questioning, however, that once delayed, funding for construction could not be guaranteed the next year. "You don't want to jeopardize the project at this point," he said.

Doing both bridges on one project was offered as a possibility, with the contractor required to complete the First Street Bridge before beginning on the other. This was felt to have possibilities. After much discussion, Hughes was aksed to try set up a meeting with state and federal officials in Thief River Falls, to give the city a chance to present its case to them. If funding for the project can be acquired, possibility may exist of getting construction in 1984, although he allowed that chances were not good.

City council will meet again for its regular meeting at 7:30 Tuesday. Topics on the agenda for that meeting include: a request for a liquor license for the Family Bowl; matter of 3.2 temporary on-sale beer license for the Pennington County Fair association; resolution calling for sale of $600,000 in bonds for water treatment plant improvements, and $200,000 in bonds for off street parking project and 1982 street improvement project; amendment of ordinance regarding all-terrain vehicles; and a request to do something about the alley between the professional building and Bridgemans.

A complete obituary will be published in a later edition of the Times.

R. Larson, 83, Father Of Rev. R. Larson, Dies

Rudolph Larson, 83, father of Rev. Richard Larson of this city, died Thursday at the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital. Larson, a resident of Oakland Park nursing home, had lived in Thief River Falls since 1981.

Funeral services for Rudolph Larson were held Saturday at 2:00 p.m., at Zion Lutheran church with Rev. Roger Hanson and Rev. Milan Davig officiating. Jerry Joringdal was the organist and Norm Midthun, the soloist. The Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

The second service will be held today (Monday) at 8:00 p.m. in Chicago, Ill., at the Olson Funeral home. Burial will be in the Mount Olive cemetery in Chicago.

Rudolph A. Larson, a son of the late Gustave and Ellen Larson, was born Aug. 29, 1899 in Chicago, Ill. He was married to Lillian Ronning on Feb. 20, 1932. She died in 1953.

On Aug. 19, 1956, he married Emmy G. Boland in Chicago. He was employed by the Lilly Industrial Coatings for 34 years, retiring in 1966 as manager of the Chicago branch. Following retirement, he lived in the Chicago area until 1981, when he moved to Thief River Falls.

He is survived by his wife, Emmy; one son, Rev. Richard Larson, Thief River Falls; four grandchildren;, a brother, Vernon Larson, Mt. Prospect, Ill.; and two sisters: Mrs. Hazel Mueller, Chicago, Ill., and Mrs. Bernice Pucci, Hayward, Calif.

In addition to his first wife and parents, he was preceded in death by four brothers.

Mrs. Arthur Peterson, Once Of TRF, Dies

Mrs. Arthur Peterson, 70, of Houston, the former Marina Yonke of rural Thief River Falls, died January 28 at the Lutheran hospital in LaCrosse, Wis., according to belated information received in this office.

Funeral services for Mrs. Arthur Peterson were held at the Cross of Christ Lutheran church. Interment was in the Stone church cemetery in rural Houston.

Marina Josephine Yonke, was born in Sanders township of Pennington county, on Aug. 29, 1912 to Ernest and Gertie Thorstad Yonke. She attended the Grand Forks school of cosmetology and worked in Thief River Falls at the Model Beauty shoppe for many years.

On Oct. 26, 1941, she was married at Trinity Lutheran church in this city to Arthur W. Peterson of Silverton township. They farmed in Sanders township for about 10 years. In 1955, they moved to a farm near Houston, in Fillmore county. Later, they retired and moved into Houston. She suffered several strokes and spent many months in the nursing care unit in the hospital at Caledonia and at the nursing home in Houston.

She was a member of the Cross of Christ Lutheran church and had held numerous offices in its ALCW.

Surviving are her husband, a son, Arlin, a daughter, Mrs. Ordell (Marlys) Johnson, and six grandchildren, all of Houston; two brothers: Earl and Everett Yonke, a brother-in-law, Alvin Nelson, an aunt, Mrs. Hazel Thorstad, two nephews: Leland Nelson and Richard Yonke, all of Thief River Falls and five nieces: including Mrs. Evonne Nelson Cleven, Thief River Falls.

Her parents, a sister, Edith Nelson, and one grandson preceded her in death.

Gina Furan Services Set At Zion Tues.

Mrs. Gina Furan, 84, a lifetime resident of this community, died Thursday evening at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Mrs. Gina Furan will be held Tuesday at 10:30 a.m., at Zion Lutheran church with Rev. C.L. Kalmoe officiating. Special music will be provided by the Silvertones with Jerry Joringdal as organist. Interment will be in the Greenwood cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Robert Benson, Lon Gobel, Roy Jorgenson, Lawrence Ring, Ray Wagner and Harry Howard.

The body is reposing at the Green Funeral home and will repose at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

Mrs. Furan, the former Gina Aas, was born April 3, 1899 in Norden township of Pennington county to Christopher and Gunhild Aas. She was baptized and confirmed in the Lanstad Lutheran church and grew to womanhood in the Norden community, working for several years as a housekeeper.

In August of 1923, she was married in Thief River Falls to Lars Luran, a barber in this city. Since then, she had made her home here.

She was a member of Zion Lutheran church.

Surviving are a step-daughter, Mrs. William (Violet) Omundson, a step-daughter-in-law Gladys Omundson, both of Great Falls, Mont; three grandchildren, two step-grandchildren, and some great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her husband, who died Aug. 28, 1969; two step-sons: Willard and Bert Furan, her parents, two brothers and five sisters.

E. Haugtvedt Services Held At Greenbush

Emil M. Haugtvedt, 92, of Greenbush, brother of Mrs. Walter Thomas, Thief River Falls, died Saturday evening, April 16, at the Greenbush Community hospital.

Funeral services for Emil Haugtvedt were held Wednesday at 2:00 p.m., at the Bethlehem Lutheran church, near Greenbush, with Rev. Raynard Huglen officiating. Mrs. Arthur Boese was the soloist and Miss Tammy Langass, the pianist. Interment was in the East Bethlehem cemetery. Military honors were by the Greenbush American Legion post 88. Collins Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were grandsons: Lewis Hays, Allen Haugtvedt, Sid Haugtvedt, Rodney Stavenes, Larry Nestby and Ronnie Hamness.

Emil Melvin Haugtvedt, a son of the late Syver and Gina Haugtvedt, was born Dec. 26, 1890 at Barnesville. At the age of seven years, he moved with his parents to a farm in Deer township of Roseau county, near Greenbush. There he attended school and grew to manhood.

He was a veteran of World War I. Following his discharge from the U.S. Army, in April of 1919, he returned to the Greenbush community. On June 21, 1922, he was married to Hilda Majer at the Poplar Grove Lutheran church near Strathcona. The couple lived and farmed in Deer township for many years. In addition to farming, he also operated the road grader in Deer township for many years. Following the death of his wife in 1962, Haugtvedt made his home with his son, Curtis, until two years ago, when he became a resident of the Greenbush Community Nursing center.

He was a long time member of the Bethlehem Lutheran church near his home and had served for a time on the church council. He was also a member of the Greenbush American Legion post 88, and the Deer town board.

He is survived by four sons: Morris and Curtis Haugtvedt, both of Greenbush; Harris, Anoka; and Stanley, Warren; three daughters: Mrs. Ernest (Elaine) Nesteby, Greenbush; Mrs. Danferd (Velma) Hamness, Strathcona; and Mrs. Basil (Eunice) Stavenes, Grygla; 21 grandchildren, and 15 great-grandchildren.

Also surviving are a brother, Palmer Haugtvedt, Greenbush; and four sisters: Mrs. Selma Carlson, Fargo, N.D.; Mrs. Harold (Anna) Forsness, Greenbush; Mabel Haugtvedt, St. Petersburg, Fla.; and Mrs. Walter (Minnie) Thomas, Thief River Falls.

In addition to his wife and parents, he was preceded in death by two grandchildren, four brothers and five sisters.

Services Held For Mrs. Ed. Belland, 84

Funeral services for Mrs. Edward (Cecile) Belland, 84, of this city were held Saturday at 10:30 a.m., at St. Bernard's Catholic church. Mrs. Belland died unexpectedly Tuesday evening at Northwestern hospital.

Concelebrants at the Mass were Rev. Stanley Bourassa, Rev. Dave Super and Rev. Clement Cloutier. Ministers of music were Bud Fontes and Sister Mardelle Mohs with Kris LaCoursiere serving as organist. Interment was in the church cemetery. The Belmont Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Shawn Belland, Louis Mitzako, Adelore Paquin, Frank Fortier, Leo Gibeau and Phillip Schiller.

Mrs. Belland, the former Cecile M. Schiller, was born in Argyle on Jan. 17, 1899 to Hector and Donalda Schiller. She grew to womanhood at Argyle and was married there on April 25, 1933 to Edward E. Belland. Following their marriage, the couple moved to Thief River Falls, where she had since made her home.

She is survived by her husband, five sons: Mark Belland, Vacaville, Calif., Gerald and Vernon, both of Thief River Falls; Thomas, Pueblo, Colo.; and David, Duluth; two daughters: Norma Jean Belland, Minneapolis, and Mrs. John (Barbara) Robinson, Napa, Calif.; and 11 grandchildren.

In addition to her parents, she was preceded in death by three brothers and two sisters.

Kari Peterson In Concordia Abroad Plan

Kari Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Peterson of Goodridge, is one of 175 students at Concordia college, Moorhead, who will participate in five-week educational seminars beginning May 2 as part of the college's 16th annual May seminars abroad program.

Peterson, a junior at Concordia majoring in English, will take part in the seminar titled "Renaissance and Reformation: A Luther Celebration." Students will tour Renaissance sites in Italy and England and celebrate the 500th anniversary of Martin Luther's birth by visiting places associated with Luther in East and West Germany. The group will return to the United States June 3.

Required for participation in a seminar is enrollment in a preseminar course during the second semester of the academic year, which provides the background to help students make the most of their learning experience.

Amateur Talent Sought For '83 State Contest

Minnesota state fair's 11th annual search for top amateur entertainers is underway with the 1983 state fair amateur talent contest. Contest is open to all amateur performers and will be a featured attraction at the '83 exposition, August 25 through Labor day, September 5.

Grand prize winner in the senior division competition (age 16 and over) will receive $1,000 and a chance to perform at the 1984 state fair. Cash prize of $300 will be awarded to the junior division winner.

Auditions for the contest will be held in July and early August at the state fair bandshell. Winners from county fair amateur talent contests throughout the state will also be eligible.

From the auditions and county fair contests, a total of 175 semi-finalists will be selected to perform during the state fair. Semi-finals will be held the first 11 nights of the fair with winners advancing to the final competition on Labor day.

Entry forms must be submitted along with a $10 entry fee by August 1. Forms are available by writing to: talent contest, Minnesota state fair, St. Paul, MN 55108; phone (612) 642-2218.

Gevorlee Eugene Ford, a tenor from Roseville, won last year's talent contest and will perform evenings at the Bandshell during the '83 exposition with the state fair orchestra.

BSU Plans Writers' Meet July 11 To 22

Upper midwest writer's conference, a workshop annually held at Bemidji state university since 1969 featuring nationally and internationally known authors as instructors and in public readings, will be conducted July 11 to 22.

This year the writers will instruct students in the areas of poetry, fiction, non-fiction, non-fiction memoir writing and writing for children, using both the large group lecture format and individual conferences in which both assigned and personal writing will be discussed.

Authors co-conducting this summer's conference are Philip Dacey, John Solensten, Robert Treuer, Michael True, Patricia Hampl, Judy Delton and John Hassler.

Dacey, a poet who authored "The Boy Under the Bed" and "How I Escaped the Labryinth and Oyher Poems," has written three books of verse and has published poetry in "Esquire," "The Nation" and 100 other magazines. A past Bush foundation and Woodrow Wilson fellow, Dacey has earned numerous awards for his writing.

Fiction writer Solensten is a professor of English at Concordia college in St. Paul and the author of a recently published novel,, "Good Thunder." His short stories have appeared in such magazines as "25 Minnesota Writers" and "Fiction International." The center state in Minneapolis has produced his drama "Watonwan."

True, essayist author of "Homemade Social Justice," is a professor of English and an advisor on the Massachuttes council on the arts. True will teach in the area of non-fiction essay writing.

Delton, a childrens' literature author and lecturer from St. Paul, will teach writing fiction for children. Delton has written numerous books and is the author of the Kitty and Brimhall series of stories about a girl growing up in the Midwest during the 40's.

Hampl will give a class in non-fiction memoir writing. Hempl is the author of "A Romantic Education," a book of autobiographical fiction, and a book of poems, "Women Before an Aquarium." She won the 1981 Houghton Mifflin literary award and has been a Loft-McKnight award winner.

Two writers who will also be at the workshop are novelist Hassler and Treuer, a syndicated columnist and author of "The Tree Farm." Both will give morning short courses but will not be teaching in the regular sessions. Hassler, Treuer and Dacey will each give a public reading during the conference.

For further information, and registration materials, write William Elliott, 393 Hagg-Sauer Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601 phone (218) 755-2813.

Swanson And Storck Serve Reserve Duty

Two owners of radio stations KTRF and KSNR in Thief River Falls are performing military duty in California.

Reserve navy commander Theodore S. Storck is serving as the public affairs officer for the reserve readiness command, region 20, in San Francisco, while reserve marine corps Major Joel Swanson is attending marine corps school at Coronado (San Diego.).

Commander Storck has been in the navy and naval reserve for over 20 years, while Major Swanson has been in the marine corps and reserves for nearly 12 years. Storck is president and general manager of KTRF and KSNR, while Swanson is manager and vice president.

Both will return to Thief River Falls on April 30, at the end of their two weeks military duty.

RETIREMENT PARTY was conducted Friday afternoon for two long-time employees of School District 564. Glenn Espe, principal at Knox and Mark Twain schools, presented memory boxes from faculty and staff to Mrs. Frank (Margaret) Kne and Floyd Borgen. Mrs. Kne has been a secretary in the district at Knox for 25 years and Borgen has been a custodian for 31 years, more than 26 years at Knox. Recognition plaques were also presented from the board of education by clerk Arnt Aune. The gathering for friends and associates at 3 p.m. followed a program presented by the Knox elementary school youngsters earlier in the afternoon.

'U'M Professor To Speak At UMC May 20

Dr. William F. Hueg, Jr., deputy vice president for agriculture at the University of Minnesota, will be the speaker for commencement exercises at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) on Friday, May 20. Graduation ceremonies will be held on the campus mall, weather permitting, at 2 p.m.

Hueg received his B.S. from Cornell university at Ithaca, NY, in 1948. He was graduated with a M.S. in 1954 and a Ph. D. in 1959 from Michigan state university at East Lansing.

Prior to his present appointment with the University, he was a professor of agronomy and director of the experiment station from 1965 to 1975.

Associate in applied science degrees will be conferred upon students graduating fall, winter, and spring quarter of the 1982-83 academic year in the four degree-granting divisions of agriculture, business, home economics, and hotel, restaurant, and institutional management.

Public is welcome to attend the exercises and reception which follows.

Host Families Sought For Youth Exchange

Youth exchange service (YES) is inviting families all over the United States to host an international teenage student from Europe, the Orient, Central America, South America or Mexico.

Students, ranging in age from 15 to 18 years old, are scheduled to arrive next August and attend the 1983-84 school year session. They are carefully screened, have excellent medical insurance coverage and bring their own spending money.

Host families provide room and board and they may receive a monthly $50 tax deduction for the period they host the student. Host family applications are being accepted at this time for best possible matching with compatible students.

For further details write to Youth Exchange Service, P.O. Box 4020, San Clemente, CA 92672 or phone (714) 492-7907.

Brian Berg Finishes Army Training Class

Private Brian E. Berg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Berg of Middle River, has completed a wheeled-vehicle mechanic course at the U.S. army training center, Fort Jackson, SC.

During the course, students were trained to perform maintenance and assist in the repair of automotive vehicles and associated equipment.

Berg is a 1982 graduate of Middle River high school.

Cancer Control By Year 2000 Is Predicted

Speaking at a national science writers seminar in San Diego, CA, recently Dr. Willis Taylor, National American Cancer society president, said that some cancer experts predict control of cancer by the year 2,000.

"As a practicing cancer physician, I've seen a complete turnaround in what we are able to do for cancer patients. We in the cancer community are increasingly optimistic, because many of us think our goal of cancer control is in sight," he said.

Mrs. Larry Poole, crusade chairman of the society's Pennington unit, says that news like this is the motivation for the efforts of the society volunteers who raise the funds for cancer research and cancer education.

During April, she added, the local "Crusaders" will be calling on their neighbors as part of the annual campaign. In addition to requesting support for the society, the volunteers will also be distributing a "Self-Test on Cancer Risks," a pamphlet that she says should be read by every member of every family.

Mrs. Poole said that the residential crusade for the Pennington unit will be held from April 24 through May 15. Cancer crusade captains will be Myrle Carlson, Mrs. Larry Bottem, Mrs. Larry Poole, Mrs. Arnt Aune, Mrs. Gary Wilkinson, Mrs. Cy Glass, Mrs. Herman Dargus, Mrs. Tom Gustafson, Mrs. Ellsworth Jorgenson, Annette Contos, Mrs. Rick Koivisto, Mrs. Jerry Imgrund, Mrs. Jerry Fessler, Mrs. Richard Melby, Mary Lou Rindahl and Bonnie Pederson.

"I urge everyone to read carefully the material that your cancer society volunteer will give you," said Mrs. Poole," as it could be life-saving information for your or a member of your family."

Paul Bortnem Certified As Pro Chaplain

Paul Bortnem

Chaplain Paul Lowell Bortnem of Northwestern hospital services in Thief River Falls was recently certified as a professional chaplain by the college of chaplains at its 37th annual convention in San Diego, CA.

Certification by the college of chaplains is granted only to those persons who meet specified professional standards. The qualifications include college and theological seminary degrees (or the equivalent), one year of experience as a chaplain and a minimum of one year of special clinical pastoral education under supervision.

In addition to those requirements, the applicant submits a series of written essays which reflect an understanding of the role and function of a chaplain, philosophical and theological concepts of ministry in an institution and an integration of the theories of the behavioral sciences and theological position. The final step in the certification process is a face to face interview with a multi-disciplinary committee of persons involved in pastoral care and related health care services.

Approval as a certified chaplain means that Rev. Bortnem has been admitted as a fellow in the college of chaplains. The 1,700-member organization of professional chaplains, representing 30 denominations and all three faith groups, admitted 104 new fellows during the annual convention.

Foot Care Clinic Set

Foot care clinic will be held Thursday from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. in the basement meeting room of the Pennington county courthouse.

Procedure will be a foot soak followed by trimming and filing of the nails. Participants, who will be charged $3, are asked to bring a towel.

Interested persons are encouraged to call 681-5950 for an appointment.

Figures Don't Lie . . . But They Hide The Truth

It may have been the same person who said he could hang anyone in town by circulating a petition who also noted that figures don't lie, but liars figure. The implication is that numbers can be maneuvered to the advantage of the person or group using them.

Such may well be the case with "A Statistical Look at the Economic Status of Women in Minnesota and the United States", published by the women, public policy and development project of the Hubert H. Humphrey institute of public affairs. The numbers may be totally objective but their interpretation may be another matter.

In a recent news release regarding the publication, project director Arvonne Fraser has pointed out a number of statistics gleaned from the report. Pointing out that more women are working outside the home, she notes that women now make up 43 per cent of the total work force and that in Minnesota, women aged 16 to 64 account for more than 60 per cent of the labor force.

That would tend to indicate that in Minnesota there are six women on the job for every four men employed. We doubt that is an accurate statement. It may mean simply that women outnumber men six to four in the 16-64 age group. Just what is meant by the term "labor force" is not explained.

There is still a long way to go before women's salaries are equalized with those of men, and that is generally unfair, given equal responsibilities and productive capabilities. Fraser notes that in 1980 the median income for full-time female workers with college degrees was less than the median income for male high school drop-outs. This would appear to be an injustice.

The publication shows that more and more women are contributing to the family support or are supporting children alone. "Increasingly," Fraser says, "poor families in the state are headed by women. According to the 1980 census, nearly one-fourth of Minnesota households are headed by women; 47.5 per cent of those families with at least one child under six were below the poverty line."

The inference seems to be that somehow society is failing women by creating a situation which forces them into poverty situations. The study apparently doesn't indicate, or at least Fraser didn't point it out, what percentage of all Minnesota households have income below the federally-established poverty line.

Also not indicated is whether the women heading those Minnesota households are doing so by choice, having either established them as individuals or creating them through dissolution of a marriage or partnership arrangement. Increasing divorce rate, which creates separate households for the two partners, automatically increases the number of households headed by women. Most frequently they are the households which the couple previously shared.

Neither is it listed what percentage of those households are supported by public funds, or if the availability of those funds has contributed to the creation of the households headed by women. Statistics, while sometimes interesting, often describe the frame while ignoring the picture.

No Punishment Fits

Have you ever been so enraged over a situation that it left you limp knowing justice could never be done? That is our reaction over an Associated Press article appearing recently in the daily newspapers.

The story involved the death of a three-year-old boy in Boulder, CO, whose lifetime must have been a horror beyond belief. The youngster finally succumbed to the beatings administered by the 22-year-old boyfriend of his admitted prostitute mother — according to the mother's affidavit given to police.

Being held on $100,000 bond for "suspicion of child abuse" is Daniel Arevalo, who allegedly beat the youngster, and when the child wet his pants, Arevalo took his clothes and locked him in a room, naked and crying. In following weeks the beatings became more frequent and more severe.

On December 17 Arevalo began beating the youngster in the morning and on into the afternoon, using a belt with a large buckle and stopping occasionally for five or 10-minute rest periods. The mother said she looked into the bathroom where "she observed Mikey on the floor, crawling around," pinned under Arevalo's foot. He allegedly dragged the limp child through the apartment for more beatings before giving him to the mother, who put the child in bed. Thirty minutes later he was dead.

The body was hidden in a heating vent at the housing project where they lived, then later buried in a muddy ditch. Little Michael was found bound with clothesline and wrapped in a green blanket, two sheets of clear plastic and an old shower curtain. A tiny cross had been placed in his hands.

The tortuous death of this tiny child seems to beg to be avenged. It was no crime of passion, no result of sudden rage. It was a deliberate, unbelievably cruel, sustained attack which was unprovoked and unrelenting. Law in the United States has no punishment befitting such a crime. Justice can never be done. One can only feel deep sorrow for the torment inflicted and wonder at the beastiality of one who would engage in such acts. For sure, he should never be free — ever — to have a chance to do it again.

Slavery Alive And Well

Following editorial is from the Ely Echo:

Three occurrences in three different places last week clearly showed one of the less-mentioned aspects of socialism: slavery.

In Russia, Lydia Vaschshenko was allowed to leave for the free world from the U.S. Embassy where she had been holed up for five years seeking asylum with a number of other members of a religious order who simply wanted to emigrate from Russia. It is against the law to leave Russia. The goverment forbids any personal choice of movement on the grounds that it is not the interst of society. In reality, it is not the interest of whichever politicians are in control. They own you.

In East Germany, two young men risked being shot when they used a cable to slide past the Berlin Wall into West Berlin and freedom. Risked being shot for simply wanting to leave. A lot of people have been shot. In socialist East Germany, the politicans own your body.

The Chinese government went into a flap last week when their ace woman tennis player was granted asylum in the U.S. She slipped away from her guards during a tennis match several months ago and has been trying to get asylum since. The Chinese government, of course, wanted our government to hand her back by force. That is, send our police to pick her up and deliver her back to the people she just left. We don't do that very often. Not since the Emancipation Proclamation issued by Abraham Lincoln well over 100 years ago. The fact that our government fumbled around with it for several months before making a decision is no credit to our fearless leaders. Their problem was that they felt the Chinese politicians might be peeved. Certainly. They lost a piece of their property.

Unfortunately, our government officials never thought to tell the Chinese not to worry. Any of our tennis players, track runners, football players, movie stars, tourists, or anybody else who wants to defect to China, would be allowed to do so. There is nothing to stop them since we don't have to send along police to keep an eye on them all the time. And that could be construed as fair and free trade. Whether the Chinese would buy it or not is problematical, but we should, out of fairness, make the offer.

Now, going back over many of the incidents, current and past, a pattern seems to emerge. Unquestionably, both the socialist governments and those, such as our, have their good points and their bad points. One of their big criticisms has been the emphasis in the U.S. on ownership of property. And this may possibly be the real difference in our systems. In the U.S., the people own property. In the socialist countries, the government owns the people.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Woman in Supermarket: "I think I'll go on a health food diet and eat only natural foods."

Companion: "Not me. At my age I need all the preservatives I can get."

While waiting in the doctor's office, the patient had one of his legs go to sleep. When called to the examining room for the routine blood pressure check, he limped badly on the numbed leg. Appearing minutes later at a brisk pace, he caused two other waiting patients to marvel. "Didn't I tell you," one said to the other, "that he's the best doctor in town."

KEN KESTERKE, president of the Thief River Falls evening Lions club, presented a $120 check to Char Cornelius, special education teacher at Lincoln high school, to assist with expenses for local children to attend the special olympics. Lions raised the money by holding a pancake feed on April 17. Approximately 40 entries from Thief River Falls will be attending the regional competition for the handicapped in Crookston, May 5. If enough funds are raised to cover travel and lodging expenses, some of the children may be able to continue on to state and national competition.

Sparby Says Superfund Act Sets Liability

Who should bear the costs of toxic waste contamination was the main thrust of three and one-half hours of debate in the Minnesota House chambers before the environmental response and liability act was passed on a vote of 97-28.

According to State Representative Wally Sparby, Thief River Falls, the bill is almost the same as that passed by the legislature last year, only to be vetoed by then Governor Al Quie because of its strict liability provisions.

"Again this year a number of I-R legislators offered amendments aimed at weakening the bill, but most of them failed," Sparby said.

"Everyone recognizes there are heavy costs from hazardous waste spills," he added. "The question is who will pay for cleaning up and fairly reimbursing for property damage and personal injury or illness caused by past and future dumping of toxic materials."

This bill clearly places that responsibility on those who benefit financially from producing hazardous products. Its goal is not only to clean up hazardous waste sites in Minnesota, but to prevent future problems by setting strict liability standards on the generators of hazardous substances. It appropriates $5 million to establish a cleanup fund and authorizes taxes on hazardous waste generators to replenish the fund.

Standards of strict liability are imposed so companies most responsible for hazardous waste problems can be held liable both for the costs of cleanup and for damages or injuries suffered by individuals or the environment.

Sparby pointed out that liability exceptions are made for innocent property owners, the application of farm or forestry chemicals, the disposal of pesticide containers (if done properly), or if a hazardous substance is released by an uncontrollable act such as tornado, theft or vandalism.

There is also no liability for garbage haulers, unless they knew they were carrying a hazardous substance, or people transporting hazardous waste unless they selected the disposal facility or disposed of the waste illegally. In addition, there would be no liability if a state of federal government permit for disposal was issued and its provisions followed. One amendment which was adopted provides a limit on the amount of damages municipalities and small businesses will be liable for if they are sued.

"This legislation is long overdue," Sparby commented. "It is time to get at the cleanup of 61 sites already identified in Minnesota. We need these matching state funds to bring in federal money to help in the cleanup. Equally important, this bill gives some recourse to the innocent victims of hazardous waste contamination."

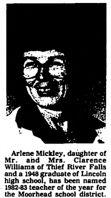
Matt Carlson Is Member Of Angus Ass'n.

Matthew Carlson, Thief River Falls, is a new junior member of the American Angus association, according to the national headquarters in St. Joseph, MO.

Junior members of the association are eligible to register cattle in the American Angus association and take part in association sponsored shows and other national and regional events.

American Angus association is the largest beef registry association in the world, with some 12,000 active junior members and some 26,000 active life members.

LHS Graduate Teacher of Year At Moorhead



Arlene Mickley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Williams of Thief River Falls and a 1948 graduate of Lincoln high school, has been named 1982-83 teacher of the year for the Moorhead school district.

Mrs. Mickley has been credited as instrumental in mainstreaming of profoundly deaf and hearing impaired students into regular kindergarten classes. She teaches kindergarten at the school, holds two bachelor of science degrees and has teaching certificates for elementary and secondary physical education, all secondary sciences, secondary English and language arts, secondary coaching and elementary education with kindergarten certification.

Study Examines Agriculture In 21st Century

Drought-tolerant crops, computer controlled machinery and increased use of crop residues as feed all will be part of farming in the 21st century, according to a study sponsored by the nation's production credit associations (CPA).

These findings are the result of a major research project exploring the future of American agriculture. Among other topics covered are trends in crop production, mechanization, communications and marketing.

According to the study several areas of developing technologies will influence the American farmer by the year 2000. New crop technologies examined in the study included water conservation and irrigation technology, seed treatment, plant growth regulators, new crops and biotechnological crop improvement.

Areas of animal agriculture technology analyzed included transfer, sexing and freezing of embryos; recombinant DNA; twinning; cloning; nutrition and health; confinement systems; and computerized herd management. Technological impacts on dairy and beef cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, and fishing and aquaculture are examined.

Study futher looks at the future evolution of agricultural mechanization of tractors and engines, tillage and planting systems, crop harvesting and storage, use of remote sensing devices and robot farmer technology.

Other sections of the study deal with marketing communications and information management, future trends in agribusiness and quality of rural life.

Along with the future of agriculture, the study focuses on agriculture today and the differences that exist between major agricultural regions. The study divides the country into six regions and examines each region and its relationship to the rest of the nation.

Crime Index Shows Decline During 1982

Serious crime dropped four per cent in 1982 as compared to 1981, according to U.S. attorney general William French Smith. The decrease is the first in any annual period since 1977.

"After sustaining all-time highs in 1980 and 1981, the decline is welcome news," the attorney general said of the preliminary 1982 FBI crime index figures. "Continued emphasis on the fight against crime is essential to progress in the future."

Collectively, the index's violent crimes fell three per cent in volume last year, while the more numerous property crimes were down four per cent. Among the offenses measured, the violent crime of aggravated assault showed the only increase, one per cent. Of the remaining violent crimes, murder and robbery each declined seven per cent, and forcible rape was down five per cent. All property crimes showed decreases. Burglary fell 10 per cent, larceny-theft dropped one per cent, and motor vehicle theft declined three per cent.

"With citizens taking an active part, law enforcement agencies across the country have instituted crime resistance programs," FBI director William H. Webster remarked. "This reported decrease indicates that perhaps those efforts are finally having an impact on the crime problem."

Regionally, the total crime index volume fell seven per cent in the northeastern states, six per cent in the north central states, two per cent in the western states, and one per cent in the southern states. The nation's rural and suburban areas each registered annual decreases of six per cent, while cities with populations over 50,000 recorded a three per cent decline.

Arson, the eighth index crime, was down 12 per cent in 1982 from the 1981 level. When arson was considered in the crime index total, the overall per cent change remained the same, a four per cent decrease.

Kittie Cornell Attends Girl Scout Meet

Seven representatives of Pine to Prairie Girl scout council, which includes 20 counties in northeast North Dakota and 14 counties in northwest Minnesota, attended a national program conference sponsored by Girl scouts of the U.S.A.

Representing this area was Kittie Cornell, Cadette scout leader, association chairman for Thief River Falls, Thief River Falls day camp director and association treasurer.

Both adults and girls attended the April 15 to 17 conference in Denver, CO, with teenaged Cadette and senior Girl scouts making up about 10 per cent of the total participants.

Centered around the theme "We Found a New World", the conference focused on new materials and strategies for effective delivery of the Girl scout program. Opportunities for Girl scout councils to share success stories, ideas and suggestions concerning Girl scout membership were also provided.

Denver program conference was one of eight held during April and May in cities coast to coast. Delegations at this conference represented Girl scout councils in Colorado, Idaho, Kansas, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah, Wyoming and Minnesota.

Becca Messreni Attends DECA National Meet

Rebecca Messreni a Thief River Falls AVTI student left April 25 for Houston, TX, to attend the 23rd annual national DECA career development conference of the distributive education clubs of America.

Messereni is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Radniecki, Oklee. She will be competing in apparel and accessories and is accompanied by her instructor, Dorothy Dodds.

DECA is the only national student organization operating through the nation's schools to attract young people to careers in marketing, merchandising and management. Its purposes are to develop a respect for education which will contribute to occupational competence and to promote understancding and appreciation for the responsibilities of citizenship in our free, competitive enterprise system.

Special feature of the conference will be the presentation of scholarships to a number of outstanding distributive education students for advanced study in marketing, management or distributive education.

Nationally known leaders from the fields of marketing, education and government will speak at the conference and serve as competitive event judges and consultants.

1982 Election Results Book Now Available

Secretary of state's office announced that citizens interested in state-wide precinct results from the 1982 general election can obtain "Minnesota Election Results 1982."

Publication includes precinct totals within legislative districts for legislative, congressional, constitutional officer and U.S. senate candidates. Primary election district and county totals are shown, as well as county-vote totals for constitutional amendments.

State office also has available "Minnesota Elected Officials 1983" which lists county officials, judges, legislators, constitutional officers and U.S. senators and congressmen.

Requests for either publication can be made to Election Division, 180 State Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155, phone (612) 296-2805.

'U'M Librarians Settle Case Of Discrimination

With a record-setting agreement involving nearly one million dollars, 37 women librarians on faculty appointments at the University of Minnesota have settled their sex discrimination complaint over salary before the case went to court.

Complaint of the plaintiffs, who represent 71 per cent of the women librarians on the Twin Cities campus, covers the period since 1972.

Provisions of the settlement require the University to award the plaintiffs:

+ $750,000 for all claims, including back pay, retirement and other benefits, compensatory damages and interest, through June 30;

+ $35,000 to increase salaries in fiscal year 1983-84 and $20,000 more to increase salaries in 1984-85;

+ $100,000 for attorney's fees.

A further provision provides for plaintiffs at the rank of instructor to be promoted to assistant professor on July 1.

The complaint was filed in June of 1981 and in the spring of 1982 a four-member steering committee sought assistance from the Minnesota education association, which has been trying for more than a decade to organize 'U'M faculty. The MEA brought its firm of attorneys into the case.

"In terms of payment to faculty," explains MEA president Donald C. Hill, "this is the largest single payment to claimants under the Rajender consent decree — more than $800,000. It also is the first challenge to the tradition of compensating men more than women."

The Rajender consent decree was the result of a class action lawsuit against the University of Minnesota in which women faculty at the University have been given the opportunity to assert all sex discrimination claims they have arising out of employment going back to 1972.

Complaint was developed by an ad hoc group of faculty women librarians using salary analysis data they had gathered since 1970. Katherine Holum filed the complaint June 1, 1981 on behalf of the women librarians holding faculty appointments.

State Auditor Releases MN County Report

State auditor Arne Carlson, in his annual report detailing revenues, expenditures and debt of counties in Minnesota, notes that county expenditures increased 10.1 per cent from 1980 through 1981 and 49.4 per cent since 1977. Minnesota counties spent a total of $1.39 billion during calendar year 1981.

"The report indicates," Carlson said, "that expenditures have risen by $127.5 million over the previous year. Welfare expenditures show the largest increase going from $560.6 million in 1980 to $650.8 million in 1981, which is a 16.1 per cent increase.

"Welfare payments are the largest single expense accounting for 46.7 per cent of total expenditures in 1981," he said.

"Streets and highways are second with $254.3 million or 18.3 per cent of total expenditures. General government is third, where expenditures rose from $159.4 million in 1980 to $177.2 million in 1981, an increase of 11.1 per cent."

Carlson pointed out that the revenues from state and federal government are the biggest source of county revenues amounting to $812.6 million or 56.1 per cent of their total revenues.

"Property taxes raised to support county services also increased in 1981," Carlson reported. "This total is $419.6 million equaling 28.9 per cent of county revenues or a 7.8 per cent increase since 1980."

Report also includes the counties' total indebtedness which was $182.7 million as of December 31, 1981. This is a 3.5 per cent increase since 1980.

Mike Beedy Attends Guard Orientation

Mike Beedy, a Minnesota army national guard private from Thief River Falls, recently received an orientation to M-60 tank fire power during a weekend basic orientation course at Camp Ripley. Mike is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Beedy.

There were 243 army national guard recruits who attended the weekend course, April 16 to 17, called B-TOC for basic training orientation course. It is designed to acquaint these young Minnesotans with the rigors of active army basic training, which they will attend in the months ahead.

Since the inception of the course, six years ago, more than 4,000 recruits have attended. The two-day orientation is said to have had a profound effect in helping recruits complete basic training. Before BTOC, almost 20 out every 100 recruits did not complete basic. Now, more than 98 per cent of those who attend this weekend session will complete basic because they know what to expect and are psychologically prepared for it.

Minnesota state guard now numbers over 9,300 men and women. The national guard has a dual mission of preparing these troops for mobilization in the event of war and providing service to the state at the call of the Governor.

NW Bell Rate Hike Reduced $33 Million

Minnesota public utilities commission (MPUC) recently reduced Northwestern Bell telephone company's rate increase request by over $33 million. Commission's order allows an increase of approximately $56.5 million.

Northwestern Bell had filed on April 20, 1982, for an increase of almost $90 million. Northwestern Bell previously put approximately $59 million of the requested increase into effect, subject to refund upon the MPUC's final decision.

"This is one of the largest reductions in a rate request that the commission has ever made," commissioner Lillian Warren-Lazenberry stated. Company's rate increase request, third largest in the MPUC's history, would have resulted in a 36.1 per cent rate increase for Northwestern Bell's Minnesota subscribers. The commission's action will result in an overall rate increase of approximately 23 per cent.

In its order, the MPUC also directed Northwestern Bell to continue the optional measured service program that was implemented under the commission's order in Northwestern Bell's last rate case. Rates for optional measured service will be increased by the same percentage as all other local service rates, approximately 23 per cent. Optional measured service allows customers in certain exchanges to pay on a per call basis each month rather than by the traditional method of paying a flat charge for unlimited use.

Commission has also ordered Northwestern Bell to develop a proposal to aid the hearing impaired in obtaining improved telephone service. "The standard telephone really isn't much use to the hearing impaired," commissioner Lazenberry pointed out. "There are alternatives available which can make telephone service accessible, and we think Northwestern Bell needs to do more to make these alternatives available at a reasonable cost to its deaf subscribers. That's why we're ordering Northwestern Bell to bring us a proposal," she continued.

MPUC reduced the overall rate of return that was requested by Northwestern Bell. "This is one of the major reasons $33 million of the request was denied," Lazenberry explained. "Northwestern Bell had requested an allowed rate of return on common equity of at least 17.5 per cent. We felt that such a large return to shareholders just wasn't warranted. The 14.99 per cent that the commission is allowing is much more in line with both the company's need to attract capital as well as the customers' needs for reasonable rates." Overall allowed rate of return to Northwestern Bell was set at 12.02 per cent.

Northwestern Bell has 30 days to file its revised rate schedules and a refund plan as a result of action by the MPUC.

Northwestern Bell is Minnesota's largest telephone company serving approximate 1.3 million subscribers in 128 Minnesota communities.

NCC Grads Receive MSU Scholarships

Julie Konickson, Marty Semanko and Gary Ulrich, all graduates of Lincoln high school and transfer students from Northland community college, have been awarded community college scholarships by Moorhead state university.

Established by the MSU faculty, foundation and alumni association, the scholarships, equivalent to about a half year's tuition, are reserved for students demonstrating high academic ability.

LHS To Host Tournament

Plans are underway to stage an eight-team holiday high school basketball tournament in Thief River Falls next winter.

Lincoln high school athletic director Russ Smith is trying to finalize plans that will feature Thief River Falls, Mahnomen, Fertile-Beltrami, Argyle, Roseau, Marshall County Central, Kennedy and Middle River together for a tournament here.

Games would be played Tues., Dec. 27; Thurs., Dec. 29; and Sat., Dec. 30. There would be an afternoon and evening session each day as the tournament format includes championship and consolation round brackets.

Doors were opened for the tournament idea when the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) approved a 20-game basketball schedule for high school teams beginning in 1983-84, with the stipulation that the two additional games must be part of a tournament.

Schools may add a four-team tournament for the two-additional games, or they can stage an eight-team tournament by dropping their regular scheduled slate of games to 17 from the current 18.

Thief River Falls will drop Grafton from its 1983-84 schedule to get down to the 17-game limit to accomodate the three games the Prowlers will play in their holiday tournament.

It was decided when the tournament idea was being formed that the Prowlers would try to bring in area Class A schools they might not normally face instead of paring up against the larger schools like Bemidji, Crookston and East Grand Forks that they play twice during the course of the regular season.

They were able to accomplish their goals despite little time to collect teams, most of them having already completed their schedules.

Smith is very enthusiastic about the tournament idea.

"I think it's a great idea. I think it's going to be an excellent thing," he said.

One of the benefits, indicated Smith, was to give a struggling Thief River Falls program an opportunity to be involved in tournament atmosphere. Since being classified AA for the 1975-76 season, Thief River Falls' post-season playoff experiences have been limited to just one game six of the eight years, including the last four when one-game trips to Moorhead represented the Prowlers' tournament participation.

Only in 1978 and 1979 under a different format have the Prowlers been able to win a post-season game. At that time they divided Region 8AA into four sub-regions. Thief River Falls beat East Grand Forks 65-53 and lost to Bemidji 72-46 in the 1978 Sub-Region 4 tournament. The following year they collected their only Class AA hardware when they beat Bemidji 60-56 and out-scored Crookston 72-69 for the Sub-Region 4 title before losing to St. Cloud Tech 67-45 in the Region 8AA semifinals.

"I think this (holiday) tournament will give the players and their parents a taste of tournament atmosphere," explained Smith. "I think that's important. The kids have to learn how to play under tournament conditions. I think it's a very positive step for our basketball program."

"And," added Smith, "I can't help but think it'll bring a few dollars into the community from the out-of-town fans." He's hoping to work out an arrangement where proceeds from the tournament could be used to help fund programs that are earmarked for budget cuts unless financed outside the school district bank balance.

Because the games would double as conference-counting contests, a pair of first-round tournament match-ups here necessitate the pairing of Mahnomen vs. Fertile-Beltrami and Roseau vs. Marshall County Central. Argyle, Kennedy, Middle River and Thief River Falls would then somehow be matched up in the other opening round quarterfinals on Dec. 27. The Dec. 29 games would feature the consolation and championship round semifinals. Dec. 30 games would include the seventh place game; a consolation championship game; a third place game; and the championship game.

Meanwhile, the Lincoln high school girls basketball team will be involved in a four-team holiday tournament at Newfolden Dec. 22-23. The Prowlers will join Strandquist, Grygla and host Marshall County Central in that one.

THIEF RIVER FALLS pitchers Kerry Wollin (left) and Brian Johnston combined on a no-hitter Thursday as the Prowlers opened their 1983 high school baseball season with an 11-1 victory over Red Lake Falls. Wollin, a senior, went the first three innings while Johnston, a junior, pitched the final three in the shortened 10-run rule game. The two combined for 13 strike-outs. Pleasant weather and a fairgrounds diamond that was in superb early-season condition greeted the two teams for their season openers. The Prowlers, who play at Roseau Tuesday and at Crookston Thursday, host Fergus Falls Saturday.

Wollin, Johnston Combine For No-Hitter In Prowlers' Opener

Pitchers Kerry Wollin and Brian Johnston combined on a no-hitter Thursday as Thief River Falls opened its 1983 high school baseball season with an 11-1 six-inning win over Red Lake Falls on the fairgrounds diamond here.

Wollin, as prescribed beforehand by Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell, went the first three innings before giving way to Johnston. Both are good-sized righthanders. Wollin struggled at times, mixing four walks and five full-count situations with seven strike-outs. Johnston was a little sharper with six strike-outs and no walks. He fanned the side in the sixth.

Despite the no-hitter, it wasn't a particularly exciting game. It was slow, and after a four-run Thief River Falls second inning, the outcome never seemed in doubt. Red Lake Falls batters weren't very aggressive at the plate, never getting a ball out of the Thief River Falls infield during the two-hour affair played under surprisingly pleasant weather for a baseball opener in northwestern Minnesota.

There were two fine defensive plays at second base by the Prowlers that preserved the no-hitter. First, Ryan Bakke leaped high in the air to knock down a drivey by Rich Majeres in the third inning, getting Gary LaChance, who had opened the inning with a walk, on a force-out at second on the play. Then in the fourth, Tim Bottem, who had moved from shortstop to second, went far to his left to snare a drive hit by Doug Hoselton that was ticketed for a single into right.

Thief River Falls, meanwhile, scored a first inning run when Jim Hallamek was hit by a pitch with two out. He stole second and scored when Johnston, who opened the game at third base, drilled a single into left field.

In Thief River Falls' four-run second inning there were four walks, three wild pitches and an error to go along with a pair of base hits — a single by Bakke to start it and a single by Rick Spong that drove in two runs.

Bakke collected his second single of the day to start the third and scored on a two-out single to left by Gary Cornell for a 6-1 game. Wollin had an RBI double into right-center field in the fourth and scored himself on a bloop single into short right by Alan Ness.

Final three Thief River Falls runs crossed the plate in the sixth to end the game on the ten-run rule as a pair of Red Lake Falls errors and a single by Bill Benedict loaded the bases with nobody out. Another error on a ball hit through the shortstop by Wollin scored two runs and a fielder's choice ground ball hit by Jeff Milender produced an RBI and the game-ending run.

"I'm pleased with our overall play," mentioned Cornell.

Red Lake Falls' lone run came in the third on a double steal. Majeres had reached base on a fielder's choice, stole second and went to third on a two-out throwing error by Johnston at third on a ball hit by Mark Wright. As Wright avoided the tag at second base on a steal attempt, Majeres broke for the plate on a delayed steal of home for the run.

Thief River Falls will visit Roseau Tuesday for a 4:30 p.m. game and will be at Crookston for a 4 o'clock contest. The Prowlers host Fergus Falls Saturday in a doubleheader that starts at 12-noon.

Youth Firearms Program Starts Tuesday Night

First session of the spring youth firearms safety class will be held Tuesday beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the basement meeting room of the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

Open to boys and girls who are at least 12-year-old, the program will consist of movies, lectures and demonstrations in areas of wildlife recognition, wildlife management, survival and first aid, as well as the safe handling of firearms.

Classes will be held Tues., April 26; Thurs., April 28; Tues., May 3; Wed., May 4; and Fri., May 6, with a special field day planned Sat., May 7, at 10 a.m. at the Sportsmen's Club.

Registration fee is $4 and should be brought to the first session.

Program director Irving Swanson reminds youngsters that youths ages 12-15 must have a firearms safety certificate in order to hunt in Minnesota.

Wildlife Meet Tuesday At Grygla Office

Annual wildlife meeting of the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district will be conducted Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the district office in Grygla.

At this meeting public agencies present their plans for development or management for the coming year, according to Ralph Rundell, soil conservation technician with the district.

"This is a good time to discuss the effects these plans may have on local lands and landowners," Rundell said.

Moose Season Is Planned For 1983

A total of 5,184 hunters will be able to participate in Minnesota's 1983 moose season, the Department of Natural Resources announced.

As in previous season, applications for permits must be made in hunting parties of four. A computerized drawing will select 1,296 hunting parties for this year's season.

Those who were issued licenses for the 1973 season, or any season since that year, are not eligible to apply for this year's hunt. However, hunters who took part in the 1971 hunt will be eligible this year.

Restriction is based on a law change that requires successful applicants to sit out five seasons rather than two.

Anyone planning to apply for the moose hunt who does not have a driver's license should apply immediately for an identification card from the Minnesota Department of Public Safety, which issues driver's licenses. A driver's license number or the Minnesota identification number is required on moose hunt applications, just as it is for bear and antlerless deer permits.

Application forms and instructions on how to apply for the drawing are expected to be available from county auditor's offices and most license agents sometime early in May.

Deadline for applying for the drawing is June 15. Only Minnesota residents are eligible.

Wildlife officials said applicants for the drawing should read the instructions carefully because improperly completed applications will be rejected from the drawing without notice.

They said particular attention should be given to the various opening dates and the special restrictions that apply in the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness (BWCAW) hunt zones and the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge.

Moose hunting zones are located in two areas, one in northwestern Minnesota and the other in the northeast. All zones will open to hunting on Oct. 8 except Zone 2 (the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge), which will open Dec. 3.

By law, 20 per cent of the permits will be allotted to owners or operators on agricultural or grazing lands in the northwestern hunting zones.

License fee is $140 per party of four.

Spartans Take Twinbill Games

Sky-high after a season-opening sweep at Brainerd the previous weekend, the Northland community college baseball team was brought back to earth Wednesday with a tough-luck doubleheader loss at Fergus Falls.

Fergus Falls won the opener 3-2 and took the nightcap 5-2 to at least temporarily take over first place in the Northwest Division with a 3-1 record. Northland fell into a second place tie with the University of Minnesota-Crookston at 2-2 heading into a scheduled Saturday doubleheader against the Trojans.

Fergus Falls 3

Fergus Falls spotted Northland a quick 2-0 first inning lead, but came back to tie things 2-2 in the sixth and then won the doubleheader opener 3-2 with two out in the bottom of the seventh inning.

In Northland's first inning, Kevin Sanders singled and Todd Bergland walked, followed by RBI singles by Dave Kays and Bob Rockwood. The Northmen could have done more damage, though, as they left the bases loaded.

Fergus Falls scored a third inning run on a two-out RBI triple by Tom Pilgrim. The Spartans tied it in the fifth when Tony Ness and Scott Kaehler hit back-to-back singles to put runners on first and third. Kaehler stole second and Ness scored on a throwing error on the play.

In Fergus Falls' game-winning seventh, Al Barry drew a lead-off walk, moved to third on a pair of infield ground-outs and scored on second baseman Mark Lundin's error.

Fergus Falls did all of its damage in the third inning en route to a 5-2 second game victory and a doubleheader sweep.

Three base hits, three walks, an error and three stolen bases all led to a five-run third for the winners.

Northland scored twice in the fifth on a two-run double by Mark Lundin that scored Ladd Bjugson, who had singled, and Brent Walton, who drew a walk.

Prowlers Run In Track Meet At Grand Forks

Grand Forks Red River was an easy winner Saturday in the annual Service Clubs invitational high school track meet at Cushman Field in Grand Forks.

Red River finished with 238 points, followed by Grand Forks Central 86, Winnipeg Grant Park 44, Cass Valley North 37, Grafton 34, Crookston 30, Hillsboro 28, Climax 28, Lairmore 14, Thief River Falls 9, East Grand Forks 4, West Fargo 4 and Ada 2.

"It was a darn good meet," explained Thief River Falls coach Tim Olson. "We scored where we thought we would score. Our times are coming down."

Thief River Falls points came from four fifth place finishes and a sixth place.

Fifth places were recorded by Lon Aune, 4:42.9 in the 1600 meters and 10:35.5 in the 3200 meters; Kevin Kezar, 2:07.09 in the 800 meters; and 3200 meter relay team of Aune, Kezar, Randy Swenson and Dave Dalager in 8:59.92.

Sixth place came from the 800 meter relay team of Bill LeTourneau, Dan Iverson, Scott Jorstad and Scott Fowler in 1:40.74.

It was Thief River Falls' second meet of the 1983 season and their first venture outdoors. The Prowlers will visit Crookston Tuesday for a 4 p.m. University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) invitational.

Lincoln high school girls track team, idle since April 14, was scheduled to run at Detroit Lakes today (Monday) at 3:45 p.m.

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA-Crookston base runner Greg Skibicki (12) elected to go in standing up and as a result was nearly tagged out by Northland community college second baseman Mark Lundin on a stolen base attempt in the sixth inning of Saturday's Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) baseball doubleheader nightcap. Northland shortstop Scott McKeever backed up the play. The Northmen swept the rival Trojans 5-3, 6-3 under sunny Thief River Falls skies to move into a first place tie in the four-team MCCC Northwest Division standings with Fergus Falls.

College Baseball Doubleheader Saturday . . .

Northmen Sweep Trojans To Clinch Region Playoff Berth

A HIGH THROW forced University of Minnesota-Crookston second baseman Jim Roste to go high in the air for the ball while Northland community college runner Kevin Sanders (14) went in with a stolen base during Saturday's baseball action in Thief River Falls. Shortstop Kent Usgaard backed-up the play in the first inning of the doubleheader nightcap. The Northmen won both games to clinich a spot in the 1983 Region 13 playoffs 5-3 and 6-3.

Northland community college made sports history Saturday by sweeping a Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) baseball doubleheader from rival University of Minnesota-Crookston by near identical 5-3, 6-3 scores under near perfect weather conditions in Thief River Falls.

By virtue of the sweep the Northmen for the first time in their 11-year baseball history qualified for the Region 13 playoffs. And to make things even sweeter, Northland will be the host team for the six-team event Friday, May 13, featuring teams from Minnesota, North Dakota and Wisconsin. That winner will move on to one of eight district tournaments across the country that will ultimately decide the NJCAA national tournament participants.

Northland got the tournament berth based upon the standings halfway through the 1983 baseball race in the Northwest Division — the host site for the tournament this year based upon a rotating schedule. With a Northland sweep over UMC, combined with a Fergus Falls-Brainerd split the same afternoon, the current Northwest Division standings show the Northmen and Spartans both 4-2, with the Trojans and Red Raiders both 2-4.

However, it was known beforehand that Fergus Falls had declined an opportunity to be a Region 13 entry this spring, leaving Northland and UMC to battle it out for the right to host the tournament. A sweep, like the Northmen got, got the tournament for the winners. A split would have necessitated a one-game, tie-breaking playoff game.

"We knew we could do it," said elated Northland coach Chet Engelman after the two wins. "The kids played well."

Region tournament was uppermost in the minds of the Northmen, admitted Engelman, even though Northland realistically doesn't stand much of a chance to advance far under the NJCAA playoff format.

"We're looking at it as a chance to play two more baseball games against two good baseball teams," explained Engelman.

Besides, the sweep kept Northland right in the thick of the Northwest Division race, and the winner will be the host team for the MCCC state tournament Saturday, May 28. The Northmen have Northwest Division-counting doubleheaders left with each of the teams, including a pair of games here Saturday vs. Brainerd.

Freshman lefthander Kevin Sanders shut down most of the University of Minnesota-Crookston batters as the Thief River Falls pitcher led Northland to a 5-3 first game victory.

Only third baseman Kent Usgaard gave Sanders problems, collecting three of the six UMC hits, including a two-run home run in the top of the seventh to make the final score look closer than what it really was.

Sanders struck out nine and walked three — all three free passes coming in the final two innings.

Northland scored a first inning run when Scott McKeever reached base on an error, stole second and came home on Sanders' long single to right-center field.

UMC had a short-lived second inning tie when Todd Peterson beat out an infield single, stole second and scored on a two-out double into the right-center gap by Jim Johnson.

Northland answered with two runs in the bottom of the inning after two were out. Jeff Cwikla walked and moved up on an error on a pick-off play. Mark Lundin came through with an RBI double to center, scoring himself on a bloop single to short right by McKeever.

That was all the scoring until the sixth when Brent Walton drew a one-out walk and scored on a double by Cwikla to deep right-center. McKeever singled to left-center for the second run.

Northland completed the sweep with a 6-3 come-from-behind second game victory despite the fact that Northland was 0-for-10 through its first three spots in the batting order.

An error and a walk preceded RBI hits by Greg Skibicki and Kent Usgaard as UMC opened with a 2-0 second inning lead.

Northland went ahead, though, with a four-run fourth on four base hits — two of them the infield variety, and another that popped out of an outfielder's glove, two wild pitches and two errors. A single by Jeff Cwikla scored a run and an error at shortstop on a ball hit by Keith Huerd brought in two. Mark Lundin completed a head-first slide into first base to beat out an infield hit that also had an error tagged onto it for another run.

UMC cut the margin to 4-3 in the top of the sixth on an error and an RBI single just inside the bag at first by Skibicki.

But Northland opened up breathing room in the bottom of the inning as Huerd singled and Lundin drilled a line-drive home run just over the fence in right-center that UMC argued bounced over for what they thought should have been a ground-rule double.

Freshman righthander Bob Rockwood of Fargo gave Northland its second complete-game pitching performance, overcoming some early trouble to pitch well down the stretch.

Bowler Of The Year Finals Held Sunday

Bowler of the Year tournament was held Saturday and Sunday at the Family Bowl in Thief River Falls.

Top five bowlers in both the men's and women's divisions rolled off in the stepladder finals Sunday, with Bob Larson and Arlene Walseth emerging as the winners.

Larson averaged 209 in qualifying, including a 280 single game. His high three games were 280-234-212 after posting a league average of 192.

Walseth averaged 176 scratch in qualifying with high games of 197-190-181. Her league average was 131.

Men's Division

Sunday finals — Jim Bonds def. Rick Nelson 166-148; Bill Blankenfeld def. Jim Bonds 169-168; Ken Wagner def. Bill Blankenfeld 197-153; Bob Larson def. Kent Wagner 203-183.

Women's Division

Six-game qualifying scores — Arlene Walseth 1379, Debbie Paulson 1351, Dollie Newland 1221, Karen Peterson 1205, Dorothy Larson 1204, Denae Blawat 1168, Fay Reynolds 1165, Barb Nelvik 1161, Arlene Kotrba, 1149, Sheila Bonds 1142.

Sunday finals — Dorothy Larson def. Karen Peterson 152-125; Dollie Newland def. Dorothy Larson 165-156; Dollie Newland def. Debbie Paulson 203-181; Arlene Walseth def. Dollie Newland 193-169.

Northwomen Lose To Brainerd Twice

Brainerd swept Northland 6-1 and 7-5 Friday in a Northwest Division community college women's softball doubleheader played in Thief River Falls.

It was the second doubleheader loss in two season-opening starts for the Northwomen, who lost a pair to Fergus Falls a week earlier, although Northland coach Deb Jacobson seemed satisfied with the efforts by the Northwomen.

"They were two well-played games," she reported. "Brainered has two excellent pitchers. They gave us a few problems that first game. But we had to make our minds up in the second game to be hitters."

Jacobson was most pleased with the team's play on defense. "There was some good defense on both sides. Gwen Nylen did a good job at third, as did Kim Phillips in left field."

Northland will try to break into the Northwest Division win column Wednesday in a 3 p.m. doubleheader at the University of Minnesota-Crookston. The Northwoman will be at Brainerd Saturday for a 1 p.m. twinbill.

Northland 1

Brainerd pitcher Barb Thompson hurled a two-hitter, striking out eight and walking only one as the Red Raiders beat Northland 6-1 in the first half of the doubleheader.

Northland's only offense came in the fourth inning when Marlys Huot doubled, reached third on a passed ball and scored on a single by Kim Dehaan.

Brainerd, meanwhile, opened with a two-run singles by Sue Ann Gaebel in the first and third innings, then added RBI singles by Trudee Preimesberg and Becky Bernstettee in the fifth and sixth as the winners collected nine base hits.

There were only two errors in the game — one on each side.

Brainerd 7
Northland 5

Northland bats came alive in the second game, staking the Northwomen to a three-run first inning, but they wound up losing just the same, 7-5.

In the first, Donna Stewart reached base on an error and Lori Bulzomi singled. Marlys Huot came through with a two-run double and Kim Dehaan added an RBI single.

Northland went up 4-2 in the fourth on an RBI single by Gwen Nylen, scoring Kim Phillips, who had walked and stole second.

Brainerd tied it with a two-run fifth inning single by Trudee Preimesberg and went ahead 6-4 in the sixth on a pair of errors.

Northland pulled within 6-5 in the bottom of the sixth on an RBI single by Huot, scoring Cindy Olson, who reached base on a fielder's choice and moved up on a walk issued to Stewart.

But Brainerd added an insurance run in the seventh on an RBI single by Barb Smeija.

Brainerd had a 9-8 base hit edge. The two teams divided six errors. Preimesberg was the winning pitcher, striking out four and walking two. Huot took the loss.

DNR hotline

1. Will cross country skiers have to pay a license fee to use state trails next year?

Cross country trail maintenance cost the state about $200,000 this year. In the past, a portion of the fees collected from snowmobilers helped to maintain ski trails. Legislature discontinued that practice this year. So, future maintenance revenue will have to come from one of two sources, general tax funds or user fees. Many skiers supported the user fee idea and a bill to that effect has been proposed. The proposed fee is $5 a year or $1 for a two-day sticker. A decision on that bill is expected to be made around the end of May. — Butch Belcher, Regional Trails, Coordinator.

2. Can I still order tree seedlings from the Department of Natural Resources?

Seedling orders are accepted between September 1 and March 15. Order early to make sure you get the type and quantity of species that you need. Fall orders usually arrive by May 15. This year only, seedlings can be purchased starting the second week of May. They will have to be picked up and paid for in person — no mail orders. This special ordering date is because of a surplus in some species. — Sue Brokl, Private Forest Management, Forester.

3. When does the campground open in Itasca State Park?

You can use state park campgrounds all year around. Itasca State Park keeps one of its two campgrounds open during the winter. Shower facilities open as soon as the ground thaws. In Itasca, this is usually between May 1 and May 15 — Bryce Anderson, Regional Naturalist.

Itasca Park

Itasca state park has received a "diamond rating" from the American Automobile Association in their 1983 tour guide. The highest rating given by the AAA, a diamond rating is given for exceptional attractions for visitors when traveling in a specific area of the state.

Birthplace of the historical headwaters of the Mississippi, Itasca state park is visited by over one-half million people each year. This year, park officials expect more people than ever to enjoy the towering pines, clean lakes, large campgrounds, extensive trails and variety of interpretive activities.

Douglas Lodge, built in 1905, provides rustic cabins and dining as it has for over 75 years.

Telephone and mail reservations are now being accepted by the park for accommodations at Douglas Lodge, Nicollet Court, Club House and cabins. Campsite reservations can be made only be telephone or in person.

Lodging or campsites may be reserved from Memorial Day weekend through the operating season. Campsite reservations can be made no more than 15 days before arrival date.

Additional information on campsites and lodging can be obtained by writing: Itasca State Park, Lake Itasca, MN 56460.

Lodging reservations can be made by calling 218-266-3656.

For campsite reservations call 218-266-3655, but not more than 15 days before arrival.

DNR Arrests

Minnesota conservation officers made 13 arrests during March based on information supplied through the Turn In Poachers (TIP) program, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

Rewards given those who supplied information leading to arrests amounted to $2,100 during the month.

Most of the arrests were for violations of the deer hunting and fishing regulations and more than half were in the DNR's central region, headquartered in Brainerd.

A total of 54 arrests have been made through the TIP program since the first of the year.

Walleye Management

Despite intensive walleye fingerling stocking in Minnesota lakes over the past 30 years, some anglers express dissatisfaction with walleye fishing. Small average size of walleyes in the catch is frequently of greater disappointment than reduced numbers caught.

While a smaller average size must be accepted as an inevitable result of intensive harvest, say fisheries specialists, there is some indication that a preponderance of slow-growing male walleye among stocked fingerlings may contribute to a reduced size of walleye in the catch.

Investigations by the DNR during the 1960's indicated that the environment for walleyes in DNR rearing ponds sometimes favored production of males rather than the faster-growing female fish. Fingerling samples from natural walleye lakes were near the expected 50:50 sex ration but samples of pond-reared walleye averaged 61 per cent males and ranged to 85-90 per cent males in some pond collections.

Further investigation of sex reversal of walleye is in the planning stage. If sperm from a male walleye that is a genetic female is used to fertilize normal walleye eggs, say biologists, the resulting young will be 100 per cent genetic females.

Rearing of these fry in the proper pond environment will produce all female fish. After the third year of life females grow much more rapidly than males and constitute virtually all walleyes of trophy size.

DNR Fish Stolen

Anglers will be denied an opportunity to catch an as yet undetermined number of rainbow trout in northeastern Minnesota during the coming years due to acts of vandalism and theft committed recently at the DNR's French River Hatchery north of Duluth.

Officials said that thieves caused several hundred dollars in damage to a security fence surrounding the hatchery, made off with a number of five to six inch size trout and left some other fish in a mutilated condition which had to be destroyed.

Anyone with information concerning the crime is asked to contact the Department of Natural Resources through the Turn In Poachers (TIP) hotline. The number is (toll free) 1-800-652-9093.

Cash rewards are paid and anonymity is guaranteed to persons who provide the DNR with information leading to the arrest of game and fish law violators.

Wildlife Programs Aided By Funding

Calling the American sportsman "the financial backbone of state fish and wildlife management programs," Interior Secretary James Watt announced that ongoing federal aid programs for fish and wildlife restoration have turned over more than $1.5 billion to the states and territories since these grant projects first began.

Funds are derived from special excise taxes paid by sportsmen on hunting and fishing equipment.

Watt's summation of the totals for these programs, popularly known as the "Dingell-Johnson" and "Pittman-Robertson" programs, came as he announced an additional $57.8 million in funds for the states and territories for the 1983 fiscal year. This amount is the second installment in the 1983 allocation and brings to $139.8 million the total turned over this year to the 50 States, Puerto Rico, Gaum, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa and the Mariana Islands.

"Hundreds of fish and wildlife restoration projects have been supported by state conservation agencies with federal aid money through the years," Watt said. "Their fish and game agencies have made significant progress in the management of game species with the tax money that the American sportsman provides annually. Over the years, no two states have had quite the same management needs and no two states have spent their money exactly alike. That's one of the program's strongest assets — the flexibility it allows the states and territories to use their share of these tax receipts wherever the need is greatest."

Among the many state projects planned with 1983 federal aid funds, for instance, Ohio intends to study the yellow perch in Lake Erie, while New Mexico will develop harvest recommendations for big game species such as Barbary sheep, javelina and wild turkey. Connecticut proposes to acquire 421 acres of upland wildlife habitat, including a 107-acre lake for public recreation. Virginia plans to build boating access acres for fisherman in various parts of the state and Alaska will undertake studies of salmon and trout distribution and migration in its lakes and streams.

Of the 1983 total announced, $32.7 million are for fish restoration, $88.2 million for wildlife restoration and $18.8 million for hunter education (a part of the "Pittman-Robertson" program).

Federal aid funds are made avilable to the states and territories in two annual apportionments as tax receipts become available at the Treasury Department. For 1983, a preliminary apportionment of $82 million was made in September 1982.

Fish restoration funds come from a 10 per cent excise tax on fishing rods, reels, creels, and artificial baits, lures and flies. Their distribution is based on a formula that consideres the number of fishing license holders and the land area of each state, including coastal and Great Lakes waters. State agencies use these funds to buy land and water areas for development and rehabilititation, for fishing access sites and facilities, and for fishery management research.

Funds for wildlife restoration and hunter safety education programs come from an 11 per cent excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition, a 10 per cent tax on handguns and an 11 per cent tax on archery equipment. Distribution of wildlife restoration funds is based on a formula that takes into account the number of hunting license holders and the land area of each state. The money may be used to acquire, develop and manage wildlife habitat, and for wildlife management research. Hunter education funds, distributed on the basis of each state's relative population, may be used by state wildlife agencies for hunter safety programs, including the construction, operation, and maintenance of public target ranges.

"Dingell-Johnson" and "Pittman - Robertson" programs first began apportioning excise tax receipts to the states in 1952 and 1939, respectively. The attached tables show the fiscal year 1983 distribution of funds by state.

Final apportionment for "Dingell-Johnson" federal aid in fish restoration, fiscal year 1983: Alabama $540,262; Alaska $1,639,000; Arizona $707,281; Arkansas $564,564; California $1,639,000; Colorado $843,469; Connecticut $327,800; Delaware $327,800; Florida $663,744; Georgia $667,870; Hawaii $327,800; Idaho $547,969; Illinois $713,180; Indiana $516,696; Iowa $498,476; Kansas $501,658; Kentucky $536,229; Louisiana $503,860; Maine $327,800; Maryland $327,800; Massachusetts $327,800; Michigan $1,242,445; Minnesota $1,260,520; Mississippi $439,022; Missouri $810,300; Montana $745,460; Nebraska $420,146; Nevada $509,497; New Hampshire $327,800; New Jersey $327,800; New Mexico $592,662; New York $775,646; North Carolina $493,992; North Dakota $358,959; Ohio $790,999; Oklahoma $629,121; Oregon $812,487; Pennsylvania $822,554; Rhode Island $327,800; South Carolina $395,013; South Dakota $385,421; Tennessee $583,759; Texas $1,639,000; Utah $564,748; Vermont 327,800; Virginia $501,719; Washington $828,781; West Virginia $327,800; Wisconsin $1,172,339; Wyoming $524,484; Guam $109,267; Puerto Rico $327,800; Virgin Islands $109,267; American Samoa $109,267; Mariana Islands $109,267.

Final apportionment for "Pittman-Robertson" federal aid in wildlife restoration and hunter safety, fiscal year 1983: Alabama $1,943,852; Alaska $4,600,200; Arizona $2,395,725; Arkansas $1,867,565; California $4,147,447; Colorado $2,628,293; Connecticut $805,235; Delaware $629,400; Florida $2,025,992; Georgia $2,360,158; Hawaii $629,400; Idaho $2,000,159; Illinois $2,179,659; Indiana $1,908,884; Iowa $1,881,711; Kansas $2,016,800; Kentucky $1,764,271; Louisiana $2,155,101; Maine $1,212,357; Maryland $1,061,777; Massachusetts $1,005,800; Michigan $4,193,899; Minnesota $2,951,643; Mississippi $1,689,569; Missouri $2,711,687; Montana $2,777,313; Nebraska $1,718,986; Nevada $1,859,280; New Hampshire $629,400; New Jersey $1,032,910; New Mexico $2,248,353; New York $3,164,669; North Carolina $2,152,975; North Dakota $1,414,641; Ohio $2,327,255; Oklahoma $2,112,308; Oregon $2,688,041; Pennsylvania $4,427,270; Rhode Island $629,400; South Carolina $1,341,326; South Dakota $1,660,642; Tennessee $2,555,400; Texas $4,976,600; Utah $1,963,633; Vermont $642,911; Virginia $2,237,646; Washington $2,350,070; West Virginia $1,323,946; Wisconsin $3,159,733; Wyoming $2,016,307; Guam $147,067; Puerto Rico $441,200; Virgin Islands $147,067; Mariana Islands $147,067.

Wood Duck House Plans Explained

(Editor's note: this is the fifth of a six-part series of feature stories supplied by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources on how to build bird houses for a variety of Minnesota's favorite birds. Articles are written by Carrol L. Henderson, DNR nongame wildlife supervisor.)

Wood ducks, common goldeneyes and hooded mergansers are not nongame species, but no series on birdhouses would be complete without reference to the ever-popular wood duck boxes.

Wood ducks have made a remarkable recovery in Minnesota during the past 20 years. They continue to amaze people by nesting in urban areas that certainly don't resemble typical "duck habitat." An additional consideration in northern Minnesota is that the traditional wood duck box will also be used by the beautiful hooded merganser and the common goldeneye.

Hooded merganser and common goldeneye nest primarily in the forested region of Minnesota which includes Cass, Beltrami, Itasca, Koochiching, Lake of the Woods, St. Louis, Lake and Cook counties. They nest along the larger lakes and rivers of this region. Wood duck is a state-wide resident, but is scare in the Red River Valley and in the northeast.

Entrance hole should be an oval three inches high and four inches wide for the wood duck and hooded merganser. For the larger common goldeneye, the hole should be 3½ inches high and 4½ inches wide.

The hole should be centered 19 inches above the floor. An 18-inch by 3-inch strip of ¼-inch mesh-hardware cloth should be cut out and the cut edges folded back. This should be attached inside the box under the entrance to function as a ladder for the newly hatched ducklings. At least three inches of mixed sawdust and wood shavings should be placed in the box to serve as nest material. The roof or a side of the box should be designed so the box can be opened for maintenance.

House should be constructed of cedar, cypress, or other weather-resistent lumber. It should not be painted, stained or creosoted. Eleven feet of 1-inch by 12-inch rough lumber are required for one duck box.

Best post for a duck box is a 16-foot-long, 4-inch by 4-inch cypress, cedar or preservative-treated wood. Boxes placed in trees invite predation by raccoons unless the trees can be made predator proof. Attach the box to the tree with a lag screw and a toe-nailed spike. Wood duck boxes in trees will be more successful if placed at a height of 20 to 25 feet.

Boxes over water should be about 6 to 8 feet above the water surface. If the water level of the site varies, the predator shield should be adjusted to remain about three feet above high water level.

One type of effective predator guard for the 4-inch by 4-inch post is a used, offset aluminum printing plate from a newspaper office. Just nail the aluminum sheet lengthwise around the post a couple feet under the nest. A 3-foot diameter conical predator guard of 26-guage sheet metal can also be used under a duck box.

Another pest that needs to be considered is the starling. To keep starlings from preempting wood duck boxes, attach a tree swallow house with a 2-inch diameter entrance hole to the side of the wood duck box. The starlings apparently prefer the smaller box and, therefore, will not interfere with the use of the larger box by wood ducks.

Many woodies will use boxes far from water, but since the hen must lead the ducklings to water after hatching, houses should be placed so there are no significant obstacles like roads, rain gutters or fences to prevent their movement.

Two duck boxes can be placed on the same post because they do not compete for territories like robins and some other birds.

All annual maintenance on wood duck boxes should be completed by March 1. Boxes should be opened, inspected and more sawdust added to keep it three inches deep. Inside of the box should be sprayed with lysol or other disinfectant to discourage bees and wasps.

Wetlands Loss Concerns Interior Secretary Watt

Saying that "the need to conserve the nation's wetlands has never been more critical," Interior Secretary James Watt has submitted to Congress a draft bill entitled the "Protect Our Wetlands and Duck Resources Act of 1983." The bill would prohibit the use of federal tax dollars under a number of programs to subsidize drainage and development of critical wetlands. Watt said he hoped the bill would "serve as a focal point for the Administration, the Congress, state and local governments, and the private sector to cooperate in developing a comprehensive program to encourage the conservation of these valuable resources."

Approximately half of the 215 million wetland acres that once existed in the United States have disappeared and the continued destruction of these areas poses a serious threat to the nation's environmental and economic well-being, Watt advised the Congress. A recent Interior Department study indicates current losses total 458,000 acres, or 715 square miles, every year. Over 9 million acres, an area nearly twice the size of New Jersey, were lost in the 20-year period from the 1950's to the 1970's covered by the study.

Watt said: "Wetlands are among the most productive lands on earth. They serve as critical nurseries for fish and shellfish, provide breeding and wintering grounds for our nation's migratory bird populations and support countless other plants and animals. Wetlands contribute to the production of a commercial and recreational fishery harvest valued at several billion dollars annually. They also provide millions of Americans with opportunities for recreational activities, provide natural flood and erosion control and help to supply the nation's increasing demand for safe, pure water."

Draft legislation would establish a protect our wetlands and duck resources (POWDR) system, comprised of wetlands that provide significant wildlife, fisheries, or water purification benefits. New federal expenditures or financial assistance for any purpose other than certain specifically excepted activities would be prohibited within the system.

Watt described this approach as similar to that used to protect undeveloped coastal barriers in the recently enacted Coastal Barrier Resources Act. "It makes little sense" for the federal government to conserve wetlands "while federal tax dollars are also being spent to encourage the draining, filling and conversion of these areas to other uses." He said the bill "would not prohibit property owners from building on their property and it would not impose federally mandated duties on state or local governments. Instead, it advances the common sense approach that the destruction of these resource areas important to all Americans should not be underwritten and encouraged with federal tax dollars."

About 8.2 million wetland acres are under federal or state protection in the lower 48 states, Watt noted. Remaining 86.8 million acres are in private ownership.

Other provisions of the bill would bolster current federal and state wetland protection programs by:

+ Amending the Land and Water Conservation Fund to authorize grants to states for wetlands conservation. Proposed grants would be in an amount equal to three times the amount of a given state's annual duck stamp (or similar stamp) revenues dedicated to wetlands conservation.

+ Extending the Wetlands Loan Act (due to expire September 30, 1983) for 10 years and forgiving repayment of advances made under that Act. This would permit the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to continue using revenues from sales of the migratory bird hunting and conservation stamp (federal duck stamp) for acquisition of critical migratory bird habitat. Unless amended, the Wetlands Loan Act would require that 75 per cent of revenues from duck stamp sales be applied toward retiring the $147 million advanced so far from the $200 million authorized under the Act, beginning October 1983.

+ Increasing revenues in the migratory bird conservation fund by authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to require a valid federal duck stamp or single visit permit for entrance into certain designated units of the national wildlife refuge system; and increasing the price of the federal duck stamp from $7.50 to $15.

Taken together, these provisions would generate about $25 million annually in new federal revenues for wetland protection and would also make available the $53 million unspent balance in the Wetlands Loan Act.

Legislative proposal announced recently is an outgrowth of a private sector task force — Protect Our Wetlands and Duck Resources — created by Watt eight months ago.

Watt said the 37-member POWDR task force was comprised of corporate, government and conservation leaders who shared a "concern for the future of our wetlands and waterfowl" and served without pay. "POWDR, in my view, is a perfect example of how dynamic, public-private partnerships can work together for a better America. I am glad to say POWDR will remain an active force in the days and months ahead as we seek to mobilize public, business and governmental support for wetlands protection."

FISHIN' TIPS

QUESTIONS FROM THE MAIL BAG

TOMBO: What is the best bait for catfish, the very best bait?—Likesta Eatum

HELLO EATUM: Well, I've got to suggest two very best catfish baits because chicken livers and live shrimp are a tossup.

DEAR TOM: It's obvious from your writings and lectures you never bank fish. You're missing a lot of fun.—Cane Poler

DEAR CANE: I used to in my younger days. But I can cover so much more water and find so many more fish in a day's time with the mobility of a boat and motor. But if, you get your enjoyment bank fishing, bless you podnuh, stay with it!

TOM: What if they was to hold a bass tournyment and make them there bassy boys row there boats, no motors, no gajets, how do you think theyd do?—Eph Scraggit

HELLO EPH: Well, they'd fish a whole lot slower, cover the water more thoroughly, and catch less bass. But, I betcha the better bassin' men still would wind up on top.

TOM MANN: What one thing would you say loses more big bass than anything else? I've lost too many.—Heck Amighty

HELLO HECK: Forgetting to cut off the last two feet of line periodically throughout a day's fishing.

DEAR MR. MANN: Do you use a flasher sonar to spot fish?—D.D.T.

HELLO DEE DEE TEE: Yes, but I use it more to tell me what the contours of the bottom are like, to pinpoint dropoffs, old stream beds, midlake humps, etc. Once I pin em down I use my Haumbus Geeper to catch them.

HY TOM: What's a quick way to tell a three-pound channel catfish from a three-pound flathead catfish?—Old Whiskerface

HELLO WHISKERS: Easy. Look at the tail. On the channel it is forked but on the flathead it is not, just straight.

DEAR MR. MANN: How can I keep my crawdads lively? They just up and die on me about midday.—Si Silver

HELLO SI: Betcha you are keeping them in water. Don't. Keep them in wet grass, or moss, in a styrofoam container and they'll keep lively for days.

DEAR TOM: I know you do all kinds of fishing and I read where the best way to fluff up an old fly is to hold it in front of a steaming kettle spout. Won't this soak it with moisture instead of fluffing it?—Doubting Tom HELLO TOM: Right you are, my friend. Much better to wet an old fly then hold it in front of a hair blower to fluff it.

TOM MANN: What do you do when the water is gin clear and the fish follow but won't take your lure?—Gin Sipper

HELLO GIN: Use the lightest line you can find even down to a two-pound test, and small lures in the 1/8 ounce class. Lures that resemble minnows, or weighted spinners, retrieved at a fairly fast pace are your best bet. As a last resort, try live minnows, still using the light line.

Owners Of Bird Dogs Can Take Local Training

Owners of bird dogs interested in entering any of the dog training classes sponsored by the Agassiz Kennel club may still do so. They may bring their dogs and certification of rabies vaccination to the 7 p.m. session Wednesday at the sheep barn on the Pennington county fairgrounds in Thief River Falls.

Craig Backer, conservation officer stationed in Thief River Falls, has been invited to speak at the hunting dog class and will answer questions on state laws and regulations regarding training and hunting.

Conservation Clubs Honored

Seventeen exceptional community conservation clubs have been selected by the National Wildlife Federation to receive the NFW's 1982 President's Award for outstanding service.

All the clubs belong to the state affiliate of the National Wildlife Federation, which has 4.2 million members and supporters, and is the nation's largest private conservation organization.

Winners were chosen from 6,000 eligible clubs in the 50 states and three territories. They were selected for their accomplishments in effective conservation action and environmental education programs, and for their contribution to their state affiliates.

"These awards not only recognize exceptional achievement during the past year," said the NWF's immediate past president C. Clifton Young, under whose tenure the awards were made, "but they also point out the importance of effective member clubs to the success of our state affiliate organizations. As our environmental laws face the challenges of an administration that seems to be unsympathetic toward environmental concerns, these community organizations assume an even greater importance."

Among the award-winning organizations was the Rice Area Sportsmen Club, a member of the Minnesota Conservation Federation.

Deadline Nears For 1982 Bear Hunt Permit

A final reminder has been issued by the Department of Natural Resources to persons who want to apply for a permit to hunt bear this fall.

Deadline for entering the computerized drawing that will select 3,550 applicants for the hunt is Monday, May 2.

Bear hunting season will run from Sept. 1 to Oct. 16 and preference in the drawing will be given persons who applied in previous years but were not selected.

To obtain a preference in the drawings, applicants must include on their application their driver's license number or Minnesota identification number, issued by the Department of Public Safety.

Application forms and details on the season are available from state hunting and fishing license agents.

Cost of a bear hunting license is $15 for residents and $100 for non-residents, plus a 75 cents issuing fee.

Retrouvaille Designed To Aid Marriages

Help for couples with marital difficulties is offered in a program which has started during the past year in northwestern Minnesota and eastern North Dakota.

Retrouvaille is a weekend and follow-up program for couples who are experiencing marital problems, separated, or divorced but want to make their marriage work. Retrouvaille has its roots in the marriage encounter experience and started seven years ago in French Canada. The name means "rediscovery" and the program is open to couples of any faith.

Retrouvaille is not a marriage counseling weekend but a time for a couple to look deeply at their relationship and to begin rebuilding it. There is a strong focus on communication, trust and commitment.

Weekend is given by three married couples and a priest. Couples are urged to continue after the weekend in a three-month series of meetings with others from the weekend.

Next Retrouvaille weekend is scheduled at Queen of Peace retreat center in Fargo. Further weekends are scheduled in Fargo and at Mount St. Benedict in Crookston.

Registration or further information is available through Mr. and Mrs. Mark Emmel, Fargo phone 237-4869.

FOUR SENIORS will be performing Friday at the piano recital of Marcia Knuttila's students beginning at 7 p.m. at the United Methodist church. Pianists are, from left to right, Gretchen McEwen, Pam Finney, Hope Dyrud and Renelle Twistol. All have passed both level A and B theory exams. McEwen has passed the level C theory exam and Finney and Twistol have passed the level C and D theory exams. All have been winners in the district Minnesota music teachers association piano contest. McEwen, Finney and Dyrud have also been winners in the MMTA all-state contest. McEwen, Finney and Twistol have received a star rating at Region 8AA instrumental competition for their solos. McEwen and Finney will perform in the state honor student concert at Northrup auditorium, Minneapolis on June 4. Dyrud performed in that contest in 1976. Twistol has been a winner in the northwest district and all-state Free church youth fellowship competitions. In 1978 she received a rating of excellent at the national FCYF piano contest.

School Lab Chemicals To Be Collected

In the country's only mass cleanup of hazardous chemicals from school laboratories, the University of Minnesota began collecting wastes from 74 schools throughout the state.

The project, which is in its second year, is expected to collect about 7,500 pounds of 300 to 400 different chemicals from 59 school districts, three state universities, five colleges and seven community colleges.

"Safety is our first consideration," said Robert Silvagni, environmental engineer in the university's physical plant operations. Officials from school districts, colleges and state universities have received precise instructions on identifying, separating, packaging and labelling these chemical wastes.

Chemicals will be transported in metal drums within beds of vermiculite, in accordance with department of transportation and environmental protection agency regulations. Workers picking up the chemicals will wear protective gear, including vapor masks, face shields, rubber boots and full rubber suits. Shock-sensitive chemicals such as picric acid — which explode when dropped — will not be accepted; instead, local officials will be advised to contact a bomb squad or the local sheriff's office for help in detonating these chemicals, Silvagni said. The project has been approved by the Minnesota pollution control agency, he said.

"Once we've accumulated a semi-truck load from all sources, we'll ship the chemicals to a hazardous waste disposal site in Beatty, NV, using our normal procedures for the university's wastes," Silvagni added. Until then — in about a month — the materials will be stored inside concrete buildings at the university's agricultural experiment station in Rosemount, a Twin Cities suburb. The small percentage of the chemicals that will probably be useful to university science departments will be distributed to them. Other materials will be neutralized for safe local disposal.

"This will make school labs a safer operation," said David Keyes, a chemistry graduate student and coordinator of the project. Until this expert spring cleanup began last year, schools had "no safe, ecological and affordable way of dealing with the chemicals," he said. The few private sector companies that collect hazardous chemicals charge by the barrel, with rates geared to large companies that have huge volumes of only a very few kinds of chemicals. Schools with five pounds of one chemical, two ounces of another and so on, cannot afford this service, even if they can find it, Keyes explained.

Once the mass cleanup idea was proposed by Richard Clark, science consultant at the Minnesota department of education, the university was glad to lend its expertise, Keyes said. Before this project the university used to get many calls from schools every year to help them individually with their chemical wastes, added Stuart Fenton, chemistry professor and chairman of the committee that assesses the university's wastes.

Among the hundreds of chemicals to be collected are benzene and carbon tetrachloride (carcinogens), phosphorus (which ignites in air), various lead and arsenic compounds (heavy metal poisons), various mercury compounds (poisons), various cyanides (poisons) and corrosive materials such as hydrochloric acid and sulfuric acid, Keyes said.

Pickup service is offered at cost of $20 per gallon of chemical.

Heart Ass'n. Annual Meet In Rochester

American Heart association, Minnesota affiliate's 36th annual meeting will feature public education and scientific sessions focusing on the "Advances In The Treatment of Cardiovascular Disease". The meeting will be held Friday, May 13 at the Kahler hotel in Rochester.

The public education and scientific sessions will both begin at 9:30 a.m. The public education sessions, designed specifically for the Heart association's lay volunteers and general public, will cover the areas of prevention of cardiovascular disease (a.m.) and cardiac rehabilitation (p.m.). Developed for the medical community, the scientific sessions will concentrate on the advances in cardiovascular drug therapy (a.m.) and advances in the therapy of coronary artery disease (p.m.). The afternoon sessions will begin at 1:45 p.m.

The day-long program will conclude with a corporate meeting, board of directors meeting and an evening awards banquet. Dr. Gerald Gau, an assistant professor of medicine and consultant in cardiovascular disease and internal medicine at the Mayo clinic, will be featured speaker at the awards banquet. Dr. Gau will present "Physical Fitness and You."

The 36th annual meeting of the American Heart association, Minnesota affiliate will present those medical advances which are helping to combat America's number one killer, heart disease. Only through the continued efforts of heart research, community programs and professional and public education will our greatest health problem be controlled.

All sessions are open to the public. The public education sessions are free while there is a $10 fee for the scientific sessions.

Committee To Study Actions Of Legislators

Ways to monitor legislative action and inform the public were the subjects of an Independent - Republican meeting held Wednesday, April 13, at the Rex Cafe in Thief River Falls.

Discussion was led by Marge Gruenes. Noting that legislators may only report what they feel constituents want to hear or will agree with, the group decided to appoint a committee to receive information from the state monitor committee of the Independent Republican (IR) party, and present it to the news media.

Among those attending the meeting were: Fuzz LePage and Dixie Lippert, Roseau county; Bruce Elseth and Dave Rodahl, Marshall county; Charlotte Skjerven, Red Lake county; Diane Freeman, Richard Sather, Jeanette Reierson, Gordon Reierson, Gladys Barron, Earl Gibson, Dr. Donald Goodrich, Yvonne Bredeson, Ina Thorsgard and Mark Skogerboe, Pennington county; and Bob Bunger, seventh district field representative for the state IR party.

Persons interested in assisting or seeking further information about this committee should contact one of the people who attended the meeting.

'U'M Economist Gives View On PIK Program

"It's a crazy idea, but we had to do something," said Reagan's agricultural secretary John Block in describing his radical plan to ladle out surplus stores of grain, soybeans and cotton — so-called payments-in-kind, or PIK — to encourage farmers to idle their land this year.

"Crazy like a fox," comments economist Walter W. Heller of the University of Minnesota. He summarizes PIK as follows:

+ By throwing commodites rather than cash at the problem of overproduction, PIK cuts farm output without adding to the huge $19 billion of federal farm outlays this year. Indeed, it may save money. Government storage and support costs may be cut by $5 billion over the next two years.

+ Farmers signed up in droves. All told, over 80 million acres — about a third of grain, cotton and rice acreage — will be idled in 1983.

+ PIK's promises of smaller surpluses, higher prices and lower costs — coupled with some easing of interest rates, lower fuel costs and economic recovery — are heartening to farmers. They see an end to their three-year slide in income.

But there are losers in this game of PIK-man as it gobbles up surpluses:

+ Reduced demand this year for feed, fertilizer, chemicals and machinery has suppliers of these products — including many farmers co-ops — in a "wait-till-next-year" bind.

+ The roughly 1.5 billion bushels of corn and a half billion bushels of wheat needed for PIK payoffs won't show up in the federal budget, but they are far from costless. They are real assets that will have to be charged off sometime.

+ PIK will eventually increase consumer prices as crop outputs and inventories shrink. By the fall of 1984, inventories of corn will shrink 45 per cent; wheat, 10 per cent; cotton, 30 per cent; and rice, 50 per cent if agriculture department estimates are right.

But the greater risks relate to world food security and U.S. food exports. Especially if bad weather reverses the good growing conditions now foreseen, PIK could over-correct:

+ Two bad crop years in the 1970s created critical shortages and boosted world food prices sharply. Without a policy to build reserves against crop failures, it could happen again.

+ Farm exports, already shrinking, could tumble further as we cut output while others expand.

One hopes that the weather gods will smile, that PIK will work to boost farm income without excessive cuts in food stocks or big boosts in consumer prices. But it is risky and cannot substitute for a shound long-run farm policy, Heller concludes.

Enrollment At 'U'M Drops One Per Cent

One per cent drop in enrollment was reported at the University of Minnesota spring quarter with enrollment at the university's five campuses totaling 52,415 or 566 fewer students than were enrolled last spring quarter.

Of the decreases, Crookston reported the largest with 10.4 per cent. The student population on that campus fell to 947 from 1,058 last spring quarter. At Morris enrollment fell by 5.9 per cent to 1,434.

Twin Cities campus closely reflected the drop with a decline of slightly less than one per cent. Enrollment on the system's largest campus totaled 42,451 for the spring quarter.

Two campuses — Waseca and Duluth — reported increases in enrollment. The 851 students at Waseca represented a 1.5 per cent increase over spring of 1982. Duluth enrollment rose by less than a per cent to 6,732 students.

On the Twin Cities campus, enrollment gains by the institute of technology continued, with 120 more students reported this spring than last spring for an increase of 2.2 per cent. The number of women in the institute rose by 17 per cent over the same period last year.

School of management reported an increase of 7.1 per cent or 99 students. With enrollment of 15,300, the college of liberal arts remains the largest single unit at the university despite a decline of 2.9 per cent from last spring.

State History Center Given Gov. Priority

Governor Rudy Perpich gave a new state history center a "high priority" in his capital budget presented to the legislature. He recommended that the legislature appropriate $500,000 for space planning and program development by the historical society, and for conducting an architectural design competition required by law for the construction of the Minnesota history center.

The design will incorporate both new construction and renovation of the existing historical building, which is a prominent landmark in the Capitol area. Results of the design competition will determine the construction costs of the project.

Gov. Perpich reportedly has been a staunch advocate of the Minnesota Historical society since his days in the legislature. He said he believes there is a need for a central location from which the state's many-faceted historical programs will be easily accessible to the public, including persons with physical disabilities.

"We need a facility," he said, "so that when people come to the Capitol, they get a sense of history. When people come here now there's no place for them to park, no place to hang their coats, nowhere that can handle large groups for lunch, no facilities for lectures or large historical displays."

A Minnesota history center will provide the public with an opportunity to see and use the vast historical resources that reflect the exciting tradition of the state.

Today the historical society serves the public out of four facilities in the Twin Cities including the Historical Building at 690 Cedar street next door to the state Capitol. This building, constructed in 1917, is considered to be overcrowded and obsolete.

The Minnesota history center recommended by the governor would make full and efficient use of the entire block bounded by Cedar and Robert streets and Aurora and Central avenues, utilizing the existing historical society building in conjunction with area currently occupied by the Mechanic Arts parking lot, gymnasium and high school building.

The Minnesota history center would include a major museum for exhibiting the society's nationally recognized collection of historical artifacts. The new space would allow many items that have never been displayed to be presented to the public.

The Minnesota history center would also house a library and archives facility with reading rooms and reference services for the public using the society's vast collections of books, newspapers, photographs, maps, manuscripts, public records, artworks, artifacts and other materials that document Minnesota's past. It would include an auditorium, classrooms for hands-on educational programs, a museum shop and public food service.

The Minnesota history center, from its position next to the state Capitol, would be easily accessible for pedestrian, vehicular and service traffic. It will be a significant benefit to Minnesota and its Capitol city.

How To Do A Little Business On Your Own...
Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own... but is takes a bit of planning.
Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item... and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.
And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers... so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.
Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd... You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood... but you'll want a bigger crowd than that... so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

NEED HELP WITH YOUR STUDENT LOAN?

If you've attended college on a Guaranteed Student Loan or a National Direct Student Loan made after October 1, 1975, consider spending a couple of years in the Army.

If you train for certain specialties, the government will release you from 1/3 of your indebtedness (or $1,500, whichever is greater) for each year of active duty.

Obviously, a three-year enlistment cancels 100% of your debt. But if you sign up for the Army's exclusive two-year enlistment option, we'll still cancel 2/3 of your debt.

Plus, you may be eligible for generous educational incentives.

Card of Thanks

I would like to express my sincere thanks and gratitude to everyone for all the cards, visits, letters, flowers, prayers and phone calls I received while in the hospital.

A special thanks to Dr. Krepp and Dr. Scheuneman and the nurses on 2nd floor at Northwestern hospital for the wonderful care I received while there.

Thanks to Pastor Smerek for his visits and prayers and also to those who remembered me on my birthday with cards, gifts, and a cake.

It was all greatly appreciated. May God bless you all.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q — Under the improved Veterans Administration pension law, can a veteran who does not have custody nor reasonably contributes to child support receive additional pension for the child?

A — No. The veteran must be paying child support to be entitled to any additional amount.

Q — My husband's death was service-connected. Am I eligible for a Veterans Administrational burial allowance?

A — Yes. Payment up to $1,100 is allowed if the veteran's death was service-connected. This payment is instead of the $300 basic burial allowance and the $150 plot allowance.

Q — The premiums on my National Service Life Insurance are waived because I am totally disabled. Recently I received my annual insurance dividend check from the Veterans Administration. Should I return it?

A — No. You may keep the check. Waiver of premiums does not affect the annual dividend.

Q — How much Veterans Administration tutorial assistance can I receive under the noncontributory GI Bill?

A — Up to $76 per month, with an overall maximum of $911.

Q — Are World War I veterans eligible for Veterans administration outpatient medical care?

A — Yes. All veterans of World War I are eligible for VA outpatient care for any medical condition while in an approved VA treatment program.

Q — I am totally blind due to a service-connected disability. Will the Veterans administration furnish me with a guide dog?

A — Yes. Guide dogs, including the expense of training the veteran to use the dog, and the cost of the dog's medical attention, are covered.

Q — My father died while on active duty. Can I use the Veterans administration's dependents education program to complete high school?

A — No. Children with entitlement under the dependents education program of the VA may only pursue college, vocational school or on-the-job training programs.

Q — How many hours each month must I work to receive on-the-job training-apprenticeship benefits from the Veterans administration?

A — You must be employed a minimum of 120 hours each month to receive full-time training benefits. Benefits will be reduced on a proportional basis whenever an eligible veteran works less than 120 hours in a month.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Taxpayers Demand Withholding Tax Repeal

Ask a politician about why your taxes keep going higher and higher and he will respond like a defendant in a paternity suit: I didn't do it. That's funny, with 535 Congressmen and Senators who never own up to increasing taxes on working men and women, our taxes keep getting higher each year. How can this be?

Well, taxes are not brought by the stork. They are voted by our representatives in Washington. While politicians claim to be the taxpayers' best friend when they are back visiting the home district, somehow, when they return to Washington they pay more attention to satisfying the bureaucracy's insatiable appetite for your money. (You didn't need it anyway, did you?)

Sad to report, but Congress is at it again. Last year, Congress voted to begin withholding on dividend and interest income. The withholding tax is scheduled to take effect July 1, this year. It is a bad law. The overwhelming majority of taxpayers already pay their taxes on this income and with existing reporting requirements, compliance will reach 97 per cent. But Congress was not satisfied. They wanted to reach into your bank accounts and take out your money so they could earn the interest on it during the year.

But there is more. The cost of withholding income from more than 400 million individual interest and dividend paying investments will be roughly $3 billion in start-up costs, and annual costs of more than $1.4 billion each and every year. This deadweight cost to the economy will result in lower interest for savers and take money out of the economy which would otherwise be used to finance new home construction, car loans and new businesses. The jobs which would have been created will be lost.

American taxpayers are hopping mad. More than 18 million letters have flooded Washington demanding that the withholding tax be repealed. Senator Robert Dole (R-Kan.), the chief proponent of withholding, has already received more than 500,000 letters. As a result, a majority of both houses of Congress have cosponsored bills to repeal this law. But it will not be easy. Big government doesn't like to give back any cash it has been able to wrest from the taxpayers. Tip O'Neill is keeping the House from voting on repeal and Senator Dole has filibustered attempts to repeal withholding in the Senate.

Rhetoric vs. Reality

No so very long ago the headlines were filled with the dire predictions of liberal politicians and their court apologists:—Supply-side economics is a failure. Cutting taxes on the American people will cause inflation. Looking twice at the federal budget for areas to reduce waste, fraud and abuse will bring widespread poverty, cause a second great depression.

The architects of our trillion dollar national debt and the bloated welfare-state were positively hysterical about the evil effects of the dreaded "Reaganomics." They screamed. They shouted. They threatened to hold their breath until they turned blue.

But then a funny thing happened on the way to their depression. Recovery. Inflation dropped by two-thirds. Unemployment began to recede. Interest rates dropped in half. Housing starts, new car sales and the stock market climbed dramatically.

So what is the reaction of Tip O'Neill and Ted Kennedy? Have we read embarrassed letters of apology in the New York Times? Has John Kenneth Galbraith packed his bags and joined a monastery at penance?

No, the advocates of big government have regrouped and refocused their attack.

Okay, so supply-side economics does increase personal income, help Americans save and invest for the future and slash inflation and interest rates. But... it's not fair. It favors the "rich." It comes at the expense of the poor.

Having lost the economic debate the liberals are determined to win the war of words, to hide 50 years of failed economic policies behind the mask of rhetoric.

If reality is embarrassing, they will simply change it by twisting the lanugage to make it fit the goals of big government.

'Let's take a look at this Orwellian Newspeak.

It's Unfair — This appears to be the last refuge of those who wish to see the government control more and more of our paychecks and our lives. But is the Reagan program unfair?

What could be more fair, more evenhanded than to cut the tax rates for all Americans by 25 per cent?

What could be more fair than to reduce inflation for all Americans from 12.5 per cent to below 4 per cent?

What could be more fair than to cut back excessive regulation and reduce prices for all consumers?

And those who attack the 1981 tax cuts as "unfair" now suggest eliminating the indexing provision which prevents middle income Americans from being pushed into higher and higher tax brackets. These modern day populists would allow inflation to raise the taxes on middle income Americans by more than $90 billion in the next several years. And yet they scream fairness at the top of their lungs and call it an argument.

Draconian Budget Cuts — The average annual growth of federal spending was 3.1 per cent under Presidents Nixon and Ford, 2.5 per cent under Jimmy Carter and is now increasing at 5.7 per cent after those "draconian budget cuts" by Messrs. Reagan and Stockman. In constant dollars, spending targeted to low income individuals has jumped from $30.7 billion in 1970 to over $77 billion in 1984. And total spending on transfer payments and social programs will top $424 billion in 1984 — $6,500 for every man, woman and child in the United States. There have been no budget cuts. Draconian or otherwise.

It is important that the taxpayers won the tax and budget battles of 1981. It has set America on a new path of hope and progress. But it is equally important to win the battle over the abuse of language.

If we do not, our friends in Washington will do to our language what they have already done to our economy.

HIGHLANDING

Mr. and Mrs. John Lovly and Michael visited at the Ole Stephenson home on Thursday evening and brought birthday greetings to Lila.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Johnsrud visited with Bonnie Johnsrud on Saturday afternoon.

Early Visionaries Would Be Labeled As Insane Today

by Paul Dienhart
U of M News Service

One young woman felt that she had been directed by a vision to cut off her hand with a power saw. A man thought an angel was communicating with him through the clicking noises he heard in his nose.

Today they are patients in Minnesota mental hospitals. A thousand years ago they probably would have been considered visionaries, perhaps even attracted followers.

Psychiatrist Jerome Kroll and medieval historian Bernard Bachrach, both of the University of Minnesota, make that observation from comparing 23 Minnesotans hospitalized for religious hallucinations with 134 visions reported in manuscripts from medieval Europe between A.D. 600 and 1300.

"In our society, hearing voices and seeing things are generally regarded by public and professionals alike as prima facie evidence of mental illness," they wrote in a recent article in "Psychological Medicine."

But the visions recorded in the 18 medieval sources — saints' lives and histories — are almost always reported with full acceptance. "Medieval society had a spiritual frame of reference that seems foreign to us," Bachrach said. "Hallucinations were accepted as communication with angels or devils."

Visionary experiences carried such legitimacy in medieval times that they sometimes were used for political ends. "A priest could get killed for criticizing the bishop," Kroll said, "but he was free to have a vision of hell that included the bishop roasting."

Kroll and Bachrach's comparison has bearing on the long-standing debate over universal symptoms for mental illness. People with visions were once considered perfectly sane because it fit the religious prejudice of the times. Perhaps the modern inclination to classify everyone with hallucinations as insane also is a cultural prejudice.

"We're interested in the way culture helps determine symptoms of mental illness," Bachrach said. He and Kroll are among a very few researchers who have gone back further than the 19th century to determine attitudes toward mental illness.

There is no doubt that some people were recognized—as mentally ill during the Middle Ages. People who babbled, howled, raged, bit, thrashed or wandered aimlessly were labeled insane. But Kroll and Bachrach believe that perhaps only one of the 23 Minnesota patients would have met medieval folk criteria for insanity. A 17-year-old girl who jumped from a fifth floor window showed the appropriate wild behavior for insanity as it was known 1,000 years ago.

As long as the behavior fit the religious delusion, it was accepted as a mystical experience in the Middle Ages. This held true even if the behavior was self-destructive — and quite a bit of it was, both then and now.

Ten of the 23 Minnesota patients were involved in serious acts of self-destruction. One man committed suicide. A woman saw a vision of Henry Kissinger as the Antichrist, who told her that unless she hurt herself, her sister and 300 other people would die in a plane crash. The woman responded by cutting off her hand with a rotary saw.

Six of the 23 Minnesota patients were caught up in studying the Book of Revelation, a part of the Bible that fascinated medieval people. Revelation tells of the millennium when Christ will return to earth to lead his special followers during 1,000 years of paradise on earth before the end of the world. The second coming would involve overcoming an Antichrist, the terrible 10-horned beast of the Book of Revelation. Those unworthy to be Christ's subjects would be wiped out in the apocalypse.

It was an appealing vision for medieval commoners who lived in dire poverty, feared the Black Death, were forced to pay tithes to wealthy priests and bishops and considered themselves living martyrs. Their only chance seemed to be the second coming of Christ. Many people claimed to be Christ or Christ's prophet during this time, and some gained followings.

Some of the Minnesota patients believed they communicated with Christ, saints, devils or angels. One woman, a middle-aged single schoolteacher, was influenced by the Book of Revelation to pull over on the highway on the Minnesota-Iowa border and preach to the speeding cars. She announced the new Jerusalem would be in Arizona where Christ would reign after the United States, the new Babylon, was destroyed by atomic explosion. She would be the bride of Christ. Another female patient heard saints tell her that she was Jesus.

Miracle cures figured in both medieval and contemporary visions. There is a medieval account of a sick woman cured when the full moon fell from the sky into her mouth and filled her with light. A Minnesota woman claimed her multiple sclerosis was cured when a piece of sun-filled cloud broke off and entered her body.

"Modern psychiatry is justifiably accused of assuming that symptoms of psychoses in Western industrialized countries are universal," Kroll and Bachrach wrote. It assumes culture can be separated from diagnosis, while using its own cultural prejudices to determine symptoms.

How can a person be regarded as perfectly sane during the Middle Ages, when a person acting in a similar ways today is considered psychotic?

"The question is whether some of the preconceived notions of normal and abnormal behavior are worthwhile," Bachrach said. "We live in a secular society, and we tend to regard intensive religious behavior as suspect. Witness the deprogramming of some religious cult members. The Middle Ages, by contrast, had a spiritual point of view that tolerated religious behavior we would see as extreme. Maybe we can learn something from the Middle Ages that might be useful today."

It may help in understanding schizophrenia, one of the most puzzling mental illnesses. Two of the major symptoms by which it is recognized today, hallucinations and experiences of being helpless in the control of some outside force, might have been regarded as mystical experiences in the Middle Ages. "Hallucinations, especially of a religious nature, are too culture-bound to be universal diagnostic criteria of psychosis," Kroll and Bachrach wrote. "One can be schizophrenic without experiencing hallucinations, and one can have hallucinations without being schizophrenic."

Hallucinations can result from drug abuse, alcoholism, infections, ecstatic states, poisoning, stress and lack of food or sleep. These conditions were common in the reporting of the medieval visions.

"Nobody knows for sure what schizophrenia is," Kroll said. "My personal belief is that it's a biochemical disorder in the brain that shows up under certain environmental conditions. Schizophrenia arising from this organic condition is likely to have universal symptoms. The symptoms of these chronic schizophrenics are more likely to be apathy and lack of motivation than hallucinations and delusions, which are colored by the cultural environment.

"Proof will have to wait until the biology of schizophrenia is understood," said Kroll. "But if we could develop better criteria for diagnosing chronic schizophrenics we could better determine who might recover fairly rapidly and who might need long-term care."

Looking at different times and different cultures might provide a check to cultural prejudices that could distort the sought-after universal symptoms of mental illness.

SHRINE CIRCUS will be visited by participants in the Falls day activity center through donations by local organizations again this year. James Berg of the Northwest Shrine club presents tickets to DAC director Evan Armstrong while Gary Flynn, past exaulted ruler of the Elks lodge, awards a $100 check to Dolly Odegaard, a participant in the DAC program. The check from the Elks is to be used for refreshments for the participants.

EGF Slates Art Show And Names Judge

Marvin Espe, an artist from Roseau, will judge the fifth annual fine arts show to be held at the East Grand Forks AVTI May 5 to 7.

Area artists have been invited to submit up to three pieces of their work for the show. A number of awards will be made, including the "People's Choice Award," which enables those attending the show to cast a vote for their favorite entry.

Purchase awards are sponsored by the East Grand Forks arts and crafts council and the East Grand Forks library board. Artwork may also be purchased by the public.

Artists may obtain entry blanks by calling 773-2724 or 773-9056 or writing to the community education office, East Grand Forks. Entry blanks must be submitted by Friday, April 29.

Show is sponsored annually by the fine arts committee of the East Grand Forks arts and crafts council.

Four Area Students To Attend NCC

Four area students have been accepted for admission at Northland community college in Thief River Falls for the 1983 fall quarter classes.

Lisa Glass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Glass and Michael Laufman, son of Mrs. Betty Laufman, both of Thief River Falls will graduate this spring from Lincoln high school. Glass will study accounting and Laufman plans to major in civil engineering.

Dale Genereux, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Genereux of Brooks, will continue his education in the field of audio-communications. He will graduate from Pershing high school, Plummer, this spring.

Todd Stokke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Stokke of Newfolden, will graduate from Marshall county central high school this spring and continue in the field of electrical engineering.

BSU Awards Degrees To Area Students

Three area students graduated from Bemidji state university with bachelor's degrees at the conclusion of winter quarter.

Michael Malberg and Allen Melbye, both of Thief River Falls and Jeffrey Sorenson of Newfolden were among 158 students completing undergraduate degree requirements at BSU during the quarter.

Malberg received his degree in business administration; Melbye was awarded a degree in criminal justice and Sorenson graduated with a degree in elementary education.

MSU Slates Session For Grades 6-12

Summer school session for sixth through 12th graders will be offered at Moorhead state university June 13 to July 8, featuring 15 classes ranging from electronic music and dance to foreign languages and computer science.

The session, put together in cooperation with area high school administrators, is an enrichment program partly designed to replace summer programs in Minnesota schools that have been cut because of state budget problems, but it's also open to North Dakota students.

This is the second year MSU has offered the summer program, taught by University instructors and regional high school teachers. It's supported totally by student tuitions.

Courses offered this summer are — Four-week classes in beginning French, German and Spanish scheduled from 8 to 10 a.m. June 13 to July 8.

— Two-week session in computer science for nine to 12 grade students who are already familiar with general micro-computers and elementary BASIC language programming meets from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. June 13 to 24.

— Two-week classes in chamber music are scheduled from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. June 13-24 with separate sections for piano, strings and winds.

— Two-week session in drawing and painting meets from 10 a.m. to noon and another in ceramics and sculpture meets from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. June 13 to 24.

Law Day Exhibit Planned May 4th

Thief River Falls law day — a kick-off to the national observance of law week May 8-15 — will be conducted at the Thief River Falls sports arena on Wednesday, May 4, from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. The last similar observance locally was in 1975 when public response was very good, according to local law enforcement officials.

Participation by a number of agencies which are involved in some manner or another with law enforcement has been secured for the event. Expected to be a special public interest event will be a demonstration of guard dogs from the Grand Forks air force base. That demonstration will take place in front of the sports arena at 4:30 p.m.

In a cooperative local effort by the Thief River Falls police department, Pennington county sheriff's office and state patrol headquarters, radar checks of speedometers in local vehicles will be conducted as time permits. Radar units will be plugged into private cars and officers will accompany the owners to check the accuracy of speedometers in the cars. Times for the radar checks are set for 1:30, 3:30, 5:30 and 7:30 p.m.

Other participating agencies will be the Federal Bureau of Investigation from Minneapolis; U.S. Customs service from Pembina, ND; U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms from Fargo, ND; National Drug Enforcement administration from Fargo; enforcement division of the Minnesota department of natural resources; Agassiz national wildlife refuge; Minnesota bureau of criminal apprehension; security police squadron and office of special investigations from the Grand Forks air force base; and Company B of the Minnesota national guard.

Each of the agencies will have booths or tables at the sports arena with personnel on hand to answer questions and distribute information and materials. A large amount of equipment will be on display, including weapons and national guard vehicles, as well as materials relating to drugs, contraband and other items, according to Vern Cleven of the state patrol, activities chairman for the event.

Emphasis will be placed by local law enforcement agencies on Operation I.D., a program for marking of personal property with personal and permanent identification to discourage theft and aid in recovery of stolen goods. The local agencies will also distribute drug information booklets to parents and telephone stickers listing telephone numbers for law enforcement, fire department and ambulance service.

Minnesota state patrol will have continuous showings throughout the day of films dealing with self-protection for women, seat belt use and driving while under the influence.

Letters have been sent to schools in Thief River Falls and Goodridge to invite students, faculty and staff to attend the law day program. "We want to show the public

AWARD PIN for his designation as the top mathematics student at Lincoln high school is presented to Dave Ose by John Schmitz, mathematics instructor at Lincoln. Ose scored highest among local students competing in the American high school mathematics examination administered at Lincoln to 11th and 12th grade students. Scores by Ose, Randy Erickson and Rodney Helm — the three highest at Lincoln — qualified the school as 31st among 175 schools participating in Minnesota. Three top scores were counted from each school.

FLUTE TRIO will perform Thursday when the Pershing high school spring music concert is presented at 7:30 p.m. at the high school gymnasium in Plummer. Sound Of Music Is MCC Musical

Marshall county central high school music and drama departments will present Rogers and Hammerstein's "The Sound of Music" Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gymnasium in Newfolden.

This true-life story takes place in Austria in 1938 just prior to the Nazi occupation. Maria, a young novitiate at a convent, becomes a governess to the seven children of a widowed, retired naval officer, Captain Von Trapp. The captain is a strict disciplinarian, but Maria wins the loyalty of the children by teaching them the fun of life and the joys of music despite the captain's opposition to such things.

Maria finally must make some difficult decisions about returning to the religious life at the convent or accepting her growing feelings for the captain. He, on the other hand, must somehow reconcile his love for Austria and the Nazi occupation of his country.

70 Donate Blood At AVTI Drive

"Give Blood for Life", was the theme of the blood drive held April 18 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the AVTI.

Seventy-four students signed up and only four were turned down due to weight, medication or blood type AB+ that was not in need. Seventy pints of blood was voluntarily donated from students.

This was the second blood drive held this year.

Council Denies Beer For Fair

At their regular meeting held in council chambers at city auditorium last night, Thief River Falls city council moved to deny the 3.2 beer license request of the Pennington county fair board, issued notification of a liquor license request from Family Bowl, and authorized the city engineer to negotiate with Minnesota department of transportation to see if widening of the First Street bridge could be expedited using money which the city received as federal aid to urban streets.

Request for an on-sale 3.2 beer license for the county fair was tabled at a previous meeting to allow time for public input. Aldermen all noted that they had received few unsolicited opinions on the issue, but noted that when they had questioned constituents, most were noncommittal, or questioned the need for beer at the fair. Alderman Clayton Restad commented that he had been asked why the board tabled the request instead of just issuing the license.

Although Mayor Bob Carlson asked that the matter be tabled again, due to the absence of Alderman Ambrose Wysoski, Alderman Milan Borsheim said he had decided to "stick my neck out," and moved to deny the license request. Noting that he had been involved with the fair board for many years, Borsheim stated that his association with Matt Armstrong who provides the Midway entertainment, had influenced his decision, since Armstrong is "violently against it." Borsheim added that he doubted the financial gain from the beer garden would balance the potential problems. His motion was seconded by Alderman Don Goodrich, and on a roll call vote, only Restad voted against denying the license.

Break Ground Sun. For Church At Newfolden

Ground - breaking ceremonies for a new 60x100 sanctuary addition to Bethlehem Lutheran church in Newfolden will be conducted Sunday following the 11 a.m. service at the church.

Rev. Marlin Davig, assistant to the bishop of the Northern Minnesota district of the American Lutheran church, will deliver the sermon and preside at the ground-breaking ceremony. Turning earth at the ground-breaking will be representatives of the church council, building committee and general contractor, Peterson Lumber company of Thief River Falls.

Construction is expected to begin immediately on the frame addition to the church which will feature a ground level sanctuary, new offices and other facilities, and remodeling to provide rampways for access to the former church basement. The present church will be used for Sunday school classrooms and other activities.

Bethlehem Lutheran church observed its 75th anniversary last year, a year past the actual anniversary year. The congregation currently has 435 baptized and 311 confirmed members.

St. Hilaire School Sold For $10,000 Bid Price

Fate of St. Hilaire elementary school took another turn Monday evening when the Thief River Falls board of education decided to make another attempt at selling the building and grounds. After advertising for bids on the property, the board had previously rejected all bids received.

Following discussion Monday evening — which included testimony from a number of St. Hilaire citizens who were opposed to ownership of the property by the city of St. Hilaire — the board adopted a resolution instructing the superintendent to negotiate the sale with the highest bidder on the same basis as the previous bid.

Doug Dehnert, owner of United Satellite Systems, Inc., Thief River Falls, had bid $10,000 for the building and property. At that time he had also agreed to grant the city of St. Hilaire use of the playground area and gymnasium portion of the building in exchange for upkeep of the grounds and payment of costs.

The resolution for negotiating the sale of the school was passed on a three to two vote with Larry McDowell, Myrle Carlson and Harry Sjulson in favor, Arnt Aune and Greg Pribula opposed, Hank Hallstrom abstaining and Archie Cameron absent. Among items presented in testimony were that it would cost the school district an estimated $50,000 to tear the building down and that a number of St. Hilaire residents, including some members of the city council, did not want the city of St. Hilaire to own the property.

Supt. Robert Block and Dehnert reached agreement on the sale Tuesday and the original $10,000 bid figure will be paid to the district. Earnest money has been paid to the district and title transfer is expected by May 2. Dehnert also indicated that use of the facilities by the city of St. Hilaire could be done on the basis of prior discussion, although a formal meeting with the council will likely be necessary to finalize terms of some sort of joint use agreement. The school district was given permission to continue storage use of the building for six months.

The board voted Monday to purchase 16 computer groups with six color monitors through the Northwest educational—cooperative service unit (NWECSU) with 14 to be purchased with interest money from the Marge and Lowell Swenson fund and three with flow-through funds for the special education program.

A proposed policy concerning sales in promotion of school activities was discussed and suggestions made to register groups and have them identify themselves when collecting. A sample fund-raiser registration form, designed by police chief Ken Froschheiser, was distributed and the process proposed will be checked by legal counsel before adoption.

Uff Da! 47 To Compete In Car Starting Event

On Saturday at 2 p.m. in front of the Falls Mall on LaBree avenue, 47 people who participated in Uff Da Days drawings sponsored by the Retail Business association (RBA) of Thief River Falls, will have the opportunity to try to win a 1983 car, plus a grand prize of $500, or any of 10 second prizes of $50 each.

One name was drawn from each of the 47 RBA member registration boxes. Cash prizes will be given away first, then all of the names will be returned to the container for the random drawing to determine order in which the participants will try to start the car. In order drawn, contestants will select one key from a container of 350 keys. All participants who fail to win a cash prize will receive a $10 gift certificate. Miss Thief River Falls Stacey Sandberg will assist in the drawings. If any contestant selects a key which starts the car, the drawing will be over.

Car which the participants will be trying to start will be furnished by Northern Motors; however, if any of the participants start the car, they will have the opportunity to choose any one of the cars worth approximately $8,500 and provided by Michael Motors, Tunberg Motors, Westside Motors and Northern Motors.

Participants in the grand prize drawing are listed below, behind the name of the RBA member which drew their name:

Ace Hardware — Yvonne Hoaas, St. Hilaire; Al & Wally's Country Market — Judy Tanem, Grygla; Annette's Fabrics — Jean Wold, TRF; Bethany Bookstore — Edith Nabben, TRF; Bjorkman's — Emmet Wagner, Middle River; Bostwick's — Mona Olson, Newfolden; Coast to Coast — Scott Dowers, TRF; Dwights Hartz — J.P. Review Committee Meets . . .

Hazardous Waste Report Received

Information on the time line for the Minnesota hazardous waste plan was presented to the local project review committee at a meeting conducted recently at the Newfolden community center. Marshall county continues to have one site in East Park township being considered as a state hazardous waste disposal facility.

Jerry Johnson, representative of the waste management board office who coordinates the schedule and work program for the board, indicated that the first phase of the environmental impact statement would be initiated after the 1984 legislative session. A second and probably final statement would be prepared by the Minnesota pollution control agency on one site only for the final permitting process.

In response to questions by Kenneth Price of Stephen, chairman of the project review committee, Johnson indicated that an expanded site search would be likely only if a new technology — such as crystalline bedrock storage — was found to be a feasible alternative. He speculated that the cost of the above-ground disposal concept proposed for the East Park site would be about the same as crystalline bedrock disposal, and he added it would definitely be 1985 before a final disposal site is designated.

Report was given by Lawrence Sunsdahl, mayor of Stephen, who serves as a temporary member of the state waste management board as a representative from the candidate site area. He also showed a video replay of a television program in which Hugh Kaufmann, hazardous vaste investigator for the federal environmental protection agency, indicated the agency is not carrying out legislative intent in its dealing with hazardous wastes.

Also appearing on the program was author Samuel Epstein who emphasized there is no known safe method of burying hazardous waste in the ground. He speculated that cancer incidence near toxic waste facilities could be 25 to 50 per cent greater than in other areas.

Meeting of the project review committee are open to the public and are conducted on the first and third Thursday of each month in the

NW Library Hosts Film Fest Saturday

Saturday film festival at Northwest regional library, Thief River Falls, will feature two films to be shown between 2 and 3 p.m.

"Big Henry and the Polka Dot Kid" is a film about a 10-year-old orphan boy who is cared for by an aunt and uncle. After saving the life of a blind dog, the boy teaches his uncle that "being practical" is not the only goal in life.

Trouble starts when a young man taking a bath hears noises in James Thurber's "The Night the Ghost Got In." The young man tells his brother, who tells his mother, who misunderstands. Before the story reaches a conclusion, doors are broken, police arrive and shots are fired.

Annual Boy Scout Expo Awards Given

Approximately 5,000 people attended the annual Voyageur Trails district Boy scout exposition held in Thief River Falls last Sunday, according to show chairman Dave Olin.

Over 30 different booths and displays showing various aspects of Cub scouting, Boy scouting and Explorers were included at the exposition.

Gary Flynn, chairman of judging, reported that the scout show exhibited a variety of high quality booths and displays. Each display was judged against a standard based on participation, appearance, theme presentation, discipline of youths and several other criteria. Participation ribbons were awarded to all booths. Other judges were Rich Sather, Bob Stroble, Jack Quinlivan and David Kildahl.

Top honors of award of merit and honor were presented to 12 displays including: Webelos 199, Thief River Falls; Cubs — Seven Oaks, Winnipeg; Pack 50, Warren; Pack 52, Red Lake Falls; Pack 66, Lancaster; Pack 173, Winnipeg; and Pack 199, Thief River Falls; Scouts — Troop 59, Thief River Falls; Troop 61, Plummer; Troop 173, Winnipeg; and Troop 199, Thief River Falls; and Venturers 38th, Winnipeg.

Nine booths were an award of merit. These included: Webelos — Unit 53, St. Hilaire and Unit 79, Karlstad; Cubs — Pack 53, St. Hilaire; Pack 59, Thief River Falls; Pack 77, Stephen; and Pack 79, Karlstad and Scouts — Troop 65, Argyle; Troop 66, Lancaster; and Troop 79, Karlstad.

Presentation of award was presented to seven displays including: Post 50, Warren; Cubs — Pack 54, Greenbush; Pack 57, Thief River Falls and Pack 69, Badger; and Scouts — Seven Oaks, Winnipeg; Troop 54, Greenbush; and Troop 86, Kennedy.

Chairman Olin expressed thanks to all the boys, leaders and parents participating. Olin and Boy scout district commissioner Bonnie Van Schaik gave special thanks to committee chairmen, members and volunteers who helped set up and clean up the sports arena under the direction of Robert Bredeson and Dave Carlson, physical arrangement chairmen.

Olin also noted cooperation from the fair board, city council, park and recreation department, Lampert Lumber, Cenex, Hardee's and the Thief River Falls Elk's lodge. Host families and those who donated to the Canadian hospitality were also thanked.

additional revenue generated beyond a predetermined budgeted amount back into the athletic program was suggested for board consideration. General favor was expressed with additional meetings to be held to discuss the process to be used.

Avis Holum of the school district staff was appointed acting clerk for the purpose of counting absentee ballots in the annual school election. Judges and alternate judges for the May 17 election were also approved. Polling hours will be from 4 to 8 p.m. at four locations in the district.

Armstrong, Torseth, Skold and Rydeen architectural firm was approved to develop plans and specifications for repair work at Northrop elementary school including roofing, insulation and lighting.

The board was advised and reminded of several events. Evaluation of the AVTI by approximately 48 evaluators will take place May 11 and 12. Unrequested leave hearing scheduled for April 26 was canceled. Teachers retirement party was scheduled for May 18, baccalaureate services on May 22 and commencement exercises on May 26. Next regular meeting of the board will be May 17 at 8 p.m. with a special meeting at 9 p.m. to canvass ballots from the school election.

A 15x46-foot tract of land in the northeast corner of the Franklin and Mark Twain school property was conveyed to the Minnesota highway department to facilitate improvements on highway 59. Plans and specifications were authorized for an underground fuel tank and pump to be placed near the school bus garage.

Leave of absence was approved for Bev Olson, primary EMH teacher at Knox presented on leave, through October 27. Resignations were accepted from Mrs. Olson effective October 28 and from Rosabelle Johnson, grade two at Knox, effective at the end of the current school year.

Employment was approved for Greg Stauss as MSHA instructor effective June 2 for 63 days. Sharon Stauss was approved as high school intramural softball coach for 1982-83. A half-time librarian position was reinstated for the 1982-83 school year, and resolutions were approved proposing and placing 35 of Mike Novak's contract days on unrequested leave.

Summer school budget for 1983 was approved with the session to run from June 13 through July 25. Concern was expressed regarding the possible need for the district to establish a property management program.

Area Teachers Attend Reading Council Banquet

Several area teachers were among those attending the North Star reading council spring banquet held April 14 in Thief River Falls.

Dr. Stephen A. Timm, author of three children's books, was the guest speaker. Timm, who lives in Fargo, ND, gave an address titled "Fables, Fairy Tales and Feelings: The Therapeutic and Educational Uses of Children's Stories."

Attending from Thief River Falls were Susan LeMoine, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gibson, Susan Froiland, Suzanne Steidl, Edith Etter, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Scholin, Jane Miller, Sister Caroline, Vicki Hunt, Carol Neys, Carol Tranby, Mr. and Mrs. Rik D'Amato, Ruth Klosterman, Deone Cerny, Glenna Moen, Beverly Kays, Donna Poole, Rachelle Hayes, Sue Wolbeck, Jean Buhl, Fay Bolin and Sister Rachel.

Others participating were Eloda Knutson, Carol Eidelbes, Clara Iverson, Darlene Anderson, Mabel Paulson, Ruth Sackett and Elva Fiedler, all of Goodridge and Becky Pribula and Lova Hodny, both of Newfolden.

Meeting About Rabbit Market Set May 5th

Informational meeting for all people interested in marketing of rabbits will be held Thursday, May 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls.

Representatives from the Minnesota rabbit growers association will be present to discuss the marketing of rabbits. There are some slaughter plants in Minnesota and a place in Wisconsin that want to buy rabbits. Pickup points are being established for growers. Information will be given on prices and specifications the rabbits must meet.

Gayle Krall, an American rabbit breeder registerer, will also be present to show what to look for in a market rabbit and a breeding rabbit. She judges rabbits and registers rabbits for the American rabbit breeders association.

M. Mathsen Services Held At Trail Mon.

Funeral services for Melvin G. Mathsen, 81, of Trail, were held Monday at 11:00 a.m., at the Sand Valley Lutheran church at Trail. Mathsen died Friday at Northwestern hospital, following a recent illness.

Rev. Dale Moe officiated at the services. Mrs. Mark Nelson was the soloist and Mrs. Dennis Halvorson, the organist. Interment was in the church cemetery. The Peterson Funeral home, Oklee, was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Darryl Mathson, Guy Mathson, Richard Mathson, Chris Mathsen, Arlen Oanes Hensen and Curtis Mathsen.

Melvin G. Mathsen, a son of the late Martin and Kari Gunderson Mathsen, was born July 27, 1901 in Karsuth county, Iowa. As a child, he moved with his family to a farm north of Oklee. There he grew to manhood. He worked on the Great Lakes Oil takers for about 20 years.

He was married Jan. 20, 1938 in Minneapolis to Irene Singelseter. In 1939, they moved to a farm north of Oklee and lived there until 1972, when they moved into Trail.

While living north of Oklee, they were members of the Salem Lutheran church. Since 1972, he and his wife had been members of the Sand Valley church.

He is survived by his wife, a son, Ronald and his wife, Lillian, of 221 30th avenue North, Fargo, N.D.; two daughters: Mrs. Julian (Sharon) Jensen, Minneapolis, and Mrs. Don (Linda) Burckhard, West Fargo, N.D.; nine grandchildren, and two brothers: John Mathson and Louis Mathson, both of rural Oklee.

He was preceded in death by one brother, a sister, two grandsons and one granddaughter.

The body will repose at the Green Funeral home on Friday from 1:00 to 9:00 p.m., and at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

A complete obituary will be published in the Monday edition of the Times.

Rites Thursday For Mildred Fritzinger, 76

Funeral services for Mildred Fritzinger, 76, of this city and formerly of Warroad, will be held Thursday at 10:00 a.m., at Trinity Lutheran church in Thief River Falls. Mrs. Fritzinger, a resident of Valley Home, wandered away from the Home on January 8. An extensive search at that time proved futile. Her body was found in the river near Red Lake Falls on Saturday evening.

Rev. Berton Hushagen will officiate at the services. Mrs. Walter Larson will be the organist and Jane Mackenroth will sing. Interment will be in the Riverside cemetery at Warroad with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers will be Owen Steinhauer, Robert Marshall, Orville Kofstad, Duane Kofstad, Glen Horner and Bernie Fritzinger.

Mrs. Fritzinger, the former Mildred Marshall, was born May 23, 1906 at Princeton to Henry and Katy Larson Marshall, now deceased. In 1910, she moved with the family to a farm near Warroad, and in 1920, they moved into the village of Warroad.

She was married Oct. 21, 1925 at St. Cloud to Walter Fritzinger. After their marriage, they lived in Warroad until 1938, when they moved north of Roosevelt. In 1973, they came to Thief River Falls to make their home at Valley Home.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Ernest (Lorraine) Morben of this city; a son, Walter Fritzinger, Jr., Circle Pines; six grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Also surviving are a brother, Leon Marshall, Warroad; and three sisters: Mrs. Elof (Georgia) Landin, Swift; Mrs. Pat (Evelyn) Mears, Seattle, Wash.; and Mrs. Charles (Luella) Brandli, Payson, Ariz.

She was preceded in death by her husband, who died Sept. 1, 1978; a grandson, two sisters: Dorothy and Doris, and one brother, Thomas.

Mrs. Hardis Wilson Rites Set At Zion

Funeral services for Mrs. Hardis (Ann) Wilson, 75, of this city will be held Thursday at 2:00 p.m., at Zion Lutheran church, Thief River Falls. Mrs. Wilson died Sunday at Northwestern hospital.

Rev. Clifford Kalmoe will officiate at the services. Jerry Joringdal will be the organist. Special music will be vocal duets by Everett Kompelien and Orville Trontvet with Mrs. Carl Nordvall as accompanist. Interment will be in the Woodlawn cemetery in Argyle.

Pallbearers will be Myron Erickson, Cliff Benett, Alan Wilson, Carl Offerdahl, Ray Olson and Ward Votava.

The body will repose at the Green Funeral home until 9:00 p.m., today (Wednesday) and at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

Mrs. Wilson, the former Ann Olson, was born Dec. 12, 1907 in Foldahl township of Marshall county, to Hans and Gunnar Vad Olson. She grew to womanhood in that community, attending school in Argyle.

On April 16, 1927, she was married to Evald E. Erickson. They lived on a farm in the Argyle vicinity and later moved into Argyle, where they were residing at the time of Erickson's death on March 6, 1957. After his death, Mrs. Erickson continued to live in Argyle, working for a few years as a nurses aide at the Warren hospital. In 1966, she moved to Thief River Falls and worked here at Northwestern hospital.

She was married on Sept. 28, 1968 to Hardis C. Wilson. Since then, they have made their home here.

She is survived by her husband, a daughter-in-law, Rosemary Erickson, Saratoga, Wyo.; a step-daughter and step-son, Mrs. Kermit Malberg and Rodney Wilson, both of Thief River Falls; two grandchildren, three great-grandchildren, seven step-grandchildren, and a brother, Conrad Olson, a resident of the Karlstad Nursing home.

In addition to her parents and first husband, she was preceded in death by one son, Donald Erickson, and a brother, Rangvold Olson.

Lela McEnelly Kallberg Rites Held In Duluth

Lela McEnelly Kallberg, 76, of Duluth, sister of Ruby Ramsey of Thief River Falls, died Saturday, April 16, while visiting a son at Kelsey.

Funeral services for Lela Kallberg were held Tuesday, April 19, at the Glad Tidings Assemblies of God church in Duluth.

Mrs. Kallberg, the former Lela McEnelly, was born Nov. 8, 1906 at Grygla to Mr. and Mrs. J.A. McEnelly. She was a longtime resident of Hermantown.

Surviving are eight sons: Donald Kallberg, Superior, Wis.; James and Duane of Hermantown; Charles and Mark of Saginaw; Daniel and Clinton, Kelsey; and Eugene, Newburg, Ore.; two daughters: Joanne Carlson, Hermantown, and Janice Goude, Meadowlands; 35 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Also surviving are two brothers: Oliver McEnelly, Goodridge, and Clair, Mesa, Ariz.; and two sisters: Cora Bakke, Los Angeles, Calif.; and Ruby Ramsey, Thief River Falls.

She was preceded in death by her husband Fred Kallberg; a son, Roger, a grandson, Tom Kallberg, her parents, and two brothers: Guy and Roy.

Geneva Romans Services Held In California

Funeral services for Mrs. Russell B. Romans, 58, the former Geneva Tunheim of Newfolden, were held Tuesday, April 12, at St. Paul's Lutheran church in Tracy, Calif. Mrs. Romans died April 9, a victim of cancer.

Rev. Michael Birnbaum officiated at the services. Burial was in the Tracy Public cemetery in Tracy, Calif. The Hotchkiss Mortuary of Tracy was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Bob Carter, Glenn Punkhouser, Charles Cook, Gordon Chambliss, Dick Blexrude and Cy Harrison.

Geneva Bell Tunheim was born Aus. 25, 1925 at Newfolden to Agnes and Edward Tunheim. She was baptized and confirmed at the Bethlehem Lutheran church and attended the Newfolden public school, graduating in 1942.

She was married April 20, 1946 in Thief River Falls to James Gullingsrud. The couple lived here for a number of years before moving to California in the 50's.

On June 29, 1969, she was married at Reno, Nev., to Russell P. Romans. Mrs. Romans served as bookkeeper-accountant for the Owens Illinois Glass container plant until her death.

She is survived by her husband, two sons: Steven Gullingsrud, Sonora, Calif.; and Tom Gullingsrud, North Highlands, Calif.; a daughter, Mrs. David (Marie) Allbut, Walnut Grove, Calif.; and three grandchildren: Robert and Tobi Gullingsrud, Sonora, Calif., and Gabreal Gullingsrud, North Highlands, Calif.

Also surviving are her mother, Mrs. Agnes Tunheim, one sister, Mrs. Freeman (Evelyn) Lanska, and a brother, Glenn Tunheim, all of Thief River Falls.

She was preceded in death by her father, who died April 13, 1940; and a brother, Eugene, who died Aug. 15, 1973.

WINTER SURVIVAL was emphasized in the display of Troop 65 scouts from Argyle. The booth was honored with an award of merit at the annual Voyageur Trails district Boy scout exposition in Thief River Falls Sunday. Each booth was judged against a standard based on participation, appearance, theme presentation, discipline of youths and several other criteria. Pictured in the lean-to are left to right, Jason Crummy, Todd Bjorgaard, Matt Burkett and Tim Bergeron. David St. German leads the troop.

First NW Bank Name Change Slated Monday

Area residents are invited to help employees of First Northwestern state bank in Thief River Falls celebrate the adoption of the bank's new name and corporate identity on Monday. Coffee and cookies will be served.

At 9 a.m. 250 helium-filled balloons will be released from the bank's premises. Mayor Bob Carlson will unveil the new sign. Ceremonies will also be held at the Southside facility with chamber of commerce president Stan Upham unveiling that sign.

As of Monday, First Northwestern state bank will be known as Norwest Bank Thief River Falls. The name change is the result of a change in the name of the bank's parent company, Norwest Corporation of Minneapolis, formerly Northwest Bancorporation. Norwest corporation received official approval for its name change from shareholders at the company's annual meeting April 25.

"This is an historic moment for our bank, and for the corporation," explained Roger J. Reuter, president of First Northwestern. "We want to share the special occasion with our customers and the entire community."

Helium-filled balloons will also be simultaneously released from more than 100 other Norwest locations around the country on Monday. In all, tens of thousands of balloons will be released that day, all bearing the new Norwest logo. "We think the simultaneous balloon release may set a new world's record, for the most balloons released from different locations in one day," Reuter said.

"With the balloons and the community celebration, we're making a statement about who we are, now that we have a new name," he noted. "We want the community to know that, while our name has changed, we still provide the same financial service and reliability as before."

Norwest corporation is a diversified financial services company with 86 commercial banks and several specialized financial services subsidiaries with operations in more than 40 states and several foreign countries. Assets at year-end 1982 totaled $17.6 billion.

Long-Term Care Week Declared For May 8-15

May 8-15 officially was declared long-term care week by Governor Rudy Perpich at a recent proclamation signing.

In the proclamation he urges citizens to join in this observance by acquainting themselves with the many services provided by long-term care facilities and by supporting the effort to provide quality of life for disabled citizens of all ages.

Throughout long-term care week, nursing and boarding care homes, as well as residential facilities for those who are mentally retarded, mentally ill, or physically disabled, will feature events and displays carrying out Minnesota's theme "We Grow — We Share — In Long-Term Care." Invitations will be extended to the facilities' community neighbors to take part in programs that will focus on the range of services designed to meet the total needs of residents in these facilities.

Minnesota's honorary resident, Angela Valinski, East Grand Forks Good Samaritan center, will represent long-term care residents during long-term care week and will be a guest of honor at a celebration recognizing residents and the many contributions they continue to make for long-term care. Said Valinski, "I am doing things now that I never would have had the opportunity to do, if I was not a resident. . ."

Long-term care week is sponsored by the Minnesota Association of Health Care facilities (MAHCF) a voluntary, private, non-profit organization of appxoximately 240 non-proprietary and proprietary facilities located throughout Minnesota.

Appreciation Banquet At Life-Line Sat.

Life-Line Christian center appreciation banquet will be held Saturday at the Newfolden community center.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. followed by a program, scheduled to begin at 8 p.m., by the King's Men of Thief River Falls.

For free tickets call 874-3171, 436-2731 or 436-2618 or write to Gary Donarski, Newfolden, MN 56738.

17th Airborne Trying To Find Members

The 17th airborne division association, composed of men who served as paratroopers and glidermen in the 17th airborne division during World War II, is conducting a membership drive to locate all former members.

If you served with this Division, please contact Edward Siergiej, Secretary-Treasurer, 62 Forty Acre Mountain Road, Danbury, Connecticut 06810, for details of the Division Association as well as information about the 30th annual reunion which this year will be held at the Peabody hotel, Memphis, Tennessee on August 11 to 14.

7th District IR Convention Set At Wadena

State auditor Arne Carlson will be the main speaker at the 7th district Independent-Republication convention banquet to be held at the Pine Cove inn, three miles north of Wadena on Highway 71, May 6, at 7:30 p.m.

Carlson has held the state auditor's office since 1978. During his tenure in office, Carlson has developed a uniform accounting system for all counties and municipalities. . . and has introduced the nation's first financial health program. That program involves analyzing spending and revenue trends over a five-year period to allow for cost comparisons and fiscal profiles of communities of 2,500 people or more. These efforts have resulted in recognition from the general accounting office and were written up in the Wall Street Journal.

Seventh district Congressman Arlan Stangeland will address convention delegates Saturday moring during the first "working session" of the conclave. He was elected in 1977 and presently serves on the House agriculture and public works and transportation committees. He co-chairs the North American trade caucus, which coordinates agriculture and energy policies among Canada, Mexico and the United States.

Prior to his election to congress, Stangeland served in the state house of representatives from 1966 to 1974.

Thanks

I want to thank all my friends and relatives for all their prayers, cards, visits, plants, flowers and phone calls when I was a patient at Northwestern hospital and at St. Mary's in Rochester. It sure helped my stay in the hospital.

I also want to thank all the employees for their part of my care; also many thanks to Dr. Heinrichs and Dr. Garske for their special care.

Thank you all again,

Gunther, Grand Forks, ND, speeding 65 in a 55 mph zone, fined $27.50; and Arnold Robert Smith, Greenbush, truck operated without current log book, fined $50 with sentence suspended. (Due to an error made by the Pennington county clerk of court's office, Arnold Robert Smith was incorrectly listed in the April 20 edition of the Times, as having had his driver's lisence suspended for failure to appear in court.)

Soo Line Net Income Decreases

Net income of Soo Line railroad company for the first quarter of 1983 was $2.3 million, down 61 per cent from first quarter net income in 1982, Thomas M. Beckley, chairman of the board, announced.

Net income per share was 31 cents compared to 79 cents in 1982. Revenues for the quarter were $66.7 million, 12 per cent lower than the prior year due to continued low traffic levels and competitive pricing.

Lumber traffic in the first quarter was up significantly from 1982 reflecting the increase in construction activity. Woodpulp and paper traffic also showed an increase over 1982. Movement of most other major commodities carried by the company decreased. Total carloads handled during the first quarter were down five per cent from last year.

Shipments of grain declined 14 per cent although grain originated at country points was seven per cent higher than last year. Potash traffic was down 12 per cent as a result of competition from other routes and reduced demand for fertilizers because of the payment-in-kind farm program.

Total railway expenses for the quarter were six per cent lower than in 1982. The ratio of expenses to revenues increased from 88.6 per cent in 1982 to 94.4 per cent his year.

Interest income of $1.6 million was down 45 per cent this year due to lower interest rates and reduced investments. Income from Real Estate operations was up 14 per cent. Railway expenses for the first quarter include severance payments of $900,000 made under agreements with certain unions.

In accordance with a February 1983 interstate commerce commission ruling, the company will, for 1983, change to depreciation accounting for track structure from the retirement-replacement-betterment method. Preliminary analysis indicates the effects of this accounting change will result in an increase to net properties and generally higher annual net income.

Federal Budget Deficit May Hike Inflation

Persistent federal budget deficits of the size projected by Congress and the Reagan administration for the next several years would boost inflation, according to an economist at the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis.

In a study just published in the bank's "Quarterly Reveiew," economist Preston J. Miller argues that higher inflation results when governments change their budget policies so that under all economic conditions they run higher deficits than they would have previously.

Both Congress and the Reagan administration have recently projected budget deficits for fiscal 1983-85 of around $200 billion. That is nearly three times greater than deficits have averaged over the last three fiscal years and much greater than deficits have ever been before.

Miller's work suggests that if deficits of this size actually occur and if they represent a more or less permanent shift to higher deficits, the long-run inflation rate in the United States will increase.

Miller's conclusion results, in part, from his statistical tests of U.S. budget policies and inflation since World War II. His conclusion is in sharp contrast to that of many other economists who have studied the same data and found little or no relationship between deficits and inflation.

Miller dismisses those studies as not "properly designed to capture the effects of budget policy changes."

Unlike his study, Miller says, those studies "mistakenly relate isolated deficits and inflation rates instead of properly relating deficit policies and average inflation experience."

Miller is a monetary adviser in the research department of the Minneapolis Fed. During 1981-82, he was senior economist for policy analysis at the Senate budget committee.

Pam Finney Awarded MSU Scholarship

Pamela Finney, a senior at Lincoln high school and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al Finney, has been awarded a presidential scholarship by Moorhead state university.

Established by the Moorhead state faculty, foundation and alumni association, presidential scholarships, equivalent to about a half year's tuition, are reserved for students demonstrating academic ability and talent. They are awarded to incoming freshmen.

Changes Made In Social Security Law

Recent changes in the social security law will affect nearly everyone who works or pays taxes or gets benefits, according to William Phalen, district manager in Grand Forks.

The automatic cost-of-living increase for those getting checks has been postponed for six months. Instead of an adjustment in the July 1983 social security check, the increase will be in the check received in January of 1984. The rise in the consumer price index produces the benefit increase which will be about 3.5 per cent.

In addition to postponing the cost-of-living increase from July to January, the new social security legislation provides for another change of date. The increase in the premium for Part B of Medicare which was scheduled for July of 1983 will be delayed until January of 1984, and any future increases will be on a calendar year basis. That monthly premium will probably increase to $13.50 in January.

Phalen said the purpose of these changes is to help strengthen the social security system and to make it financially sound. Anyone wanting more information should contact the Grand Forks office. The telephone number is 701-772-5517.

May Month For Soil And Water Conservation

Governor Rudy Perpich has signed a proclamation designating May as soil and water conservation month. The proclamation is in response to the critical need to protect and preserve Minnesota's topsoil from erosion, says Allan Gustafson of the Pennington county soil and water conservation district.

According to the USDA soil conservation service (SCS), soil erosion is a critical problem in Minnesota, even with 68 per cent of the cropland adequately protected from erosion. Annually, 100 million tons of soil erodes from Minnesota's cropland, approximately 52 per cent by water and 48 per cent by wind.

Erosion is severe on one-third of Minnesota's cropland where soil losses exceed five tons per acre per year. Soil losses need to be kept below five tons per acre to maintain the land's agricultural productivity for the future.

Landowners continue to fight against erosion by developing conservation plans and installing conservation practices. Working with soil and water conservation districts (SWCD) and SCS, over 21,000 landowners received assistance to plan and install conservation practices in 1982.

Adverse economic conditions in 1982 did not deter farmers from installing conservation practices. "In fact, we had an overall increase in the acres adequately protected with several conservation practices," said Donald Ferren, state conservationist for SCS.

Conservationists reported a significant increase in the use of ridge tillage and no-till in corn and soybeans. With ridge tillage, ridges are formed during one year's cultivation and seeds are planted in the ridges the following year. No-till allows planting without inverting the residue into the soil, giving added soil protection against erosion. Approximately 3.5 million acres of cropland were farmed using conservation tillage in 1982. With conservation tillage, crop residue remains on the soil surface after planting, protecting the soil from erosion by wind and water.

Planting of field windbreaks increased in 1982 with approximately 70 miles of field windbreaks planted throughout the state. Windbreaks break the wind and force it upward, protecting nearby cropland from erosion by wind, Gustafson added.

ROY HOPE of Minneapolis will perform at the Grygla community center on Thursday, May 5 at 8 p.m. There is no admission charge and the event is open to the public. Hope performs traditional hymns as well as family oriented selections. He has worked for the Billy Graham film ministry and has logged over one million miles in travel to date.

Union-Lake Sarah Meeting Set For May 4

Annual meeting of the Union-Lake Sarah Development association will be held Wednesday, May 4, at 8:00 p.m., at Crookston at Northland lodge (the Old Mill Restaurant) located on Highway 2 and 75 north, near the Winter Shows building.

Included on the agenda will be the election of officers. Of the nine directors, three are elected each year for three year terms with the president and first and second vice presidents named each year from the directors. Terms expiring are those of Glenn Hoff of East Grand Forks, who is currently serving as president; William Canniff of Erskine and Dennis Lindberg of Fertile. Retiring vice presidents are Norm Arneson and Dr. Harp Jung, both of Crookston. Continuing are treasurer Don Thoreson of Crookston; secretary Millard A. Nelson, Thief River Falls and hold-over directors: Glen Hoff, Earl Lucht, Norm Arneson, Louis Cournia and Harp Jung of Crookston and Jack Cronquist of Gilby, N.D.

Also on the agenda will be the progress report on the fire number and directory program, as well as committee reports on pollution, litter, policing, membership, the fish stocking program, and a hearing of complaints and abuses.

A social hour and refreshments will follow the meeting.

Congressman Airs Views To Canadians

Congressman Arlan Stangeland met recently with high-ranking Canadian officials visiting Washington to discuss regulations proposed by Ontario which would devastate the tourism trade along the Minnesota-Ontario border.

The informal meeting, held at the home of Allan Gotlieb (Canada's ambassador to the United States), was called to discuss the problems which would be created by the Ontario regulations.

"There must be an alternative to a trade war for tourism dollars between Minnesota and Ontario," Congressman Stangeland told Gotlieb and the 14 cousuls general of the Candian provinces.

"But unless we find that alternative, jobs will be lost on both sides of the border," he said. "Tourists will decide that too many restrictions are placed on our lakes, and they will take their vacations elsewhere."

In 1982, Ontario's provincial government proposed regulations which would require U.S. tourists who fish or hunt on the Canadian territory to pay for nightly accommodations in Ontario. After consulation, these regulations have been delayed for further study.

"One major concern that has been voiced by Ontario is the over-fishing of the lakes," Congressman Stangeland said. "Minnesota has been doing its part by restricting the sale or inheritance of existing commercial fishing licenses. The number of Minnesota commercial fishing operations on these lakes has dropped from 44 in the late 1940s to just 14 today. At the same time, the Ontario fishermen are breaking their own legal limits."

Congressman Stangeland proposed that a joint U.S.-Canadian effort be mounted to provide for fish to be stocked in the border lakes, rivers and streams.

"Minnesota has been cooperating with Ontario's needs, said Congressman Stangeland, co-chairman of the North American trade caucus and a member of the U.S.-Canadian interparliamentary group. "For example, I recently persuaded the U.S. customs service to maintain 24-hour service at our border crossings in northern Minnesota. This will help Ontario's citizens who depend on our northern communities for medical and fire-fighting services."

Congressman Stangeland later reported that the Canadian officials were quite interested in the joint fish-stocking operation. Further meetings are being arranged.

Workshop On Community Betterment Set

"Solving Community Problems by Building Community Partnerships," a workshop sponsored by volunteer for Minnesota (VFM), will be held Tuesday, May 17, at the Northland lodge in Crookston.

Intensive workshop is designed to give community leaders the tools to develop new and innovative public and private partnerships at the local level. Participants will learn how to plan for and effect meaningful change through cooperative efforts, according to Harl Gamber, director of the retired senior volunteer program (RSVP) at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC).

Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m., followed by an introduction to the workshop at 9 a.m. and the morning session at 9:30 a.m. Coalition building will identify community leadership, develop cooperation and commitment among diverse groups, and create change in response to common goals. Needs assessment will help participants identify community needs and priorities, learn various methods of needs assessing, and recognize resources for assessing needs.

Lunch is scheduled from 12 noon to 1 p.m. followed by the afternoon session. Optional resources will examine existing resources; explore new ways to use or refocus monetary, material, and human resources; and look at networking as individuals and organizations. The role of the volunteer will discuss volunteering as a community resource, motivating individuals, and volunteering in direct service and advisory capacities.

Planning for community change, the final session of the day, will prepare strategies for change, use power to influence outcome, and help participants understand and apply the dynamics of community, public, and private partnerships.

Crookston workshop is one of nine one-day workshops scheduled across Minnesota to provide community leaders with the tools and skills to build community coalitions, to cooperatively identify needs and resources, and to plan for organized community change.

All community leaders are urged to attend — local government; non-profit agencies; civic, service and religious organizations; agricultural, business and labor organizations; media; and academic and volunteer communities.

Due to limited space and design of the workshop format, acceptance of applications to participate in the training will be based on a number of factors.

Preference will be given to teams of five to 10 leaders from each community. These leaders should represent a diversity of interests within the community. Teams of less than five from a single community will receive second priority for acceptance. Individuals will be accepted on a space available basis. Fee for these all-day workshops is $10 for each participant. Registration deadline is May 7.

For more information contact Gamber at UMC, phone (218) 281-6510, extension 339.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q Pastor Don, I know people who are very religious and totally sincere, but are not Christians, will God go ahead and accept them anyway?

A A person can be sincere, but he also can be sincerely wrong. There are many cases each year when someone jokingly points a gun at someone else, sincerely believing it is empty. The gun goes off and the other individual is killed, with the person pulling the trigger saying, "I didn't know it was loaded."

That person might be 100% sincere in the fact that he did not want to harm the other individual, but he was sincerely believing something that just was not true. Sincerity is not enough, if the object of belief is not true, and all the sincerity in the world will not bring that person who has been shot with the gun back to life again.

Pro. 16:25 says, "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death."

There is only one way for God to accept us and that is through His Son Jesus Christ.

Jn. 14:6 says, "Jesus saith, I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me."

I Tim. 2:5 says, "For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus."

Eph. 1:6 says, ". . . wherein He hath made us accepted in the beloved."

A religious person has no advantage if he is worshipping the wrong God, no matter how sincere.

God sets the standard, and He will accept only those who come to Him through Jesus Christ.

Acts 4:12 says, "Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved."

If you have any questions that you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Loyalty Day Proclaimed For Sunday

Mayor Bob Carlson, Thief River Falls, has proclaimed Sunday, May 1 as loyalty day in the city.

As part of the proclamation, Mayor Carlson stated, "I hereby call upon all my fellow citizens to take full advantage of the special occasion known as loyalty day, celebrated annually throughout the nation on the first of May, as an incentive for every true American to reaffirm his and her love of flag and country."

Individuals, schools, churches, organizations, business establishments and homes are urged to display their flags on this day.

Veterans of Foreign Wars and auxiliary are sponsoring loyalty day.

Air Force Seeks Prior Servicemen

Air Force is currently looking for prior serviceman to fill critical jobs in the Air Force, according to SSgt. Doug Hagen. Hagen stated some of the critical jobs are in the areas of avionics and munitions, pararescue and intelligence. There are over 22 different critical jobs that need immediate positions filled, said Hagen.

If you have been out of the service less than four years, you may still qualify for one of the openings. You may even qualify to come back into the Air Force at the same rank in which you left, according to Hagen.

Air Force is always looking for prior servicemen to fill specific positions. To find out if you qualify for one of these positions, contact Hagen at (218) 751-6130 collect, or stop by his office on Hwy 2 West, Bemidji, MN 56601.

BSU To Offer Tours To Asia And Europe

History, culture and heritage of many countries will be explored during various international tours to Europe and Asia offered by Bemidji state university.

From June 10 to 25, participants will follow an itinerary which includes Delhi, Jaipur, Agra, Kathmandu and Calcutta, among other sites in India and Nepal. Excursions will take this group to see landmarks such as the India Gate, the Taj Mahal and the Victoria memorial. All the sites commonly associated with these two countries will be seen and studied.

The 16th annual European tour July 4-24 will travel to France, Germany and Great Britian. Well known historical and cultural sites in these lands will be visited. Those places include Westminster Abbey, the Louvre museum, Giotto's bell tower and the Drosselgasse. Students will finish this tour by taking a full day excursion to Oxford and the birthplace of William Shakespeare, Stratford-on-Avon.

A British Isles tour will go to England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales August 3-17 to see places of cultural and historical note. The group will tour Windsor castle, Runnymeade, the Sir Walter Scott monument and see the Book of Kells in Trinity college library.

Conducted by the foreign studies program, the tours may be taken to earn graduate or undergraduate credit. The European tour is available for as many as six credits while the program to the British Isles and Asia are offered for up to four credits.

Further information costs and registration materials regarding these tours can be obtained by writing: Kenneth Henriques, Bangsberg Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601 or calling 218-755-2864.

Revenue Dep't. Notes Golden Anniversary

Department of revenue, income tax division, is celebrating its 50th anniversary April 21. Fifty years ago the department started collecting an income tax to provide funds to finance state government, and desired legislative projects and programs.

Over the 50 years the department estimates it has collected $16,023,619,000.00 in individual taxes.

While the department of revenue figures show a gradual increase in income tax collections over the last 50 years, there's also been a corresponding increase in both population and per capita income. Population has grown from about 2,500,000 in the early 1930's to over 4,100,000 in the 1980's. Annual per capita personal income has grown from an average $300 in 1933 to over $11,000 in 1983. When Minnesota's population and economic conditions flourished, so did state income tax collections.

Income tax revenue now provides about 40 per cent of the entire state budget. During the first year of enactment the income tax division collected, from individual taxpayers, total revenue of $310,639.00.

In 1982, the last full year for collections, the income tax division collected $1,558,954,000.00.

Recovery For Region May Be Even Stronger

Economic recovery in the region is underway and may even be stronger than predicted last fall by economists at the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis, according to the Fed's just released "Quarterly Review."

This improved outlook is attributable to three unexpected developments: A faster - than - anticipated national recovery, a decline in petroleum prices, and implementation of the U.S. department of agriculture's payment-in-kind (PIK) program.

Forecasters are now anticipating that real gross national product (GNP) will increase around 4.7 per cent between the fourth quarters of 1982 and 1983, instead of the 4.2 per cent they were predicting in December. This faster growth in real GNP suggests that nationwide demand for district goods and services will be stronger than expected. The national economy's performance was surprisingly strong in January with a decline in the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate and a substantial boost to industrial production, which, seasonally adjusted, rose 0.9 per cent, its first sharp rise in 11 months.

Giving further credence to the prospects for a stronger-than-expected national and district recovery is the recent drop in OPEC petroleum prices, from $34 to $29 per barrel. The area currently uses about 179 million barrels of petroleum per year. At this rate, a $5 per barrel price cut, if passes on to petroleum users, would amount to an annual savings of $895 million for area consumers, businesses and governments. This approximates the amount area residents will receive from the 10 per cent federal personal income tax cut scheduled for July. With more spendable income, retail sales and tourism should expand.

Given that petroleum accounts for six per cent of farm production expenses, a cut in petroleum prices should provide some relief to the area's hard-pressed farmers as well. However, the cut in petroleum prices and resulting cutback in exploration in the western part of the region have reduced spending in these states and will reduce tax revenues from petroleum exploration and production.

Both gross sales and net income for farmers are expected to be higher than they would have been without the PIK program. Because farmers will receive grain that is currently being stored from the USDA for reducing their planted acreage, farmers who enroll in the PIK program will have almost as much grain to market as harvesttime as if they had planted normally. By reducing the amount of grain held in storage, the PIK program will raise grain prices. At the same time, operating expenses for those farmers enrolled in the program will decline because, with fewer acres to plant, farmers will be able to decrease their purchases of seed, fuel, machinery, fertilizer and other inputs. The USDA predicts that the PIK program will lower farm production expenses about four per cent this year. If these predictions of higher gross sales and lower operating expenses prove to be correct, farmers net income will rise.

As expected, a decline in mortgage interest rates last summer and early fall led the area's recovery, resulting in an increase in real estate sales and homebuilding. Building permits for housing units in the region rose 32 per cent, seasonally adjusted, between the third and fourth quarters of 1982. Moreoever, the recovery began spreading to other sectors of the economy in early 1983. Preliminary estimates now indicate that the region's employment, seasonally adjusted, rose 0.9 per cent between December and January. Although economists at the Fed predict the region's recovery in 1983 may be slightly less robust than the 4.7 per cent consensus forecast for real GNP at the national level, developments so far in 1983 suggest that it will be stronger than they anticipated last fall.

Model Moms Do What Is Natural

by Madeleine Jacobs · Smithsonian News Service

Time has come to set the record straight: There is no such thing as a "bad mother."

This, of course, will come as no surprise to millions of moms who have been telling their children that for years.

On the other hand, there is no such thing as a "good mother." No, when it comes to motherdom, at least in the wild, scientists say mothers merely do what comes naturally.

In fact, what appears in the eyes of the human beholder to be material ministering, or lack of it, is something that is largely 'pre-programmed" by nature, explains Dr. Devra G. Kleiman, head of the department of zoological research at the Smithsonian's national zoological park in Washington, D.C.

For the vast majority of animals, Klieman points out, this program means doing absolutely nothing. Thousands and thousands of animal species never even see their mothers, much less get a goodnight hug.

Still, throughout the animal kingdom there are creatures who know the "true" burdens of motherhood, those who put their hearts, heads and even, on occasion, their stomachs, into mothering.

Not surprisingly, animals occupying the lowest rungs of the evolutionary ladder appear to have the least complex parenting plans. It most invertebrate species (animals without backbones) a mother's work is done when she lays her eggs. But there are some notable exceptions. A female whip scorpion carries her newly hatched babies in the brood chamber of her abdomen until the young go through several molts, and the wolf spider gives her one hundred youngsters a free ride on her back during their first week of life.

Some insect mothers even tutor their tots. In one species of cobweb spider, the young remain in the mother's tangled web for about a month after hatching, feeding on ants captured by mom. If they venture too close to a struggling ant, mamma warns them off by thrumming her forelegs on the web, rather like a musician strumming the strings of a violin. But as they grow larger and can help with the capture, mom changes her tune, summoning them with a different, sweeping motion of the forelegs.

Still other invertebrates take motherhood seriously. In at least one genus of snails, the female broods her eggs in a special pouch in her head; the young are released through a slit in the neck. Other snails really put their hearts into reproduction; females of these species store the male's sperm in the pericardial sac prior to fertilization.

Maternal care is largely lacking in amphibians and reptiles, which lay eggs or even produce live young but don't have the guts to stay around for midnight feedings. One amphibian that does seem to stomach motherhood is a recently discovered Australian frog. As a prospective parent, the female has peculiar tastes: She actually swallows her eggs and they develop to maturity inside her stomach. Propelled by a motherly hiccup, young adults emerge from mom's mouth. No one can yet explain this miracle of motherhood but, needless to say, scientists are anxious to learn how this unorthodox diet defies digestion.

Moving on to reptiles, the most advanced form of mothership occurs, somewhat surprisingly, among the crocodilians. The mother lays her eggs in a specially constructed nest of dirt, leaves, sticks and debris and keeps a watchful eye — and fearsome teeth — trained for potential predators. Just before they hatch, the young emit high-pitched croaks that bring mamma croc scurrying to her nest. She begins tearing material off the top to free her young from the sun-baked dirt. Then, this 20-foot-long mom gingerly plucks-up the tiny eight-inch-long babies with her powerful jaws and carries them singly or by pairs to the water where she will protect them from predators for a year or more.

Birds are the most devoted parents and this includes fathers, who are conspiciously absent from parental provisioning in most of the animal kingdom. But there are exceptions to this avian partnership. The male bowerbird of Australia and New Guinea, for instance, woos a wife by building an elaborate altar, on which he sings loudly, dramatically displaying his plumage. Alas, having fallen for this flight of fancy, the expectant mother finds herself left alone in a simple nest to brood over single parenthood. So much for romance.

Even when she has a helpmate, a feathered female may go to extraordinary lengths to protect her nest and young. If an intruder approaches the home of many ground-nesting mothers, such as killdeers (in the plover family), the mother will lead it away by feigning a broken wing. The ostensibly injured mom drags her wing on the ground, flops around and tries to fly, all the while moving away from the nest. As soon as the predator is well away from the nest, however, mom miraculously recovers and flies home.

But if you're looking for the true meaning of motherhood, your search must end with the mammals, that electic class of animals that includes, among other creatures, the duck-bill platypus and the spiny anteater (the only two mammals that lay eggs), as well as kangaroos, bats, giraffes, zebras, California sea lions, hippopotamuses, blue whales, giant pandas, macaques, chimpanzees and, of course, humans.

The National zoo's Klieman, who has studied parental behavior in a veritable menagerie of animals, explains that mammal mothers are, simply put, "indispensable to their young."

"This is understandable," she says, "since the female mammal has internal gestation (with two exceptions) and nurses her developing offspring with the products of her own body. The mother-infant relationship is the first and, in most cases, the longest-lasting relationship that a mammal forms."

It's a relationship that may be exceedingly close, as in the case of marsupials like the kangaroo and oppossum; their babies are nursed in built-in pouches and mom doesn't leave home without them. Other mobile moms include some species of bats that fly with their young attached until the babies are nearly as large as the mothers.

MIXING DOUGH for pizzas can be a challenge, especially when the mixing machine is the same size as the mixer. Jeremi Hanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Hanson, took a look behind the scenes at the pizza operation last Friday. Kindergarten students from Mark Twain went on a field trip sponsored by the Pizza Hut. They learned how the dough and sauce are made and how the actual ingredients are placed on the pizzas.

For sheer motherliness, it's hard to beat most monkeys. A macaque mother, for instance, is in constant contact with her infant for its first three months. The baby is born with the ability to cling to its mother's underbelly; immediately after birth, mother and child can be on the go with the entire troop.

Kleiman's personal favorite candidate for supermom is the giant panda, one of the world's rarest mammals and a creature she has studied both in its native China and at the National zoo. The female giant panda, despite her 250-pound heft, is a tender and skillful mother. She has to be: A newborn panda cub weighs a scant four ounces. It is a fragile completely helpless, pink-skinned baby totally dependent on its mother — who lavishes it with nonstop mothering. No matter that picks up her infant with her mouth to groom and to manipulate the baby for nursing — it works. In just a few weeks, baby is a miniature version of its cuddly black-and-white mother.

Yet, the measure of a "good" mother is not how much time she spends with her children, Kleiman insists. "In order to be 'motherly,'" she says, "some mothers literally have to ignore their young" — or risk exposing them to deadly situations.

Thus, mothers who appear to be malingerers turn out to be model moms when closely examined. For instance, the mother Dorcas gazelle, a small North African antelope, is rarely seen with her calf during its first few weeks, but this sleek, swift creature only seems to be a bad mamma. In truth, shortly after birth, the calf crouches down into the grass, nearly disappearing from view — and from potential predators. Mom returns periodically from her foraging to nurse the hidden infant. This behavior, by the way, is typical of many deer and gazelles including the common white-tailed deer.

Although these no-nonsense relationships may not sound much like "motherly love" to human ears, each is an example of successful mothering. What, if not success, is motherhood all about? Or could there be something more?

Says Kleiman, "Most mothers, including human mothers, do what they do because they're genetically 'pre-programmed' to respond specifically to the sound, sight and smell of their own offspring. And there's a real deep underlying responsiveness of mothers to those particular qualities. These mothers develop a special bond with their own. I don't know if you call that motherly 'love,' but it certainly is motherly.

"Of course," she adds, "in humans as in some other animals, successful mothers are not necessarily born. There is a lot of fine-tuning involved in this relationship, in learning to be a 'good' mother." And that, in the end, may be what motherhood is all about.

Pizza Pickup Set Saturday

Persons who ordered pizza through the recent fund-raising event at St. Bernard's school are asked to pick up their purchases Saturday between 1 and 3 p.m. at the church basement.

STRING OF CHEESE only makes eating pizza more fun. Kandee Normandin, daughter of Sandra Normandin, enjoyed eating the pizza she made. Mark Twain kindergarten students, taught by Sharon Iverson, experienced a field trip last Friday at the Pizza Hut. Manager Mike Lee and owner Jerry Fessler were also on hand to give the students pointers.

RUSHING THE SEASON, Les DeBriyn exhibits some green beans which he grew at his farm east of Thief River Falls and which he said he fully intended to have for supper. The beans were grown in an indoor pot, of course, but matured in about a month from planting, DeBriyn said. While most residents of the area are just getting ready to plant their garden crops, at least one was getting ready to harvest his.

CURTIS R. JOHNSON recently started work at the Production Credit association in Thief River Falls as branch manager. A graduate of Moorhead state university, Johnson has worked as a PCA loan officer for the past eight years in Perham. He grew up on a dairy and grain farm at Mahnomen where his parents continue to reside. Curt and his wife Debby have two children.

REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

One legislator referred to the grain buyers bill as "one of those happy bills that everyone says they like and then starts to pick apart." As he noted, parts of it were attacked by various groups, so the author "must be doing something right."

At hearings, farmers, county recorders, grain buyer bond sellers and spokesmen for grain buyers, truckers and coops all had their chance to praise the bill in general and point out changes they thought needed to be made in parts of it.

The bill was revised to reflect some of these views and was passed by the agriculture committee. The thrust of long overdue changes in the grain buyers act is to protect farmers who produce grain from losing their income because of others' losses or bad business practices.

A controversial proposal — a grain buyers indemnity fund — will now be settled by farmers themselves. The bill provides for a referendum to be held on Aug. 1, 1984 so all grain producers can decide if they want this fund.

This referendum will be handled as the commodity promotion referendums were — by farmers voting at the county extension office.

If passed, the indemnity fund would accumulate through a check-off of one-fourth to one-half cent per bushel sold. The fund would be used to reimburse a grain producer for up to 90 per cent of a loss suffered in the event of the bankruptcy of a grain buyer.

The proposed legislation also changes the basis for bonding grain buyers. In current law, bonds and their amounts are based on the number of trucks or warehouses a grain buyer owns or operates.

The new bill would base bonding on gross annual sales. Grain buyers with less than $100,000 in annual sales must have a $10,000 bond; those with $100,000 but less than $750,000 must have a $20,000 bond; between $750,000 and $1.5 million must have a $30,000 bond; between $1.5 and $3 million, must have a $40,000 bond; and those whose gross annual sales exceed $3 million must be bonded for $50,000.

A minor change requiring liens to be filed in the county where a farmer resides rather than in the county where his or her crop is grown would help bankers and elevators. Last year Minnesota elevators, for example, lost $325,000 because they did not find out through normal inquiries that a lien was already placed on a crop.

Every grain buyer in Minnesota will have to keep financial records which the department of agriculture could request to audit annually. This, too, is meant to provide greater safety for grain producers, because it will be another check on the fly-by-might unscrupulous buyer.

The bill also clarifies price-later and other contractual arragements and the definition of independent grain buyer. It now blends divergent views and provides new methods to serve the true producer of Minnesota's grains.

If you have any comments on this bill or any other measure before the House at this time, please contact me at my legislative office Room 263 State Office Building, St. Paul 55155 or (612) 296-9918.

Clean Air Week Brings Awareness

Clean air week is May 2-8, and according to the American lung association of Minnesota, the health costs of unhealthy air in the United States are staggering. Association estimates that almost 45 million Americans may be exposed to unhealthy levels of outdoor air pollution. Decreased productivity and increased absenteeism due to illness caused by air pollution is estimated to cost employers over $40 billion a year.

Two studies recently cited in "Science News" indicate levels of carbon monoxide (CO) in certain kinds of buildings may be "a sleeping hazard."

The lower floors of a new Palo Alto, CA office building were found repeatedly to have CO levels of more than nine parts of CO per million of air. The structure of the building was such that exhaust gases from the basement garage were allowed to infiltrate the offices located above, and workers were unwittingly exposed to this hazard.

Investigating a sharp rise in absenteeism after a Vancover, British Columbia firm moved to a new location, a father-son, biostatistician-architect team discovered a "slow buildup of photochemical smog" in the building. Worker complaints ranged from eye irritations and drowsiness to headache and nausea. The newly-renovated building was mechanically ventilated and its windows were permanently sealed. After a number of studies, Theodore and Elia Sterling changed the sunlight-simulatine fluorescent light bulbs to standard "cool white" bulbs. Building illness symptoms and complaints were greatly reduced.

Sterlings concluded that with insufficient ventilation significant amounts of sunlight - simulatine flourescent lighting may generate indoor smog by a photochemical change caused by the ultraviolet light.

Smoking adds to the risk of developing lung and other diseases especially for people exposed to respiratory workplace hazards. Increasing evidence also shows the danger to non-smoking and smoking workers of breathing second-hand smoke generated by smokers. For further information on air pollutants, and how you can help prevent them, contact the American Lung Association of Minnesota, 614 Portland Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102, (612) 227-8014.

STAGE BAND from Pershing high school in Plummer will be presented along with other musical groups in concert Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the school gymnasium. Fifth and sixth grade band, junior band, senior band, stage band, massed junior and senior band, high school choir and a number of vocal and instrumental solos and instrumental ensembles will also be featured, according to Larry Larson, music instructor.

VOCAL SOLOIST Nancy Hesse (left) reviews her music with accompanist LaNette Konickson in preparation for the Pershing high school spring concert in Plummer Thursday at 7:30 p.m. She will sing "Beautiful Savior" as part of the vocal program which will also include the high school choir.

PASTEL DRAWINGS by Lorie Grove, sophomore at Pershing high school, will be among many art works exhibited before and after the spring music concert Thursday evening at the school in Plummer. Art work will be on display in the school multi-purpose room, according to Nancy Harmon, art instructor.

UMC Slates Ag Career Awareness Day

Ag career awareness day is scheduled for Friday, May 6, at the University of Minnesota Crookston (UMC) beginning at 9:30 a.m.

"The event, which is the first to be offered by the university, is planned for those students who have not had the opportunity to enroll in a secondary vocational agriculture program," said Don Miller, assistant professor of rural communication and chairman of the event.

KCUM, the campus radio station, will be in operation; soil testing and grain cleaning machines will be demonstrated; and students will have the opportunity to take their first flight lesson on a simulator with the ag aviation department. The use of equipment and hands-on instruction will be demonstrated in each of the 23 program areas.

"Students will have opportunities to explore any three career areas and visit with our professors about specific careers," added Miller.

Registration begins at 9:30 a.m. in Kiehle auditorium. Individual sessions will be held every half hour from 10 a.m. to 12 noon when an assembly will be held, followed by a free meal at 12:30 p.m. All high school juniors and seniors are encouraged to attend, according to Miller.

For more information contact UMC's agriculture division at (218) 281-6510, extension 302.

MARSHMALLOW FUDGE BARS

¾ cup white sugar, 3 tblsp. cocoa, ½ cup shortening, ¼ tsp. baking powder, 2 eggs, ¼ tsp. salt, ¾ cup flour, 1 tsp. vanilla, 1—10 oz. pkg. marshmallows, ½ cup chopped nuts.

Method:

Cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs and beat well. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and cocoa together. Add vanilla and nuts. Put into greased 9x13 pan. Bake at 325 degrees for 30 minutes. Remove from oven and place marshmallows on top and return to oven for 3 minutes. Spread marshmallows evenly. Cool and frost with your favorite frosting. Yields about 30 bars.

Wildlife Group Wins Damages Against Airlines

Pan American World Airways has paid a $500 fine for violating the inhumane shipment prohibition of the Lacey Act following the deaths in transit of three South American sea lions the airline was shipping from Uruguay to the United States, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) has announced. The fine is the maximum for this offense.

Three marine mammals were shipped from the Montevideo Zoo on October 11, 1980, and destined for the Riverbanks Zoological Park in Columbia, South Carolina. They were dead on arrival at John F. Kennedy Airport in New York after a 12-hour journey in a single container that an aquarium curator said was "barely suitable" for each animal.

Each sea lion was about four feet long and weighed about 125 pounds. They were shipped in a container that measured 5'3" x 3'5" x 2'2". Necropsy findings indicated, that the animals died of crowding, stress and hyperthermia.

Lacey Act makes it unlawful for any person, including any importer or carrier, to cause or permit any wild animal or bird to be transported to the United States under inhamane or unhealthful conditions. Condition of the enclosure in which wild animals are confined constitutes evidence concerning a violation and a substantial ratio of dead, crippled, diseased or starving wild animals is considered prima facie evidence. Penalties for violations are $500 or six months' imprisonment, or both.

Investigation began when the three dead sea lions were taken to the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Special agents of the Fish and Wildlife Service contacted the chief veterinarian at the Bronx Zoo and the past curator of the New York Aquarium for expert advice. Dr. Allen Herron, a veterinarian at the Bronx Zoo, performed the necropsies whose findings suggested that the deaths were consistent with others that resulted from stress and hyperthermia caused by close confinement and poor ventilation.

Jim Sheridan, special agent in charge of the FWS regional law enforcement office in Boston, said of the humane shipment requirement of the Lacey Act, "The provision applies not only to importers, but to carriers as well. This may sound a little dramatic, but because of their option of refusing to accept for shipment wildlife that is not enclosed in containers that will insure the animals' well-being, carriers such as airlines literally are in a position to make 'life or death' decisions in these situations. While the FWS goal is not to single out one shipper or carrier, we hope that this case will serve as a reminder of their responsibility under federal law and that future compliance will have its intended benefit — the conservation of wildlife."

Their lion-like roar and mobility on land make sea lions attractive as zoo animals. They are in the same family as fur seals, but their short hair makes them of no value as fur animals. South American sea lions are larger than California sea lions. They have been exploited less, mainly due to the inaccessibility of their habitats, primarily rocky, coastal islands.

In an unrelated Department of Agriculture case, an air carrier and a wildlife shipper were recently fined $500 following the deaths of 11 reindeer en route from Alaska to Minnesota. USDA's animal welfare act applies to the transporation, care, handling and treatment of animals, including marine mammals, in the United States.

Requirements pertaining to the humane shipment of wildlife are specified in federal regulations that are available through the USDA and in International Air Transport Association regulations that are available through member airlines.

10TH GRADE ARTIST Dean Torkelson, whose drawings appear in the background, will be among Pershing high school students in Plummer having art work on display for the spring art show Thursday. The show will be conducted in the school multi-purpose room before and after the spring music concert at 7:30 p.m. Exhibiting at the show will be all elementary grades, one junior high and two senior high art classes under the instruction of Nancy Harmon. Mike Trudeau, art instructor at Northland community college in Thief River Falls, will judge the art show.

Several April Stars Mark Vast Distances

Like candles marking the way for ancient travelers, stars can act as markers of the vast distances within the universe, distances impossible to estimate in any other way. Some of these distance markers are visible now in the night sky of late April.

Simplest sentinel is Venus, the bright planet now seen near the moon after sunset. Its distance from Earth, which varies throughout the year, is currently about 100 million miles. This was determined by radar some 15 years ago when radar waves were bounced off the planet and their return time was measured. The result became the most precise interplanetary astronomical distance known to scientists.

Open star clusters, the next kind of distance marker used by astronomers, are groups of stars that have been held together by gravity since their birth, and therefore lie a common distance away. One of these clusters, the Hyades, is visible now, as a big "V" in the western sky between the constellation Orion — a giant lopsided rectangle — and the Pleiades, a tight group of six to eight visible stars.

Within as short a time as 10 years, an observer looking through a telescope can see these stars — numbering about 100 — converging. This indicates that they are receding from Earth, much as faraway snowflakes look closer together than those nearby. Now about 120 light-years away (720 trillion miles), the speed of the Hyades cluster — and so its distance from Earth — can be detected by measuring this retreat. "The Hyades are an important link in a very delicate chain of measurements leading to estimates of the size and age of the whole universe," said Tom Jones, an astronomer at the University of Minnesota.

The next kind of distance marker is a class of stars called the Cepheid variables, Jones said. These red and yellow giant stars, easily identifiable through a telescope, pulsate in periods of a few days up to a few years, with light output profiles that are known because the internal physics of these stars is fairly well understood. So, when a Cepheid variable star is seen in a cluster or galaxy of unknown distance, astronomers can figure from its perceived brightness how far away it and its cluster or galaxy really are, much as the distance to a 100 watt light bulb could be calculated if it looked like only a 40 watt bulb from a given location.

Yet farther away, where star clusters and Cepheid variables cannot be seen at all, astronomers use another kind of distance marker: the very brightest and largest stars in the universe. Called Supergiants, these stars, which are mostly blue, are 100 to 200 times more massive than the sun and lie within Earth's nearest galaxy neighbor. Because the physics of these stars is fairly well understood, and because their distances from Earth are also known, their intrinsic brightness has also been calculated. So, when other blue Supergiants are seen in vastly more distant galaxies and appear to be of a certain brightness, the distance of those galaxies can then be figured.

Research along these lines is being conducted by University of Minnesota astronomer Roberta Humphreys and a handful of other astronomers across the country.

As Albert Einstein once said, "What is inconceivable about the universe is that it is at all conceivable."

Region 13 Field Will Be Strong

Line-up for the 1983 National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) Region 13 baseball tournament that will be played in Thief River Falls Friday, May 13, isn't finalized yet. Certain at this point is that Northland community college, by virtue of its first-place position at the mid-season mark of the Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) Northwest Division race, will be the host team for the six-team event that will qualify its winner for one of the eight NJCAA district tournaments across the country, eventually leading to the national tournament.

Northland has never before been involved in the baseball playoffs, and the prospects of hosting the tournament has excited coach Chet Engelman, who welcomes the opportunity to play top-notch competition, even if that competition admittedly might be a bit stiff for the Northmen. Northland's short, compact baseball schedule normally involves only home-and-home doubleheaders against Northwest Division rivals Brainerd, Fergus Falls and the University of Minnesota-Crookston, along with maybe a game or two against the likes of the University of North Dakota junior varsity.

Now they're going to get a chance to see the "big boys." First round Region 13 draw has the MCCC Northeast Division representative playing North Dakota; the MCCC Southeast Division representative playing Wisconsin; and the MCCC Southwest Division representative playing Northland, the already-determined Northwest Division entry.

In the MCCC baseball set-up, according to Engelman, Vermilion, Hibbing, Itasca, Lakewood and Anoke-Ramsey comprise the Northeast Division; Worthington, Willmar, Golden Valley Lutheran and North Hennepin play in the Southwest Division; Austin, Rochester, Normandale and Inver Hills make up the Southeast Division; while Northland, UMC, Fergus Falls and Brained form the familiar Northwest Division. Waseca, Mankato Bethany, Rainy River, Mesabi and Minneapolis do not field baseball teams.

What that all means is that Northland is likely to run into either North Hennepin or Golden Valley Lutheran come Region 13 time.

North Hennepin won the Southwest Division title last year with an 11-1 record and captured the Region 13 tournament crown before losing at the district level to Boone, Iowa.

Coach Steve Cohen told Gary Johnston of the North Hennepin Post that the Norsemen were eager to get the 1983 season underway with a strong line-up returning from a year ago when they finished 20-5 overall.

Pitching was expected to be one of the strangths for North Hennepin with three returning hurlers who compiled a combined 17-4 mark last year, including lefthander Mark Kolling, who was 6-0. The staff gained a lift with the addition of Mike Hennessy who was 6-1 for the Norsemen in 1981 before missing last year.

North Hennepin's offense features NJCAA All-American shortstop Greg Felling, who set three school records last spring. He had a .443 batting average, hit four home runs, had four triples, 32 runs-batted-in and had a .635 on-base average for the lead-off spot.

Meanwhile, North Hennepin is expected to be challenged in the Southwest Division race by Golden Valley Lutheran, the much-disliked Edina of the MCCC.

And after recruiting several players with fat batting averages from around the state, Royals coach Bill Lundquist indicated to Dave Pedersen of the Post that it should be a good season at GVL. Lundquist ended 1982 with his 300th career victory at the school to go along with 95 losses and six division titles in 14 years.

Golden Valley features three strong catchers, including All-Region 13 pick Brad Busse, who Lundquist calls the "finest catcher ever to play at Golden Valley; a pro prospect." He threw out a THIEF RIVER FALLS freshman Al Erickson stretched to return a shot against Crookston Monday as teammate Dan Imgrund, a sophomore, looked on during the No. 1 doubles match of the Prowlers' 1983 tennis home opener. The Pirates' Will Schnabel and Brent Melsa edged the Prowlers' Erickson-Imgrund combination 3-6, 6-2, 6-4 on the wind-swept Northland community college courts. Crookston went on to win the dual meet decision 4-1.

Prowlers Defeat Rams 4-1

Brian Johnston pitched shutout ball for six innings Tuesday as the Lincoln high school baseball team collected its second win in two starts by winning a 4-1 decision at Roseau.

Thief River Falls scored twice in both the first and third innings, with Johnston collecting three RBI's in the process.

A pair of first inning errors by Roseau shortstop Larry Goos put Tim Bottem and Jim Hallamek on base for the Prowlers, and Johnston followed with a two-run single up the middle.

Bottem and Hallamek also scored the third inning runs, this time after both had singled. Johnston hit into an infield ground-out, but got an RBI out of it, then Kerry Wollin drove in the Prowlers' fourth run of the game with a single. They left runners stranded on second and third in the inning, but they had that 4-0 lead.

Roseau didn't score until the seventh when Sid Thompson singled, Mitch Easton walked, and both runners moved up on a fly-out. The run crossed the plate on a ground-out by Goos.

The game was played under less-than-ideal weather conditions — a muddy field and extremely strong winds.

"It was tough," said Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell of the conditions. "But in spite of that, both teams played well. Johnston pitched real well for us even though he was sick. He had good control."

Thief River Falls was without the services of starting first baseman Gary Cornell, who had his appendix taken out yesterday and will miss the rest of the season. It's been a tough year on the junior, who earlier missed three football games with a leg injury that forced him to miss half of the hockey season.

After back-to-back wins over Class A opponents Red Lake Falls and Roseau, Thief River Falls faces a string of five straight Class AA games against North Half Region 8AA opponents: Thursday at Crookston, 4 p.m.; Saturday at home against Fergus Falls for a doubleheader, 12 noon; Tuesday at Moorhead, 4:30 p.m. and Thursday, May 5, vs. Bemidji, 4:30 p.m.

Tuesday's Thief River Falls- Roseau junior varsity game was canceled because of the wet diamond. Thief River Falls junior varsity will follow the varsity schedule over the next five games, playing alongside the Prowlers against Crookston, Fergus Falls, Moorhead and Bemidji.

Girls Track Team Runs In Detroit Lakes Meet

Point totals not withstanding, coach Tom Schafer figures his Lincoln high school girls track team had a successful outing Monday at Detroit Lakes, where the host Lakers swept all four divisions — varsity, ninth grade, eighth grade and seventh grade.

It was afterall, the Prowlers' first outdoor meet of the season, a fact complicated even more by the annual slow-to-dry Thief River Falls cinder track that allowed its use just days before the Monday meet. The Prowlers opened the 1983 season with back-to-back indoor meet appearances at Crookston. Detroit Lakes, pointed out Schafer, has a big edge over Thief River Falls at this point.

Detroit Lakes won the varsity division with 140 points, followed by Thief River Falls with 48, Mahnomen 21 and Waubun 18.

Point totals in the rest of the divisions included:

Ninth grade — Detroit Lakes 93, Thief River Falls 66, Waubun 18, Mahnomen 14; eighth grade — Detroit Lakes 102, Waubun 28, Mahnomen 23, Thief River Falls 20; seventh grade — Detroit Lakes 92½, Waubun 39, Thief River Falls 38 and Mahnomen 16½.

"All the kids got a chance to run," explained Schafer. "We have nothing to complain about. "We would have liked the point spread to be smaller, of course, but we're pretty satisfied with the results. It could be a good year for us yet."

Thief River Falls' best efforts at the varsity level were in the 100-meter hurdles, where sophomore Stacie Kruta won with a 17.4 clocking, and in the 1600-meter relay, where junior Paula Wilkens, sophomore Georgia Howard, senior Hildegunn Nyland and Kruta turned in a first place 4:25 effort.

Varsity and junior varsity teams will compete in the UMC Invitational Friday at Crookston starting at 4 p.m. Thief River Falls' Quentin Jones Invitational — featuring both boys and girls competition — will be held Tuesday starting at 4 p.m.

LHS Golf Team Wins First Meet

It was a successful 1983 season debut for the Lincoln high school golf team Tuesday as the Prowlers won first place honors in a 19-team field at the Bagley-Fosston invitational.

Thief River Falls edged Fosston 329-330 for the title, followed by Roseau at 334, East Grand Forks 346, Stephen 346, Bemidji 346, Moorhead 350, Walker 353, Detroit Lakes 358, Bagley 366, Clearbrook-Gonvick 375, Hallock 385, Red Lake Falls 386, Warren 397, Norman County West 397, Blackduck 402, Mahnomen 413, Fertile-Beltrami 443, and Cass Lake 453.

Chris Daniels of Fosston was meet medalist with a 76, with Thief River Falls' Dan Upham and Jim Geatz finishing two-three in the medal standings with a 79 and 80, respectively.

Upham shot a 42 at Bagley and a 37 at Fosston for his 79. Geatz shot a 41 at Bagley and a 39 at Fosston for his 80.

Other meet-counting scores for the Prowlers included an 84 by Bob Evans, who shot a 40 at Bagley and a 44 at Fosston, and an 86 by Mark Gere, who shot a 42 at Bagley and a 44 at Fosston.

Bob Geatz and Bob Breiland shot 89 and 92, respectively, to round out the Prowlers' scores, with Geatz getting a 45 at Bagley and a 44 at Fosston, while Breiland shot a 44 at Bagley and a 48 at Fosston.

Thief River Falls' next start will be Friday at Fergus Falls at 9:30 a.m.

LHS Track Team Participates At UMC Tuesday

Thief River Falls' third outing of the 1983 high school track season came Tuesday at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) invitational.

Twin Valley won the meet with 133 points, followed by Crookston with 113, East Grand Forks 88, Ada 70, Thief River Falls 62, Fosston 29½, and Roseau 17.

Weather conditions were described as "miserable" by Thief River Falls coach Tim Olson as the teams competed under overcast skies, wind and cold. "It was hard to judge times when it's cold like that and the kids don't have a chance to warm-up," explained Olson.

Thief River Falls' only win was turned in by sophomore Chris Helle in the pole vault, one of only two individuals to clear the 9-6 starting height.

Next start for the Prowlers will be Tuesday when they host the Thief River Falls Quentin Jones invitational.

Tennis Dual . . .

Pirates Beat Prowlers 4-1

Crookston defeated Thief River Falls 4-1 Monday in high school tennis action, spoiling the Prowlers' 1983 home opener.

It was the second Crookston victory over Thief River Falls this spring, with the previous encounter being a 5-0 Pirate decision as part of a season-opening triangular back on April 11 at Grand Forks.

"I thought we could get them this time," reflected Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson. But instead the Pirates won almost everything in straight sets as the players on both sides battled fierce winds.

Only Thief River Falls win came at No. 2 doubles where seniors Steve Bendickson and Ken Kompellen defeated Crookston's Shawn Benson and Darren Mjoen 6-4, 6-1.

Thief River Falls lost a chance to sweep the doubles when freshman Al Erickson and sophomore Dan Imgrund lost at No. 1 to Will Schnabel and Brent Melsa 3-6, 6-2, 6-4 — blowing a 4-0 third set lead.

Olson also thought the Prowlers could have collected a win by senior Chad Broadwell at No. 1 singles, but he lost to Crookston's Jay Claassen 6-2, 6-3.

"Chad just doesn't know how good of a tennis player he could be," explained Olson. "Once he learns just how good he could become, he could be one of the top tennis players in the area."

It was the first dual meet of the season for the Prowlers, who earlier participated in three triangulars. Overall, the Prowlers are 2-5. They'll play a 3:30 p.m. match at Moorhead Thursday and will be involved in the Hibbing invitational Saturday, along with Anoka, Virginia, Fridley, Grand Rapids, Duluth East, Pine City and host Hibbing.

Crookston Is Winner Over Lincoln Girls

Crookston defeated Thief River Falls 212-233 Tuesday in a girls high school dual golf meet at the Thief River Country Club.

It was the 1983 season opener for the Prowlers.

Thief River Falls scores included Michelle Olson with a 52, Karin Wennberg 55, Kathy Reuter 61, Kirsten Pollick 65, Tammy Bergen 68 and Heidi Tanquist 72.

The Prowlers will golf Thursday at East Grand Forks at 1 p.m. and will host their Thief River Falls invitational Monday beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Karl Bjorkman Helps UND Win National Title

Karl Bjorkman of Thief River Falls was a member of the University of North Dakota team that won the recent 15th annual Association of College Unions International National Trap and Skeet Championship at Peoria, Ill.

UND won the 17-team event by an 863-862 margin over runner-up St. Cloud State in a field that also included entries from Indiana University, Purdue, Ohio State, West Point and the Air Force Academy.

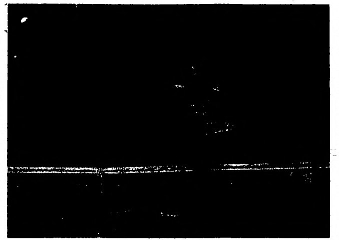
Bjorkman placed second in the individual Class C competition for the UND squad, comprised of members of the University of North Dakota Trapshooting Club.

— Youth Basketball —

Thief River Falls Backcourt Club's organized youth basketball program ends this week.

Organization officials would like to thank all players, coaches, volunteers and club members for making the first season a successful one. Plans are underway to continue the program next fall, with the possibility of a summer clinic for elementary age players being discussed.

Backcourt Club meetings will continue throughout the summer, being held the first Saturday of each month at 9 a.m. at the Rex Cafe.



PLAYING AT NO. 1 singles for the Prowlers, Lincoln high school senior Chad Broadwell ran down a shot from Crookston's Jay Claassen during Monday's high school tennis match played in Thief River Falls. Claassen won 6-2, 6-3 as the Pirates beat the Prowlers 4-1 under extremely windy conditions.

EGF Wins Own Tennis Invitational Tuesday

East Grand Forks won titles in four of the five events Tuesday en route to a team victory in its own invitational high school tennis tournament.

Final team points showed East Grand Forks with 13, Crookston 10, Thief River Falls 6 and Detroit Lakes 1.

East Grand Forks won titles in all three singles events — Phil Burke, No. 1; Del Nelson, No. 2; and Jim Vonasek, No. 3 — along with a first place finish at No. 2 doubles by Tim Driscoll and Todd Martin.

Crookston's Will Schnabel and Brent Melsa emerged as the winners at No. 1 doubles.

"Our doubles, I thought, played well," reported Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson. "I was especially pleased with our second doubles (Bob Vanyo-Thane Mundell); they did well. Our singles players made improvements, too, I hope."

Thief River Falls will be at Moorhead for a 3:30 p.m. dual meet Thursday and will compete in an invitational tournament at Hibbing Saturday beginning at 9:30 a.m. The Prowlers will be joined by host Hibbing, Anoka, Virginia, Fridley, Grand Rapids, Duluth East and Pine City.

UND Basketball Camp Openings Are Announced

University of North Dakota head basketball coach Dave Gunther has announced there are openings in the 14th annual UND Summer Basketball School. UND camp is the first and oldest in North Dakota.

Gunther said there will be four one-week sessions of the school this summer: May 29 - June 3 for boys and girls; June 5 - 10 for boys; June 12-17 for boys and girls; and July 24 - 29 for boys and girls. The school is sanctioned by state associations and now open to boys and girls entering grades 6 through 12 this fall. The June 12-17 week is a "super 100 camp for highly competitive players."

Fees for a one-week session are $140 for board and room students and $70 for commuters who live and eat off campus. Upper midwest high school and college coaches assist Gunther and his UND assistant coach, Darryl Lehnus, with the instructional phase of the school.

Additional information can be obtained by writing to Dave Gunther, Head Basketball Coach, University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, N.D. 58202; telephone (701) 777-2974.

Register For Summer Swim Program May 7

Registration for the summer Red Cross swimming lessons in Thief River Falls will be held Saturday, May 7, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the front entrance of the Franklin middle school pool.

Schedule for the 1983 summer swimming program will include Session I from May 31-June 17; Session II from June 27-July 15; and Session III from; July 25-August 12.

Cost of the lessons is $15. Any questions about the summer program, or late sign-up can be handled during open swimming hours at Franklin.

Boosters Club Plans Meeting On Thursday

Regular weekly meeting of the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club will be held Thursday at 12-noon in the basement of the Rex Cafe.

Guest speakers will be Lincoln high school boys and girls golf coaches Jack Boyer and Ruth Onkka.

Twins Helmet Day Promotion Slated May 1

Annually one of the most popular Twins' promotion days, Helmet Day is set for the Metrodome on Sunday, May 1, when the Twins host the defending American League champion Milwaukee Brewers at 1:15 p.m.

First 15,000 youngsters ages 14 and under entering the stadium that day will be recipients of white Twins batting helmets, the first time a white helmet has been available to Minnesota fans. Helmets will be distributed at all gates, beginning at 11:15 a.m.

Milwaukee also appears Friday night, April 29, at 7:35 and Saturday afternoon, April 30, at 1:15. Last year, the Brewers won the season series seven games to five, though the Twins hold a 100-83 edge in the overall rivalry.

UND Football Camp To Run From July 22-24

Fourth annual University of North Dakota Fighting Sioux Football Camp has openings, according to UND head football coach Pat Behrns.

UND football camp, which offers individualized instruction for boys at every position, will be run July 22-23-24 for boys entering grades 9 through 12 this fall, Behrns said.

"Our summer camp has grown every summer and we expect a good enrollment again this summer. We are limiting enrollment and therefore urge those boys who wish to attend to get their deposits in to us early," he added.

Behrns said there are two fee plans. Plan 1 is for $70 and includes all instruction plus room, board and a camp t-shirt. Plan 2 is for $50 and includes all of plan 1 except room and breakfasts.

UND football coaching staff provides the instruction at the camp, including Behrns, assistant coaches Don Stoner, John Miklesh, Dave Olson and John Richman.

majority of the players trying to steal on the Royals and posted a .340 batting average with three homers.

Other catchers, who will likely be shifted to other positions, include 6-4, 240-pound Brad Farnick, who batted .410 last year, and Greg Haugo, a freshman who hit .375 last year as a high school all-star team selection.

Apparently there's lots more offensive punch for the Royals: home run hitter Richard Oestrike; Terry Kuehn, who hit .300 at Anoka last year; and Rob Hanson, a freshman from Little Falls, who hit over .400 in American Legion ball last summer; and freshman Jim Meyer, who batted .611 at Storden-Jeffers. Those are all infielders. The outfield includes freshman Neil Bakke, who hit over .400 at Mabel-Canton.

For pitching, Lundquist has Mike Melcher, whose only loss last season came at the state tournament, along with Greg Williams, a transfer from Normandale.

It sounds like quite a challenge for the Northmen, who are also in the running as the host team for the 1983 MCCC state tournament, featuring the four divisional champions, that will be played at the site of the Northwest Division winner on Saturday, May 28. Fergus Falls and Northland currently share first place with 4-2 records, while UMC and Brainerd at 2-4.

Miscellaneous

+ Crookston, scheduled to host Thief River Falls Thursday in a 4 p.m. North Half Region 8AA baseball encounter, lost its season opener to Ada 3-1 Friday, despite giving up just two base hits. Lefthanders Tony Amon and Craig Stahlecker shared the Pirates' pitching duties, with Stahlecker getting seven strike-outs while walking two over the final three innings. Errors gave Ada single runs in the first and third, then Lee Brown's pinch-hit single sealed it in the bottom of the sixth. Crookston scored its only run in the top of the sixth when pinch-hitter Pat Madigan walked, stole second and scored on a base hit by Todd Ellingson.

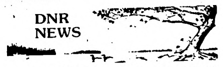
DNR NEWS



New Fish Tank

"Big Redd," a portable egg incubator developed by Don Olson, Minnesota DNR fisheries biologist at Detroit Lakes, is scheduled for a trial run this spring.

Thirty of the units have been built and placed at 19 area fisheries stations throughout the state for a trial run under a variety of conditions. The incubators, each capable of hatching more than two million walleye eggs, will be given a major test with the walleye egg harvest this spring.

Additional units are to be built after evaluating the experiences of the fish supervisors in operating them under widely varying conditions expected to be encountered this spring.

Units operate with much less water than the conventional walleye hatchery and permit hatching closer to the lakes or ponds where the fry are to be stocked. This permits temperatures to coincide with the temperature of the stocked body of water, improving the survival of the young fish and reducing transportation.

Big Redds are small tanks about three or four feet square.

Loon Die-Off

A major loon die-off is underway in Florida, according to Dr. Don Forester at the University of Florida in Gainesville. From 400 to 500 dead loons have been found washed ashore on the Florida panhandle from Panama City to Clara Belle.

Some loons from Minnesota are believed to winter in this area. Banding studies by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources have shown that Minnesota loons winter in the Atlantic Ocean along the North Carolina Coast, and also in the Gulf of Mexico along the Florida panhandle.

It is not known how many loons from Minnesota have died as a result of this problem. The loons appear to have encountered some type of toxic algae or bacteria in the ocean. They show signs of hemmorhagic enteritis (an inflamation of the intestinal tract) and starvation.

It is estimated that from 1,000 to 2,000 loons have died since January. A similar die-off of loons occurred in the winter of 1971-72.

Loon pairs may be missing on some northern lakes this spring, but no long term detrimental effects on loon populations are expected.

Fishing Fine

Four Wisconsin men, arrested by Minnesota Conservation Officers with 709 perch, were fined a total of $1,760 when they appeared before Judge Spooner in Itasca county court recently.

With 309 perch over the legal limit, the men all pled guilty and each was fined $400 plus a $40 surcharge.

DNR gave their names as Gary Luedtke and Richard Nickel of Green Leaf and Wesley Otto and Lawrence Bittner of Denmark.

MSU Fun Run Is Scheduled Sat., May 14

Moorhead State University Women's Sports Council will sponsor its third annual 5,000 and 10,000-meter "Fun-Run" May 14 to raise scholarships for women athletes.

Starting time is 9:30 a.m. with registration at 8 at the entrance to Gooseberry Park in Moorhead. For $6, which includes a free t-shirt, runners can enter one of eight age or open category races.

There will be one men's and one women's open and separate races for runners 14 and under, 15-19, 20-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50-59 and 60 and over. Winners will receive tropies.

To sign-up or for more information, contact the MSU public affairs office at 236-2555.

Mixed Slow Pitch Games Set In RLF

An Early Bird mixed couples slow pitch softball tournament will be played Sunday in Red Lake Falls.

Entry fee for the double-elimination event is $40, plus a Red Stich softball.

Tournament directors are Rhonda Ellefson, 253-2939, and Barb Weiss, 253-2310.

Some Peregrine Falcons Making Strong Return

Arctic Peregrine falcon, listed as an "endangered" species since 1970, has recovered sufficiently from the effects of environmental contaminants to be reclassified to "threatened" status, according to the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS).

"Endangered" means that a species is in danger of extinction throughout all or a significant portion of its range. "Threatened," a less dire status, means that a species is likely to become endangered within the foreseeable future. A proposal to reclassify the Arctic peregrine to "threatened" status has been published in the Federal Register.

Data gathered by wildlife biologists indicate that the Arctic peregrine is not now endangered through a significant portion of its range. Levels of DDT and its metabolites have been decreasing in female peregrine falcons and the number of young falcons produced annually has increased since the mid-1970's. Strong protective regulations, vigorous law enforcement, and relatively secure habitat have also contributed to the Arctic peregrine's improved status.

Arctic is one of three subspecies of peregrine falcons in North America. Arctic peregrines nest in Arctic regions from Alaska through Canada to Greenland and winter from the southern United States through all of Central and South America to central Chile and Argentina.

A second subspecies, the American Peregrine, was extirpated as a nesting bird in the eastern United States during the 1960's and has been the subject of intensive recovery efforts, including release of captive-bred birds to the wild. The American peregrine remains classified as "endangered." a Third subspecies, Peale's peregrine, is not considered "endangered" or "threatened."

In addition to proposing reclassification for the Arctic peregrine falcon, the Fish and Wildlife Service has also proposed to clarify the status of the American peregrine falcon in some parts of its range. The most significant effect of this proposal would be to recognize all peregrine falcons nesting in the state of Washington to be the "endangered" American peregrine subspecies.

Fish and Wildlife Service has also proposed to protect all wild peregrine falcons within 48 contiguous states whose genetic background is uncertain under "similarity of appearance" provisions of the Endangered Species Act. This proposal is necessary primarily for law enforcement purposes and to clarify the status of peregrine falcons that are bred in captivity and released to the wild. Although such birds are indistinguishable in appearance from wild, protected falcons, their genetic backgrounds often made them ineligible for full protection under the Endangered Species Act. The new proposal would make taking of any wild peregrine within the 48 states a violation of the Endangered Species Act.

Comments on the proposals are invited through May 31, 1983, and should be addressed to the Director, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240.

Framework Is Set For 1983 Waterfowl Hunt

Preliminary hunting regulations for ducks, geese and other migratory game birds for the 1983-84 hunting season have been proposed by the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS).

Proposals, published in the April 5, 1983, Federal Register, also outline the progress that has been made to date in jointly developing a coordinated program with Canada and states in the Atlantic and Mississippi Flyways to reduce the black duck harvest. Technical committees of both flyway councils presented recommendations that were approved by the councils on March 19 and 20. After considering these recommendations, the Fish and Wildlife Service will propose a supplemental rulemaking on the black duck, probably in May.

FWS had announced in the September 17, 1982, Federal Register that further restrictions on the harvest of black ducks would be necessary this year in a major effort to halt a long-term decline in the population. State and federal wildlife agencies are also developing a coordinated information program to alert the public to the status of the black duck and to help hunters improve their ability to identify these birds.

No other major changes from last year's hunting regulations are proposed at this time. Proposed rulemaking describes tentative season frameworks, daily bag and possession limits and shooting hours for migratory game birds in the contiguous United States, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. Species discussed in the proposals include ducks, geese, brant, and swans; doves and pigeons; cranes; rails; coots, and gallinues; and woodcock and snipe.

Shooting hours will remain from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. Framework dates for most duck and goose seasons will be from October 1, 1983, to January 20, 1984, for the Atlantic and Mississippi Flyways and from October 1, 1983, through January 22, 1984, for the Central and Pacific Flyways. The framework proposed for the Alaska waterfowl season extends from September 1, 1983, through January 26, 1984.

All of the published proposals are subject to changes if the need is indicated by information obtained from surveys, state conservation agencies, and the public. Public comments on the proposals are invited through June 22, 1983, for Alaska, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands; July 15 for other "early" seasons (those opening before October 1); and August 19 for the "late" season (those opening after October 1). Comments should be addressed to the Director (FWS-MBMO), U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240.

To ensure that the public has ample opportunity to comment on the proposals, two public hearings will be held to review the status of migratory game birds and consider proposed hunting regulations. The first hearing will pertain to "early" season regulations and will be held on June 22, 1983, at 9 a.m. in the Department of the Interior Auditorium on C Street between 18th and 19th Streets, N.W., in Washington, D.C. A second hearing on the regulations for seasons opening on or after October 1 will be held on August 2, 1983, at 9 a.m., also in the Interior Department Auditorium. Persons wishing to participate in these hearings should write to the Director (FWS-MBMO), U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240, or telephone 202-254-3207. Those wishing to make statements should file copies with the Director before or during each hearing.

During the Minnesota Twins 21 seasons at Metropolitan Stadium in Bloomington, there were 82 postponements due to weather. On the road the twins have had 55 postponements in 22 seasons since 1961.

Freeze-Dried Bugs Kill Gypsy Moths

by Linda St. Thomas
Smithsonian News Service

It looks innocent enough. A clear glass jar, about half the size of a coffee can, filled with a charcoal-gray powder. But this powder is pure virus, and one jarful is enough to contaminate about 270 acres of land. When eaten, the virus is lethal, usually causing death in 10 or 12 days.

That is, if the one who eats it is a gypsy moth.

This particular batch of virus, which is pathogenic only to gypsy moths, has been prepared in the Smithsonian Institution's freeze-dry lab in Washington, D.C. It will be sprayed on trees this spring to help kill the moth larvae before they can begin their annual defoliation of New England's maple and oak trees.

To make the powder, barrels full of dead gypsy moths already infected with this disease are ground up and spun in a centrifuge. The pure virus, now a thick gray liquid, is frozen and then freeze dried, much the same way concentrated liquid coffee is processed to make freeze-dried instant coffee. The resulting powder is later mixed with a sticky material that clings to the moth's favorite leaves.

This virus project is only one of many in the freeze-dry lab located in the basement of the Smithsonian's National Museum of Natural History.

On any given day, the gypsy moths will share their freeze-dry chamber with some unusual creatures: albatrosses, vultures, bats, lobsters, foxes, shrews, owls, alligators, cotton mouth snakes, skunks, pigeons or maybe a few thousand cockroaches.

"Most people think we still use taxidermists to prepare our animals for museum exhibits," Dr. Rolland O. Hower, director of the freeze-dry lab, says. "But for small animals, we've been using this freeze-dry technique for the past 20 years at the Smithsonian.

"Freeze drying is the way to go," he adds. "Or, from the animal's point of view, it's the best way to go once you've gone."

Exactly what happens to an animal during the freeze-drying process? First, the specimen is washed, rinsed with alcohol and then dipped in insect repellant, Hower explains. A steel rod is inserted through the body to help keep its shape, and the animal is posed in a natural life-like position. Whether the animal will be reclining or prancing is determined by the curator's ideas for a planned exhibit and by sketches and photos of the animal in reference books. Once in position, the animal is slipped into the chamber.

The main freeze-dry chamber is a 9-by-5-foot steel-walled cylinder where temperatures hover around minus 30 degrees Celsius (minus 22 degrees Fahrenheit). Because the chamber is a vacuum, the specimen gradually gives up all its moisture through a process called sublimation, in which a solid (the ice crystals that collect inside and outside the animal) is transformed into a gas (water vapor) without going through a liquid state. This process prevents distortion and shrinkage.

Final product is the same shape and size of the animal in its natural state, with the color and texture of its fur or plummage intact, but weighing much less. For example, a red-shouldered hawk that went into the chamber earlier this year weighing nearly four-and-a-half pounds came out three weeks later weighing almost two pounds less.

The freeze-drying technique used for coffee is essentially the same: Highly concentrated liquid coffee that has already been percolated is frozen in a vacuum chamber where the ice crystals are slowly evaporated. The end product — light, porous but still aromatic grounds — then becomes freeze-dried instant coffee.

Hower developed this technique for Smithsonian natural history exhibits in 1959. He's spent the past decade teaching museum specialists around the world how it's done.

As with many innovations, the motivating factor in Hower's early interest was sheer desperation. As exhibits chief in the museum of natural history, he had to prepare and arrange hundreds of specimens for display in the museum's new halls. He was looking for something quicker than taxidermy when he read about Dr. Harold Meryman's work with freeze-dried human tissue at the nearby National naval medical center in Bethesda, Md.

Two months after visiting Meryman's lab, Hower had built his own unit, using a 60-gallon spray paint chamber, refrigerator coils, a condenser and a vacuum pump, and was ready to test it. The first specimen, an Eastern woodland rabbit, spent four weeks in the chamber. The result: a perfectly shaped, permanently preserved rabbit ready for exhibit.

"Once you have the vacuum dehydration freezer set up properly, you can prepare nearly any animal," says Hower, who tells how to do it all in his book, "Freeze-Drying Biological Specimens: A Laboratory Manual" (Smithsonian Institution Press, 1979).

How long an animal stays in the chamber depends, naturally, on its size. A small warbler, for example, may take only a week, while the 8-foot, 60-pound Komodo dragon, put in the chamber after its death at the National Zoological Park, took a full nine months.

Major advantage of this technique, Hower says, is that it preserves the entire specimen perfectly with its organs intact, for scientific study and exhibition. The process also saves time and money because it requires only one lab technician to "work on" dozens of animals at one time in the freeze-dry chamber.

A taxidermist, by comparison, must work on one specimen at a time, removing the organs, tanning the skin and stretching it over a fabricated support. That's a time-consuming project, but one that is still done effectively with large animals at the Smithsonian and other museums.

Giant African bush elephant that greets visitors in the rotunda of the museum of natural history is a good example of a traditional, and very ambitious, taxidermist's project. It took 16 months to prepare the mammal for exhibition but, as Hower points out, it would have taken forever in a freeze-dry chamber — that is, if anyone had a chamber big enough to accomodate an 8-ton, 13-foot-high elephant.

Freeze drying even the smallest creatures does have one drawback, Hower admits. "Unfortunately, the eyes come out looking like fried eggs," he says, but then proudly turns to his seven-drawer collection of glass and plastic eyeballs, including big gray-violet eyes for a barred owl and miniature (one sixteenth of an inch) black buttons for a mouse.

Eyes didn't concern Hower when he worked on specimens a few years ago for the museum's evolution exhibition. He freeze dried 130,000 cockroaches by stacking them neatly on screens in the vacuum chamber for a week. The roaches, raised especially for the Smithsonian by the department of agriculture, were used to explain population potential. One pair of cockroaches could produce this horde of offspring if left unchecked for three generations, a fact no apartment-dweller would ever doubt.

Of course, Hower and other freeze-dry specialists are working with dead specimens, so the laboratory is not quite as ghoulish as one would imagine. At least, Hower usually handles dead specimens. He recalls an incident two years ago when a curator sent a live salamander to the lab for freeze drying. It was dunked in liquid anaesthetic, rinsed, dipped in liquid nitrogen and laid on a tray.

Hower went to answer the phone and returned a few minutes later to find that the "dead" salamander had wriggled across the tray. The creature went back into the anaesthetic, was freeze-dried and eventually found a home in an exhibit case.

Preparing these exhibit and research specimens for the Smithsonian and other museums is now only about half of the work of Hower's lab. Rest of his staff's time is devoted to such freeze-drying projects as production of the gypsy moth virus, preservation of normal and pathogenic human organs and tissues for study in medical schools and freeze drying of materials for analysis under electron microscopes. And, once in a while, Hower adds, a book or two is thrown into the chamber along with the bats and gypsy moths.

When a rare book has been water-logged in a flood or accident, freeze drying is the only way to remove the moisture and salvage the paper. Following a broken steampipe accident a few years ago at the Lincoln Library at Ford's Theater in Washington, D.C., two old volumes and a handwritten ledger were completely drenched. After a visit to the Smithsonian's freeze-dry chamber, the documents were returned, dried and readable, to the library.

Hower and his art of freeze drying have come a long way from the first experiment with a rabbit in 1959. What started two decades ago as a museum project to save time and money on exhibitions might this year be helping to save the trees of New England.

The first state to have inspectors enforce child labor laws was Massachusetts in 1867, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Those who plan to take the bus are asked to inform the coordinator in each town.

60th Reunion Set For LHS Class Of 1923

Lincoln high school class of 1923 will hold a 60th reunion at Lon's restaurant, Thief River Falls on Wednesday, May 25 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

At the anniversary luncheon the meal will be ordered from the menu. Spouses are also welcome to attend.

Students from the 1923 class and others who know the whereabouts of classmates are requested to contact members of the class.

For more information write to Geneva Overum, 111 State Avenue, North, Thief River Falls, MN 56701 or Mrs. Caroline (Aspelin) Hansen, Box 278, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Safety is YOUR Business

AT THE CONVENT, the sisters prepare for the day's work with morning matins. The scene is from the Marshall county central high school musical "The Sound of Music" to be staged Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the school gymnasium in Newfolden. Mrs Carol Peterson is director of the production with Sheila Nelson as music director and piano accompanist and Mrs. Pat Dunning as technical director. Left to right in the photo are Tonya Brodersen, Andrea Kragness, Judy Donarski, Patty Odberg, Michelle Folden, Cindy Swenson, Nancy Nelson, Gay Moose, Nancy Pederson, Stacey Gonshorowski, Kelly Johnson, Katie McKenzie and Stacey Lysne.

Receive Report On Hazardous Waste Plan

Newfolden community center. Members of the committee welcome comments and suggestions from area citizens and urge their attendance at the meetings.

For information, contact any of the following committee members:

Kenneth Price and Lawrence Sunsdahl, Stephen; James D. Nelson, Karlstad; Earl S. Hougard, Strandquist; Floyd L. Spense, Crookston; Armand Westlund, Strathcona; Mrs. Norma Hanson and Vance Wiseth, Goodridge; and Mrs. Marcella Gonsorowski, Newfolden.

Approximately $11,000 in costs and legal fees have been accumulated as area counties, cities and organizations have attempted to fight location of the hazardous waste disposal site in Marshall county.

Change of venue requested by the Minnesota pollution control agency to Hennepin county from Pennington or Marshall counties for hearing on objections to selection of the Marshall county site was reluctantly granted in Pennington county court recently by Judge Warren A. Saetre. "If the court felt it had any discretion in this matter," Judge Saetre's memorandum states, "respondent's demand for a change of venue would have been denied."

Judge Saetre said he felt compelled to grant the change based on state law which provides that a special provision of the law shall prevail over a general provision when the two are in conflict. One statute notes that any civil action maintained against the pollution control agency shall be brought in the county where the board is located. Another permits the serving of a petition in the county where the agency has its principal office or the county of residence of the petitioners. The special statute was held by Judge Saetre to prevail and the change of venue was granted, although with reluctance.

His memorandum stated the following:

"The reasons the legislature by this statute requires all actions to be heard in Hennepin county are not known. No doubt is is considerably more convenient for the personnel who are employed by the State of Minnesota to administer these laws to attend court in Hennepin county but the court rejects the notion suggested by counsel for respondent that the courts of Hennepin county have greater expertise in waste management and pollution matters.

"The government, its agencies and the courts should be made accessible to the people and where, as in this instance the subject matter of these suits is located in excess of 300 miles from Hennepin county and is of paramount interest to the citizens in this area, the inconvenience of a few public officials who may be required to travel to Thief River Falls, Minnesota to present their case would be more than offset by the undoubtedly large number of people in Northwestern Minnesota to travel to Minneapolis to follow these proceedings.

"Certainly the residents of Hennepin county have no interest or concern in these actions and the court has authority to consolidate the cases for a single trial in Northwestern Minnesota since they all involve the identical issue.

"Unitil the Legislature changes this statute, apparently the residents of rural Minnesota must accept the fact that they have a lesser class status than residents of Hennepin county which will require them to travel to Minneapolis to have their cases heard notwithstanding the fact that the State maintains courts in all parts of the state.

"In the meantime petitioners may wish to consider application for change of venue from Hennepin county to Pennington county pursuant to the provisions of M.S. 542.11 (4). The court is aware of the backlog of work pending in the district court for Hennepin county which would make it very difficult to expedite these matters on its calendar; whereas the calendars in Pennington county and other counties in Northwestern Minnesota are relatively current and the matters may be brought on for hearing whenever the parties indicate they are ready to proceed."

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS annual fund drive to assist the mentally retarded will be held this Friday, Saturday and Sunday, at various locations throughout the city. Members of the fraternal organization will be offering specially wrapped Tootsie Roll candies to contributors. Money raised will be distributed locally, in support of such organizations as the Falls Day Activity Center and Occupational Development Center, and to assist participants in the special olympics. Shown making the first contribution is Stan Upham, president of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce, who was approached on a street corner by Roland Wold, community activities director of the local Knights of Columbus chapter.

Council Denies Permit For Beer At Fair

Request from the Family Bowl for an on-sale intoxicating liquor license was brought from the finance committee, with a recommendation that public notice be made. Although some discussion evolved on the need for another liquor establishment in town, council was informed by City Attorney Bob Wurst that they cannot arbitrarily turn down a request for the license.

Wurst noted that as long as the establishment met city requirements for obtaining the license, the only grounds they would have to deny it would be if they got "sufficient negative input based on good reasons" from the public. Council was informed that Tom Greelis, owner of the Family Bowl, had agreed to invest $100,000 in property improvements as one of the requirements for the license. Council will hear public comments on the license at its next meeting.

Consulting engineer Dave Kildahl noted that at the last meeting with Minnesota department of transportation personnel, discussion had centered on inability of the state to move construction on the First Street bridge up to 1984, primarily due to lack of commitment of federal funds for the project. He said he had been informed that the state would not be able to tell whether funds could be made available until after construction of a three million dollar project near St. Cloud, sometime in June or July.

Council has expressed concern for the flow of traffic and emergency vehicles in the city, due to the fact that Third Street will likely be closed for construction in 1985, leaving the two lane bridge at First Street as the only crossing of the Red Lake River in the city. City has been seeking to get the First Street bridge widened for several years, and Mayor Carlson stated that he blames the county for "dragging its feet."

Kildahl suggested the possibility of using money which the city gets as federal aid to urban streets, as a "carrot" to get the project started. Financing for the bridge project is supposed to be 80 per cent federal and 20 per cent county state aid.

City currently has approximately $169,000 in its federal aid to urban streets account, having lost $60,000 from the account in October, because the money wasn't used, and the government limits the size of the account. Kildahl suggested that since the $60,000 hadn't been reallocated yet, a possibility existed of getting the money back if it was used for the bridge. In addition, he noted that the city might be able to allocate the funds for the next four years (approximately $40,000 per year) for the project.

By using the money to subsidize the federal share of the project, the remaining money might be obtained to finance the construction. Construction project was estimated to cost $750,000. Kildahl was commended for researching the idea, and authorized to continue discussions with the state. It was noted that no more of the funds should be committed than absolutely necessary to keep the discussion going.

Need for possible construction on other federal aid streets in the next four years was also discussed, noting that the last time money was spent from the fund was in 1974, for surfacing of Pennington Avenue. Kildahl said he would research which streets were eligible for the funds and report back to council.

In other business the council:

+ Authorized a resolution calling for sale on a $600,000 bond issue to finance water plant improvements; and a $200,000 bond issue to finance the downtown parking district and the 1982 street improvement project;

+ Had the first reading of an amendment which would include all-terrain vehicles under the city's snowmobile ordinance;

— Approved use of the Thief River Falls regional airport for use by crop spraying companies of Parnham, Hink and Overby, noting that any person seeing sprayers using hazardous techniques or equipment should notify either the council or the airport manager;

— Approved purchase of three police radios with scramblers using $3,905 in revenue sharing funds;

— Referred a request to do something about the condition of the alley between the clinic and Bridgeman's to the tax and finance committee;

— Authorized expenditure of $8,356 from revenue sharing funds to replace lights in the old arena, and put lights in the sports arena on banks of switches, intended to cut use of electricity;

— Passed a resolution in strong opposition to legislation currently in congress which was felt to unduly strengthen the bargaining power of public employees. (Number of the bill is H.F. 748 and S.F. 862);

— Heard a report from Alderman Ken Murphy on progress made in establishing a joint powers agreement among counties in opposition to a hazardous waste disposal site in this area.

— Heard from aldermen that very little opposition had been heard to plans which would call for the closing of Red Lake Boulevard where it intersects with Third Street;

— Tabled establishing a policy on sales and solicitation involving school activities, until the school board established a policy;

— Authorized closing of LaBree Avenue between second and Third Streets from 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday, so that the retail business association can conduct Uff Da Days drawings there;

— Authorized free use of the sports arena on June 18 and 19 for the Kidney Foundation auction;

— Received an invitation to attend Law Enforcement Day observances at the arena on May 4.

4H Fine Arts Festival At LHS Friday

Fine arts festival for 4-H will be held Friday at 8 p.m. at the Lincoln high school auditorium. Featured will be a one-act play entitled "No Time For Skirts" by the Silverton 4-H club.

The program will also include public speeches, share the fun acts and clowns. Public is invited to attend and there is no admission charge.

Missions Meet Set This Week At Newfolden

Annual missions conference will be held at the Evangelical Free church of Newfolden beginning today (Wednesday) and continuing through Sunday. Rev. Eveland invites the public to attend any or all events.

Tonight at 8 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nelson will give a presentation on their work in the Philippines. Thursday Lucille Dobbs will speak about her work in Zaire at 8 p.m. Friday at 8 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Anderson will discuss their work in Zaire. No service is scheduled Saturday.

Sunday's events begin at 9:55 a.m. with the missionaries visiting Sunday school classes. At 11 a.m. Harvey Anderson will deliver the morning message with other missionaries also involved in the service. Fellowship dinner will begin immediately following the service. Closing presentation by all the missionaries is slated to begin at 2 p.m.

Craig Kapsner Enlists In AF Delay Program

Craig L. Kapsner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy A. Kapsner, entered the air force's delayed enlistment program (DEP) and is scheduled to enter active duty in 1984. On January 10, he will fly to San Antonio, TX., where he will attend the air force's six week basic training program at Lackland air force base. While a member of DEP, he will be accruing time in the air force for pay purposes.

A 1982 graduate of Lincoln senior high school Kapsner is scheduled for training in the linguist career area after successful completion of basic training. At the same time, he will be earning college credits for air force training which may be applied toward an associate in applied sciences degree from the community college of the air force.

RIVER VALLEY . . .

Floyd Lundeen stopped over to visit with his brother, Fred and Evelyn.

Many from the community attended the funeral for Aslak Dahle at the Ekelund church of Erie Thursday. Aslak is the father of Mr. Omer Nesland.

Mrs. Rod Kragness is hospitalized at the United hospital in Grand Forks. Hurry and get well Rosemary.

A get acquainted and welcome party was held for Mr. and Mrs. Dale Rosemeir, Steven and Beth Friday evening at the Korydon Chervestad home. Orlando and Helen and Korydon and Carol hosted the special event for their herdsman.

Delmer Nesland moved to his farm home last week. Delmer's farm is across the road from Milan Rustan. We wish you much success on your farming venture, Delmer.

Deloris Jensen and Claudia Howard brought goodies and visited with Sena Chervestad and Signe Evenson Saturday.

Many from this area enjoyed the Charley Pride concert at Bemidji state university on Sunday.

NEED HELP WITH YOUR STUDENT LOAN?

If you've attended college on a Guaranteed Student Loan or a National Direct Student Loan made after October 1, 1975, consider spending a couple of years in the Army.

If you train for certain specialties, the government will release you from 1/3 of your indebtedness (or $1,500, whichever is greater) for each year of active duty.

Obviously, a three-year enlistment cancels 100% of your debt. But if you sign up for the Army's exclusive two-year enlistment option, we'll still cancel 2/3 of your debt.

Plus, you may be eligible for generous educational incentives.

To find out how to serve your country and get out of debt, call the number below.

Petition of State of Minnesota, by Richard P. Braun, its Commissioner of Transportation, for the Right to Make Minor Alterations or Changes in County Ditch No. 1 in Pennington County

Notice of Hearing
TO ALL PERSONS INTERESTED IN COUNTY Ditch No. 1 IN PENNINGTON COUNTY:

YOU, AND EACH OF YOU, WILL PLEASE TAKE NOTICE, that the State of Minnesota, by Richard P. Braun, its Commissioner of Transportation, has filed a Petition with the County Auditor of Pennington County, pursuant to Section 161.28 of Minnesota Statutes 1982, praying that he be allowed to make minor alterations or changes in County Ditch No. 1. That attached to said Petition now on file with the County Auditor are plan sheets showing said minor alterations or changes petitioned for. That the portion of said County Ditch No. 1 as now located which is proposed to be changed or altered is described as follows:

Approximate Present Location of a Portion of County Ditch No. 1 (RN)

Beginning at a point distant 50 feet north of the centerline of First Street in the City of Thief River Falls from a point distant 190 feet east of the intersection of the centerline of said First Street with the (LOR) centerline of T.H. 59; thence run in a general southerly direction and under T.H. 59 for approximately 600 feet and there terminating.

Arppoximate Proposed Location of a Portion of County Ditch No. 1 (RN)

Beginning at a point distant 30 feet north of the centerline of First Street in the City of Thief River Falls from a point distant 190 feet east of the intersection of the centerline of said First Street with the (LOR) centerline of T.H. 59; thence run in a general southerly direction and under T.H. 59 for approximately 600 feet and there terminating.

That said Petition alleges that it is advantageous and desirable in the construction and maintenance of Trunk Highway No. 59 that said minor alterations or changes be made, and that said minor alterations or changes petitioned for will not affect the functioning nor impair the efficiency of said Pennington County Ditch No. 1.

YOU WILL FURTHER TAKE NOTICE, that said Petition will be presented to the County Board of Pennington County, in the Court House in Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the 10th day of May, 1983, at 2:00 o'clock P.M., at which time all persons interested in said ditch system may appear and be heard and present arguments for or against the granting of said Petition.

Receiving of Bids for — Rental of Fully Operated Excavation Equipment

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS — Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received at the office of the Middle-River-Snake River Watershed District, 122 West Johnson Avenue, Warren, Minnesota until 9:00 A.M. o'clock on May 26, 1983 for the rental of fully operated excavation equipment. Proposals are being requested for dozers and crawler mounted draglines or backhoes. The draglines and backhoes may range from ¾ cubic yards and larger and must be equipped with a boom, bucket and counter weights appropriately matched for the type of machine. All equipment must be equipped with a servis recorder.

The work to be done consists of but is not limited to the clearing and disposal of trees and brush and the removal of sediment from drainage channels, disposal of rocks and the leveling of spoilbanks. The work required and the location of the work will be designated by the engineer for the district.

The equipment must be modern and in good operating condition and furnished with capable and experienced operators. Deficient operations or maintenance which results in reduced production or poor workmanship will be cause for contract cancellation.

All equipment proposed will be considered and evaluated based on many factors including but not limited to the following: price, horsepower, machine rating, machine weight, track length, track width, track gauge, buckets available, boom lengths available and counterweights available.

Work will be paid by the hour and payment will be based on the time recorded on the Servis Recorder discs which must be turned over to the Engineer. Payment will be made on a monthly basis. The minimum hours per week will be 40 unless delayed by weather or equipment operating problems.

In addition to the payment for hourly work, the contractor will be eligible for a demobilization payment. The amount will be equivalent to 5 hours rental rate for each type of equipment authorized for use by the Engineer.

Demobilization payment will be included in the last payment for hourly work satisfactorily completed.

The District may cancel the contract at any time without cause by paying the demobilization payment.

The contractor may cancel the contract at any time without cause but forfeits the demobilization payment.

The type of equipment best suited for this project is dependent on the weather and other unknown job conditions. The district intends to rent equipment which in its opinion, will perform the required work at the least cost. Its evaluation factors will depend on conditions expected and encountered which will likely change along the course of the work. The District will release and rent different equipment from time to time as it deems necessary to economically perform the required work.

The contractor, in making this proposal promises to furnish the equipment listed for the prices shown subject to its availability. He does not promise to make or keep the equipment available to the district. He understands, however, that equipment availability may be a factor in the district's evaluation of equipment.

The contractor will be required to furnish certificates showing that he has workmans compensation insurance and liability insurance.

The Middle River-Snake River Watershed District reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to award contracts to other than the apparent low bidder.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf
State Senator — District 1

As the warm weather finally arrives, many of us have begun our annual spring cleaning to rid our homes of unnecessary clutter. At the legislature, we also have completed a spring cleaning of sorts that will result in a streamlined and more cost-efficient state government.

Earlier this session, we took a close look at all of the advisory councils, committees and task forces now in existence to determine exactly what role they play in providing input into state policy. We found that, while many of the groups are carrying out a very valuable function, others either are duplicating their efforts or have outlived their usefulness.

A state law passed by the legislature in 1975 provides for all advisory councils and committees governed by general laws to expire on June 30, 1983. Advisory task forces, by definition, cease operations two years after they are created, and some of them also are scheduled to expire on June 30.

After completing our review of all of the committees, councils and task forces, we decided that some of them should be continued, while others should be allowed to expire. I co-authored a bill which sunsets 35 of the groups as of June 30, and extends the life of 42 others until 1989.

Among the groups that will continue to operate are: the alcohol and other drug abuse advisory council, the community education advisory council, the family farm advisory council, the veterans advisory council and the workers' compensation advisory council.

Some of the groups that will be allowed to expire are: the human services occupations advisory council; the pharmacy continuing education advisory council, the poison information advisory council, the uniform data standards for personnel payroll reporting advisory task force and the uniform data standards for student reporting task force.

The exact amount of money that will be saved by eliminating the 35 advisory groups is difficult to calculate since, in many cases, their budgets are included in the overall budget for the related department of state government. The groups' budgets also depend on the number of times that they meet. However, we have estimated that the total savings will be approximately $50,000 to $100,000 per year.

The legislation also ensures that council, committee and task force members don't waste their time and money attending meetings of groups that no longer have a vital role to play in state government.

The bill won approval in the Senate last month. It is now awaiting action by the House.

I would be happy to hear from you about this bill or other issues of concern. Please write to me at my office (306 Capitol Building, St. Paul, MN, 55155) or phone (612) 296-8660.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q: Is the Veterans Administration going to start "rounding down" pension, as Social Security is now doing?

A: Yes, effective June 1, 1983.

Q: What is the statutory rate of Veterans Administration compensation for arrested tuberculosis?

A: $67.00.

Q: When does the new Veterans Administration clothing allowance rate become effective?

A: Effective August 1, 1983, the rate will be $327.00.

Q: How long do I have to apply for Veterans Administration dental care after I get out of the service?

A: You have 90 days from release of active duty to apply.

Q: Do veterans who received a bad conduct discharge issued by general court marital receive any Veterans Administration benefits?

A: Any unfavorable discharge issued by reason of a general court martial constitutes a bar to VA benefits.

Q: At what age is a World War II veteran's widow able to apply for pension from the Veterans Administration?

A: Title 38, U.S. Code, does not require an age limitation for a widow's application for VA pension. This also applies to widowers.

LEC Reports 21 Cases April 26

Law Enforcement Center report dated Tuesday, April 26, listed 16 cases investigated by Thief River Falls police department and five cases investigated by Pennington county sheriff's department by reporting date.

Cases handled by Thief River Falls police department included the following:

March 23 — Investigation of a burglary in which approximately $170 was stolen from the H and R Block office in Thief River Falls, resulted in charges being brought against two male juveniles, ages 16 and 17.

April 16 — Investigation of a complaint made by Mike Novak, Thief River Falls, that a tree had been cut down on his property and a wall of his garage spray painted, resulted in vandalism charges being brought against three male juveniles, ages 14, 14 and 17. Damages were estimated at $175.

April 16 — Mark Enge, rural Thief River Falls, was driving west on Eighth Street and attempting to make a right turn when he collided with Kermit Kemnitz, Thief River Falls, who was attempting to pass him. Damages were estimated at $2,500 to the Kemnitz vehicle and $100 to the Enge vehicle.

April 16 — Greg Ornquist, Thief River Falls, and Michael Skibicki, Grand Forks, ND., were both driving east on First Street after apparently stopping at the Kendall Avenue intersection, when they collided. Damages were estimated at $450 to both vehicles. Charges are pending.

April 16 — Estelle Grinde, Thief River Falls, was driving north on LaBree Avenue and Bryon Staie, Red Lake Falls, was driving east on Fourth Street when they collided. The impact caused the Grinde vehicle to go backward onto the sidewalk and strike the Custom Motors building. Grinde reported feeling chest pain. Damages were estimated at $1,200 to the Grinde vehicle, $800 to the Staie vehicle, and $50 to the Custom Motors building.

April 18 — Bonita Ness, Thief River Falls, was driving west on First Street, and Marietta Jorgenson, Thief River Falls, was making a left turn onto First Street from Horace Avenue when they collided. Damages were estimated at $500 to the Jorgenson vehicle and $150 to the Ness vehicle.

April 18 — Vern Adamson reported theft of a boat trailer, value $865, from a fenced in area at RV Sports in Thief River Falls. Padlock securing the area had been forced. Case is under investigation.

April 18 — Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute personnel reported that a window had apparently been shot out during the weekend. Cost of repair was estimated at $400. Case is under investigation.

April 18 — Gregg Stauss, rural Thief River Falls, reported theft of a battery, value $60, from his pickup, which was parked at the area vocational technical institute over the weekend.

April 19 — Investigation of an April 10 burglary at Lincoln high school, resulted in charges against three Thief River Falls juveniles, ages 13, 14 and 17.

April 20 — Winnipeg, Manitoba police department reported that they had recovered a vehicle believed to have been stolen in the Thief River Falls area. Investigation revealed that the vehicle was owned by Sharon R. LaCoursiere, and had been stolen from her Thief River Falls residence. No damage estimate was available. Two male juveniles, aged 16 and 17, and 19 year old James Howard Bell, Portage LaPraire, are being charged.

April 21 — Julie Bakke, Thief River Falls, reported theft of a boy's bicycle, value $170, from her yard.

April 21 — Thief River Falls resident reported theft of a clock radio, value $120, from his apartment. Entry was forced. Case is under investigation.

April 21 — Dennis Bakke, Thief River Falls, reported theft of his daughter's bicycle, value $50, from their residence.

April 22 — Karen Kreuter, Thief River Falls, reported theft of two hubcaps, value $120, from her vehicle sometime during the previous evening.

April 23 — Bill Moreau, Thief River Falls, reported that an object had been thrown through a window at his residence, causing damage estimated at $25.

Cases handled by Pennington county sheriff's office included the following:

April 12 — Burglary of a vacant home in Rocksbury township was reported. Entry was apparently gained by breaking a window, and vandalism was done throughout the home. Estimate of damage was unavailable. Case is under investigation.

April 17 — James Smith, Goodridge, reported that all of the lights had been broken on his vehicle while it was parked behind the Goodridge fire hall. Damage was estimated at $28.

April 18 — Wayne Peterson, Viking, reported theft of a propane tank, value $40, from his pickup while it was parked at St. Hilaire.

April 19 — Collen E. Kron, Newfolden, was driving west on SA 3, approximately one tenth mile east of County Road 10, and lost control of the vehicle after swerving to miss a deer. The vehicle rolled over in the ditch on the south side of the road, sustaining $4,000 damage. Jackie Bergeron, Argyle, a passenger in the vehicle, received small cuts to the head and arm.

April 20 — Merle Kruschke, Thief River Falls, reported that an antique washstand, value $125, had been stolen from his pickup on January 14. Exact location of the theft is unknown, since he parked in several different areas before discovering it. Case is under investigation.

Youth Firearms Class Finished At Newfolden

Sixteen Newfolden area youths 12 to 16 years old recently completed the Minnesota youth firearms safety course sponsored by the Division of Enforcement and Field Service of the Department of Natural Resources and the Agassiz Rod and Gun Club, conducted by Greg Underdahl, DeVere Chapman, Leonard Anderson and Jim Pederson — registered firearms safety training instructors.

Successfully completing the four week course and receiving their firearms safety certificates and embroidered shoulder patch were Karl Bring, Shane Chapman, Steve Engen, Jason Erickson, Shelly Fillmore, Travis Giffen, Darcy Gonsorowski, Darren Larson, Jason Lee, Angie Nelson, Gregg Nelson, Shane Nelson, Jason Odberg, Dawn Swenson, Scott Nelson and CharRae Underdahl.

Classes held at Newfolden Community Center covered gun handling, firearms safety in the home and afield, care of firearms, basic marksmanship and hunter responsibility. Shooting exercises were held at the Agassiz Club range.

State law prohibits anyone under the age of 16 from buying a hunting license or using a firearm unaccompanied by an adult unless he has a firearms safety certificate. Youths between the ages of 14 and 16 who possess a certificate are permitted to hunt without adult supervision.

AAA Offers Bike Safety Guidelines

Bicycles are not toys. They are governed by the same laws required of automobiles and must be driven accordingly, says the Minnesota chapter of the American automobile association (AAA).

To emphasize the importance of obeying traffic laws and to reduce bicycle accidents, Governor Rudy Perpich proclaimed May 1 to 7 to be Minnesota bike week.

Barb Mittelstadt, traffic safety coordinator for AAA, urges all parents to conduct a refresher course on bike safety practices with their children.

AAA offers these guidelines:

+ Move only with the flow of traffic on the right side of the street.

+ Obey all traffic laws and cross only on proper signal.

+ Stop before you enter a street or cross an intersection. Look all four ways and listen carefully.

+ Walk your bike across busy intersections and streets.

+ Hand signal when you plan to turn or stop.

+ Wear light colored clothing when riding at night. Make certain your bike is equipped with a white front light that can be seen from 500 feet, a red reflector and 20 inches of reflective material on each side of the bike.

+ Always give cars and pedestrians the right-of-way.

+ On streets where cars are parked parallel, watch for car doors swinging open.

+ When riding in a group, travel in single file, one bike length apart.

For more information on common bicycle accidents and how to avoid them, write to the Traffic Safety Department at Minnesota AAA, 7 Travelers Trail, Burnsville, MN 55337 or call 612-890-2500 for a free copy of "Bicycle With Safety."

Summer Energy Courses To Be Taught At BSU

A number of short courses on energy and industrial related topics will be given by the faculty of Bemidji state university (BSU) department of industrial technology and arts this summer.

A short course is a brief, intense learning experience, according to Edward Gersich, director of summer school at BSU. Offered for one undergraduate or graduate credit, the courses investigate one topic during a two or three day time period.

Dr. Irving Strom will be involved with six short courses. One, home energy management, looks at residences, their design, devices, construction techniques and appliances. It also examines the possible life style changes of the people who live in them, all in an effort to save individuals hundreds of dollars on dwellings that have all ready been built or which are planned to be built. Class dates are June 20 and 21.

Strom's wood heating course June 23 and 24 covers the uses of wood for home and industrial heating. This class investigates commercial wood stove designs, high temperature furnaces and catalytic devices.

Super-insulated homes is the title and subject matter of a third class taught by Strom. On June 14 and 15, students will study the advantages of super-insulated housing that uses integrated design features and construction techniques.

On July 25 and 26, Strom will be the instructor of an underground housing course. Students will learn about the advantages, design and construction of earth sheltered homes.

Along with James Wylie, Strom will co-instruct a solar greenhouse design class July 18 and 19. Content includes the design and construction techniques for solar greenhouses in northern climates.

Wylie and Strom will also co-construct a solar greenhouse management course July 21 and 22. This offering covers the economics of, seasonal plant selection and the control of diseases as it pertains to managing a northern solar greenhouse.

Dr. Robert Anderson will conduct a heat loss analysis class which will cover air infiltration measurement and heat loss observation with the latest thermal viewer. Taught in cooperation with AGA and Huges Probe Eye, the course will be held July 5 and 6.

Energy efficient windows, their cost effectiveness and that of energy efficient shades, shutters and reflective films, is the topic of an offering taught by Dr. Irving Larson July 7 and 8 for one credit.

Credit can also be earned June 27 and 28 by students who successfully complete the National solar hot water course from Larson. Class covers how to build a solar domestic hot water heater system for $1,000. That amount would include everything from collector devices to the final packaging of heat exchangers.

On July 29 and 30, Larson will give a course with the title solar "batch" hot water heater systems. Students will build one of the most economical solar hot water devices as a class activity.

An L.P. gas conversion course is offered by Anderson July 20 to 30. Course content includes the conversion of vehicles to L.P. gas, the study of that and other fuels, as well as conversion procedures and the economics of the above.

Computer applications for industrial art teachers is an offering by Dr. Kermit Anderson on July 12 and 13 or July 14 and 15. Thomas Ryerson will co-conduct this course, which will look into industrial arts and technology computer programs, problem solving on Apple computers. It requires no prior computer experience.

Anderson and Wally Haglund, who has gained national recognition for his work with manufacturing clocks in junior high school industrial arts classes, will co-instruct a class titled the clock factory June 17 and 18.

Anderson will conduct a one credit remodeling and retrofit energy conservation class July 12 and 13 focusing on retrofit options regarding windows, solariums, sunspace, glazing and heat loss protection and thermo mass materials.

Vocational assessment tool and technique course, which will enhance awareness to the policy, techniques and commercial products used in the vocational assessment process will be offered July 14 and 15 by Dr. Dave Kingsbury for one credit.

More information and registration materials for all the courses are available by contacting: the director of summer school, Deputy hall, Bemidji state university, Bemidji, MN 56601 (218-755-2068).

QUICK QUIZ

Every day another office goes "on-line" with electronic office equipment, adding word processors and computer terminals to the secretary's domain. We know office managers love the new equipment as they say it's made their staff more productive. But how about the secretary who actually uses the new machines? Check your knowledge on the office of the future with a recent nationwide survey sponsored by Kelly Services, Inc:

1. Electronic equipment skills, because they are so specialized, have limited the chances for secretarial promotion within their companies. True or False?

2. Two-thirds of all word-processing operators were trained a) within the last year b) within the past three years c) seven or more years ago?

3. About half the employees present at the time of the electronic conversion noted apprehension among fellow workers. The most common source of this concern was a) fear of computers b) skepticism c) job security?

4. Once they have gained experience with the electronic equipment, what percentage of secretaries say that their speed and efficiency have improved? a) 50%-60% b) 70%-80% c) 90%-100%?

5. Most employees experiencing the transition to an automated office believe their employers handled the conversion very or moderately well. True or false?

ANSWERS:

1. False—94% of office electronic equipment users say that their skills have increased their opportunities for advancement within their companies.

2. (b) 66% of all word processing operators received their training in the last three years; nearly half that many (29%) in the past year.

3. (a) 30% of the respondents attributed anxiety to fear of computers, 26% to skepticism, and 22% to job security.

4. (c) 92% of the secretaries surveyed say their speed and efficiency have increased because of the use of electronic equipment.

5. True—91% of the employees present at the time their offices were automated said employers handled the situation very or moderately well.

For more information on the role of the secretary in today's office, write for a copy of the survey to Rose Lesch, Kelly Services, Inc., 999 West Big Beaver Road, Troy, Michigan 48084.

Elevator At Newfolden Has Annual Meet

Newfolden Coop elevator association held its annual meeting on April 5 at the Newfolden community center with 258 patrons, stockholders and spouses in attendance.

Duane Grundwald of Atwood Larson company read the annual financial report for the fiscal year ending January 31. Newfolden and Strandquist elevators handled 2,421,647 bushels of small grains and 4,684,483 pounds of oil sunflowers.

Gross margins were recorded at the following levels: grain, $300,325; fertilizer, $151,104; seed and grain bins, $33,000; and additional income from storage, cleaning, dividends and interest, $79,500.

After expenses the report showed a net profit of $98,801 and the local savings were $30,243. Grundwald noted there would be $15 per ton dividends paid on fertilizer.

Tom Garding from the barley department of Atwood-Larson was the main speaker for the evening. Dean Syverson of Land O'Lakes gave a presentation on safety in using anhydrous ammonia.

President Milford Rokke retired after 33 years as director of the operation. Vance Lefrooth also chose not to be renominated. New directors elected were Hilton Hjelle and Merrill Stennes.

Rokke told the patrons that the board of directors had purchased the anhydrous plant from Farmers Co-op association. Plant will be operated through the fertilizer department.

MFU Urges Action On Trigger Prices

An urgent call for action on government-set commodity trigger prices for corn and what was issued today by Minnesota Farmers union president Cy Carpenter. Action is necessary, he said, to protect farmers from a potentially disasterous market tumble and to maintain a viable farmer-held reserve program.

Carpenter made his position known to U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block, and also discussed his concern with U.S. Representative Tim Penny, Minnesota, a member of the U.S. house agriculture committee. Penny has agreed to carry a concern to the committee for discussion.

The government's miscalculations on USDA's payment-in-kind (PIK) program participation now force it to compete on the open market to purchase enough grain to meet PIK payments to farmers, Carpenter explained. This unusual pressure on the market may temporarily force corn and wheat prices above a predetermined trigger price. However, he warned, once grain prices reach trigger level, there is nothing to hold prices and markets may tumble dramatically.

Under the reserve program, farmers receive a government loan in return for storing their grain and keeping it off the market, usually for three years. During those three years, if prices for that commodity reach the trigger level, the loan immediately comes due and storage payments and price protection cease.

Traditionally, farmers sell their grain to meet the loan payments. However, in this case the trigger price could be artifically reached and could immediately fall, leaving farmers little choice but to accept disasterously low commodity prices.

Additionally, Carpenter said, with corn approaching the $3.25 trigger price, the delicate balance of grain on the market that was designed as part of the PIK program may be thrown off, and farmers could be left in a dangerous predicament. Trigger price for what is $4.65.

Marketing too much grain in a short time span — reserve grain now, coupled with PIK grain in the fall — could erode the positive effects of PIK and in the long term, prices could remain low.

"I in no way want to discount the importance of the PIK program, or our pleasure in the high participation rate. It is absolutely vital that current grain stockpiles be decreased and commodity prices rise. Under PIK and the proper market conditions, that can be accomplished," Carpenter said. "However, if the trigger price is reached too fast and does not last, farmer confidence in the reserve program could be destroyed, and the program along with it."

Three options Carpenter suggested to Block and Penny are:

To increase trigger prices for grain under the farmer-owned reserve program in this instance to isolate stored grain from the market, while allowing commodity prices to increase to reasonable levels and other grain, including PIK grain, to be marketed.

To allow farmers to re-enter reserve grain into the program after the trigger price is reached, should prices plunge shortly after.

To dramatically increase the length of time the national average market price for a commodity must remain at the trigger price before reserve grain is released on the open market.

Coleman Statue Unveiled Today At Capitol

A bronze bust of the late Minnesota senate majority leader Nicholas D. Coleman, created by sculptor Paul T. Granlund, was unveiled in a public ceremony at 12 noon today in the west side of the State Capitol rotunda.

First elected to the state senate in 1962 in the same freshman class with Governor Rudy Perpich and former Governor Wendell Anderson, Coleman served out an 18-year legislative career. He was senate majority leader from 1972 to 1980 and died of leukemia in 1981.

Coleman's wife, Deborah C. Howell, and his mother, Hanna Kennedy Coleman, unveiled the 23" high casting in the ceremony. Slightly larger than life, the bust portrays Coleman in his vigorous years as senate majority leader.

Brief remarks were made in the Capitol ceremony by Russell W. Fridley, director of the Minnesota historical society; Roger D. Moe, present majority leader of the state senate; and Robert O. Ashbach, former senate minority leader who was DFLer Coleman's IR counterpart in the 1970s.

HEARING AIDS AND TELEPHONES

Most hearing aids are equipped with telephone switches that help to enhance hearing and communicating over the telephone.

Usually the function switch controls "ON", "OFF", and "Telephone". When the function switch is on "T", the receiver of the telephone must face the microphone opening of the hearing aid. The microphone can be found at different locations, depending upon the hearing aid used (i.e., in-the-ear, behind-the-ear, eyeglass, or body aid). For instance, microphones on behind-the-ear instruments are found either at the very bottom or very top of the instruments, while those on eyeglass aids are typically on the underside of the temples.

Further new innovations for the hearing-impaired with telecommunication systems will enable those in need to attach amplifiers to their phone systems and will eventually assist the hearing-impaired community to improve TV and radio listening.

For more information on how to use your instrument in different listening situations, contact The Hearing Aid Center, 309 N. LaBree Ave., Suite B, Thief River Falls, Minn. 56701.

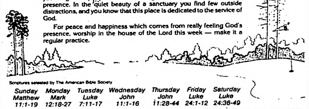
Rev. Leroy Nelson
Missionary to West Germany will be ministering here at the Assembly

LOOKING FOR GOD



Some say you find God just as well in a garden, in the woods, or on a golf course as in a church — that God is everywhere. But be honest about it.

Are you not more apt to think of weeds, or mosquitoes, or a poor shot than you are of God? And after all, you have made this outing to seek pleasure.

But when you go to church, it is with the specific intention of worshipping. Here you engage in prayer, praise and thanksgiving. Here you mingle with people who are seeking God and have come to feel His presence. In the quiet beauty of a sanctuary you find few outside distractions, and you know that this place is dedicated to the service of God.

For peace and happiness which comes from really feeling God's presence, worship in the house of the Lord this week — make it a regular practice.

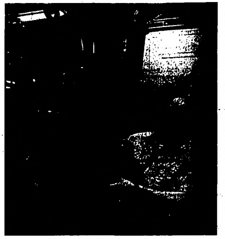
New Jet Engine Crystalizes



SINGLE CRYSTAL airfoils, or blades, in this aircraft engine disc are inspected by Robert Griffin at the East Hartford, Conn. plant of Pratt & Whitney. The jet engine manufacturer will use single crystal airfoils in two of its new engines, the PW4000 and the PW2037. The technology of using one superalloy grain, or crystal, to make an airfoil is a P&W patented development that represents more than 15 years of research. Such blades are exceptionally durable. They are capable of withstanding temperatures well above 2000 degrees Fahrenheit and rotational speeds which can exceed 11,000 rpm—both necessary for maximum engine fuel efficiency.

Disturbing Diagnosis

Severin H. Koop, M.D., president of the Minnesota medical association, says that the semi-annual report of Blue Cross and Blue Shield ". . . shows that physician charges are moving in the right direction, downward."

That sounds like good news for the medical consumer who has found health care in almost all areas to be more costly every year.

But let's take a look at Dr. Koop's diagnosis and the basis for his opinion. He says that the Blue Cross and Blue Shield report indicates that physician charges increased 7.7 per cent in 1982 compared to a 10 per cent increase in 1981. That difference of 2.3 percentage points of increase is what he uses as a basis for saying costs are moving downward.

He uses more of the same logic in pointing out what he calls "a downward trend in physician charges" by noting that charges for 24 common procedures listed in the report increased 10.1 per cent in 1982 compared to a 14.4 per cent increase in 1981.

"Efforts by the MMA to improve the cost consciousness of physicians and to educate consumers through the MMA's fee disclosure program contribute to the trend toward lower physician fees," he said.

In an effort to cheer up the patient, we believe Dr. Koop has made a rather disturbing diagnosis. When a patient's temperature goes from 98.6 to 103 in one day, we should scarcely be encouraged if it only goes to 105 the next. In effect, however, that is the type of reasoning Dr. Koop would have us accept on physician charges.

We recognize that Dr. Koop's field is medicine and not mathematics (some would question where the expertise is greater among some physicians), but he should be aware that a reduction in increase does not constitute a decrease. And if he isn't aware, someone should tell him.

Playing with percentages is also deceiving. A physician with $100,000 of charges in 1980 who had a 10 per cent increase in 1981 would have charged $110,000. A 7.7 per cent increase the next year would total $8,470, based on the $110,000 total, but would be almost 8.5 per cent based on the $100,000. The patient who pays in dollars instead of percentages would therefore find very little solace in the numbers.

We readily admit that facilities and capabilities for medical care are improving dramatically and that such improvements are not without cost. We are continually amazed at medical advancements and we can understand that in most cases better care will likely mean more cost. It would be totally unfair to demand better care, as we constantly do, without having a corresponding willingness to pay.

But spare us, please, from blatant attempts to find sunshine when there is only a lighter tone of darkness in the shade. If we can't accept the financial truth, fiscal juggling won't serve us any better.

Straight Talk

We hope our readers have been reading the column entitled "Straight Talk" and written by Albert D. Hattis of Southwest State university at Marshall. His viewpoints are well expressed, generally optimistic and always straight-forward in nature.

Prof. Hattis has prepared a supplementary series of columns which we intend to run as space permits over the next couple of months. They are based on his time spent recently with congressmen, journalists and specialists of one type or another in Washington, DC. Following is his summary of some current concerns:

(1) Politics: Ronald Reagan and George Bush will run for a second term. In the event of a Reagan health problem, Messers Baker, Bush and Kemp are all considered probable candidates. On the other side of the fence, Fritz Mondale looks like the best bet with John Glenn a dark horse who might win the nomination based on a general disgust with politicians.

(2) 1984 Issues: All politicians expect that the economy will be strong with low inflation before election time. Even so, the basic campaign issues will still involve the economy and how to make it grow to provide full employment. Clean environment and the nuclear freeze-peace issues will also be featured.

(3) Interest Rates and Money: Interest rates should continue down for both short and long term money with some economists predicting a single digit prime rate in 1983-84. Based on the FRB actions, the money supply should continue rising.

(4) Taxes: While visible taxes will not rise, anticipate significant increases in excise and other consumption taxes. If we need more revenue to balance the budget, expect more emphasis on hidden taxes, though a value added tax seems a distant possibility.

(5) The Deficit: Federal deficits will be reduced by cutting entitlements and defense spending and the increased tax revenues from recovery.

(6) Foreign Policy: Until we citizens grow up and understand the Russians and stop weakening our government's ability to negotiate movement toward long term peace and arms reduction, there is no likelihood that the Russians will reduce pressures and allow meaningful movement toward long term peace and arms reduction. The Russians believe now that we have a lack of will. Only a power equilibrium will resolve the present stalemate based on the superior arms position of the Russians.

(7) Quality Representation: The overloading of our congressmen to the point where they have impossible jobs, if they are conscientious, must be resolved, if we want quality representation. Many of our senators and representatives are quitting because of a killing workload.

(8) Social Security: The deficit has not been solved because skyrocketing health care costs will cause the medicare trust fund to have a shortage three times the size of the one in the pension trust fund that was just addressed by Congress.

(9) Inflation: While inflation appears under control now, government deficits and too rapid expansion of the money supply by the federal reserve board mean bigger inflation a year or two down the road unless action is taken now.

(10) Government and Business: We can not afford government and business facing off as adversaries in the current competitive one world market. Changes in anti-trust laws and free trade policies are a sure thing to allow us to compete.

Washington is an exciting city, but there is a general feeling here today that the solution to our problems will require self-discipline and less "me-only" thinking. There is a question in the minds of many as to whether we have the necessary backbone to do what is needed. Many feel that our democratic system of freedom is in jeopardy. Few have confidence that our democracy and freedom will survive. I do!

That's Straight Talk!

Sincerity Test

Following editorial is from the St. Paul Pioneer Press-Dispatch:

We devised a sincerity test earlier this month for 33 state senators who voted in the minority against giving themselves higher expense payments. We wanted to determine how many opponents of fatter per diems would back up their votes with action by refusing payments at the higher rates.

The senators decided 34-33 to increase per diem expense payments for metro legislators from $23 to $36, the same as outstate lawmakers and give the outstaters a $200-a-month housing allowance.

Of the 33 opponents, we found 19 who passed the test. For sticking to their convictions, we applaud them and accord them the right to display a bumper sticker proclaiming "I meant what I said." They are:

DFLers — Betty Adkins, St. Michael; Joseph Bertram, Paynesville; Charles Davis, Princeton; Keith Langseth, Glyndon; James Pehler, St. Cloud; Eric Petty, Minneapolis; LeRoy Stumpf, Plummer, and Darril Wegscheid, Apple Valley.

Now, for the remaining 14. Not only do they fail the sincerity test, but they also owe their constituents an explanation for their hypocritical behavior. Moreover, they have won the right, in our judgement, to display bumper stickers proclaiming, "I voted no and took the dough." The 14 are:

Independent-Republicans — Duane Benson, Lanesboro; Melvin Frederick, Owatonna Dennis Frederickson, Morgan; Howard Knutson, Burnsville; Patricia Kronebusch, Rollingstone; Gary Laidig, Stillwater; Phyllis McQuaid, St. Louis Park; Gen Olson, Mount; Darrel Peterson, Fairmont and Glen Taylor, Mankato.

DFLers — Gary DeCramer, Ghent; Tad Judge, Maple Grove; Collin Peterson, Detroit Lakes and Donald Samuelson, Brainerd.

Medic Alert Could Save Your Life!

National Medic Alert Week is April 3-9, 1983. Its purpose is to call attention to the need and value of emergency medical identification in the situation where a patient is unable to speak or otherwise communicate that he or she has a hidden medical condition.

The Medic Alert emblem signals instantly that the wearer has a special medical condition.

The unique Medic Alert system consists of an alerting device (worn as either a bracelet or necklace), a 24-hour emergency answering service, and a wallet card reissued every year to assure emergency medical personnel they are working with medical history that is 12-months or less old.

Each alerting emblem is engraved with the member's hidden medical condition, his or her individual Medic Alert membership number and the toll-free number of the emergency answering service. If the member is stricken in a medical emergency and is unable to communicate his or her hidden condition, the emblem provides the information needed by emergency personnel who can then call Medic Alert and receive, within 30 seconds, the member's emergency medical data which has been stored in computer files.

Medic Alert is a non-profit, tax-exempt and charitable Foundation. For 26 years, it has been dedicated to providing a life-protecting system of emergency medical identification for people who suffer from diabetes, allergies to medications, heart conditions, and other "hidden" medical conditions.

For information, write Medic Alert, P.O. Box 1009, Turlock, California, 95381, or phone 800/344-3226. In California, Alaska and Hawaii, call 209/668-3333.

REPORT
From The Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

A resolution addressing the President and Congress to provide for the distribution of federal elementary and secondary school grants and aids solely on the basis of each state's proportion of nation's school-age population was passed by the House education committee.

Currently Minnesota receives fewer federal education funds for elementary and secondary school students than the national average. Minnesota taxpayers also contribute to the federal treasury more than the appropriated share of federal elementary and secondary expenditures devoted to the state's students.

Concerned with the quality of teacher education graduates, a bill requiring the higher education coordinating board to study and report on teacher education programs in Minnesota public and private institutions of higher education was passed by the House education committee.

The study would result in a report and recommendations on the number, enrollment, mission and location of all teacher education programs in the state. The report would include recommendations on the need for in-service education and the relationship of in-service, preservice and graduate education. It would also include recommendations for improving the quality and efficiency of teacher education programs.

A study would also be conducted by the board on policies and standards relating to progress of the students toward completion of the teacher education programs.

School boards across the state soon may be required to develop discipline policies for their districts. A bill approved by the Minnesota House last week says school boards should review and adopt discipline policies which include rules of conduct for pupils, as well as procedures for removing them from class.

Proponents of the legislation said districts with set discipline policies have less discipline problems with students. If this bill becomes law, school boards will have to act on it before the 1984-85 school year.

High school graduates contemplating college aren't always prepared for higher education. At least that is the theory behind a bill passed by the Minnesota House last week.

The legislation requires the University of Minnesota, the state university board, the community college board, and the state board for vocational education to specify secondary curriculum requirements necessary for admission to their institutions. The intent of this bill is to increase the preparedness of graduating students for post-secondary education.

If you would like to comment on these particular issues, please contact me at 263 State Office Building, St. Paul 55155; phone (612) 296-9918.

There's a word to describe farmers who carry All-Risk Insurance.

Secure.

They're secure because they know All-Risk Insurance not only protects their farm income against total losses from natural disasters, it works to minimize your losses as well.

And that's good risk management. Because when you're protected against major losses, your basic net worth is more secure. And, when borrowing money, that's a more important consideration today than ever before.

All-Risk premiums are 100% tax deductible, too. And by marketing several insurance programs, PCA can also provide the flexibility farmers require.

All-Risk Insurance.

It's like a security blanket for farmers. Except it's worth a lot more. Call your local PCA for more information.

Washington Report
Sen. Dave Durenberger

You may never have heard of the General Revenue Sharing program, but chances are you've seen it working right in your community. Cook county used it to buy an ambulance. Rochester uses it to support fire protection and flood control. Elsewhere in Minnesota it helps pay for everything from mass transit to police to social services. For many small communities General Revenue Sharing is the only form of federal aid; without GRS, they would have to raise taxes or cut services, or both.

This program, which will send Minnesota's local governments $85 million this year, is set to expire on Sept. 30. That's when the last extension passed by Congress three years ago runs out. Without another reauthorization, GRS will end.

What's so hot about GRS? And why should the federal government collect taxes only to turn around and give them back to state and local governments? Good questions, and there are good answers.

For better or worse, the federal government is our most efficient tax collector. The federal income tax is a "progressive" tax, meaning that the higher your income, the greater your tax burden. Most state and local taxes, however, are just the opposite. So if state or local governments were to raise the needed revenues directly, the burden would fall more heavily on low- and middle-income taxpayers.

There are many advantages to returning federal revenues in the form of General Revenue Sharing. GRS funding is much more flexible than other federal grants; a local government can put it to any legal use. The decisions about where the funding should be used are made by those who know best the needs of the community and are most directly answerable for their choices: local officials. And GRS is one of the taxpayers' best buys; 99.9 cents out of every dollar is returned to the local community. Only one-tenth of one cent is spent on federal administrative costs.

I'm glad to say there is strong bipartisan support for reauthorizing GRS. In fact, more than 70 senators have co-sponsored my bill to reauthorize GRS. With luck, Congress can even be prodded into passing a bill well before the September expiration date. But reauthorization should be only our minimal goal.

GRS should be expanded and improved. Currently only about one-twentieth of all federal grant money goes out as GRS. GRS can take the place of many smaller, inefficient and restrictive grant programs. GRS is a better way to use our scarce tax dollars than many of the grant programs.

Expanding GRS means more than just increasing the funding to local governments; it also means resuming payments to state governments, which were eliminated from the program three years ago. What GRS does for localities, it can do on a broader scale for states.

In addition, state GRS payments should be based partly on a state's ability to raise its own revenues, an ability that varied greatly among the 50 states. A state's revenue-raising capacity largely determines how well it can deliver essential services to its citizens. For example, energy-producing states can raise much more in tax revenues than non-energy states. And, much of that extra revenue is paid by consumers in other states. Whenever Minnesotans buy Montana's coal, for example, they pay a share of Montana's tax.

The issue gains even more importance in light of the President's New Federalism, which will return many responsibilities to state and local hands. GRS can help make sure state and local governments have enough financial resources to handle their new responsibilities. And under a fair and effective GRS system, it stands to reason that the "richer" states should get smaller payments than the "poorer" states.

General Revenue Sharing has proved itself for over more than a decade. Its continuation is vital. But it would be tragic to pass up this opportunity to let it do even more, even better.

Fuel Tax To Include Road Strengthening

An amendment requiring a 15 per cent dedication of funds for highway strengthening was included in the four-cent fuel tax increase signed into law last week by Governor Rudy Perpich.

Supported by the Minnesota permit truckers' association (MPTA), the amendment will mandate that approximately $14 million will be spent in the coming biennium to upgrade selected roads to the 10-ton axle weight limit.

"This provision is good for rural Minnesota," said Jim Staebler, MPTA general manager. "Stronger roads will increase rural productivity, which will strengthen rural communities economically. Rural haulers and their customers will benefit."

According to Staebler, the amendment was offered as a compromise to the MPTA-sponsored ten ton collector amendment, which would have mandated 10-ton access for every community in Minnesota. The association supported the compromise to insure construction of 10-ton routes this year.

State senator Collin Peterson, Detroit Lakes, author of both amendments, said that the dedication of funds for upgrading the roads was the "minimum that could be accepted" by outstate communities and farmers.

"As we watch helplessly while more and more rail service is abandoned," he added, "we become more and more dependent on the trucking industry for essential transportation services in rural Minnesota. We should provide every community with 10-ton service. This is at least a beginning."

Minnesota's department of transportation is seeking citizen participation in designating priority routes. Interested citizens should contact their DOT district engineer, Mn-DOT, or the MPTA office (612-647-1123).

MPTA is a non-profit associaton representing agricultural haulers throughout Minnesota.

COOKING CORNER

With National Applesauce Month just around the corner, why not celebrate with an exciting ambrosia dessert or use these quick and easy tips from the International Apple Institute to liven up your meals. Nearly half of each year's American apple crop is processed into convenient, inexpensive apple products such as apple cider and juice, canned and frozen apple slices, apple pie filling, and everyone's favorite, applesauce. Applesauce is usually made from a blend of two or more apple varieties and nothing artificial is ever added. Seasoned to taste, applesauce is delicious and you can enjoy it all year round.

APPLESAUCE AMBROSIA

1 16 oz. jar applesauce
2 bananas, sliced
2 1/2 mandarin oranges, sectioned
1/2 cup toasted slivered almonds
1/2 cup flaked coconut
Whipped Cream

Combine all ingredients except whipped cream; chill. Serve in dessert glasses topped with whipped cream. Makes 8 servings.

Here are those quick and easy tips:

- Combine applesauce, ground beef and seasonings for a delicious new meat loaf. Applesauce keeps meat loaf moist and adds a subtle apple flavor.
- Season applesauce with hot mustard, cider vinegar and brown sugar for a tangy ham glaze.
- Applesauce makes a terrific topping for puddings, custard pies and ice cream.

Mrs. Sheldon Peterson and Mrs. Clarence Peterson visited with Mrs. Inga Salveson at the Valley Home in Thief River Falls on Tuesday.

Supper guests at the Sheldon Peterson home on Friday, Apr. 15 to help Kristy celebrate her birthday were Pebs Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Wilkins and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Peterson and Greg.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Peterson returned last week from Mesa, Ariz. where they had spent the past two and a half months. While at Mesa, they saw many interesting places, among them were visits to the Hohokam Indian ruins village, Casa Grande ruins, the National monument at Coolidge, Ariz. There they visited a three story building made of adobe which was called the big house. They visited the Superstition mountains area where men searched for gold many years ago. They traveled through the desert to see the cactus and other strange plants.

They had many cousins and friends who lived or came to spend the winter in and around Mesa who took them to different places. George and Elsie Robson took them to fruit orchards where they could pick oranges, grapefruit and lemons. They enjoyed going to picnics with friends and relatives from Oregon, Washington, Michigan, North Dakota, Arizona and from Thief River Falls, Halstad and Moorhead in Minnesota. Gordon and Pat Anderson of Pine Island came to take them home the first week in April. On their return trip they visited the Montezuma Castle ruins, the Grand Canyon National park and the Painted Desert, Indian Replica Tower and drove on through Colorado where they saw the Colorado Gorde. They stopped at the Four Corners where Colorado, Utah, Arizona and New Mexico meet. Here they bought several unusual souvenirs. They traveled through Nebraska and Iowa and back to Pine Island where they spent a few days visiting friends and family. They visited with Randy Hoffmans, Stuart Weis at South St. Paul, John and Adelaide Parbst and daughter Elsa. Also the Bruce Larson family at Sartell. Alice and Gink Peterson enjoyed their vacation but were very happy to come home to Grygla again.

LAWN LORE

Tips On Lawn Care

What makes the difference between lawn that is barely holding its own and thick green turf that's a joy to behold? Experts say it's a regular feeding program.

The first thing your lawn needs when it wakes from a long winter nap is a feeding of nitrogen, the key ingredient in most lawn fertilizers.

Since grass comes out of its winter dormancy with a hearty appetite, the earlier you feed your lawn the better—especially if you want that first burst of green to last.

The lawn people at O.M. Scott & Sons stress that grass requires an adequate nutrient supply to sustain thick, green growth.

An early feeding of nitrogen controlled-release fertilizer will:

- Provide good color and density by encouraging new growth to replace the older, deteriorating parts of individual plants.
- Encourage rhizome development, the underground stems that spread out and send up new grass plants, thereby knitting a thicker, sturdier turf.
- Discourage new weeds from sprouting by providing a thick carpet of grass to compete with them.
- Encourage new root growth, which enables grass plants to take maximum advantage of available water and nutrients.

Before you fertilize your grass this spring, says Scotts, you should clean up your lawn and mow off old dead grass. This will let more sunshine reach each plant's crown, triggering earlier green up. Matted tree leaves and other debris such as stones and twigs will hinder early lawn development because they smother awakening grass.

And if you've had a crabgrass problem in the past, spring is the ideal time to apply a combination fertilizer/crabgrass preventer.

After clean-up, fertilization of the average 5,000-square-foot lawn should take about 30 minutes. If you follow the year-round program recommended by Scotts and fertilize again in late spring, late summer and fall, your total time invested to achieve a better lawn will only amount to two hours.

If you have a question about your lawn, you can talk with an expert at Scotts simply by dialing their toll-free number: (800) 543-TURF. In Ohio, the number is (800) 762-4010. There is no charge or obligation for this service.

TREASURED TREAT FOR CHOCOLATE LOVERS

Chocolate lovers will readily agree that the cacao bean is precious enough to be used as currency. And, in fact, it was so used in Mexico before Columbus visited the New World. A rabbit could be purchased for ten beans, a pumpkin for four.

What a high price this delicious Hot Fudge Sundae Shortcake would have brought! It's not merely chocolate, but a double chocolate treat.

First, cocoa and chopped nuts are stirred into shortcake dough made with Bisquick baking mix. The dough is then topped with a sprinkling of brown sugar and cocoa. Hot water is poured on top, and as it bakes, a fudge sauce forms and sinks to the bottom of the pan.

Served warm and topped with ice cream, it's a dessert so delicious everyone will want more. But don't worry. This shortcake bakes in a 13x9-inch pan, so there is enough for seconds.

HOT FUDGE SUNDAE SHORTCAKE

- 2 1/3 cups Bisquick baking mix
- 3 tablespoons granulated sugar
- 2 tablespoons cocoa
- 3 tablespoons margarine or butter, melted
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 cup chopped nuts
- 1 cup packed brown sugar
- 1/4 cup cocoa
- 1 3/4 cups hottest tap water
- Ice cream

Heat oven to 350°. Mix baking mix, granulated sugar, cocoa, margarine, milk and nuts until soft dough forms. Spread in ungreased rectangular pan, 13x9x2 inches. Sprinkle with brown sugar and cocoa. Pour hot water over dough. Bake until shortcake begins to pull away from sides of pan and fudge mixture begins to bubble, 30 to 35 minutes. While warm, spoon into dessert dishes and top with ice cream. Spoon sauce from pan onto each serving. 12 servings.

Senior Citizens News

Fourteen registered at our center April 21st, same number as last week, at least the number wasn't down. We would like some Thursday to have many more register, but until then we will be satisified with 14.

Hulda E. Stromberg and Rudolph Lindgren were our guests.

Elsie, Anna H. and Polly sewed around a piece quilt, completing that and also laid out pieces for another quilt top. Some ladies brought pieces for the crazy quilt top. We will need a few more blocks before we can make a top of those. The rest of the ladies took off the black covering off polyester scraps to get at the fluffy stuff to fill bed pillows, which we will stuff another Thursday.

Arlene Henrickson left a box of clothing for our center's rummage racks. Thank you Arlene.

Please bring some bingo prizes for next week if we are to play bingo.

Elsie gave a door prize, Evelyn won.

Gust Johnson's birthday is April 23rd. Thursday we sang "Happy Birthday" to Gust and celebrated his birthday a day or two early.

We prayed the table grace before eating. Anna Rud was our hostess.

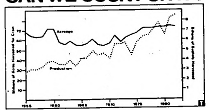
FOOD IN THE FUTURE - CAN WE COUNT ON IT?



U.S. Harvested Corn Acreage and Production 1955-82

American agriculture is so efficient that food costs only 16% of our disposable income. High yielding crop varieties deserve much of the credit.

But that could rise to more than 20% by the 1990's, warns a group of prominent scientists, unless the U.S. invests more in plant breeding research now.

The scientists from the U.S., Mexico and Europe are members of the Plant Breeding Research Forum sponsored by Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., a major developer of crop seed.

They assessed needed changes in government-supported plant breeding research. Without greater investment, they say, the steady gains in crop yields that have helped moderate food prices in the U.S. could slow or stop.

Federal funds for ag research levelled off in the mid 1960's, and have recently declined. State funding rose until 1979, then flattened out.

Forum members cite two reasons why failure to step up plant breeding work now could cause higher food prices.

(1) Easiest research gains are past. Progress is still possible, but added yield gains will cost more.

(2) Investments in genetic research of plants require 10 to 20 years to bear fruit. If we wait to see the effects of limited research spending, it could take 10 years to begin correcting the problem.

Plant breeding research has yielded 35 to 50% return on investment to the public, in abundant supplies of reasonably priced food.

All consumers benefit from higher yielding crop varieties; they should insist that state and federal governments invest more in plant breeding, says the Forum report.

Truck-Tractor Pull Scheduled At State Fair

Minnesota state fair's first-ever professional truck and tractor pull competition will be featured at the 1983 exposition during the fair's opening weekend.

Wrangler championship pulling series, sanctioned by the national tractor pullers association, inc. (NTPA), is scheduled for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 26 to 28, at the 20,000-seat grandstand. The NTPA is the leading tractor pull organization in the United States and the nationwide Wrangler series represents the country's top pulling events.

Three classes of competition are scheduled for each day of pulling. More than 100 machines will compete, including super stock tractors, modified tractors and four-wheel-drive trucks.

Super stocks resemble farm tractors, but are altered internally to deliver up to 1,500 horsepower. The modified classes have few restrictions and often include multiple power plants and aircraft engines.

Prize money totaling $18,000 will be offered to competitors during the three days of pulling. Schedule for August 26 and 27 includes, weight classes for super stocks, modifieds and four-wheel-drive trucks. The August 28 program features two classes for super stocks and one modified class.

Special track will be constructed for the pull competition on the Grandstand speedway's front straightway. Over 1,500 cubic yards of clay will be used to cover a 400-foot stretch of the race track's asphalt surface.

All seating in the grandstand is unreserved for truck and tractor pulls, but tickets may be ordered in advance. Regular adult admission is $5 (age 16-64); youths under 16 and seniors 65 and over will be admitted for $3. NTPA pulls start each day at 12:30 p.m. For ticket information, call (612) 642-2200.

MN Motorcycle Safety Week April 24-30

All across the state motorcycles are appearing on the roads or being tuned up as the peak of the warm-weather cycling season begins. For that reason, the State of Minnesota will observe motorcycle safety week April 24 to 30. This special week serves as a reminder that safe motorcycling requires skill, caution and preparedness on the part of cyclists and an awareness on the part of other drivers of motorcyclist's rights and presence on the road.

Over the last several years the number of motorcycles registered in Minnesota has increased steadily. In 1965 there were 39,395 registered while in 1982 the number rose to 159,345. Even with those greatly increased numbers of cyclists on the road, many car and truck drivers do not watch closely enough for motorcycles.

"Far too many fatal or injury producing motorcycle crashes happen when another vehicle simply drives right into or turns in front of an approaching cycle as if the cycle were not even there. Both drivers of motorcycles and the drivers of other vehicles must keep this 'invisibility' problem in mind whenever they drive," reminds Minnesota department of public safety Commissioner Paul Tschida.

It is possible that an increased awareness of the motorcycle as a legitimate and frequently encountered vehicle has been developing in the state. Last year, for example, even though the motorcycling season in Minnesota was longer than normal, the number of fatalities were down. In 1981, there were 96 motorcycle fatalities while in 1982 there were 72 motorcycle drivers or riders killed.

Owners of new motorcycles and parents of teenagers who would like to or have purchased a motorcycle should be especially aware of the special hazards and responsibilities involved in driving a high-powered, two-wheeled vehicle. More training programs for both beginner and experienced motorcyclists are being developed around the state. All motorcyclists should attempt to upgrade their driving skills and prove they are up to the challenge of motorcycling by taking a training course periodically.

Helpful Information From Revenue Canada Customs and Excise
Canada

Peregrinations With Pets—Or Perishables

It can be easy to travel in Canada with your family dog or cat.

Pets

Your pet must have been vaccinated against rabies within the past three years.

A certificate signed and dated by a veterinarian must accompany your dog or cat into the country. The certificate must show that vaccination was within the prescribed time limits, and must also describe the breed, age, sex, coloring and any distinguishing marks of the animal. Animal tags are not accepted in lieu of a certificate.

Puppies and kittens under the age of three months don't require the vaccination or certificate provided they appear healthy when they enter Canada.

Plants, Etc.

House plants from the continental U.S.A. are not subject to Plant Quarantine permit, certificate or inspection requirements if the house plants form part of a passenger's baggage, or they are part of household effects, and the plants are commonly known and recognized as house plants, grown or intended to be grown indoors.

All other plant material intended for further propagation or grafting must enter under an import permit obtainable from the Plant Health Division of Agriculture Canada in Ottowa, and must also be accompanied by a Phytosanitary Certificate issued by the state or federal government plant health authority at point of origin stating that the plant is disease- and pest-free.

Citrus fruits and subtropical fruits and vegetables usually cause no problems, but others brought from certain parts of the U.S.A. are causing increasing concern due to the spread of plant diseases. If you are planning to carry any with you (you may bring up to five consumer-type containers of non-banned items for personal use), it's a good idea to check in advance.

For free leaflets on travelling to Canada with pets other than cats or dogs, contact the Animal Health Division, Agriculture Canada, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada K1A 0Y9; for free leaflets on plants, fruit or vegetables, contact the Plant Health Division, Agriculture Canada, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada K1A 0C6.

Middle School Orchestra And Bands To Play

Franklin middle school orchestra under the direction of James Solsten and the sixth, seventh and eighth grade bands under the direction of Mike Lehrer will present their annual spring concert Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the school gymnasium.

Admission to the concert will be 50 cents per person and the public is invited to attend.

Opening the concert the orchestra will play "Andante" from Symphony in F by Karl Ditters and Von Ditterdore, "Scene from Richard the Lionhearted" by Andre Gretry, "Minuet" by T.A. Arne, "My Fair Lady" medley by Lerner and Lowe and "Medley of Reels & Hornpipes", a traditional song.

Sixth grade band will play "A Hundred Pipers", arranged by James Ployhar; "The Carnival of Venice", arranged by Clark Tyler and featuring the trumpet section; "Vesper Song", arranged by John Kinyon; and "Jaguar Concert March" by Eric Osterling.

Seventh grade band numbers will include "Sounds of Sousa", arranged by Ployhar; "Highlights from Annie", arranged by Paul Jennings; and "Captain Eddie's March" by John Edmondson. The latter is dedicated to World War I flying ace Eddie Rickenbacker.

Eighth grade band will present "North Star Overture" by John O'Reilly, "Piccolo Polka" by Robert Burke Jr. and "Ben Franklin in Paris", arranged by John Cacavas.

NCC Jazz Band And Choir To Stage Concerts

Northland community college jazz band and jazz choir will complete a three-day tour of nine communities with seven concerts Thursday in time to get ready for their first dinner concert on Sunday, May 8, at 7 p.m.

The Creole dinner concert entitled "Camaraderie" will be carried out in a New Orleans setting with participation by the entire fine arts department of the college. In addition to the jazz choir and band performances there will be an art exhibit and displays of print-making, jewelry casting and ceramics. The dinner will be catered by Lon's restaurant and total cost will be $7.50 per person. Call 681-2181, extension 61, during business hours for reservations. Seating is limited.

Costumed waiters and waitresses will serve the dinner which will be prepared from Creole style cookbooks. Further information is available by calling the number listed above.

Choir and band tour will include concerts at Oklee, Clearbrook and Gonvick the first day, an overnight rest in Bemidji, concerts at Red Lake Falls and McIntosh Wednesday, an overnight in Grand Forks, and concerts in Grafton, ND and Middle River on Thursday.

Members of the jazz band and choir are pictured in today's issue of the Times.

$27,000 Given To TRF Job Training Office

Thief River Falls job training office has received $27,000 from the Greater Minnesota private industry council, Inc. to expand special on-the-job training activities for people of Kittson, Marshall, Pennington and Roseau counties, Ray Beauchamp, office supervisor, announced.

Of the amount, $25,000 will be used to expand existing special on-the-job training programs, and $2,000 will be used to help women find jobs in the trades. Funds will be spent by September 30.

Thief River Falls job training office is located on 318 No. Knight Ave. in Thief River Falls. Telephone number is 218-681-7350.

Thief River Falls job training office programs offers on-the-job training to residents who meet program guidelines, Beauchamp said.

Private industry council regional representative for the Thief River Falls area is Betty Walton, manager of Mr. Duane's of Thief River Falls.

AMANDA J. SMITH, a management and education consultant in sex equity, spoke to students and faculty of the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute in separate sessions recently. Her emphasis was on building trust between men and women as a positive value so that individuals are free to pursue the fields that interest them.

Sex Equity Views Given In Speeches

"We have all been taught from early childhood to play boys against the girls. If the sexes are consistently separated. It makes it harder to get the job done. It is my thesis that there is a greater cultural difference between men and women who speak the same language than there is between two men or two women who speak different languages."

These were some of the thoughts expressed by Amanda J. Smith, management and education consultant in sex equity, as she spoke to students and staff at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute recently. Her talks and discussions were aimed at building trust between men and women and identifying and using all the opportunities already available for creating conditions which must trust easy.

"We start out by noting the difference between discrimination and bias," Smith said. "Discrimination is illegal. Title Nine law passed in 1972 said basically that 'thou shalt not discriminate'. But bias happens all the time; everyone is biased."

While the Title Nine law may have served some purpose by "hitting us over the head to get our attention," Smith said that the Title II vocational amendment is more useful because it states that people should engage in awareness activities. And the Title Six civil rights law has been of some help, she stated, because it involves an effort to achieve cooperation between the sexes as well as among the races.

She said that we have grown through a series of senses to deal with equality, as we view equality as being the opposite of discrimination. But if we accept equality as being good enough, then we accept situations being equally bad for everybody. We start asking questions about who has it worse or whose fault it is instead of getting the job done.

Progression from equality to individualism is better but not good enough, she said. When you concentrate on individualism you lose the importance of community. We need to get down the problem of why we find each other to be so inexplicable. If we continue to divide work-ups by sex, people will always want to do what they can't do and don't want to do what they have to do. We have to ask the question, "Is whatever it is we're doing going to make it easier for women and men to understand each other, to respect each other, to share experiences?"

What she is trying to do, Smith said, is to prove that men and women are equally important. Dividing up emotions is one thing which makes women and men most incomprehensible to each other. Children taught that brave boys don't cry and nice girls don't fight lead to grown up men who tend to look angry when they're sad and women who tend to cry when they're angry. Then you ask them to

City Receives Approval For $500,000 Grant

According to State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer and State Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls, the city of Thief River Falls has been awarded a small cities development grant.

The city will receive approximately $500,000 from the Minnesota department of energy, planning and development to set up a revolving loan program that will create new jobs and help retain existing jobs in the manufacturing sector.

"The residents of Thief River Falls and the surrounding communities in Pennington, Red Lake and Marshall counties have suffered from a severe economic downturn during the last several months," Sen. Stumpf said. "Unemployment is at record high levels, and the farm economy is in the worst slump since the great depression. The loss of our largest employer, Arctic Enterprises, was a particularly heavy blow to the area.

"The small cities development grant will go a long way toward helping us restore vitality to the local economy," Sen. Stumpf said. "Altogether, the grant will help create and retain more than 175 jobs."

Sparby noted that the revolving fund will loan money initially to three companies — United Satellite Systems, Hydra-Mac., Inc. and Arctco, Inc. The city originally applied for additional money to loan to the occupational development center, but the center was ruled ineligible to receive funds under the program.

"The half-a-million dollars that the city will receive will be used to help the three companies buy equipment and modernize their operations," Sparby said. "Eventually," he added, "the funds will be available to loan to other businesses for job creation or retention. The public subsidy will be repaid more than six-fold by private investment."

Thief River Falls was one of 38 cities chosen to receive grants from among the more than 160 applicants. Officials from the neighboring cities of Plummer, St. Hilaire, Middle River, Goodridge and Brooks all wrote in support of the Thief River Falls application.

DISAPPOINTMENT showed on the face of Melanie Lund of Thief River Falls as the key which she had selected from a pail containing 350 keys failed to start a brand new 1983 Chevrolet Citation. Her disappointment was understandable, for if it had started, she would have been able to keep it, or any one of four new cars worth approximately $8,500 each. Melanie was not alone in her disappointment however, as 47 people whose names were drawn in the retail business association's Uff Da Days promotion took their turn behind the wheel, only to have to return their key to the bucket and let someone else try. Nobody remained disappointed for long however, as all received at least a $10 gift certificate good in one of the 47 RBA member stores.

Farm Record Analysis . . .

1982 Was Tough Year For Northwest Minn. Farmers

As farmers begin their spring field work throughout the area, many of them do so while looking back on a 1982 crop year which saw them go backward instead of forward in their farming enterprise.

Analysis of records for 420 cooperators -(selected from 667 records submitted) in the farm management program conducted by the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute indicates that with an average capital investment of half a million dollars, the average cooperator received $5,049 for his time, capital and family labor last year. During the same period his net worth decreased by $8,507.

According to the analysis summary, it cost the average producer $3.26 to produce a bushel of wheat, $1.85 to produce a bushel of barley and $11.49 to produce a hundredweight of sunflowers. Cost of producing a hundredweight of milk was $7.43 while it cost $26.84 to produce a hundredweight of pork and $44.15 to produce a hundredweight of beef.

Ed Sisler, coordinator of the program, emphasized again this year that the farmers enrolled are located throughout 13 northwestern Minnesota counties, and that farming conditions vary considerably from one community to the next. He said the information is representative of the 420 farms involved but not necessarily representative of each or all farms.

Statistics compiled by the AVTI program indicate that crop yields last year were somewhat less than in 1981 and that prices for such crops as oats, barley, flax and sunflowers were considerably lower than the previous year. Prices for hogs and beef were improved over 1981.

Interest as a percentage of total costs again played a substantial role in the farm financial returns. While interest averaged 10 per cent of costs in 1975 and rose to only 12 per cent in 1979, it consumed 19 per cent of total costs in 1982.

Return to capital and family labor, which hit a peak of $27,354 in 1978, fell to $5,049 in 1982, less than half the $10,934 noted in 1981 but above the $2,249 recorded for an average in a disastrous 1980.

For the second straight year, farmers averaged a loss in net worth. Loss in 1982 was $8,507 following a loss of $3,500 in 1981. Previous gains had been $11,300 in 1980, $13,000 in 1979 and $18,500 in 1978.

Capital improvements made averaged $22,832, the lowest figure in the past five years. The capital improvements figure was $32,979 in 1981, $29,939 in 1980, $34,209 in 1979 and $27,311 in 1978.

Beef cattle enterprise, which has been a traditional low return enterprise for a number of years, showed a return of $13 per cow over listed costs in 1982. That compared to losses of $9 and $6 in 1981 and 1980, respectively, a return of $19 in 1979 and a break-even figure in 1977.

Hog producers enjoyed an unusually good year, earning $150 per litter in 1982 as compared with $21 in 1981, break-even in 1980, $4 in 1979 and $68 in 1977. In 1975 hog farmers had a top return of $169 per litter.

Joyce Kron Gives 35 Years To 4-H

by Julie Easton
Times Reporter

Some people just have it. It's a combination of kindness, humility and enthusiasm and you usually know right away when you meet someone with the special combination.

Mrs. Bert (Joyce) Kron has it. Even before the Times interview, was accepted, she wanted to be sure the focus of the story was on 4-H, a program she believes in strongly, and not on her personally. But from the time you enter her home, through the time she treats you to a refreshing drink and muffins, to the farewell, you know the program has been strengthened by her leadership.

Joyce retired as a leader of the New Solum 4-H club last fall. She became a leader in 1947 so that adds up to 35 years of service.

Before becoming involved in 4-H as a leader, Joyce was a member of the program. "I was fortunate to be one of the original kids in the Steiner 4-H club during the '30's," she related.

At that time, the 4-H program was just getting a start in northwestern Minnesota. Joyce's early experiences really influenced her decision to stay involved for many years.

"I'm sure it was because I gained so much from my own 4-H experiences that I chose to become a leader. I had leaders who were fantastic. They had done so much that they made you think maybe you could do the same for someone else," Joyce explained.

She remembers one of her experiences most vividly. At the age of 12, she received a HANDMADE STONE fireplace, created by Bert Kron, is a favorite outdoor spot for his wife Joyce. After being a leader of the New Solum 4-H club for 35 years, Joyce retired from that position last fall.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

CASH PRIZES totaling $1,000 were distributed among 11 lucky people in the Thief River Falls retail business association's Uff Da Days promotion, going a long way toward softening the disappointment of not winning the 1983 car, which each had a chance to try and start. Each of these people won $100, with the exception of Dave Lunde, who won $500. From left to right are: Lue Hetland, Thief River Falls, Kevin Loerzel, Thief River Falls; Raymond Haugen, Thief River Falls; Edith Nabben, Thief River Falls; Marlene Beedy, Thief River Falls; Iver Lunde (standing in for his son Dave, Thief River Falls); Emmet Wagner, Middle River; Wendell Wegge, Thief River Falls; Janeen Kalsnes, Thief River Falls; and Chester Solberg, Middle River. Moorhead Will Host District ALCW Convention

Eight triennial convention of the Northern Minnesota District American Lutheran Church Women will be held May 11-13 at Concordia college in Moorhead. Emphases will be on "That you may know the truth concerning the things of which you have been informed."

The convention is open to all women with each auxiliary sending one delegate. Registration will begin at 10:00 a.m., Wednesday, May 11. The first call to worship will follow at 1:00 p.m.

Bible study leader each morning of the convention will be Bonnie Jensen, executive director of the American Lutheran Church Women. Business sessions for delegates are scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday mornings.

Bishop Gilbert Lee of the Northern Minnesota District will be speaking at the communion service Wednesday evening at Trinity Lutheran church, Moorhead. Special music will be provided by the Oak Grove choir.

Thursday will feature small group sessions with Elaine Donaldson, past president of the National American Lutheran church Women, and Rev. Karen Soli, pastor of the Jesse Lutheran church at Talmoon, as leaders. At the banquet that evening Bishop Roy Gilbertson of the Western North Dakota District will be speaking and Denny Boyd, assistant professor of music at Concordia college, will provide the music.

Speaking at the Friday morning session will be Mark Thomsen, director of division of World Mission and Interchurch cooperation. The closing session will include installation of officers with Ruth Lee, president of the Northern Minnesota district ALCW, in charge.

Non-Traditional Students Guests Of Study Club

Study club of the General Federation of Women's club (GFWC) of Newfolden met Monday at the Newfolden community center with 11 members attending.

Special guests were Arlyne Forsberg, coordinator of non-traditional students at Northland Community college, and Pat Krystosek and Betty Liden, two older students enrolled at Northland college.

The program featured an informal discussion based on the non-traditional older students and displaced homemakers returning to school, and how their fears and anxieties were dispelled.

Jan Kragness reported on the GFWC district convention held at Stephen. She stated that the Study club year book had received first place in district competition. Also receiving first place blue ribbons for their puppets were Donelle Folden and Becky Berggren. Their entries will now advance to state competition and will be displayed at the Minnesota GFWC convention in May.

A request was made for volunteers to work at the library at the Community center. Officers were informed that a workshop will be held sometime during the summer with time and place to be announced later.

Hostesses for the evening were Pat Ueland and Lucille Tunheim.

The next meeting of the Study club will be held May 23 at the Newfolden Community center.

Small Business Disaster Loans Are Approved

Congressman Arlan Stangeland reports he has secured disaster relief for small businesses in Red Lake and Pennington counties from the U.S. Small Business administration (SBA).

"In the past, this business relief was almost automatic whenever a farm disaster was declared in a county," Congressman Stangeland said. "Under tighter regulations, we had to work a little harder for this relief."

The SBA loans will be available to non-farm businesses who meet the following conditions:

(1) They must demonstrate that they were in relatively good economic condition before the disaster struck;

(2) They must demonstrate substantial economic loss caused by the farm disaster; and

(3) They must demonstrate that they cannot get loans from regular lending institutions.

Small businesses which meet those criteria will qualify for loans to cover 85 per cent of their losses, up to $500,000. The loans will be at eight per cent interest and the length of the loan will be established by the individual's ability to repay the loan.

"I would encourage every small business in the two counties that has suffered from the consecutive years of farm disaster to apply for this relief," Congressman Stangeland said. "The SBA has told me that its standards are flexible, so you may be eligible for assistance."

The SBA granted the assistance to Red Lake and Pennington counties after Congressman Stangeland explained that the two counties had been granted farm disaster relief for the 1981 and 1982 crop years.

"These counties are like the United States; when things go wrong for farmers, they go wrong on Main street," Rep. Stangeland said. "Hopefully, this relief will help the Main street merchants to get back on their feet.

Emergency services offices in Red Lake Falls can be contacted at (218) 253-2684 for those businesses in Red Lake county which wish individual help with the procedure of applying for the loan.

Charge Against "MN Daily" Is Upheld

Minnesota News council announced recently that it has upheld a charge of inaccuracy against the Minnesota Daily, the student newspaper of the University of Minnesota, in a complaint from the Minnesota gun owners' political victory fund.

The gun group charged that the Daily inaccurately stated, in an opinion piece published on August 9, 1982, that then Attorney General Warren Spannaus had not pushed for more gun control legislation in the six years since he had obtained passage of the state's current handgun laws. Spannaus had proposed a law in January 1981 calling for perpetual civil liability for illegal handgun sales, the group noted.

While recognizing that there is disagreement as to whether the civil liability proposal was a "gun control" measure, the News council said the Daily's statement misled the reader by giving the impression Spannaus had been silent on the subject of handgun legislation.

The newspaper should have published a correction, the council said in a 13-2 decision following a hearing on the complaint. Council commended the Daily for agreeing to participate in the hearing, the first concerning the student newspaper.

In defending the opinion piece's accuracy, The Daily said it was not aware of the civil liability proposal or two other handgun measures Spannaus proposed in 1981. But the news council said ignorance of the facts is no excuse. It noted the three proposals received widespread publicity when they were made.

The opinion piece concerned a radio debate between Spannaus and Rudy Perpich, who were opponents in the Sept. 14, 1982, Democratic gubernatorial primary election.

In a dissenting opinion, council members Michael Kramer and Emily Anne Staples said there wasn't a misstatement of fact but an understandable omission of information. They said the newspaper did not know about the civil liability idea because it was never introduced in the legislature, and that the newspaper's offer to publish a letter to the editor from the gun group was a fair response to its complaint.

In a related matter, the news council declined to take jurisdiction over a complaint the gun group made against the Minnesota Teamster, the official newspaper of the state labor union, because the Teamster is not a general-circulation paper.

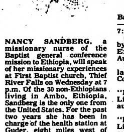
COLLECTION OF prehistoric stone tools and artifacts found in this area were donated for display at the Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls recently by Milford Gram of Grygla and Howard Luhe of rural Thief River Falls. Both farmers, the men noted that most of the artifacts were unearthed while working in their fields. Because of the findings, both men have developed an amateur interest in archeology, and were among the visitors attending a lecture on prehistoric peoples of the Red Lake River area, which was given by Gretchen Beito at the library.



NANCY SANDBERG, a missionary nurse of the Baptist general conference mission to Ethiopia, will speak of her missionary experiences at First Baptist church, Thief River Falls on Wednesday at 7 p.m. Of the 30 non-Ethiopians living in Ambo, Ethiopia, Sandberg is the only one from the United States. For the past two years she has been in charge of the health station at Guder, eight miles west of Ambo, where 90 to 100 patients are helped daily. Sandberg has her B.S. in nursing from the University of Minnesota and a master's in public health from Loma Linda university in California. She is on home assignment this year living in Grantsburg, WI.

World's Best Sugar Cookies

1 cup powdered sugar
1 cup white sugar
1 cup butter or margarine
1 cup cooking oil
2 teaspoons vanilla; or 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1 teaspoon almond extract
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
One-fourth teaspoon salt
2 eggs, beaten
5 cups flour

Method: Sift together flour, salt, cream of tartar, soda and salt. Set aside. Cream sugars, shortening and oil. Add beaten eggs and flavoring. Mix well, and add flour mixture. Roll into balls, place on cookie sheet, press with glass dipped in sugar. Bake in a 350 degree oven for about 10 to 14 minutes (depending upon size) or until golden brown. Makes about 100 cookies.

33 Northland Students Get Scholarships

Northland community college (NCC) recently awarded 33 spring quarter scholarships totaling $3,038, with awards ranging from $50 to $200 per recipient.

Donors responsible for this excellent scholarship program based upon scholarship and financial need were 11 area organizations and individuals; they are: Hartz foundation, NCC bookstore, Rich Lyttle scholarship, First Federal Savings and Loan scholarship, TRF Rotary club, Sons of American Legion, TRF foundation, Yon and Moren scholarship, Elks Club, Northwestern hospital medical staff and Badger state bank.

Recipients were: Sherrie Armstrong, Mark Bjorgaard, Annette Contos, Perry Hamre, Greg Harder, John Helms, Diane Huot, Amy Huseth, Dennis Jesch, Michelle Kraemer, Susan Muller, Patti Nelson, Tara Nicholson, Jerry Paulson and Bill Sampson, from Thief River Falls.

Also, Steve Dalager, Shari Hallstrom and Gary Ulrich from St. Hilaire; Brian Broten, Roseau; Reid Courneya, Alexandria; Julie Konickson, Red Lake Falls; Colleen Lorenson, Greenbush; Ron Melby, Fergus Falls; Linda Morken, Warren; Diane Rinde, Badger; Marge Toren, Middle River; Rick VanCamp, Newfolden; Kelly Wagner, Roseau; Marjean Wolff, Strathcona; and Brenda Wubbels, Karlstad.

Out-of-state recipents included: Jerry Sonnek, Lemmon, SD; Tom Raymond, Fargo, ND; and Margot Owens from Watford, ND.

Scholarship awards are made during each quarter of Northland's academic year and are awarded on the basis of academic achievement and financial need.

"Organizations and individuals responsible for the scholarship program illustrate the excellent community support for Northland community college," said Ken Wiebolt, administrator of the scholarship program.

Area Students Get Degrees At Concordia

"Obedience" was the title of the commencement address given by Dr. David Preus, president of the American Lutheran Church, during the 92nd commencement at Concordia College, Moorhead, Minn., Sunday, May 1.

Two honorary degrees were awarded, along with 499 diplomas to students who received bachelor of arts or bachelor of music degrees.

Students from this area receiving degrees were Mark Larson, Thief River Falls, who received a degree in business administration and Darla Dahle, Red Lake Falls, who received a degree in business administration, accounting and public school music.

Scott Tranby Gains 'U'MM Dean's List

Scott Tranby, Thief River Falls, was named to the University of Minnesota, Morris dean's list for winter quarter, announced academic dean Bettina Blake.

To be eligible for the list, a student must have a grade point average of 3.5 on a 4.0 scale, be registered for a minimum of 12 credits and carry at least two-thirds of these credits on the ABC-NR grading system.

Marshall 4-H Ambassadors Held Meeting

Marshall county 4-H Ambassadors met April 28 in Warren. Ambassadors are a group of 4-H junior leaders who are committed to working together to promote 4-H in Marshall county, planning and conducting workshops or activities for junior leaders in the county or a number of other events.

The 4-H Ambassadors and their offices are as follows: Jayne Erickson, president, Viking Volcanoes; Mark Fagerstrom, vice president, McCrea; Martha McGregor, secretary-reporter, McCrea; Joel Erickson, treasurer, Viking Volcanoes; Dawn Fulton, historian-scrapbook, McCrea; and Jeff Erickson, photographer, Viking Volcanoes.

Upcoming plans include a roller skating party for junior leaders, checking into a cow milking booth at the fair and designing the 4-H promotion booth at the fair.

Next meeting of the Ambassadors will be held May 25 at Jerry's Dining Depot in Warren.

Arsonist Given 66 Months In Roseau Case

After pleading guilty to two counts of arson and burglary in Roseau county district court last Monday, Gordon Broten of Roseau was sentenced to serve a term of 66 months at Stillwater state prison.

The arson and burglary charges arose from fires and thefts which involved the Times-Region newspaper office, adjoining cafe, law offices, a shoe store and insurance office.

Charges of arson, burglary and aggravated criminal damage to property were dropped as a result of the guilty plea.

The term of 66 months in Stillwater was ordered on each of the two arson charges with the terms to be served concurrently. Stay of imposition of sentence on the two burglary counts was ordered and he was placed on probation for a term not to exceed five years on each count.

Judge Warren A. Saetre also revoked a probation Broten was serving following a 1981 burglary of Prior Electric and sentenced him to serve a year and a day. That sentence is also to be served concurrently with the arson sentence.

Urges Reagan To Intervene On Export Case

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has urged President Ronald Reagan to halt interference by the state department which he says is limiting efforts to expand U.S. farm exports to Pakistan.

"State department officials are slamming the door on attempts to increase U.S. farm exports," Congressman Stangeland said. In a letter to the White House, (endorsed by several other farm state Representatives), Congressman Stangeland asked the President to "personally intervene" in the Pakistan negotiations."

Pakistan currently imposes a 30 per cent import fee on U.S. soybean meal. This barrier closes a potential market to U.S. farmers, who have worked hard to expand Pakistan's soymeal consumption with grower-funded efforts.

Pakistan is currently negotiating for a huge loan from our P.L. 480 program. The U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) persuaded our negotiators that this loan should be linked to a lowering of the import duty on U.S. soymeal.

"When Pakistan tentatively said that it did not want to make this concession, our state department put pressure on the U.S. negotiators," Congressman Stangeland said. "Against the protest of our USDA representative, the negotiators withdrew the proposal.

"Farmers and USDA often disagree," the Barnesville Congressman-farmer said. "Now we are on the same side, but state department interference is slamming the door on farmers.

"We know how committed you are to leading the countries of the world away from protectionist tendencies," Congressman Stangeland told the President. "However, it seriously troubles us that USDA's efforts to reduce the Pakistan import duty on soymeal are not being supported by our own state department personnel in Pakistan.

"Pakistan wants our loan, and our farmers want access to this market," he said. "There is still time for an agreement to be worked out.

"I urge you to personally intervene in this matter and support USDA's effort to link P.L. 480 aid with reductions in Pakistan's excessive import duty on soymeal," he said.

POPPING UP through the hole in the middle of this parachute instead of running underneath like they were supposed to do, seemed to bring a lot of delight to these children in the Home Start program, proving that toys don't need to be elaborate to be fun. Although the danger seemed slight, home educator Leann Steiger warned the children not to do it because of the possibility of choking. Playing cooperatively with other children is one of the activities which the Head Start program uses to help prepare children to attend school.

REDEEMER LUTHERAN church pastor Rev. Don Knudson recently accepted a certificate of appreciation from the Pine to Prairie Girl Scout Countil, acknowledging their thanks for the use of the church for meetings of troops, leaders and special functions such as banquets. Presenting the award were Scouts Heather Adamson, left, and Kelly Cornell.

The convention is open to all women.

Host Families Sought For Farm Trainees

Farm and ranch families interested in hosting an international agricultural trainee in 1983 can still participate in MAST international, a program sponsored by the agricultural extension ervice.

Agriculture trainees from five countries are available for placements in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and the other Western states. Familes are needed as host-trainers for five months of practical, on-the-farm and ranch experience, starting in late June.

Young farmers in their twenties with agricultural education and farm experience learn American agriculture by living and working with farm or ranch families. All of these young farmers bring a working knowledge of English and farm backgrounds.

If you would like to share your life and work with one or more of these well-trained and motivated agriculturists, and can afford about $475 per month plus room and board for experienced farm help inquire or apply to host by writing or calling: Fred Hoefer, Agricultural Extension Service-OSP, 405 E. Coffey Hall, U of M, 1420 Eckles Ave., St. Paul, MN 55108, phone (612) 373-0725.

Dale Iverson Finishes Army Training Term

Pvt. Dale C. Iverson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Iverson of Thief River Falls, has completed a wheeled-vehicle mechanic course at the U.S. army training center, Fort Jackson, S.C.

During the course, students were trained to perform maintenance and assist in the repair of automotive vehicles and associated equipment.

Report Made On DPS Vehicle Dealer Checks

In 1982, the Minnesota department of public safety (DPS) made 3,853 inspections of motor vehicle dealers throughout the state. Forty-six dealer examiners conducted inspections of the dealers' everyday operations making certain that dealers are maintaining records and following procedures outlined by the department besides complying with specific criteria such as local zoning regulations. Everyday operations include titling and transferring vehicles, collecting sales tax, and correctly reporting odometer readings.

Prior to March 1980, there were seven staff members assigned the duties of inspecting dealers statewide. Increased number of personnel now allows more frequent contact and personalized attention to individual dealers. "The examiners' try to assist individual dealers so they can do a better job. The end result is a happier, more satisfied consumer," said Michael Ryan, driver and vehicle services inspections supervisor.

According to DPS driver and vehicle services records of surprise inspections over 90 per cent of all dealerships are in compliance with the rules and regulations of the state. Misunderstanding or unfamiliarity with required forms cause most of the non-compliance instances. DPS rarely has had to revoke a dealer's license which only occurs after a dealer receives numerous citations and a formal hearing is held. Only six licenses have ever been revoked for non-compliance (five more are currently in process and 12 companies went out of business before the revocation process was completed).

In 1982, 21 first-time applications for dealer licenses were denied. There were 550 complaints investigated by the department in 1982, the majority from consumers.

Annual licenses cost $76 for dealers plus an additional $50 for new dealers and applicable filing fees. State law also requires each dealer to post a $25,000 bond for consumer protection.

Goal of the department is to conduct two unannounced inspections of each dealer annually. Inspections take from 15 minutes to four hours depending upon the volume of vehicles sold, the newness of the operation and familiarity with the 20 required forms, and non-compliance.

Currently there are 3,400 licensed automobile dealerships in Minnesota. Hennepin County has the largest number od dealers totaling 620. On the average 35 new dealers apply for licensing each month.

State Fair Livestock Exhibits Set

Premiums for winning livestock exhibitors at the Minnesota state fair will be increased to a record $210,000 for the 1983 exposition, Aug. 25 through Sept. 5. The state fair's livestock program includes open class competition for cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, dairy goats and horses. Competitive events for future farmers of America (FFA) and 4-H livestock are also scheduled.

Open class cattle and sheep shows will be split, with beef cattle and half the sheep breeds shown August 25-28. Dairy cattle and the remaining sheep breeds will be exhibited August 29-September 1. A new feature of the beef cattle competition will be a class for the South Devon breed.

Minnesota purebred dairy cattle association will conduct their first-ever state fair dairy cattle auction September 3 in the judging arena. Over 60 yead of cattle, including all six major dairy breeds, will be offered. Cattle to be auctioned will be displayed at the state fair September 2 and 3.

Open class swine competition is scheduled for August 29-September 1. A special feature of the swine show will be the second annual all breed swine auction August 31 in the swine barn. The auction will be conducted by the Minnesota purebred swine breeders.

Premiums have been increased 25 per cent for the open class poultry competition. Chickens will be displayed August 25-30 and turkeys, waterfowl, rabbits and pigeons will be shown August 31-September 5.

State fair's open class dairy goat show is scheduled for the final four days of the fair, September 2-5.

English and Western horse shows will be featured in the air-conditioned coliseum. English breeds, including a new class for Clydesdales in the draft horse show, will be exhibited August 25-30. Appearing at paid English horse shows will be Jerry Olson and his trained buffalo, Chief. Western horses will be shown September 2-5.

World's largest FFA livestock show is scheduled for the first four days of the fair, August 25-28. The beef cattle segment of the FFA show for the first time will include classes for Limousin and Simmental breeds.

Livestock competition for 4-H members will be held September 2-5. The 4-H livestock show will conclude with a market livestock auction September 5, organized and conducted by the Minnesota livestock breeders association.

For more information on the state fair livestock program, contact: Entry Department, Minnesota State Fair, St. Paul, Minn. 55108; phone (612) 642-2217.

Sand Bed Aids Hospital In Patient Care

A hospital at Fargo recently received the first sand bed in the state of North Dakota. The sand bed, technically known as the Clinitron air-fluidized therapy system, is designed to ease pain, prevent reinfection, and aid treatment in a variety of situations.

Clinitron therapy works by forcing filtered, temperature-controlled air through a 10-inch layer of soda-lime glass beads, which are coated with silicone.

The patient rests on a permeable filter sheet, which allows the air to pass through, but contains the particles. When the airflow is turned off, the patient settles into the particles, which mold to his or her body, keeping him or her stationary during treatment procedures. When the flow is turned on, the patient "floats" on the moving particles, without friction or pressure. This is extremely helpful in the prevention of pressure sores, management of pain and care of patients who are comatose, unconscious, in traction, or suffering from multiple injuries.

The Clinitron provides a clean environment, also. Warm air can flow up through the sheet while body fluids like blood and perspiration can flow downward, away from the patient.

When these fluids mix with the limestone particles, their pH values rise to a level which does not support bacterial growth. The chances of a patient being re-infected with his or her own germs are eliminated.

Also, the temperature of the bed can be selected according to the patient's needs. Once selected, the temperature will remain constant. The combination of constant temperature, (floating) support and bacteria elimination removes the need for bandages, even on the worst wounds.

There are many advantages to the sand bed. One nurse can now move some patients once required to have two or more people. Pain, in some instances, can be reduced because the pressure of the patient's body weight is evenly distributed, therefore the flow of blood is improved and sheer and friction are virtually eliminated.

Clinitron therapy was developed 20 years ago by Dr. Curtis Artz, first head of the National Burn institute in Dallas, Texas and Dr. Thomas Hargest, an engineer. For the first 10 to 15 years, the Clinitron bed was used exclusively for burn victims. But in the last five to seven years Dr. Artz and Dr. Hargest found that Clinitron therapy has been extremely successful for other patients.

The potential uses of Clinitron therapy are many, from orthopedic to geriatrics, burns to oncology.

The Clinitron support system is already in use at the hospital which is expecting its second Clinitron support system within the next day or two.

Law Day Slated At Sports Arena On Wednesday

Exhibits and demonstrations, including one by the K-9 corps from the Grand Forks air force base, will be presented during law day Wednesday at the Thief River Falls sports arena. The observance will be from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Demonstration by the K-9 corps will feature four trained dogs and seven or eight people and will begin at 4:30 p.m. in front of the sports arena. The demonstration will include attack training, hostage situations, basic obedience, drill formation marching, gunfire training and other activities with Sgt. Matthews in charge of the unit.

Law enforcement agencies and other agencies which have enforcement authority will have booths or tables inside the arena where they will distribute information, exhibit items of interest to the public and answer questions.

Radar checks of speedometers will be offered by local police, sheriff and state patrol officers from 1:30 to 3:30 and 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Officers will use portable radar units and ride along with drivers to check their speedometer readings.

Participating agencies will include the Federal Bureau of Investigation from Minneapolis; U.S. Customs service from Pembina, ND; U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms from Fargo, ND; National Drug Enforcement administration from Fargo; enforcement division of the Minnesota department of natural resources; Agassiz national wildlife refuge; Minnesota bureau of criminal apprehension; security police squadron and office of special investigations from the Grand Forks air force base; and Company B of the Minnesota national guard.

Views Given On Sex Equity At TRF AVTI

work together and they have a tough time doing that, she added.

"Underlying what I have been talking about," she said, "we go down a long list of the conditions of distrust and the conditions of trust. A condition of trust, for instance, is to allow people to work together, to set it up so they learn the same skills, so they don't put each other down ("he can't even fry an egg; she can't even change a tire").

"It's a management decision to decide to teach everyone the same skills, but it will be hard to pull it off because a lot of habits need to be changed. There are two things that are conceptually difficult, that do tend to keep us in our place.

"One is the thought that the only relationship between women and men must be sexual, so that they can't even go to lunch together. You don't overcome that with management, you overcome that with understanding. It has to be established as a public value that it's a good idea for women and men to be friends.

"The second is the idea that you have to earn your sex identity — to prove your maleness or femaleness. When people believe that they have to conform to prove these conceptions, they restrict themselves. Society must learn that maleness and femaleness are inherent, and that they are not tied to the job you do and how you express your emotions.

"If you really want boys and girls to be friends, you're not going to tease them about it," Smith noted. "And you shouldn't have to go to a workshop to learn to do that. The workshop is only to put people in touch with the fact that whether a boy child is cooking dinner or playing baseball, he is still a boy child.

"Once you develop those two values — that women and men can be friends and that sex identity does not have to be proved — people develop their own practical suggestions. To encourage people into so-called non-traditional work roles, you have to show them other people doing that work. And when they can relate to these people as role models, it is easier for them to become involved in the same fields and become role models themselves."

Smith said that she finds changes taking place at a much more rapid rate than she would have expected and she has been pleased by that development.

JAZZ CHOIR at Northland community college in Thief River Falls will join with the jazz band to present their first dinner concert on Sunday, May 8, in the commons area of the school. The 7 p.m. concert and dinner will begin at 7 p.m. with the Creole theme being carried out with French cuisine and a New Orleans style atmosphere. Members of the jazz choir pictured above are Sandy Falk, Heidi Goos, Lisa Kriel, Lori Lundin, Cheri Perisian, Kim Phillips, Marilyn Vraa, Mindy Green, Deb Koskela, Patti Nelson, Ann Odegaard, Tamie Anderson, Reid Courneya, Calvin Lindstrom, Perry Moran, Dan Shoults, Steve Dalager, Glen Smeby, Bud Fontes and Tim Finseth. Mindy Green and Patti Nelson are pianists with Katy Kinsman on drums and Heidi Goos and Lori Lundin on bass.

JAZZ BAND at Northland community college will be on tour Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday along with the jazz choir. Concerts will be presented at Oklee, Clearbrook, Gonvick, Red Lake Falls, McIntosh, Grafton, ND, and Middle River. Overnight stops will be at Bemidji and Grand Forks. Members of the band include Christie LaCoursiere, Lisa Kriel, Gwen Nylan, Patti Nelson and Lori Lundin, saxophones; Glen Smeby, Hal Swanson and Steve Fisher, trombones; Marty Semanko and Darrel Dally, trumpets; Katy Kinsman, drums; Mindy Green, piano; Steve Dalager, bass; and John Helms, guitar. Director of the band is Les Torgerson.

'82 Was Tough Year For Area Farm Operators

Dairy farmers have had the most consistent returns for the past four years, earning an average of $625 over listed costs in 1982, $632 in 1981, $603 in 1980 and $660 in 1979.

Farm size (tillable acres) decreased slightly in 1982 to 737 acres from 750 acres in 1981, indicating growth from 491 acres in 1965, 465 acres in 1970 and 528 acres in 1975. Land cost skyrocketed to an average of $336,434 per farm in 1982 compared with $195,895 the previous year and only $16,802 in 1965, $47,450 in 1970 and $89,506 in 1975. Crop seed and feed in 1982 totaled $56,830 compared with $4,551 in 1965 while power and machinery of $68,708 in 1982 compared with $7,036 in 1965.

Farm expense per dollar of farm receipts in 1982 averaged 99 cents among the farms analyzed, up from 96 cents in 1981. Interest totaled $21,670 on borrowings averaging $82,919 per farm while in 1981 interest totaled $20,754 on $126,345 in borrowing. Back in 1979 the interest on $72,790 in borrowing was $9,343 and in 1973 the interest on $23,565 in borrowing was $2,451.

The average farmer in 1982 spent $157,020 in the community and service area, compared with $190,424 in 1981 and only $53,890 back in 1973. Of the total, $9,596 went to other farmers for livestock and custom work, $62,239 to the agribusiness community for fertilizer, chemicals, seed, feed, repair and fuel, $4,689 for extra labor, $2,609 in propery tax, $1,677 for utilities, $32,258 for use of other people's capital (interest and rent), $13,985 to farm equipment dealers, $8,221 for real estate purchase and improvement and $21,746 for household and personal expenses.

Return on wheat per acre was $35.55, compared with $42.03 in 1981, $6.89 in 1980, $22.74 in 1979 and $32.62 in 1978. Banner year was 1973 when wheat yielded $110.12 per acre return over listed costs.

Martha Knauf Services Held At St. John

Funeral services for Mrs. Martha Knauf, 89, of Thief River Falls, were held Saturday at 2:00 p.m., at St. John Lutheran church. Mrs. Knauf died Tuesday evening at Northwestern hospital.

Rev. Roger E. Raebel officiated at the services. Organist and soloist was Mrs. Elaine Idso. Interment was in the Holt cemetery. The Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Maynard Mehrkens, Marvin Mehrkens, Charlie Josephson, J.K. Stadum, Albert Koop and Hans Anton.

Mrs. Knauf, the former Martha Kuehne, was born Dec. 23, 1893 in Polk county to August and Amelia Zimmermann Kuehne. She attended school and grew to womanhood in Steiner township of Marshall county.

On April 29, 1913, she was married to Albin Knauf. Following their marriage, the couple farmed in the Holt area until the early 40's, when they moved into Thief River Falls. Since then, she had made her home here. She worked at Jung's Bakery until the bakery closed.

She was a long-time member of St. John Lutheran church.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Edward (Ruth) Kaiserski, Canoga Park, Calif.; five grandsons, a great-granddaughter, and two brothers: William Kuehne of Cook, and Ernest of Port Charlotte, Fla.

She was preceded in death by her husband, who died in 1957, her parents, two sisters: Emma and Annie, and a brother, Otto.

Fred Evenson Dies April 27 In Oregon

Fred Evenson, 38, a former resident of Thief River Falls, died Wednesday at Portland, Ore. Among his survivors are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Erving Evenson of Red Lake Falls.

Funeral services for Fred Evenson were held Friday at 7:30 p.m., at Beaverton, Ore.

A complete obituary will be published in a later edition of the Times.

Mrs. Edwin Syversrud, 95, Dies April 27

Mrs. Edwin (Emma) Syversrud, 95, of Thief River Falls, died Wednesday at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Mrs. Syversrud were held Saturday at 10:30 a.m., at Trinity Lutheran church with Rev. Berton Hushagen officiating. LeRoy Aasland was the soloist and Mrs. Dorothy Larson, the organist. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Wes Bendickson, Wayne Bendickson, Les Vigness, Virgil Larson, Olaf Stolaas and Orlan Stolaas.

Mrs. Syversrud, the former Emma Dahle, was born July 4, 1887 at McIntosh to Tallak and Engebrorg Skomdal Dahle. She grew to womanhood in the Oklee area.

On April 18, 1918, she was married to Edwin Syversrud. The couple farmed near Highlanding until 1942, when they moved into Thief River Falls. Since, then, she had made her home here.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Ben (Thelma) Bendickson, Thief River Falls; seven grandchildren, 15 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her husband, who died in January of 1973, her parents, a half-brother and a half-sister.

Dear Readers,
Because the planning of a funeral service is a complex mixture of religion, emotional and social natures, it should never be stereotyped or treated lightly. The funeral is basically a religious rite, hence its planning is of concern to your clergyman as well as your funeral director.
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home

EIGHT PRESCHOOL children trying their hand at making pretzels looks like a messy process, but then, what kid doesn't enjoy making a mess: Flour was spread on the table to keep things from getting too sticky, while these children in the Head Start program attempted to form their dough into the proper shape. Although most of the children concentrated on the task at hand, others were more interested in what the photographer was up to. Clockwise from left are: Catherine Griffeth, Natalie Loffler, Kimberly Amundgaard, Jeremy Swanson, Curt Eckstein, home educator Dee Simenson, Karl Asselin, Craig Shetler and Thomas Jacobson. The mess proved to be only temporary, and was easily remedied with a damp cloth.

PRETZELS made by these children in the Head Start program recently were highly individualized, bearing little resemblance to the common commercial brands. While Catherine Griffeth salted her pretzel (with a little help from home educator Leann Steiger), Natalie Loeffler observed her technique carefully, and Kimberly Amundgaard worked at brushing a glaze made of beaten eggs onto her creation.

Preschool Kids Offered Chance For Head Start

Home-based Head Start activities in the Thief River Falls area have included a wide variety of things during the past year, according to home-base educator Leann Steiger.

During regular home visits she has worked with parents in carrying out teaching activities with their children, and small groups of parents and children have met in clusters to do special activities. Center base activities have been held at Zion Lutheran Church, providing opportunities for children to be in a group learning situation prior to attending school. Steiger has been assisted in center base activities by parent volunteers.

Local parent group has been led by Val Amundgaard. During this year, parents organized a special family night out with potluck supper. Workshops have been held during the year to provide information to parents on such topics as children's behaviour and discipline, family dynamics, and children's self-esteem. Special parent night out included a potluck salad bar and featured Rollie Martinson, St. Paul, speaking on "Family Life in the Eighties."

Trips to various places in the community have provided learning experiences for the children, made especially effective because people have taken time to talk with them and show them things. Center base groups have visited Lions Park and the library. Cluster groups have visited the fire station, Gary's Bakery, Hallstrom's dairy farm and Duane Vatsaas' dairy farm.

Program is offered to families with children aged three to five. Priority is given to children who will attend kindergarten the following year. Although income guidelines are used to determine who may be enrolled in activities, additional families may participate in center base activities for a fee, as space allows. Community education program of the school district has helped to reduce the cost per family.

Recruitment for next year's program is now underway. Information and applications may be obtained by writing to: Head Start, Inter-County Community Council Inc., Box 187, Oklee, MN. 56742; or calling 796-5144 or toll-free 1-800-542-5035.

Waste Problem Is Topic Of 'U' Conference

Minnesotans concerned about the hazardous waste problem and Minnesota's future hazardous waste policies will be able to discuss those issues at a special public conference, "Searching For Solutions," from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Monday, May 23, at the Earle Brown center on the St. Paul campus of the University of Minnesota.

Conference is co-sponsored by the Minnesota waste management board and the University of Minnesota as part of the board's development of a long-range Minnesota hazardous waste management plan. The conference is free, with the cost of lunch extra; participants must pre-register due to limited space.

"Searching for Solutions" will enable citizens, local and state officials and a variety of state and community leaders to debate and recommend the priorities the waste management board must set in developing Minnesota's long-range hazardous waste policies.

Conference will discuss the various impacts and requirements of those policies and will examine potential economic costs, measures to protect the environment and public safety, the need for long-term safeguards and the development of new technologies that represent "alternatives" to the land-disposal of hazardous wastes.

Leading off the conference will be a panel discussion moderated by "St. Paul Pioneer Press" editor John Finnegan in which representatives of industry, environmental, rural, urban, legal and other perspectives will discuss a wide range of potential solutions to the hazardous waste problem.

Following the main panel session, four concurrent panel discussion will address special hazardous waste issues. Those panels will include:

+ Discussion of the costs of hazardous waste management to industry, businesses, taxpayers, consumers and the state moderated by Peter Fausch, a public policy and planning consultant;

+ Panel on protection of the environment and public safety moderated by WCCO radio news director Curt Beckmann that will include a discussion of the state's hazardous waste regulations;

+ Discussion of the need for long-term safeguards including the issue of liability for managing hazardous wastes moderated by William Mitchell law school professor Marcia Gelpe; and

+ Panel on measures to develop and foster alternative technologies to the land-disposal of hazardous waste, moderated by Robert Willis, chairman of the waste management board's hazardous-waste-management-planning council.

Participants will be encouraged to question and respond to the panelists. In addition to the structured panels, time will be provided for participants to raise new issues and concerns not addressed in the individual sessions.

To register for the conference, or for further information, contact John Vollum at the University of Minnesota's Department of Conference: (612) 373-3157.

Senator Says Vets Hospital Near Reality

Minneapolis veterans hospital moved another step closer to construction when the veterans affairs committee unanimously approved the resolution authorizing $254 million in the U.S. senate.

"By approving the resolution the stage has now been set for including funding in a military pay supplemental bill. I'm confident this will occur by mid-May," Sen Rudy Boschwitz said.

Boschwitz added that Senator Jake Garn, chairman of the appropriations subcommittee with responsibility for VA funding has "repeatedly assured me he will include the hospital's appropriation in this bill."

The Minneapolis veterans hospital has been an on-again, off-again squabble since the VA first supported the project in 1979. It first reached the VA budget in fiscal year 1981.

Although it has already been approved for FY84, which begins Oct. 1, 1983, this new authorization and appropriation process will allow construction to begin as early as this summer.

"The new hospital is extremely important to Minnesota veterans and I'm very pleased this hurdle has been cleared. Veterans can now look forward to actual construction beginning soon," Sen. Boschwitz said.

Day Of Prayer Observance At Black River

Black River Lutheran church west of St. Hilaire will participate in the national day of prayer observance Thursday with a special observance of the "Take Five at Twelve" national theme.

Object of the theme is for participants to take five minutes at noon on Thursday for a time of prayer. Black River church is stressing that its observance is informal and that farmers, housewives and people of other occupations are encouraged to "come as they are" from the field or job for the few minutes of prayer at noon, followed by a pot-luck dinner at the church.

"This is a busy season in a rural community," a spokesman for the church said, "but we are encouraging our members and others to take a break from their labors to join in the prayer time and noon meal. People don't need to dress up to pray."

Scholarships Available For Ag Seniors

Scholarships are available from the communicating for agriculture (CA) scholarship and education foundation to graduating seniors who are furthering their careers that will serve rural America.

Applicants must be planning to attend college, university or vocational-technical school in the fall.

Any interested graduating high school senior should contact Mary Hauser at Communicating for Agriculture Scholarship and Education Foundation, P.O. Box 677, Fergus Falls, Minn., 56537 by May 17.

CA foundation is a charitable and educational organization, headquartered in Fergus Falls and funded through tax deductible contributions received from individuals, businesses and other foundations. The CA foundation is part of communicating for Agriculture, Inc., a national rural advocacy organization.

Sen. Stumpf Applauds FmHA Disaster Loans

Senator LeRoy Stumpf says he applauds secretary of agriculture John R. Block, who has announced that Pennington and Red Lak counties will be granted a secretarial natural disaster designation to make emergency (EM) loans available through the Farmers Home administration (FmHA).

Governor Rudy Perpich made this request because of adverse weather conditions occurring May 1, 1982 through Dec. 2, 1982, according to state senator Stumpf.

Damage assessment reports (DARs) for the two counties had been carefully evaluated to determine the extent of damage caused by the adverse weather conditions. Based upon information provided on the DARs, it was determined that production losses sustained in Pennington and Red Lake counties were sufficient to warrant a secretarial disaster designation.

Accordingly, the FmHA administrator has been notified to make EM loans available to eligible applicants in Pennington and Red Lake counties, Sen. Stumpf stated.

ACE To Meet May 12 At Northland

On Thursday, May 12 at 1 to 3 p.m. in the room A-43 and at 7 to 9 p.m. in room B37 Northland Community College (NCC) adults continuing education (ACE) will host a "back to school" meeting. Any adult who is considering one or more college classes for career needs, personal satisfaction or to work toward an associate of arts degree, is invited to attend.

Included on the program will be information on registration procedures, schedules of classes, financial aid and tours of the college.

Participants will also have an opportunity to visit with ACE members now enrolled as non-traditional or older than average students at NCC.

For additional information call Northland at 681-2181.

Warne Named Marshall Co. IR Chairman

Wayne Warne, Grygla, was named chairman of the Marshall county Independent Republicans at a meeting of the county executive committee in Newfolden on April 20.

Warne is replacing Alton Nybladh, Stephen, who was elected chairman at the annual convention in March, but later resigned because of his work with the ASC committee.

Warne moved into the chairman position from his former office as one of two vice chairmen and Bruce Elseth, Newfolden will fill his vacated spot.

In other business, county finance chairman Clarice Hjelle, Stephen, requested that all neighbor to neighbor fund drive solicitors complete contacts and send money collected to her by May 3.

Mrs. Leonard Yonke and David and Mrs. Chester Yonke, Jason and Scott attended the Holt 4-H club meeting Thursday evening at the Holt Community center.

Southwest State Conducts Band Camp

Southwest state university's music department will conduct a summer band camp for grades eight to 12 from May 30 through June 4 at the Lake Shetek Lutheran Bible camp in southwestern Minnesota.

Camp will be under the direction of Dr. Rollin R. Potter, chairman of the music department. In addition to the band experience, student musicians will receive private and ensemble instruction in brass, woodwinds and percussion.

Camp will conclude June 4 with an evening concert at Southwest state university in Marshall. Participants will also be able to use the recreational facilities available at the camp.

Pre-registration is advised, and payment of the $75 fee should be made by May 15. Forms can be obtained through school music instructors or by writing to: Music Department, Southwest State University, Marshall, MN 56258.

A Special Guest

When Pelican Rapids has its centennial observance this July, a special guest will be John Haugee. He is special because, when Pelican Rapids came into being 100 years ago, John was already there!

There can't be many communities across the country which observe centennials and still have residents who were present when the community was organized. Haugee came to Maplewood township at Pelican Rapids with his Norwegian immigrant parents and four brothers and sisters in 1883.

Now 105 years old, John lives with his wife Amy in an apartment in Pelican Rapids where they care for their own needs without assistance. They left the farm in John's 100th year after 65 years of marriage. He is bothered by cataracts, hearing problems and arthritic pains that come and go, but says philosophically that "you can't expect to be young when you're old".

He will ride in the community's centennial parade if health permits, and that should be quite an experience. Asked if he would ride in the parade, he showed his sense of humor by saying, "I couldn't walk in it, oh, no!"

Isn't it great to have a sense of humor at 105? Too many people never seem to develop one at all.

Non-Bumper Crop

Following editorial is from the Sacramento (CA) Bee:

No one has even been able to eliminate the boom-or-bust cycles that have plagued agriculture seemingly forever, but for a generation or more the U.S. government has resorted to a confusing variety of acreage set-aside and commodity purchase programs to moderate the worst effects of the cycle and the innate tendency of farmers to produce everything they can. The limited success of such programs has been offset, especially in recent years, by a continuing trend toward overproduction and, consequently, a greater burden on taxpayers to finance farm subsidy programs now costing more than $13 billion annually.

Thus, the Agriculture Department's latest assault on the problem was met with a fair degree of skepticism when it was announced last autumn. Under the so-called payment-in-kind program (popularly known as PIK), the government would continue offering cash payments and price-supports for set-asides up to 20 per cent of a farmer's total aacreage in grain or cotton they normally would produce on the land in question; in turn, they could sell it on the open market for whatever price they could obtain.

To everyone's surprise, the Agriculture Department announced a few days ago that the level of participation is far higher than expected, up to more than 90 per cent of rice growers, for example. As a result, 82 million acres — more than a third of U.S. farmland — will be taken out of production this year, well over double the amount expected. As a further result, the government's bulging warehouses will get relief, government-paid storage costs will decline dramatically, farmers will save scarce dollars they otherwise would have spent on seed, fertilizer, fuel and water, their cash income will increase and rock-bottom commodity prices will begin (in fact, already have begun) to rise.

The overwhelming response probably results more from the desperate financial situation of millions of farmers than anything else, but the result is what counts. No one knows yet what the ultimate savings to the Treasury will be, though Agriculture Secretary John Block thinks it will be at least $3 billion over the next few years. Even if the program exceeds that level of savings, though, PIK should not be allowed to become a permanent fixture of federal agricultural policy. Too much success could deplete grain reserves to the point where desirable moderate price increases break into an inflationary gallop, a situation that could be exacerbated if nature interrupts the string of bumper-crop years.

An even worse danger would be the institutionalization of payment-in-kind along the lines of the federal dairy support program that now costs taxpayers $6 billion or more annually and has done nothing to reduce the mountain of surplus butter and cheese that has built up. Once PIK has achieved its objective, it should be phased out in such a way that overproduction does not again reach the levels it has in recent year. Given existing farm technology and the ability of American farmers to respond with lightning rapidity to financial inducements, that danger cannot be underestimated.

Farm Changes Coming

Not all predictions about future advancements come to pass, but with the rapid advances in technology and their applications to everyday activities, one would expect that many predictions for changes in farming will indeed happen.

Production Credit association publication predicts that by the year 2000, now only 17 years away, tractors will be equipped with on-board computers that will automatically adjust the transmission setting and engine r.p.m. to tractor and field load conditions for optimum fuel efficiency. Combine computers will control all major machine functions, including automatic steering. Computers on corn planters will automatically adjust planting depth and planting rate, depending upon soil moisture and fertility levels in different parts of the field.

Genetic engineering, PCA says, will allow plant breeders to accelerate the growth rate of wheat and soybeans, allowing more opportunities for double-cropping and boosting yields by 20 to 50 per cent. Interferons — experimental drugs genetic engineers are developing to cure some forms of human cancer — will be widely used in livestock herds to provide fast-acting cures and broad spectrum protection against viral infections.

Such changes will be needed for efficiency, although they will be expensive. PCA says net farm income as a percentage of gross farm income has dropped from 41.2 per cent in 1950 to 13.2 per cent in 1980.

The GTA Journal points out that a silicon chip the size of a fingernail now has three times the electrical circuits as the first room-size computers manufactured in 1951. "You'll have to work very hard to avoid owning or using some form of computing device," states Roy C. Baker, general manager of marketing for agricultural products of Control Data corporation.

Futurist Earl Joseph predicts that genetic engineering will permit the customizing of animals that consumers and producers want. In designing a cow, for instance, it may be possible to decide on the end product and then control such things as marbling within the meat but little fat on the outside of the carcass, and a rapid growth rate. Perhaps new crops can be developed, such as a mixture of peas, carrots and corn on what is now a corn cob. Crops may be developed which take their nitrogen from the air, making it possible to do such things as raise corn crops on the desert.

Joseph speculates on growing "jumbo" wheat kernels and other grains, developing micro-organisms to "eat" oil spills, even growing "crops" like oatmeal cookies instead of wheat and oats and sugar cane or beets.

Author-lecturer Hiram Drache agrees that not all of the prime U.S. farmland may be needed in the future. Top farmers now achieve yields at three times the average rate, he said, indicating that "in many ways we have not even started to farm." One study shows that all of the food needed in Washington, DC, could be grown on Washington area rooftops if designed for it.

He expects new developments to make animal agriculture more efficient at competing with animal substitutes. And he believes U.S. exports will rise in volume but the percentage of those exports in total world volume will decline.

Projections are that by the year 2100 the world population will be 30 billion people — seven times today's population. Drache says we cannot expect the rest of the world to rely on us for food. Our potential to supply food for that many people is not that great.

Most of the prognosticators foresee greater vertical farming and on-farm processing. This will help preserve the family farm — not as it is known today but socially comparable. Many farmers will find comfort in that.

BACKYARD PICNICS for the New Solum 4-H club members have been held many times at the home of Mrs. Bert (Joyce) Kron. She pointed out that the tree in the photo above has probably been climbed by every child in the area. Joyce was a 4-H leader for 35 years prior to her retirement last fall. Joyce was also involved in 4-H as a member when the program was just getting started in northwestern Minnesota.

WORKING WITH GERANIUMS is a favorite hobby of Mrs. Bert (Joyce) Kron. Joyce has blooming geraniums decorating her entire home and they obviously thrive on her attention. She retired last fall as a leader of the New Solum 4-H club after 35 years of involvement.

Joyce Kron Gives 35 Years To 4-H Effort

trip to St. Paul for showing her beef Hereford steer. While there, she saw grapefruit for the first time. It was a new experience.

Commenting how drastically things have changed, Joyce told the story of a New Solum member who went to the 4-H congress in Chicago, IL and saw moon rocks.

"Compare a moon rock to a grapefruit. Things have changed, but they were both new experiences," Joyce stated.

As one of six children, Joyce enjoyed sewing, cooking, livestock and conservation projects as a 4-H member. She earned a trip to Itasca state park, which she described as "inspirational."

"Conservation has also been modernized with the times," Joyce commented. "It used to be that appreciation was emphasized a great deal, now it's preservation."

Joyce believes in 4-H totally because of the confidence it builds. She related that she will never forget one little girl who was extremely shy. At a project talk, Joyce encouraged her to say three things. This particular child cried through all three. "She said them though, the important thing was she said them," Joyce beamed. Since that time, the girl has become a 4-H leader herself.

"There's always a possibility they will outgrow it on their own, but there's a lot less unhappiness if they can start out speaking in front of familiar people and neighbors," Joyce said.

That changing is her favorite part. "The most rewarding thing has to be seeing the children develop confidence and curiosity. I also hope every child can have one trip sometime."

Confidence is also developed by the members who decide to be junior leaders in a group. "It actually is the first taste of becoming a leader in school, the community or church work," Joyce commented.

She considers her own leadership as a marvelous opportunity to grow and learn. "I was able to take a trip to Washington, DC, for a leadership workshop," Joyce remarked, adding, "It made me realize there was no reason any child in the club couldn't do the same thing. Since then two junior leaders have made the trip."

Although emphasizing the positive aspects, Joyce also mentioned that she did have to sacrifice a few things to be a leader. "You have to have a family that will tolerate you," she laughed. "I don't know how many meals my husband has had to rustle up. You can't have a perfect house as a priority. You choose your priorities and mine has been doing things with young people."

When the last child of the families who grew up with her children graduated last spring, Joyce decided it was time to retire from her leadership duties.

Joyce taught school for six years when she was first married and she continued substitute teaching in Viking and Newfolden. She has also taught Sunday school at United Methodist church in Thief River Falls. "Young people; again that same fun age group," she explained.

Joyce has four grown children of her own, all of whom were involved in 4-H. The trend seems to be continuing as her granddaughter is already entering sewing projects in fairs.

The Krons are enjoying their retirement. She is involved with flowers, particularly geraniums, and belongs to the Viking Town and Country garden club. She and Bert both enjoy traveling and last summer they went to Churchill, Manitoba by train.

Love of 4-H will never die for Joyce and she continues to enjoy trips to the county and state fairs.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I just noted in the April 27th issue of the Times the observance of law week takes place during the week of May 8-15th. It is very fitting and appropriate that some public interest and attention is given to all the efforts of this segment of society that is so important to the welfare and protection of each one of us as individual citizens.

I became acutely aware of this fact as I was recently involved in an automobile accident. A policeman was at the scene immediately and I do not have words in my vocabulary to express my appreciation for the manner in which he handled the situation. He was efficient, kind and in complete control of the situation.

I was numb, and in shock so did not realize I was injured at the moment. However, it was fortunate that someone knew better than I in regard to the necessary action to be taken. The ambulance was there in seconds and as soon as it began moving I realized I was in need of help. The pain was excruciating so I was thankful I would soon be at Northwestern hospital where I knew I would be in the good hands of the excellent doctors and nurses who cared for me during my five-day stay there.

However, the policeman did not leave until he was informed that the situation was under control and that I would be admitted to the hospital. The next day he visited me to check on my progress there.

I am very thankful to the "Good Samaritans" we have in our law enforcement department and a host of other people that through this painful experience have made me very grateful to be alive.

With deep appreciation to all,
Estelle Grinde

Legislators In Dist. 1B Favor Comp Reforms

Special To The Times
by Jim Robins
Northern Star News Service

Major workers' compensation reform is given a good chance of passing this year at the Minnesota legislature. Sensitive negotiations between business and labor groups continue behind closed doors.

Specifics aren't known yet, but the goal of lowering premiums is in clear view. Recent reports indicate lowering premium benefits across the board isn't the answer. Although Minnesota's insurance premiums are high, overall benefits appear to be in line with other states.

A Citizens league report indicates changes in the Minnesota law need to be made so that employees are encouraged to return to work. Another major expense is litigation, partially attributed to unclear wording in the state law.

With costly litigation concentrated in the Twin Cities area, there's a push for mandating lower rates in the rest of the state.

The possibility of implementing a competitive state fund continues to be part of the discussion and is supported by Gov. Rudy Perpich. However, many observers close to the worker's comp issue view the state fund question as largely political, without much bearing on the need for substantial changes reducing the cost of premiums paid by businesses.

As Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls sees it, the "number one (workers' comp) problem is the cost. . . it's too high." And to show he wants something done about workers' comp, Sparby, along with 14 other DFLers, voted with House Independent-Republicans on April 21 to give a worker's comp bill a chance.

To get at the root of high costs, the legislature has to address all parts of the compensation system: insurance, litigation, medicine and benefits, Sparby said.

Just adjusting one part of the problem won't fix it, but Sparby did suggest some changes in the benefit system that could cut costs.

The state needs a dollar limit on partial permanent disability, Sparby said, and there is "not enough incentive now" to get people back to work quickly.

There are "numberous problems" in the Minnesota workers' comp system, according to Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer. He would make some changes in the way benefits are paid. "It's available for people to misuse the system," he said.

A year ago, Stumpf was a member of the House. If he was still there, he would have been among the rebel DLFers who joined IR legislators in last week's workers' comp confrontation. "We're trying to force something to get done. We must take the bull by the horns," he said.

Of the House battle, Stumpf said, "I would have been right in there."

Although he isn't opposed to the concept, Stumpf is quick to point out that a competitive state fund would not in itself, solve the problem of the high cost of premiums.

The facts seem plain enough. Minnesota's average workers' comp rate is $2.96 per $100 payroll, while Wisconsin businesses only pay $1.74 per $100 on average.

"Benefit levels are not the problem," states the Citizens league report. "Minnesota's high costs are primarily a function of prolonged disability."

Neither employers nor employees are encouraged to have the workers return as soon as they are fit, according to the report. Many legislators agree that changing the way benefits are paid out, such as spreading lump sum payments to encourage a return to work, would lead to lower premiums for businesses and a better overall system.

The Citizen league also points to confusing legal language in Minnesota law which encourages workers to seek out help from attorneys. That tends to encouarage more costly litigation than is necessary, the report states.

The report also indicates Minnesota law stresses retraining workers, rather than less costly rehabilitation and does little to keep down medical costs.

There's an effort to mandate 25 per cent lower premiums in counties outside the metropolitan area because very little litigation happens outside the Twin Cities. Rates, however, remain very high throughout Minnesota.

Steve Keefe, commissioner of labor and industry, is trying to get a workers' compensation compromise. While he is aware of the disparity in litigation, Keef questions the need for a mandated reduction.

As the state continues to move toward deregulating workers' comp, Keefe expects to see rates throughout the state reflect actual costs more accurately.

"I think it will happen through natural market conditions," Keefe said. In fact, he encourages business owners to shop around for bargains on their premium rates. "There are discounts available," he said.

The question of a competitive state fund for workers' comp has brought on some heated debate over the years. Keefe is a one-time supporter of the state fund, but he now questions whether the issue has much of an impact on a competitive industry where regulation is on its way out. "It's more politically and philosophically important, than substantially significant," Keefe said.

Although there has already been one breakdown between negotiators, Keefe is optimistic about finding a solution because both sides seem sincere this year. "I think they've been friendly and unbelieveably cooperative," he said.

The first strike in which women participated occurred in Pawtucket, R.I., in 1824, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor, "Labor Firsts in America."

77 Vacancies Open In 10 State Agencies

Secretary of state's office is seeking applications for 77 vacancies in 10 state agencies. In accordance with the Minnesota open appointments law, application forms may be obtained at the Office of the Secretary of State, 180 State Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155-1299; (612) 296-2805. Application deadline is May 17. Among the vacancies are the following:

Real estate advisory council has one vacancy open for a broker with at least five years experience as a licensed real estate broker in Minnesota. Council advises the commissioner of securities and real estate on licensing real estate brokers and salespersons. Members are appointed by the commissioner. Quarterly meetings at the call of the Commissioner are held and members receive $35 per diem. For specific information contact the Real Estate Advisory Council, 500 Metro Square Building, St. Paul 55101; (612) 296-2594.

Minnesota Indian scholarship committee has 11 to 15 vacancies open for members. The committee advises the board of education on amounts and types of scholarships granted to American Indian post-secondary students. Members are appointed by the board of education and include representatives of the Duluth area, the Minneapolis area, the St. Paul area, the Minnesota Chippewa tribe, the Minnesota Sioux tribes, and the Red Lake tribal council. Between four and six meetings per year are held at various sites statewide. Members are compensated for expenses. For specific information contact Indian Scholarship Committee, Indian Education Section, 303 Capitol Square Building, St. Paul 55101; (612) 296-6458.

Advisory task force on American Indian language and culture education programs has nine to 15 vacancies open for members. The task force advises the board of education in the administration of the American Indian language and culture education act; reviews proposals and makes recommendations to the board on approval and funding of bicultural programs in Minnesota schools. Members are appointed by the board of education; include representatives of the Minnesota Sioux tribe, the Minnesota Red Lake tribe, the Minnesota Chippewa tribe, the metropolitan areas of Duluth, Minneapolis, and St. Paul, and a member representing Indian alternative schools. Members include representatives of community groups, parents of children eligible to be served by the programs, American Indian administrators and teachers, and persons knowledgeable in the field of American Indian language and culture education. Between three and five meetings per year at various sites statewide; members are reimbursed for expenses. For specific information contact Advisory Task Force on American Indian Langugage and Culture Education Programs, Indian Education Section, 303 Capitol Square Building, St. Paul 55101; (612) 296-6458.

Solid waste management advisory council has two vacancies open immediately for representatives of the public and local government units. Experience is desirable but not required in the following areas: solid waste collection, processing and disposal, and solid waste reduction and resource recovery. The council makes recommendations to the waste management board on solid waste management activities. Members are appointed for two year renewable terms by the chairperson of the waste management board. The current appointment term expires June 30, 1984. Meetings twice monthly in the metropolitan area; members are compensated for expenses. For specific information, contact Robert Dunn, chairman, Waste Management Board, 7323 — 58th Ave. N., Crystal 55428; (612) 536-0816.

Chief's Corner

by Ken Froschheiser
Chief of Police
Thief River Falls, MN.

Each year the second week of May is dedicated as national law week. In observance of law week, the police department and Pennington county sheriff's department are conducting an open house at the sports arena on May 4, beginning at 11 a.m. We have invited federal, state, county and city law enforcement agencies to participate in the open house.

These agencies will be displaying equipment, distributing safety literature and showing criminal evidence, such as drugs and drug paraphernalia.

During the day, at 1:30 to 3:30, and 5:30 to 7:30, the Minnesota state patrol and the Pennington county law enforcement center will be conducting radar checks for vehicles. An officer will ride with you in your vehicle and check your speedometer reading with radar. This will give you an opportunity to verify the accuracy of your speedometer.

The air force security police squadron is sending their K-9 Unit to put on a show at 4:30 p.m. These handlers are highly trained with the use of their dogs in search and attack measures.

We cordially invite you to stop at the arena on May 4 and visit with the various agencies. Any questions you may have for any of the agencies are most welcome. In closing, I would like to recognize the following officers from Pennington county who will be assisting in the law day activities:

Thief River Falls Police Dept — Ken Froschheiser, Duane Holland, Dennis Kiesow, James Haugen, Irving Swanson, Harvey Tauer, Allen Melbye, James Hulteen, Mark Haugen, Tim Miller, Vern Cleven, Scott Maslowski, Dave Schneider and James Fulton;

Bureau of Criminal Apprehension — Steve Hagenah

Pennington County Sheriff's Dep't — Charles Richards, Robert A. Wold, James Wright, Howard Seim and Richard Quigley;

Minnesota State Patrol — Lynn Daniels, Dale Stack, Charles Jones, Keith Pearson, Clifton Mattson, Ed Braaten, and Murray Herrboldt; and

Dep't. of Natural Resources Enforcement — James Hinz and Craig Backer.

New Memorial Program Open By Heart Ass'n.

American heart association, Minnesota affiliate's memorial program recently changed its title to "A Time To Remember" program, announced Morris Nilsen, chairman of "A Time to Remember" memorial program committee.

"A Time To Remember" program is an expanded service offered by the American heart association, Minnesota affiliate in which family and friends can honor special occasions of accomplishments such as birthdays, graduations and anniversaries; send get-well wishes; or make memorial contributions to the heart association.

Under the new title "A Time To Remember", the memorial program will continue serving the public with gifts designated in the memory of a deceased person. A memorial gift to the American heart association is a way to express sympathy while also helping to continue the fight against America's number one killer — heart disease.

For more information on the "A Time To Remember" program, contact Bill Sullivan, planned giving director at 835-3300.

MSHSL Move Isolates TRF

Thief River Falls remains the only Class AA school in northwestern Minnesota following Thursday's expected vote by the Minnesota State High School League Board of Directors that reclassified Thief River Falls area rivals East Grand Forks and Crookston as Class A for the 1983-84 school year.

Under the newly-adopted class system, all schools with enrollments of 500 or more students will be Class AA and those with less than 500 will be Class A. Previously the MSHSL structured the largest 128 schools into Class AA, regardless of enrollments. Under the new format, which will drop 14 schools from AA to A, there will be 114 Class AA schools in Minnesota next year and 385 in Class A.

East Grand Forks, Crookston, Albany and Wadena will all leave Region 8AA for Class A status, along with Farmington, St. Peter, Litchfield, Monticello, Mahtomedi, Foley, Milaca, Chisago Lakes, Two Harbors and Aurora-Hoyt Lakes. Both Crookston and East Grand Forks will move back into their old District 31 surroundings they left in 1975-76, along with Thief River Falls, when the MSHSL went to the 128-school Class AA line-up.

Thief River Falls now finds itself isolated, with Detroit Lakes and Bemidji, both nearly 100 miles away, as the Prowlers' nearest Class AA opponents.

Actually, the reclassification of East Grand Forks and Crookston isn't expected to alter Thief River Falls' regular scheduling with the Green Wave and Pirates, and may in the end affect only basketball, volleyball and track.

Crookston and East Grand Forks will remain Class A, along with Thief River Falls, in the five-class football system, and sports like hockey and tennis remain one-class events.

Thief River Falls currently plays Crookston in baseball, but East Grand Forks doesn't sponsor a high school baseball team, and neither the Pirates or Green Wave sport swimming programs like the Prowlers do for boys and girls. They have wrestling, but Thief River Falls doesn't.

That leaves basketball, volleyball, cross country and golf as common sports. And unless funds are raised by the community, the Prowlers won't have baseball, golf, cross country or swimming next year.

Thief River Falls would obviously continue to schedule Crookston and East Grand Forks in basketball — probably the most noticeable sport as far as fan following that will be affected in the reclassification — but would then be off to face the likes of Bemidji, Fergus Falls, Detroit Lakes and Moorhead at Tournament time while the Pirates and Green Wave supposedly feast on much smaller opponents like Fisher, Alvarado, Climax, etc.

Lincoln high school basketball coach Tom Hunt took the reclassification move in stride. "You don't have much control over anything like that. I'm not jealous or disappointed or anything like that. We'll just have to try to fight to up-grade our program so we can compete at that (AA) level. We're going to have to deal with it the best we can," he said.

Hunt, along with probably the rest of the Lincoln athletic staff, was hoping a proposal for a three-class system that would have grouped Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston into the middle class would get more consideration by the MSHSL. But that idea, which has been studied by an ad hoc committee for the past year, was voted down 13-3 Thursday — the same vote that adopted the new Class AA-A structure.

"I'm in favor of a three-class or a single class system," pointed out Hunt. Obviously he got neither.

While officials at East Grand Forks and Crookston figure the Class A status will be a real boon to their programs by making them much more competitive, Hunt isn't about to give up on the Prowlers' attempt to be a competitive Class AA team. It's going to be tough, he admits, because the numbers just aren't there, and the Prowlers do not annually produce the 6-5, 6-6, 6-7 size kids needed to be successful at that level. Still, he thinks they should be able to come up with competitive teams.

"We have to develop a program that will provide our players with pride and that will up-grade their basketball skills," he said. "We're making a concerned effort. The Backcourt Club has been successful in starting a foundation program; a big plus for us. But we have to improve the program at the middle school. If we don't have a feeder program, we won't be successful at the high school level, that's all there is to it. We're trying to provide the opportunity for the kids, but it's up to them to take advantage of the opportunities to improve their basketball skills."

Miscellaneous

+ Defending Region 8AA baseball champion Bemidji, scheduled to be here Thursday for a 4:30 p.m. game against the Prowlers, lost two of its first three starts to North Half Region 8AA foes this spring. The Lumberjacks beat Wadena 6-3, but lost to Park Rapids 5-4 and Moorhead 10-6 last Tuesday when the Spuds scored five unearned runs in the fifth inning to break open a 5-1 game. Moorhead, a Saturday opponent for the Prowlers earlier lost to Breckenridge 4-0 and shut out Staples 7-0.

FERGUS FALLS base runner Mike Donley (8) scored the first run of the game on a wild pitch by Thief River Falls' Brian Johnston Saturday in the first inning of the high school baseball doubleheader opener at the fairgrounds diamond. Donley completed his slide across the plate ahead of the tag by Johnston as Fergus Falls batter Brian Roers and umpire Steve Philion looked on. It was the only run of the game for the Otters as the Prowlers rolled to a 9-1 victory.

Prowlers, Otters Squeeze In 19 Innings Of Baseball Saturday

Because of the travel distance involved, Thief River Falls and Fergus Falls traditionally play a doubleheader when the Prowlers and Otters schedule their high school baseball games. Saturday they got more than they bargained for when the second half of the twinbill was stretched to 12 innings before Fergus Falls pulled out a 3-2 decision on the sunny fairgrounds diamond here.

That enabled the visitors to gain a split, with Thief River Falls winning the opener easily, 9-1.

Second-game marathon was the first loss in four starts for the Prowlers, who were weathered out of a scheduled Thursday game at Crookston. They will be at Moorhead Tuesday and will host Bemidji Thursday in 4:30 p.m. games. Fergus Falls left here with a 3-3 record.

Thief River Falls spotted Fergus Falls a first ining run, then dominated the rest of the game to win the doubleheader opener 9-1.

Fergus Falls' Mike Donley opened the game with a double to left, moved up on a sacrifice bunt by Brian Roers and scored on a wild pitch by Brian Johnston.

That was it for the Otters as Johnston (known as both Brian and Scott), shut them down on just two hits the rest of the way for his second complete-game victory of the year — thanks in part to some fine defensive play by the Prowlers, the best of which was a running, diving catch by centerfielder Mitch Semanko in the sixth.

Thief River Falls went ahead in the second inning when Kerry Wollin singled, Al Ness walked and Todd Ortloff's ground ball to third went for an error and a run. Jeff Milender got an RBI out of a ground-out for a 2-1 lead.

Rick Spong singled, moved up on a stolen base and an error when nobody covered the base on the play and scored on a single to right by Johnston in the third for a 3-1 game.

Thief River Falls put Fergus Falls away with a six-run burst in the fourth when 11 batters combined just two base hits with six walks. Tim Bottem and Jim Hallamek had RBI singles in the inning, with Johnston, Wollin and Ryan Bakke getting RBI's via bases-loaded walks.

What appeared to be going into the books as a quick 80-minute 2-0 Fergus Falls victory wound up being a 2½-hour duel when Thief River Falls rallied for a pair of runs in the bottom of the seventh inning of the doubleheader nightcap.

Fergus Falls still won it, though, 3-2.

It was scoreless until the fifth when Fergus Falls' Mike Donley singled, moved up on a sacrifice bunt by Brian Roers and an infield single by Ward Olson. He was apparently an easy out in a run-down play between home and third when the Otters messed up a suicide squeeze, but catcher Jim Hallamek dropped the ball, allowing the run to score.

Fergus Falls scored on another error in the sixth as Jason Wentler walked, moved up on infield singles by Greg Dawkins and Roger Wahl,

Middle River-MCC Have Cooperative Spring Sports

They may be the keenest of rivals, say on a basketball court, but this spring, high school student-athletes from Marshall County Central and Middle River are working together as teammates under the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) cooperative sponsorship program.

Baseball and track are being offered on a joint basis at the two schools for the first time this spring. Baseball is centered at Middle River, where Ron Rudd, who coached the Skippers last year, is the head coach and Sam Gebhart, who coached the Nordics, is the assistant. Track teams work out of Marshall County Central in Newfolden, where the boys are coached by Mark Jorgenson and the girls are coached by Ron Ueland.

Of the 22 baseball players in grades 7-12, there are 11 from each school. Of the two-dozen or so track team members, only two are from Middle River, but it isn't the natural rivalry that keeps the Skippers away — just the fact that Middle River hasn't been into track as heavy as Marshall County Central has.

To date the cooperative venture has worked well, reported Rudd. "No problems. It's going real well," he said.

It was mostly a cost-saving measure to combine the two baseball teams. "We maybe could have had enough players for our own team, but we would have been very young," acknowledged Rudd. As it is, half of the 22 baseball players are seventh, eighth and ninth graders.

There are eight seniors, though, and they've helped Middle River-MCC open the 1983 baseball season with five straight wins over Warroad 7-4, Kennedy-Hallock 5-4, Greenbush 8-2, Red Lake Falls 3-2 and Strandquist 6-3 last Wednesday in their latest outing. They were snowed out of a scheduled game at Lake of the Woods Thursday. They are to play Kennedy-Hallock Tuesday at Kennedy.

"Everybody is getting along real well," explained Rudd, who expects his team to be competitive in North Half Region 8A play this spring, where Roseau, a traditional contender, Lake of the Woods and Warroad are considered the front-runners. "We hope we're in that group, too," noted Rudd, who admits the tougher part of the schedule is still to come.

Pitching and defense appear to be the team's strong points. "Our bats haven't been too hot, yet," noted Rudd, "but we have a number of pitchers and we feel we're strong defensively."

Seniors Ted Thompson, Brad Berg, Scott Peterson and Rory Hanson, along with Dean Hjelle, the only junior on the squad, can all pitch. Hjelle pitched shutout ball for four innings in the victory over Strandquist, with freshman Tom Neumann going 2-for-4 at the plate to lead an offense that did all of its damage in the first three innings.

Rest of the varsity squad includes seniors Todd Stokke, Alan Melvie, Kris Hodne and Dexter Orgquist, sophomore Brian Cwikla, plus eighth graders Darren Rokke and Jon Kragness.

In post-season play, the top two finishers in the North and South Sub-Region 8A tournaments will advance into the state tournament-qualifying Region 8A event, won a year ago by Red Lake Falls.

Members of the boys' track team include Clark Kami, the only Middle River addition, along with Bill Johnson, John Douglas, Kevin Boe, Jamie Sagstuen, Brian Rud, Bret Hanson, Grant Nelson, Alan Hanson, Jeff Redden, Randy Dahl and Barry Hanson.

JoAnn Wallace is the only Middle River contribution to the girls track team that also includes Sue Olson, Brenda Dahl, Andrea Kragness, Wendy Stern, Beth Moen, Charlene Fillmore, Jodi Nelson, Kelly Johnson, Karen Busch, Cyndi Ness, Jodi Foss, Jill Melvie, Paulette Yutrzenka and Natalie Ueland.

Both the boys and girls track teams will participate in the Thief River Falls Invitational May 10. The baseball team will play here May 25.

Prowlers Plan Tuesday Meet

Tim Olson is in his third year as Lincoln high school track coach and Tuesday he hopes to make his "home debut" at the supposedly-annual Thief River Falls Quent Jones Invitational.

East Grand Forks, Crookston, Warroad, Roseau and Warren will join host Thief River Falls in the 2 p.m. meet that will feature both boys and girls competition.

Weather has played havoc with Thief River Falls' outdated cinder track in recent years. Wet weather — either in the form of rain coming down, or more often than not in the form of standing water from spring thaw — has forced cancellation of the Thief River Falls home track schedules. The Prowlers do eventually train on the track, but spend most of their time competing in places like East Grand Forks, Crookston, Bemidji, Roseau and Grand Forks where all-weather tracks overcome the water problems the Prowlers face at home.

Olson said the track team members are looking forward to the opportunity to perform at home. "They're excited about the meet," he noted.

Thief River Falls boys have been idle since last Tuesday when they ran in their third meet of the year — at the UMC Invitational in Crookston. Thief River Falls girls' fourth meet of the year took place Friday, at UMC, too.

At UMC, Bemidji won the varsity portion of the meet with 117 points, followed by Detroit Lakes with 99, Roseau 80, Crookston 71, Thief River Falls 52 and East Grand Forks 45.

Thief River Falls had a pair of first place finishes, with seventh grader Jackie Smith winning the 3200-meter run in 12:18.0 while Tricia Armstrong, Hildegunn Nyland, Ranae Berg and Jane Rockis ran a 1:55.8 to win the 800-meter relay.

Detroit Lakes was a winner in the junior varsity portion of the meet with 150 points, followed by Thief River Falls with 122, Crookston 85, Roseau 39, East Grand Forks 28 and Bemidji 23.

Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer was very happy with the Prowlers' performance, especially with the point production by the junior varsity runners.

"We're very, very excited about the points they scored," he said. "We've got some good ones coming up."

Schafer, like Olson is looking forward to the opportunity to run at home Tuesday. "This will be a good meet — if we pull it off," he noted, in reference to the meet's weather-interrupted history. It would be his second home meet in five years as the Lincoln girls track coach.

Prowlers Play In Hibbing Net Meet

Host Hibbing was a winner Saturday in an eight-team high school invitational tennis tournament.

Hibbing won it with 22 points, followed by Anoka with 19, Grand Rapids 12, Fridley 11, Pine City 11, Thief River Falls 8, Duluth East 7 and Virginia 5.

Each Thief River Falls entry produced at least one point in the Prowlers' total, and coach Whitey Olson said he was very satisfied with his team's showing.

"We got in a lot of tennis, and I think our kids played well," he reported. "I was pleased. I thought we played consistent and we made some improvements — that's what we're looking for."

Thief River Falls was scheduled to play a 4 p.m. dual at Detroit Lakes today (Monday) and will be in East Grand Forks for a quadrangular meet Thursday starting at 12 noon.

Crookston, EGF Now In Class A

Board of Directors of the Minnesota State High School League at its April 28 meeting, approved a reliagnment of 15 schools into new regions in a policy change which will include all schools with an enrollment of 500 or more students to be assigned to Class AA and all others to Class A.

Previous policy, which had been in effect since the 1974-75 school year, placed the largest 128 schools in Class AA, and the remaining schools in Class A.

Policy change will result in 14 less Class AA schools effective for the 1983-84 school year. As a result, 114 schools will be classified AA, and the remaining 385 will be assigned to the A division.

Fourteen of the 15 schools that will be changing in classification are currently AA schools, while one school will move from A into AA.

Schools moving from Class AA to Class A include Farmington, St. Peter, Litchfield, Monticello, Mahtomedi, Foley, Milaca, Chisago Lakes, Two Harbors, Aurora-Hoyt Lakes, Albany, Wadena, Crookston and East Grand Forks. Lone school moving from A to AA is Minnehaha Academy.

Realignment will take place on an annual basis under the new policy adopted by the MSHSL board. Enrollments for classification are taken from spring reports (average daily membership) to the State Department of Education, grades 9-10-11. The policy also states that Class AA regions shall not have more than 16 or less than 12 schools, and that Class A region size shall not have more than 50 or less than 38 schools. If any occurs, the board of directors will realign.

Geographic location is the main criteria for placement of a school into a region. Region most effected by the change is 7AA where there will be five less members. Region 8AA loses four current members. All AA regions except Regions 3AA and 6AA are effected by changes. Eleven A districts and five A regions are effected by changes.

There is two-class competition — AA and A — in all but ten of the MSHSL's 28 activity programs. Activities conducted in single class competition include girls soccer, soccer, girls swimming and diving, gymnastics, debate, girls skiing, skiing, hockey, and swimming and diving. Football is conducted in five classifications.

Criteria for determining whether tournament competition will be conducted in two classes is when the total number of participating schools in an activity includes a minimum number from each class of schools that equals 10 per cent or more of the total MSHSL membership of schools.

Realignment adopted for the 1983-84 period will result in the following changes.

Region 1AA — Farmington, current Region 1AA member, assigned to District 15, Region 4A.

Region 2AA — Litchfield, current Region 2AA member, assigned to District 20; Region 5A; Monticello, current Region 2AA member, assigned to District 19, Region 5A; and St. Peter, current Region 2AA member, assigned to District 14, Region 4A.

Region 4AA — Mahtomedi, current Region 4AA member, assigned to District 15, Region 4A.

Region 5AA — Minnehaha Academy, current District 17, Region 5A member, to Region 5AA.

Region 7AA — Foley, current Region 7AA member, assigned to District 18, Region 5A; Milaca, current Region 7AA member, assigned to District 18, Region 5A; Chisago Lakes, current Region 7AA member, assigned to District 25, Region 7A; Aurora-Hoyt Lakes, current Region 7AA member, assigned to District 27, Region 7A; and Two Harbors, current Region 7AA member, assigned to District 26, Region 7A.

Region 8AA — Albany, current Region 8AA member, assigned to District 19, Region 5A; Wadena, current Region 8AA member, assigned to District 24, Region 6A; Crookston, current Region 8AA member, assigned to District 31, Region 8A; and East Grand Forks, current Region 8AA member, assigned to District 31, Region 8A.

Texas Golf Is Played Sunday At Country Club

Twenty-four golfers made up the six teams that participated Sunday in the Texas golf tournament at the Thief River Country Club.

Winning team included Jay Moum, Marge Corliss, Bob Geatz and Dean Anderson with an 18-hole 61, recording a five-under par 31 the first time around and a six-under 30 the second trip as golfers tee-off, then select the best shot; everyone hitting from that point. That process continues until the foursome holes out on each hole.

There was a five-hole playoff needed to break a second place tie, and it went to Karl Gjernes, David Onkka, Jeff Rosetta and Gerry Grabowska with a 65 on rounds of 33-32.

Third place went to Jack Boyer, Kathy Moum, Curt Geatz and Bill Corliss. Their 65 came on rounds of 33-32.

Tennis Squad Is 5-0 Winner Over Moorhead

Thief River Falls blanked host Moorhead 5-0 Thursday in high school tennis action, putting the Prowlers' record at 3-4 for the year.

"Our singles started off slow, but they came on like gang-busters," reported Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson. "They played well."

Thief River Falls was also a winner in the junior varsity portion of the meet, 3-2.

A 4 p.m. dual meet at Detroit Lakes was on the Prowlers' schedule today (Monday).

THIEF RIVER FALLS base runner Todd Ortloff was already halfway across the plate before Fergus Falls catcher Todd Johnson applied the tag Saturday in the fourth inning of the high school baseball doubleheader at the fairgrounds diamond. Ortloff, who had walked, scored from second on a single up the middle by Tim Bottem during the Prowlers' six-run fourth that led to a 9-1 first-game victory. Umpire Steve Philion watched the play. The Otters came back to win the nightcap 3-2.

NCC, Brainerd Split Twinbill

Northland rode the one-hit pitching of Kevin Sanders for a 3-0 first-game victory, but then dropped a 5-4 eight-inning decision to Brainerd in the second game Saturday for a Minnesota Community College Conference(MCCC) Northwest Division baseball doubleheader split in Thief River Falls.

Combined with a 12-2, 6-5 Fergus Falls sweep over the University of Minnesota-Crookston that same afternoon, Northland's split dropped the Northmen one game behind the Spartans in the race for the Northwest Division pennant with two sets of doubleheaders to go. Fergus Falls is currently 6-2, Northland 5-3, Brainerd 3-5 and UMC 2-6. The Northwest Division winner will be the host team for the 1983 MCCC state baseball tournament later this month.

Northland, 7-3 overall with a 10-2, 14-3 sweep over the University of North Dakota junior varsity to its credit last Wednesday, will take a break from Northwest Division play this week, playing a twinbill at UND Tuesday, then hosting Hibbing for doubleheaders both Saturday and Sunday.

There were a lot of zeros appearing on the Brainerd scoresheet when Thief River Falls freshman lefthander Kevin Sanders finished with the Red Raiders in Saturday's doubleheader opener, a 3-0 Northland victory.

Sanders pitched three perfect innings before surrendering a lead-off single to Jim Kramer in the fourth. That was to be the only Brainerd hit of the game. Sanders struck out seven and walked three.

Northland scored in the first inning on singles by Scott McKeever and Sanders, plus a sacrifice fly by Dave Kays.

In the third, McKeever singled, stole second and went to third on the play on a Brainerd error and scored on a single by Sanders.

Northland got a third run in the fifth as Sanders singled and Todd Bergland hit an RBI double.

Tied 3-3 after the regulation seven innings, Saturday's second game needed an extra frame to produce a winner, and Brainerd out-scored Northland 2-1 in the eighth to take it 5-4 for a doubleheader split — the first Red Raider win over the Northmen in four tries this spring.

It started in much the same manner as the first game as Northland shut down Brainerd for three innings while assuming a 3-0 lead. All those runs came in the third on an RBI single by Kevin Sanders and a two-run home run by Dave Kays.

But a walk and two errors led to a pair of Brainerd runs in the fourth inning, and the visitors tied it 3-3 in the fifth.

Northland might have won it in the bottom of the seventh when Todd Bergland's drive to the outfield was ticketed for a gamewinning RBI. But the ball rolled under the fence for a ground-rule double, forcing Sanders to stop at third base. An intentional walk loaded the bases with one out, but Brainerd worked out of the jam with a ground-out and a strike-out.

Jay Ganz had an RBI double and Jim Kramer followed with an RBI triple as Brainerd scored twice in the top of the eighth.

Northland answered with a single run in the bottom of the inning when Ladd Bjugson and Jeff Cwikla opened with back-to-back singles, Bjugson eventually scored on an infield out, but Cwikla was stranded at second.

Steelhead Trout Stocked Into Lake of the Woods

Steelhead trout, a subspecies of the rainbow trout, are being stocked into Lake of the Woods under a program implemented by resort association members in Warroad, Baudette and the Northwest Angle.

Some 100,000 yearling steelhead trout that weigh about one-half pound each and are from 9 to 11 inches in length, will be put into the lake at various sites this spring. First batch of two truck loads of the fish, hatched in a southern Minnesota trout farm in the spring of 1982, were emptied into Lake of the Woods at the War-Road Estates marin last week.

Resort owners, who have put $80,000 into the stocking program, are hoping to introduce a new type of fishing on the lake to attract anglers, who have become increasingly disappointed in their angling success on the lake in recent years. Subsequently the area's tourism industry has suffered, say the resort owners, who would like to reverse the feared trend of unhappy fishermen going elsewhere.

At the center of the picture is the steelhead trout, descended from an ocean trout that's adaptable to fresh water. It's a fast-growing fish that, according to officials, could average five pounds and more by three years of age.

"What we're really looking at is taking some pressure off the walleye," John Beckel of the Sportsman's Lodge and one of the promoters of the stocking, told John Oren of the Baudette Region. "Walleye will still remain as the staple fish up this way, but we've got to do something to help our fishery here. This may be the answer."

By 1985 the trout stocked this spring should weigh five pounds or more. "From there," Beckel says, "the data that we have indicates they'll double their weight each year."

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources officials approved the stocking idea, figuring the lake would be an ideal environment for the fish. Their main diet will be insects and minnows until they are about one-pound, then the steelheads switch to eating tulibees, a rough fish that is in large numbers on Lake of the Woods, and a fish that competes with walleye.

If funding is available, another 400,000 fingerlings about six inches long would be stocked this fall. Hopefully natural propagation of the trout in Lake of the Woods and its tributaries would supplant the stocking.

"We'll just have to wait and see how it works out," Beckel says. "At this stage of the game it's strictly experimental."

It is an expensive program, though, and the group, which includes Fuzz LePage of Warroad, is soliciting contributions.

THERE WERE 9,000 steelhead trout planted into Lake of the Woods at the Warroad Marina last Monday, part of a 100,000-fish stocking program of the trout being sponsored by the lake's area resorters. The group is raising $80,000 for the project through a joint effort of resorters from Baudette, Warroad and the Northwest Angle. First batch of trout, also known as "rainbow trout," was released near Wheelers Point in the Rainy River on April 22.

Northwomen 1-7 On Softball Field

Northland community college softball record fell to 1-7 during the week when the Northwomen split a Wednesday doubleheader at the University of Minnesota-Crookston and then lost both ends of a twinbill Saturday at Brainerd.

At UMC, the Trojans won the opener 5-3 despite getting out-hit 14-6. UMC came back from a 3-0 first inning deficit to tie it 3-3 in the fifth, then won it by scoring on a pair of passed balls in the bottom of the sixth. Lori Bulzomi had a two-run double and Kim Dehann added an RBI single in that Northland first inning.

"We started very strong offensively and defensively," pointed out Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "Marlys Huot was very effective on the mound, striking out five in the first three innings. But very poor base running cost us the game in the later innings. We had our chances, but couldn't get across the plate."

Northland finally broke into the win column that second game by banging out 17 hits in the 14-6 victory. An eight-run fifth inning overcame a 3-1 UMC lead. Then Huot connected on a grand slam home run in the sixth to put the game away — the first one to go over the fence in Jacobson's nine years of coaching, she reported.

"We were a little more awake," noted Jacobson. "I knew we were ready to break it open, and it finally happened in the fifth. Marlys' homer added a little icing on the cake.

Brainerd swept Northland 9-5 and 14-8 Saturday.

First one was a good game, pointed out Jacobson. There was a lot of action on the base paths as pitchers Becky Thompson of Brainerd and Huot gave up 13 walks to go along with an 8-3 Brainerd base hit edge.

A defensive breakdown in the second game saw Northland charged with 12 errors.

"After losing the first game, the tendency is to come out very weak," acknowledged Jacobson. "But we started strong — three runs off three hits in the first inning." Dehann had an RBI double and Bulzomi had an RBI single in the fast Northland start, but Brainerd scored six times in the second on four base hits and three errors, then scored five runs during the fourth and fifth innings without the benefit of a base hit.

"We were lucky to get out with only 14 runs against us," admitted Jacobson. She said she was proud of the team's "fighting spirit," but could have used a little tighter defense.

Northland will be in International Falls Friday for a 3 p.m. doubleheader against Rainy River, and will compete in an invitational tournament at Hibbing Saturday beginning at 9 a.m.

DNR hotline

1. Farmers have told me that DNR officers can enter their land anytime they wish. Is this true?

A major responsibility of the Conservation Officers and game refuge patrol is to protect fish and wildlife from poachers. Therefore, state laws do permit officers to enter any land in order to investigate violations of game and fish laws. Bryon Dyrland, Regional Enforcement Supervisor.

2. Why is sucker season so late this year?

Suckers may be taken by angling all year. However, spearing suckers, and other rough fish, has been limited to May 1 through February 15 in order to protect game fish that may be spawning in the same area during the spring. Stan Daley, Regional Fisheries Supervisor.

3. What do robins eat when they return to northern regions before the ground thaws?

Anything from old berries to insects. Angleworms are eaten frequently at this time too. There are areas where the frost doesn't go very deep — such as near septic tanks — and worms will remain close to the surface. During the 1973-1974 winter a few robins stayed near Duluth all winter and ate Mountain Ash berries until spring. Jim Breyen, Assistant Regional Wildlife Supervisor.

4. Should I continue putting out birdseed now that winter is over?

If you want a change to watch different species, spring and summer feeding stations will attract birds like the Evening Grosbeaks, Joncos and Grackles. Orange slices and sugar water will attract Orioles and Hummingbirds. Jim Breyen, Assistant Regional Wildlife Supervisor.

5. Got a question, a complaint, or a suggestion regarding how your natural resources are managed?

DNR "Hotline" is your direct channel to a representative who will answer you whether it concerns parks, fish, wildlife, forests, waters and minerals. Write: DNR "Hotline," Region I, 2115 Birchmond Beach Road NE, Bemidji, MN 56601; telephone 218-755-3975.

Tree Swallow Nest Box . . .

Final Piece Printed On DNR Bird Houses

(Editor's note: this is the final portion of a six-part series of feature stories supplied by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources on how to build bird houses for a variety of Minnesota's favorite birds. Articles were written by Carrol L. Henderson, DNR nongame wildlife supervisor.)

Several kinds of swallows are found nesting in Minnesota each summer. Many people are familiar with the barn swallow which constructs nests of mud under eaves of houses and on rafters of barns and other outbuildings. The barn swallow has a deep, bluish black back, a deeply forked tail and an orange breast.

Another extremely common swallow is not quite so well known because it typically nests in more open country away from buildings — the tree swallow. This beautiful swallow has a snow white breast and beautiful iridiscent greenish-black back. It eats insects, and nests in tree hole cavities where they are available.

Tree swallows and bluebirds may often nest in the same areas and both may be found nesting in houses placed for bluebirds. Quite often, however, tree swallows are found in somewhat more open farm country than is desirable for bluebirds.

Tree swallow nest box diagram shown here can be made from a 4-foot long piece of 1x6-inch lumber. It is quite easy to make.

Nest boxes should be fastened at the tops of wooden fence posts and spaced about 100 yards apart.

That spacing is also suitable for bluebird use.

The house should be cleaned out in the summer after each brood has fledged so that several families can be raised each year.

Nest should also be checked and cleaned out in early spring prior to the arrival of the tree swallows. They should be ready by May 1.

This article is the last in a 6 part series about building houses for birds. I hope you enjoyed it, and I hope you are able to make use of these designs.

FISHIN' TIPS

from . . . Tom Mann

QUESTIONS FROM THE MAIL BAG

DEAR TOM MANN: Is there any formula you can use to tell how much a gutted bass weighed?—Floyd Jerguens

HELLO FLOYD: Usually the entrails of a bass are equal to 10% of its total weight. For a female heavy with roe add another 10%.

DEAR MISTER MANN: Why does my fishing husband have to look so raunchy and smell the same way?—Nause Ated

HELLO NAUSE: I don't know about your husband, ma'm, maybe he just feels more like a fisherman in his old clothes. I don't believe I'd wash them, however, they'd probably fall apart.

TOM MANN: My husband thinks you are something special and the luckiest man in the world, just going around fishing all the time. I wish you'd tell Herman there's more to it than that!—Mrs. Herman

HELLO HERMAN: There's more to it than that. I take time out to eat and sleep.

DEAR TOM: What is your opinion of a falling barometer?—Doc Poole

HELLO DOC: It'll probably break. But, seriously, I've been skunked on a falling barometer and I've caught a passle of fish on a falling barometer. Ditto on a rising barometer. So, I just ignore the barometer and fish when I feel like it.

DEAR TOM: Do you pay any attention to a thermometer when fishing bass?—Fairweather Fred

HELLO FRITZ: You bet! The colder the water the less active bass will be. For water in the mid 40's to mid 50's, I use plastic worms, grubs and Mann-O-Lures smackdab on the bottom. When the water's in the mid 50's to mid 60's, I prefer slow-moving spinners and crank baits. In the 70's and above I do best with surface plugs like Top Mann, crank baits move right along, and plastic worms.

TOM MANN: Just what the heck is a "sunken island" I hear fishermen talking about?—Harold Cross

HELLO HAL: Well, this is fisherman's talk. Maybe it was an island at one time but now that water covers it they refer to it as a sunken island. An underwater hump is a better term. You can locate these with a depth sounder, and the more of them you have pinpointed the greater your catches will be because each one can be a honey hole at certain times of year.

HI TOM: I see you on TV fishing a lure you call Little George, a weighted spinner. Why do you jerk it so hard?—Ben Watchin

HELLO BEN: Well, I call this "rippin'" a spinner. I let it sink to bottom and many times a big, ol' bass is eyeballin' it. Then when I reel slack out of my line, and jerk it off the bottom with the spinner a-flyin' around, man, ol' biggun just can't resist bustin' it!

DEAR MISTER MANN: Being a bait-makin' man, Mann, do you ever use live bait? I hear shiners catch the biggest bass.—Sam Spade

HI SAM: As a boy, hornyhead minnows were my favorite bait and helped me develop my love for fishing. Through the years, though, I got away from live bait and onto artificials. A lot of folks around our nation use live bait and do well with it. I'd say use what you have confidence in, that's half the battle of catching fish.

Golfers Finish Fifth On Friday At Fergus Falls

Thief River Falls didn't match its season-opening success when the Prowlers won the combination Fosston-Bagley invitational earlier in the week Friday when they came up with a fifth place finish at the 12-team Fergus Falls invitational.

Host Otters won it with a 416, an easy victory margin over Detroit Lakes with a 435, Bemidji 438, East Grand Forks 442, Thief River Falls 447, Fergus Falls junior varisty 453, Moorhead 457, Bagley 461, Pelican Rapids 462, Barnesville 484, Wheaton 509 and Breckenridge 510.

Ted Cihak of Barnesville was meet medalist with a 76. Jon Stromme of Detroit Lakes was runner-up with a 79.

Thief River Falls scores included Bob Evans with an 83, Dan Upham 87, Mark Gere 88, Jim Geatz 89, David Onkka 100 and Bob Geatz 102. Top five scores count in the team standings.

Coach Jack Boyer's Prowlers will golf Friday at Park Rapids and Saturday at Roseau.

Lincoln high school girls golf team, weathered out of a scheduled meet at East Grand Forks Thursday, was scheduled to host its Thief River Falls invitational today (Monday) beginning at 9:30 a.m. on the Thief River County Club course. The Prowlers will be at Bagley Thursday for a 10 a.m. meet.

Trap Club Has Annual Dinner Set For Friday

Thief River Falls Sportsmans club house will be the location for the annual banquet of the Thief River trap club Friday. Social hour will be held from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. with a steak barbecue and dinner set for 7:30.

Following dinner, tropies will be presented to league champions, with other entertainment including movies. Trap club members are reminded that they have already paid for this banquet.

Prowlers Split Decisions With Otters Sat.

scoring when the ball got away from first baseman Lee Genereux on Wahl's hit.

Thief River Falls, staying close with three double plays, tied it in the seventh. The Prowlers loaded the bases with nobody out, on singles by Brian Johnson and Kerry Wollin and a sacrifice bunt by Ryan Bakke on which the Otters tried to get the force out at third. They did get Johnston at the plate on a force-out, but a run scored on a ball hit by Kirk Jensen that went for an error when Fergus Falls pitcher Brian Roers couldn't make up his mind where to go with the ball hit back to the mound. Tying run scored on a full-count, bases-loaded walk issued to Jeff Milender. The Prowlers still had runners in scoring position with just one out, but Todd Ortloff was caught in a run-down between third and home to take the steam out of the Prowlers' come-back.

They also had runners at second and third in both the ninth and eleventh innings but failed to score, while Fergus Falls pushed the winning run across the plate in the top of the 12th when Todd Johnson belted a lead-off double to left-center and one out later Dawkins clubbed an RBI double to deep right-center.

"We're disappointed that we lost," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell, "but give our kids credit — they hung in there. They had to beat us; we didn't give it to them. We could have easily given up, thought about the prom (scheduled that night) and everything, but they didn't."

Twins Feature Tube Socks Day

First-ever Tube Socks Day offered by the Minnesota Twins will be featured Sunday, May 8, when the Twins host the New York Yankees in a 1:15 p.m. American League baseball game at the Metrodome in Minneapolis.

First 15,000 youngsters ages 14-under will receive — free of charge — the white socks, trimmed in red and blue, and monogrammed with the Twins' script. Distribution will take place at all gates beginning at 11:15 a.m.

A GAME—ENDING double play was turned by Thief River Falls shortstop Kerry Wolling in the first half of Saturday's high school baseball doublebeader against Fergus Falls as he fielded a Jason Wentler ground ball, stepped on second to force out Craig Hedstrom and got the relay to first ahead of Wentler to close out a 9-1 Thief River Falls victory. Fergus Falls managed a twinbill split, though, by winning the second game 3-2 in 12 innings.

IT WAS AN easy stolen base for Thief River Falls' Rick Spong Saturday vs. Fergus Falls when the Otters failed to take catcher Todd Johnson's third inning throw in the doubleheader opener. Spong watched the ball bounce into center field on the play. The Prowlers and Otters split the twinbill, with Thief River Falls winning the opener 9-1 and Fergus Falls taking the second game 3-2 in 12 innings.

Florian Park To Open For Fishing Season

Florian park east of Stephen will open for the Minnesota fishing season opener on May 14 and continue open throughout the summer season. Daily use fee is $2 and camping fees are $2.50 for tents and $4.50 for campers.

A get-acquainted day for first-time visitors will be conducted June 4 when free admission will be permitted and one free night's camping allowed. After May 27 lifeguards will be on duty from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily.

Beginning July 11 swimming lessons will be given for beginners, advanced beginners, intermediates, swimmers and advanced lifesaving. Lessons will be at 11:40 a.m. for Stephen classes, 1 p.m. for Middle River classes, 2:30 for Strandquist classes and 3:40 for Donaldson, Argyle and Karlstad classes. Last year there were 135 students enrolled.

Persons interested in swimming classes may contact Anita Hillestad, route 2, Stephen, or call 478-3693. Instructors will be Fran Kuznia, Denise Sczepanski, Rick Anderson, Natalie Dagen, Karen Anderson and Laurie Wald.

Golf Event Is Slated On Sat. At RLF Course

With proceeds going to support the Red Lake Falls high school golf team, an Early Bird golf tournament will be held Saturday at the Oak Knolls golf course in Red Lake Falls.

Eighteen-hole medal play will be featured in all flights, with trophies going for the winner, runner-up and third place finisher in each flight.

A set of golf clubs will be given away to the tournament participant closest to the hole on No. 8.

Nature Photo Contest Has May Deadline

Deadline for the fourth annual Northland nature photography contest is May 15 and all entries received after that date will be disqualified. Northwest regional library and the Agassiz regional environmental education council are sponsoring the event.

Contest has a black and white division and a color division. Each division will have two categories: wildlife and scenic. All entries must be representative of northern Minnesota. The photographs also must be no smaller than 5x7 and no larger than 16x20. They will be displayed so they must be mounted. No photography which has been previously submitted to this contest will be accepted. People submitting photographs are limited to three entries per category.

Judging will be on June 1. Ribbons will be awarded to the top three photographs in each category. First place winners will also receive a book as a prize. One grand prize ribbon and $25 will be awarded to the best photo of the contest.

Contest rules may be picked up at Northwest regional library headquarters in Thief River Falls or at any of the following branch libraries: Red Lake Falls, Greenbush, Roseau, Warroad, Warren, Hallock or the bookmobile. All entries also must be turned in to any of the Northwest regional library facilities.

MnDOT Seeks Input On Rules

Minnesota department of transportation's (Mn-DOT) office of transit is seeking opinions from the public concerning proposed revised procedures and standards for review and approval of financial assistance to public and private transit operations.

"In streamlining and simplifying the transit terms and rules, we hope to make it easier for transit operators to file grant assistance applications with Mn-DOT," said Al Schenkelberg, acting director, office of transit.

Interested persons or groups may submit statements or comment orally or in writing by May 9. Written statements should be addressed to Schenkelberg, Office of Transit, Minnesota Department of Transportation, 820 Transportation Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Copies of the proposed rules may be obtained and oral statements will be accepted from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday by phoning (612) 296-7590 or (612) 296-1610.

AHA Supports Anti-Smoking Legislation

American heart association, Minnesota affiliate recently announced its support of the anti-smoking legislation currently being considered by Congress.

"Comprehensive Smoking Prevention Education Act", which has been designated H.R. 1824, was introduced in the House of Representatives by Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif. The bill would require manufacturers to print stiffer warnings on cigarette packages and in advertising and to disclose any use of chemical additives. Similar legislation was introduced in the Senate by Senator Orrin Hartch, R-Utah.

"Cigarette smoking is the single most important preventable factor contributing to premature death and illness in this country," said Robert Feldt, M.D., president of the American heart association, Minnesota affiliate. "It claims the lives of more than 300,000 Americans each year."

Dr. Feldt also pointed out that cigarette smokers are more likely than non-smokers to suffer a heart attack, more likely to die from these attacks and more likely to die suddenly. "Because of these facts, the American heart association is determined to support the anti-smoking bill," he said.

According to provisions of the bill, cigarette manufacturers would be required to put one of these messages on the packages and on the cigarette advertising:

— "Warning: Cigarette smoking causes lung cancer and emphysema, is a major cause of heart disease and is addictive and may result in death.

— "Warning: Cigarette smoking by pregnant women may result in: miscarriage, premature births and birth weight deficiencies.

— "Smokers: No matter how long you have smoked, quitting greatly reduces the risks to your health."

Messages would be rotated on the packages and on advertisements, appearing an equal number of times each year.

Manufacturers would also be required to disclose the level of tar, nicotine and carbon monoxide contained in the cigarettes and to provide a complete list and quantity of the chemical additives used to provide a complete list and quantity of the chemical additives used to make the cigarettes.

SBA Loans Available For Park Areas

Celso C. Moreno, district director of the Minnesota small business administration, announced recently that $791,800 will be made available to the state of Minnesota as part of the overall jobs bill for developing parks and recreational areas.

Legislation authorizes grants for rehabilitation and improvements to public parks and other publicly controlled or owned lands to be accomplished in large measure by hiring the unemployed.

States can do the tree and shrub planting directly or through qualified small businesses. Those businesses must have 70 or fewer employees.

Individuals employed on the projects, either directly by the state of Minnesota or through a small business contractor, must not have full time employment at the time, and must not be drawing unemployment compensation at the time.

Workers must be paid at least the federal minimum wage of $3.35 an hour. The state program will be developed and directed by the state department of economic security. It must begin no later than July 1, and must be completed no later than October 1.

"It is the desire of SBA to help states develop public lands while providing employment to those within the state who so desperately need it," said Moreno.

Alaska Gov't. Issues Job Seeker Warning

Alaska department of labor has issued a warning urging job seekers not to look to Alaska for work this summer season. Commissioner of labor Jim Robison says, "There are no worker shortages in Alaska. Job seekers should be very wary of advertisements offering high paying jobs or Alaska job information for sale."

"Each year," Robinson says, "many job seekers have based their decision to come north on inaccurate or incomplete information and find that no jobs are available in Alaska where their limited food and housing dollars disappear at an accelerated rate because the cost-of-living is high."

Alaska has not been immune to the economic downturn that has swept the nation. The Alaska unemployment rate for 1982 was 9.9 per cent, remaining among the 20 states most severely afflicted by unemployment. Alaska annual unemployment rates have exceeded the national average since the mid-1970's, and are expected to stay high during 1983. Some Alaska communities experience seasonal unemployment rates of more than 20 per cent.

Commissioner Robison says, "We welcome you to come and visit, but bring enough cash or a return ticket home so you do not run the risk of getting stranded."

The Alaska natural gas pipeline project which has been under discussion for the past couple of years is indefinitely on "hold" due to the economic climate and high cost of construction.

Legislators Give Consideration To Pay Commission

Special To The Times
by Cathy Carsberg
Northern Star News Service

Approving pay increases for officials always proves to be a tough vote for legislators, so a bill creating a commission to set salaries looks attractive to many lawmakers.

The political tensions that go along with raising pay for elected and appointed state officials are evident in a current effort to raise judges' and other officials' pay. Legislators know most constituents don't want increased salaries, but they also know judges haven't gotten a raise for three years.

A bill that would take salary setting out of the hands of the legislature calls for commissions to determine legislative and other salaries every two years. An 11-member council would determine judicial pay and a 16-member council would recommend salaries for legislators, elected state officers and senior appointed officials.

Pay increases would go into effect automatically unless rejected by both legislative chambers.

Taking the final decision away from the legislature when it comes to pay raises isn't acceptable to Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer.

"That isn't quite right, letting it kick in unless the legislature does something to stop it. It has to fall back on our shoulders," Stumpf said. "That's why we're elected."

He agrees with proponents of the pay commission proposal that it is a political problem as now handled by the legislature and salaries tend to lag. "Everyone has to make a living," Stumpf said, noting may people can't afford to stay in government work very long. "Elected officials, public servants, may never get a competitive wage with private industry," he said.

Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls said he is in favor of setting up a commission to recommend salaries because it is a good way to analyze the situation.

Determining salaries through a commission rather than the legislature "will be more fair and the commission can evaluate it (salaries) from the outside," Sparby said. Sparby said legislators, judges and other officials should be compensated fairly.

In the instance of serving in the legislature, the position is "pretty much a year-round job," he said. During the session, hours are "horrendous," he said.

Regarding the proposed increase for judges' salaries, the amount requested is too high, Sparby said, but judges deserve a raise.

The commission to set judicial salaries would be made up of four judges, one person who is not a judge to be appointed by the chief justice of the supreme court, and six people appointed by the governor.

Members of the commission to set pay for legislators and other officials would all be appointed by government heads: the governor would appoint eight members and legislative leaders and elected state officers would appoint the other eight members of the pay commission.

In the past, salary increases have been a touchy issue that voters watch closely, especially when legislators are deciding their own salaries.

Some of the skepticism about legislative pay comes from increases over the last 10 years, when Minnesota moved into its current ranking among the top quarter highest paid legislatures nationally.

Legislative salaries, which include a base salary plus a daily allowance, averaged $13,303 in 1973, $20,437 in 1979 and $21,394 in 1982.

BACKHOE BUCKET CLEANER patent has been awarded to Melvin Mattson (left). The bucket cleaner is mounted on the boom of the backhoe and is controlled from the operator's seat by means of levers operating hydraulic rams attached to the cleaner. Mattson, with assistance from backhoe owner Russell Moen (right) and technical aid from Morris Hanson, received the final patent notice from the U.S. patent office in Washington, DC, after a three-year process. Mattson has operated a backhoe for Moen for nine years.

NATIONAL SALE TOPPER in the promotional heifer division was Twin Elm Henel the Fifth, consigned by the Twin Elms Milking Shorthorn farm of rural Plummer. Born Sept. 3, 1982, as the first calf of Twin Elm Helen the Fourth, the heifer was sired by Krause's M.M. Max, whose dam's last record was 944 pounds of butterfat in 305 days. It was sold to 19-year-old Cindy L. Clawson of Ackley, Iowa, a past national officer of the junior Milking Shorthorn association, for $1,050 and topped the division for calves born after Sept. 1, 1982. It was the first time that William Peterson and his brother Lowell (pictured with the heifer in the show ring) have entered Twin Elm cattle in the national sale. This year's event was conducted in Rochester with 12 states represented among the consignors. Also pictured are auctioneer Norm Peterson and Eldo Bentley of Twin Valley, a former national president of the Milking Shorthorn association and a frequent visitor and exhibitor at Northwest Dairy day and the Pennington county fair in Thief River Falls.
